DELAY IN ARRESTS IN LYNCHING CASE AT COLUMBIA IS CAUSING COMMENT

Only One of Five Men Indicted as Members of Mob That Hanged Negro Last Sunday Under Bond and He Surrendered to the Sheriff Voluntarily.

OFFICIALS ARE SILENT AS TO REASON

Feeling Among Negroes of the Community That No Real Effort to Obtain Justice Is Being Made, Said to Exist.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 5.—There is a mysterious secrecy about the courthouse here these last few days and questions to the officials are greeted with refusals to make statements of any kind.

Although indictments were returned against five persons by the grand jury last Thursday in the investigation of the lynching of James T. Scott, negro employe of the University of Missouri, early last Sunday because of alleged guilt in an attack upon a 14-year-old white girl, not an arrest has been made by the Sheriff.

Hamp Rowland, a farmer, living near Harrisburg, as has been told, gave himself up on an indictment charging obstructing an officer. He came in to the office with an escort of friends, and there were several women among the signers of his $5000 bond.

Sheriff Silent on Arrests.

"I have nothing to say, absolutely nothing," Sheriff Fred C. Brown replies to queries as to why arrests are not being made. "I cannot answer you," he avers, in response to the question, "Have the warrants for arrest been issued?"

The Circuit Clerk told reporters today he had been instructed by Circuit Judge Walker not to give out information. He would not say whether he had issued warrants on the indictments. Prosecuting Attorney Hulen, who obtained indictments in short order, says the matter at present is out of his hands.

"There won't be any arrests today," Deputy Sheriff Wilson Hall, jailer, told reporters. Asked how he knew this. "Won't be, that's all," he replied. "We haven't got the warrants down in this office. If we had, I'd be able to tell you, maybe who is wanted. I don't know myself who the indictments are against."

Negroes Not Satisfied.

This atmosphere has caused the negroes to feel that all is not being done that could be done to see that justice is obtained. Akers Scott, of St. Louis brother of the murdered negro, who has been here several days trying to arrange the Scott family's affairs, feels the officials "could do better."

The Rev. J. L. Caston, negro pastor of the Baptist Church of which James Scott was a member holds this sentiment. "I asked the Sheriff to remove James to another town," he said. "The Sheriff didn't think it necessary."

Rumors of race troubles over the lynching, forming a sinister undercurrent, apparently have no foundation. The negroes seem inclined to forget the affair, or at least pass it up. Caston today issued the following statement in this regard:

"Much speculation and many wild rumors, more false than true, are being indulged in by irresponsible persons as an aftermath of the lynching of James Scott. I wish to appeal to the reason of the members of my race and our white people to desist from gossip and loose talking.

Too Much Talk Dangerous.

"Race feelings are intensified sometimes to the breaking point because people talk too much. Regardless of the merits or demerits of this case we must arise to the crisis and maintain a steady course onward in the development of our community.

"As negroes, we are positively agreed upon the principle that law and order must be maintained at any cost. My appeal to our white friends is that they be as anxious as we to

MONARCHISTS HOLD BIG DEMONSTRATION IN SUBURB OF BERLIN

(Copyright, 1923.)

BERLIN, May 5.

THE Reichswehr Barracks at Lichterfelde, a Berlin suburb, became the center of a monstrous Monarchist demonstration last night, when Gens. von Hindenburg and Ludendorff and Prince Eitel Friedrich arrived in full military dress at what once was the barracks of the Kaiser's Third Guard Regiment.

They came to attend the inauguration and unveiling of a regimental war monument. With the old imperial colors flying from the barracks flagpole, a reinforced Republican Reichswehr presenting arms and a crowd shouting "Long live the Hohenzollerns, long live the old Prussian spirit," the scene was anything but Republican.

Later in the evening thousands of school children and Monarchist enthusiasts formed a torchlight parade in honor of the distinguished guests.

TAXICAB DRIVERS "DO THEIR STUFF" IN "STAND" WAR

Free-for-All Fight, With Bricks and Jack Handles, Marks Jockeying for Position Before Hotels.

Taxicabs galore—painted yellow, brown, red and white or with a diamond design—took part in a jockeying for business at two downtown hotels yesterday afternoon and last night, in which their chauffeurs resorted to more or less skillful maneuvering of the machines, angry words, muttered threats, throwing of a few bricks and wielding of jack handles.

It was a development of the efforts of the five "independent" companies to get the use of desirable stands, close to sources of "fares," now used by the company operating Yellow cabs. A temporary restraining order, barring enforcement of an ordinance empowering the Director of Streets and Sewers to grant exclusive stand privileges, was issued Friday.

Yesterday afternoon a miscellaneous collection of taxicabs arrixed at Hotel Statler, which had had in effect an exclusive stand for Yellow cabs at the Ninth and St. Charles streets corner. This was the center of the ensuing trouble.

Free-for-All Fight.

The first arrest there was that of William Burns, Kirkwood, driver of a Yellow cab, at 4:30 p. m. Policemen reported he tried to squeeze his machine in front of a Brown taxicab. The two cars were scraped together. Burns was charged with careless driving and released on bond. He went back to the fray and someone hit him on the jaw, it was reported. Oscar E. Cook, 3304 Ohio avenue, another Yellow chauffeur ,saw this and took up the fight. In a free-for-all that followed, he was struck twice by flying bricks.

Police reported that Cook then struck Ernest (Daredevil) Borchers, 3619 Cass avenue, driver of a Red Top cab, on the head with a "jimmy" that had served as a jack handle. Borchers, who won his nickname by his reputation as a speeder and who was paroled from a penitentiary term for assault and attempted robbery by Acting Governor Lloyd, Dec. 20, last, suffered scalp lacerations and a possible fracture of the skull and was taken to the city hospital.

Other Chauffeurs Arrested.

Cook, who was arrested, admitted hitting Borchers, the police said. These other chauffeurs were arrested also: Walter Osiek, 1554 Nebraska avenue; Harry Alder, 3654 Finney avenue, and Burns was rearrested.

At 6:30 p. m. Sam Bierman of 1016 Leonard avenue, driver of a Yellow, had just loaded a passenger and stepped from his seat when August Zieberlin, 846 North Spring avenue, demanded that he move on. Bierman got a weapon resembling a "jimmy" ready for action, but was arrested on a charge of peace disturbance.

Spectators Lean Out Windows.

It all provided something of a circus for numerous spectators who gathered on St. Charles street and leaned out of widows of adjacent buildings. A squad of a dozen or more policemen was hastily assem-

ABELL LEGACIES BASED ON YEARS OF EMPLOYMENT

Devotion to Friends Is Explanation Given for the Will of Official of Rice-Stix Co.

ESTATE VALUED AT $100,000 TO $150,000

Two Salesmen to Get About One-Third Each, and Others to Receive $5000 to $15,000.

Melville W. Abell, an officer of the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., who died last Wednesday, loved his friends and his friends loved him.

That is one way in which his associates explain his will, in which he bequeathed his entire estate, valued at $100,000 to $150,000, to seven faithful employes under him—six salesmen and his stenographer. Another explanation lies in his deep interest in his business, about which his life centered.

Abell was 55 years old. He had been an invalid for several years prior to his death, but continued going to his office until two months ago. He died of pneumonia in his suite at the Majestic Hotel. The Rev. W. C. Bitting, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, who did not know Abell, but was told of the latter's character by friends, spoke at the funeral services at an undertaking establishment Friday, saying he wished it had been his privilege to know the man.

Fellow directors and heads of departments of the dry goods company were honorary pallbearers and salesmen were active pallbearers. Burial was in Valhalla Cemetery.

Abell was born in Mattoon, Ill., and was raised on a farm. When about 16 years old he went to Oklahoma. There he clerked in a store for a while. Next he came to St. Louis and was a clerk for a hat company. Later he sold hats in Texas for the Rothschild Bros. Hat Co.

In 1904 he went to the Rice-Stix company, continuing as a Texas drummer. Eventually he became salesmanager for South and West Texas, New Mexico and Arizona, and 10 years ago he was made a director of the company.

He Encouraged Employes.

"Abell was a natural-born leader," W. E. Simpson, a vice president of the company, said yesterday. "When he put men in positions he encouraged and aided them. They looked up to him as a father. Yes, he knew how to handle men. His attachment for his men grew through their business associations.

"Take the case of Paxton Catlin (the chief beneficiary of the estate). Twenty years ago he sold papers and shined shoes at our front door. I gave him a job here and he worked under Abell. He now is assistant

LENINE HAS RESIGNED HIMSELF TO DEATH

"I Don't Want Any of Their Professional Manners; I Know I Am Dying," He Says, Trying to Keep Doctors Out of Door—Sister at His Bedside.

DOOR IS LOCKED TO KEEP PHYSICIANS OUT

His Death Not Likely to Cause Overthrow of Soviets, but No One Has Been Found to Take Place of Premier.

By SAMUEL SPEWACK,
A Staff Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1923.)

RIGA, May 5. — Lenine has resigned himself to death. The most distinguished physicians of Europe are baffled more by the Russian Premier's apathy than the strange malady that robbed him of his speech, the use of body and mind.

From members of the household I obtained an intimate account of the Kremlin sickroom before I left Russia. It is a sound-proof chamber, simply furnished, where once Lenine used to sit in the company of his beloved kittens puzzling out knotty problems.

With Lenine is his sister, Mary Illyana, 35 years old, of peasant features and peasant dress. Mme. Lenine, always of a retiring nature, sits mainly in an adjoining room alone in sorrow. The sister takes active charge of the sick room.

For days Lenine had indicated he was annopyed at the coming and going of the physicians. He managed to mumble to one of the physicians who had said soothingly that he would soon be well: "Don't use professional manners on me. I know I am dying."

Sister at Bedside Constantly.

Mary Illyana is overwrought. She did not leave the bedside all last week. Early one morning while she was sitting half awake there came a knock from a group of doctors. Lenine's partly alert face witched. Illyana sprang to the door and locked it, but the knocking continued.

"I won't let you in," she shrieked. "You see he wants to die. Leave him in peace."

She fell to weeping hysterically, and it was not until hours afterward that the doctors got in to attend the patient.

The greatest secrecy is maintained as to the nature of Lenine's illness. It is known the left side of his body is paralyzed and that he also suffers from cataract of the lungs. One high source told me it is a strange disease caused by the bursting of tiny veins in the forehead and that the illness is progressive.

Overthrow of Soviets Unlikely.

Lenine's death will have no immediate influence on the course of Russia. Several sanguine "Whites" see in its approach an opportunity for overthrowing the soviets, but the impartial observer concedes the soviets are here to stay.

Seeking Lenine's successor was the real purpose of the communist congress, just concluded. War Minister Trotzky, who made a survey of industry, endeavored to acquire control of it as well as the army—which would make him the biggest man in Russia—but he failed.

Power lies in the hands of a group of four—Stalin, Trotzky, Zinovieff and Kameneff. They have arrayed themselves under the name of Lenine. Krassen, the best-liked soviet negotiator abroad, failed hopelessly in his efforts to have Russia pay her debts to countries with which she desired to open relations and hand over big industries to foreigners to save them from ruin. For this Krassin is called a Menshevik and, though he still remains in the party, his influence is gone.

Policy of the Ruling Four.

Stories of splits in the communist ranks are much distorted by anti-soviet sources. No new wings have been formed. The ruling four have decided on what we would call a

AMERICAN FLAG TO BE MADE MORE ARTISTIC BY A CUT IN LENGTH

Flag Standardization Conferees Recommend Reduction of 12.1 Per Cent in Greater Dimension.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The American flag is too long in proportion to its width (or too broad in proportion to its depth) to be artistic, and a reduction of 12.1 per cent in the length of the present standard size has been indicated by the Fine Arts Commission to be the most artistic proportion.

In consultation with a committee of Government officials appointed for the standardization of the flag, the commission decided upon a ratio of 1.67 to 1, instead of the present 1.90 to 1. That would make the standardized flag about two-thirds longer than its width. The decision was reached through tests of various sized flags flown from the Arlington amphitheater flagpole.

SPANISH KING IN ANTWERP

By the Associated Press.

ANTWERP, May 5.—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain paid a short visit to Antwerp today, arriving in a torpedo boat. At the city hall they were presented with a rose by a young girl, while a chorus of 60 girls sang the Spanish anthem.

The King and Queen departed on a special train for Brussels. They will go to Ypres and the devastated regions Sunday.

CONGRESSMAN BLANTON INDICTED ON CHARGE OF CRIMINAL LIBEL

Warrant for His Arrest Issued—Charge Based on Article Concerning Former Congressman Callaway.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Tex., May 5.—Congressman Thomas L. Blanton of Abilene was charged by indictment with criminal libel in the report of the grand jury returned to the county clerk of Comanche County and a warrant was issued for his arrest and sent to the Sheriff of Taylor County last week, but no return has been made up to today, it is said in a report from Comanche.

The allegation of criminal libel is in connection with an article published in the Cisco Morning News on July 16, 1922, in which Blanton is alleged to have charged former Congressman Oscar Callaway with having urged his friends not to buy Liberty bonds during the World War or to conserve food and with having sought to obstruct the selective draft law. Each of the above-named clauses is made a separate count.

WAUSAU, Wis., May 5.—Hit in the mouth by a pitched ball while playing baseball today, Charles Swan, 14, died on the way to a hospital, where his mother, Mrs. Helen Swan, is a nurse. The impact of the ball caused a rupture of a blood vessel at the base of the brain, according to physicians.

12 GREATEST WOMEN IN AMERICA NAMED BY COMMITTEE OF WOMEN

Jane Addams Heads List of "Those Who Have Contributed Most to Betterment of World."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Here are the 12 greatest living American women, in the opinion of a Special Committee of the National League of Women Voters which was appointed to select such a list:

Jane Addams, philanthropist; Cecilia Beaux, painter; Carrie Chapman Catt, politics; Anna Botsford Comstock, natural history; Minnie Maddern Fiske, stage; Louise Homer, music; Julia Lathrop, child welfare; Florence Rena Sabin, anatomy; M. Carri Thomas, education; Martha Van Rensselaer, home economics; Edith Wharton, literature, and Anna Jump Cannon, astronomy.

In making public these names, the committee declared it was "humanly impossible" to know who the really greatest women in the country were, and that the selections had been made on the basis of those who had contributed most in their fields to the betterment of the world.

The selections were made, it was explained, at the request of Senorita Mandujano, a Chilean delegate to the Pan-American Conference of Women at Baltimore a year ago, who desired to write about the American women for the women of South America.

FRENCH REPLY TO GERMANS TO BE GIVEN OUT TODAY

Franco-Belgian Note Is Delivered to All Allied Embasssies and American Embassy in Paris—It Will Be Sent to Berlin Today.

BELGIAN COUNCIL REJECTS PROPOSAL

Liberals in Reichstag Ready to Use Pressure on Cuno if Poincare Gives Any Opportunity for an Understanding.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 5.—The Franco-Belgian reply to the recent German reparations proposals was delivered to all the allied embassies and the American embassy here this afternoon, but the Government has decided not to transmit it to Germany until tomorrow afternoon. The French note will be made public tomorrow evening.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, May 5.—The Belgian Council of Ministers today examined officially the German reparation proposals and unanimously decided they were unacceptable.

Liberals in Reichstag Would Take Any Opportunity for Understanding.

(Copyright, 1923.)

BERLIN, May 5.—Political circles here show much anxiety to learn the contents of the Franco-Belgian reply to Chancellor Cuno's reparations note. If Premier Poincare's answer leaves the slightest chance for an ultimate understanding, pressure in the Reichstag will be so strong Herr Cuno will either yield or quit. The Liberal Reichstag parties are determined not to let a single opportunity pass to save Germany from inevitable, ultimate collapse that will come if the present situation is continued much longer.

Gustav Stressmann, leader of the Industrial People's party, is doing his utmost to form a large coalition, including the Socialists, to work either with or against Herr Cuno, depending on the attitude the Cabinet takes toward M. Poincare's reply.

It is learned Germany is willing to meet France half way in the matter of prestige in the Ruhr. That is if the French remove everything resembling military apparatus, Berlin will accept the presence of a civil control commission and a coal and coke commission. This Government could then tell the people the status quo has been restored. The French, on the other hand, could say Germany had granted civil control, which was all France wanted and which Germany refused when troops entered the Ruhr.

From the economic point of view, the belief is general that once French and German industrials get together, they will be able to come to an understanding, as was the case in the Stinnes-Lubersea and Rathenau-Loucheur agreements.

Krupp Directors Plan to Carry Case to Highest Court.

By the Associated Press.

WERDEN, May 5.—The German directors of the Krupp Works plan to carry the case to the highest court of appeals in France if they are convicted by the present court-martial, it was announced today by their Swiss attorney, M. Moriaud, chief counsel for the defense. The appeal, he said, would be based on international law and would raise the question of the legality of the French commander's order, which the Germans are charged with violating.

The appeal also would contend that the French have no right in the Ruhr, and will plead, as in the present trial, that the directors are not criminally responsible for the acts of the Krupp workmen. The defendants apparently are hopeful that they will have a better chance on appeal, should the court-martial find them guilty, than did the Thyssen group, whose conviction at Mayence was quickly confirmed by the High Court of Cassation.

M. Moriaud, whom the Germans regard as the highest Swiss authority on international law, will be reinforced in such appeal by Dr. Grimm, of counsel for the defense, which pleaded for Thyssen; he is professor of international law at Muenster.

DELAY IN ARRESTS IN LYNCHING AT COLUMBIA CAUSING COMMENT

Plans for the Scott family are indefinite. Akers Scott had a telephone conversation Monday with Gov. Hyde, he says, about obtaining aid from the State in supporting the family. He says the Governor did not say whether this aid could be given or not.

James Scott came to Columbia about three years ago. He had been married before and left in Chicago three children with his second wife, from whom he was divorced. The children are two girls, 15 and 10, and a boy, 8 years old. They came here for the funeral, and are to return to Chicago. Mrs. Scott, who was married to Scott about two years ago, has been teaching in the negro grade school. She plans to remain here.

Lynched Negro's Lawyers First to Warn Governor of Situation.

It has developed through inquiry as to why there was no official action by State officials or National Guard officers to protect James T. Scott, the negro lynched in Columbia, that the only notice Gov. Hyde or other State officials had of the possibility of a lynching was a telephone message to the Governor at midnight Saturday night after the mob had been working nearly an hour.

The call to the Governor was by George L. Vaughn, negro attorney for Scott, who resides in St. Louis. Vaughan had reached Columbia only a few hours before the lynching, having gone there to prepare for the defense of Scott, who was held on a charge of attempting to attack a 14-year-old girl.

"About 10 o'clock I went to the office of Mr. Anderson, a Columbia lawyer, who also was engaged to defend Scott," Vaughn told a Post-Dispatch reporter. "We had been at work going over the evidence nearly an hour when Mr. Anderson was called to the door, where he held a conversation with somebody for several minutes. As Mr. Anderson came back into the room I heard the other man say: 'Be careful.'

Told of Mob by Deputy.

"Mr. Anderson then told the Rev. J. Lyle Caston, pastor of the First Baptist Church (Colored) of Columbia, and me that 'the Deputy just told me a mob is coming to get Scott.'

"We turned out the lights of the office, which is on the fourth floor of an office building overlooking the courthouse lawn. We watched men hurrying across the lawn toward the jail.

"After a few minutes we went down to the street and to Caston's house to see that his family was safe. Then we went back to the courthouse. The mob was trying to break into the jail. After a little bit I decided to call up Gov. Hyde. We went back to Caston's house and put in the call.

"In a few minutes the operator reported the Governor was asleep and asked if the matter was of sufficient importance to awaken him. We assured her it was and in two or three minutes the Governor was on the telephone. I told him who I was, that the mob even then was battering at the jail door.

"'Do you mean to say it is breaking into the jail now?' the Governor asked.

"'Yes,' I replied, 'and nobody is doing anything to stop it I think you ought to do something.'

"'Yes,' the Governor said. 'Let's see, what can I do. Oh, yes; there is a battery in Columbia. Have the operator connect me with the commander.'

Militia Didn't Show Up.

"It was just about 12 o'clock when we got the Governor, not five minutes either way. In about 15 minutes, or about 12:15, the Governor called us and told us he had reached the commander of the battery, and that the militia would soon be there. It was just about an hour later when the mob got Scott out of the jail and took him to the bridge and lynched him. The militia did not show up at all."

Gov. Hyde the day following the lynching said he was called at midnight in Jefferson City from Columbia by someone he understood was a St. Louis traveling man and that in the telephone conversation he received his first intimation that there was probability of a lynching. He said he communicated with the commander of the battery at Columbia and then with Adjutant-General Raupp, who was in Jefferson City. Within about an hour, he said, they were notified by Col. John F. Williams in Columbia that the negro had been lynched before members of the battery could be aroused from their beds at their homes.

Col. Williams told a Post-Dispatch correspondent in Columbia that his first knowledge of the mob or of the possibility of a lynching was about 12:20 Sunday morning when he received a telephone call from the Governor. He said he got into communication with Capt. Campbell of the Battery and that they hurried to the Armory, which is across the street from the jail, and began calling members of the Battery at their homes. They had succeeded in reaching only four Sergeants when they saw from the windows of the Armory that the mob had possession of the negro and was taking him away.

At that time, which he fixed at 1:10, they were in telephone communication with the Adjutant-General. They informed that official that the mob had the negro, and were told by the Adjutant-General, Col. Williams said, that in view of the fact that the mob had the negro there was no need to call the battery, as it would be mobilized too late for any service in stopping the lynching.

As was published in the Post-Dispatch several days ago, Sheriff Brown said he had had conferences with Mayor McDonnell of Columbia several times during the week preceding the lynching, and that it was agreed there was no apparent occasion for any special action to be taken, as they did not believe there would be violence done the negro.

Statement of Mayor.

McDonnell said yesterday that he talked to the Sheriff several times, but that there was no formal conference on the matter.

"The Sheriff asked me what I thought he should do," McDonnell said. "I took the view that the prisoner was a county prisoner and that the matter was one for the county officers to handle. I told the Sheriff I didn't know what he should do."

"Dr. Charles A. Ellwood, professor of Sociology at the State University, met me on the street Saturday morning and asked me if I did not think the negro should be removed from the county. I didn't express an opinion. I did not believe there could be a lynching in Columbia."

Dry Leader, in Sorrowful Soliloquy, Poetically Flays Enforcement Repeal

Wayne Wheeler Bitterly Denounces Action of New York Legislature in Withdrawing State Aid.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Dry rejoicing over the Supreme Court's ship liquor verdict was succeeded by bitter sorrowing today because of the New York State Legislature's repeal of the enforcement code. Treasury officials, believing it a demoralizing blow, planned to rush new forces to the State to offset the withdrawal of State aid. The wets exulted at this first rout of the State codes. The drys were amazingly bitter, Wayne Wheeler, chief propagandist for the Antisaloon League, retorting with that quotation credited to former Collector of the Port Byron R. Newton, which winds up, "New York, thy name is delirium."

Dry Leader Graham of Illinois, who aspires to be the next G. O. P. helmsman in the House, blamed Gov. Smith, and called it a disgrace to the State. "A glorious victory for the advocates of personal liberty," countered Capt. W. H. Stayton, heading the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Political Effect Discussed.

Mixed with the rival views is the conviction that the political consequences are of supreme significance, since it is felt that the issue of enforcement is now put up to President Harding so squarely that a dry plank will be forced upon him in the next presidential race. His recent acts and utterances have shown him to be veering toward the drys, it is pointed out, but as he must now champion enforcement in a State where that is repudiated, he can no longer hold the middle of the road position he has maintained in the past.

Nothing was more eloquent of the dry's boundless resentment than the verse cited by Wheeler, which goes:

"Vulgar of manners, overfed,
Overdressed and underfed,
Heartless, Godless, hell's delight,
Rude by day and lewd by night.
Bedwarfed the man, overgrown the brute,
Ruled by boss and prostitute.
Purple-robed and pauper-clad,
Raving, rotten money-mad.
A squirming herd in mammon's mesh,
A wilderness of human flesh.
Crazed with avarice, lust and rum,
New York, thy name is delirium."

Wheeler had this temperate retort mimeographed and broadcast, prefaced by the remark that "the action of the New York Legislature is the only legislative consolation prize the wets have won this year." He reviewed the dry gains of the year, and, as introduction to the verse, added: "New York is in a class by itself and furnishes no criterion for law-abiding states on the question of prohibition. Its characterization by former Collector of the Port Byron R. Newton, still holds good."

"Other States Will Act."

Other states will follow New York's lead, Capt. Stayton confidently predicted. The Volstead act, he declared, "has now been rendered practically impotent in New York."

"The country as a whole has come to recognize the complete farcicality of the alleged prohibition enforcement," said the anti-prohibition association's announcement on the subject. "In Washington no less than New York the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act are treated with undisguised contempt. The reign of lawlessness and the millennium of the bootlegger are with us. These are the sole concrete results of Volsteadism. No wonder that the sovereign State of New York withdraws from participation in the farce.

"The action of the New York Legislature means definitely that Volsteadism cannot hope to be enforced."

Prohibition Commissioner Haynes had his publicity forces circulate a preparatory commentary stressing dry gains elsewhere and "regretting" that New York should join the only two other States—Massachusetts and Maryland—which have not adopted enforcement codes.

"It only means that the Federal organization in New York will have to assume a little more responsibility," said Commissioner Haynes, "and provide Federal agencies to make up the loss of whatever co-operation may have been provided by the State forces."

Treasury to Protest.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon expressed the view that enforcment would unquestionably be more difficult now in New York, already the source of greatest anxiety for the prohibition agencies of the Government. Treasury officials said that if Gov. Smith holds open hearings before signing the repeal the prohibition department would be there to protest.

At present 192 Federal prohibition agents are employed in the New York territory, according to Commissioner Haynes, and in February there were 50 general agents. All are now consolidated under the leadership of the zone chief for the New York and New Jersey territory.

Enforcement Officials Fear Liquor Influx From Canada.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Although Prohibition Commissioner Haynes declared today there would be no let-down in prohibition enforcement in New York State, the general view here was that the action of the New York Legislature in repealing the State enforcement code would make far more difficult the task of Federal forces.

A chief concern of enforcement officers was that with the State border patrol withdrawn, the "rum fleet" which has been active off the New York and New Jersey coasts might transfer their operations to Canadian waters in hope of finding easy access for their cargoes into New York across the international border.

With the active co-operation of the coast guard service, prohibition officials believed they were in a fair way to cut off the major portion of New York's present liquor supply from the sea. Should the "rum fleet" transfer its base to Canadian waters it was suggested that there might be a renewal of negotiations with the British Government looking to its co-operation in the enforcement of the prohibition laws.

Meantime another phase of the prohibition question—the Supreme Court ban on bringing liquor into American waters—is regarded as likely to become a subject of diplomatic exchanges. French Ambassador Jusserand discussed this subject with Secretary Hughes today at the State Department, but with what result, did not appear.

The embassies of all of the foreign Governments still were without instructions today regarding the Supreme Court's decision. Copies of that portion of the decision which applies to foreign ships were given to them yesterday by the State Department for the information of their Governments and it was not expected that any formal protest would be made until the exact wording of the decision had been studied abroad.

BISHOP BLAKE OFFERS AID FOR RUSSIAN PASTORS

American Prelate, Before Departure From Moscow, Proffers Financial Help for Schools of Enlightenment.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, May 5.—Bishop Edgar Blake has presented an offer of considerable financial aid from the American Methodists for the "organization of schools of enlightenment for Russian pastors," it developed at this afternoon's session of the all-Russian church conclave.

Bishop Blake, who is leaving Russia tonight, told the conclave that he regretted his departure, but that he would carry to the Bishops in America the feelings and good wishes expressed by the conclave. The metropolitan Peter, in replying, expressed thanks for the help in organizing schools for the Russian pastors, who, he said, "have lost their source of enlightenment since the closing of the Russian church schools."

Vedensky Made Archbishop.

Clad in a glittering robe of mitre of white, red and gold the revolutionary priest Vedensky was installed by the All-Russian Church conclave this morning as Archbishop of Moscow.

Three bearded metropolitans in purple and gold and five Bishops wearing striking robes participated in the ceremony which followed the ritual used by the church for centuries, including the use of holy water, the display of the cross and all the symbols of the old orthodoxy.

Prosecuted Tikhon.

The new Archbishop is the man who conducted the prosecution which brought about the unfrocking of Patriarch Tikhon, and who some months ago was stoned by women in front of his Petrograd church for his efforts to overthrow the old religion and accept the communistic revolution as a step forward toward a new Christianity.

Vedensky, with the eyes closed and his hands folded, made a dramatic speech to the conclave in which he declared that "the church must break with its old traditions and associate with the new social reconstruction." He told the assembly that when young he had studied antireligious philosophy and had tried hard to become an atheist, but that his faith was too strong.

The Pravda, communist organ, in an editorial today, says:

"It is self-understood that our party shall not give its blessing even to such a religion as is trying to bless our party, just as it does not give the communistic label to that group of Bourgeosie which abandons the old frame of mind and supports us."

This is interpreted as meaning that while the new church may label the communists practical Christians, the communist party refuses to consider any religion as communism.

CECIL IS DUBIOUS AS TO U. S. JOINING THE LEAGUE SOON

Tells Committee in England, "Let Us Not Look Too Much to Other Side of Atlantic."

By ARTHUR E. MANN
A Staff Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1923.)

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., May 5.—Lord Robert Cecil today returned from the United States with the belief that country will not enter the League of Nations in the near future.

This was the distinct impression I obtained when I saw him aboard the Olympic on his arrival here, both from what he said and from questions he preferred not to answer.

"The subject is such a delicate one I do not care to discuss it in this informal conversation," was his reply to a question as to when America was likely to enter the League. But his opinion on this point slipped out in his reply to an address of welcome by the head of the Southampton branch of the League of Nations Union.

The chairman had read with evident triumph a clipping from a London newspaper reporting a recent speech of Secretary Hoover in which the American was made to say he favored the United States joining the League and the World Court. The report added that this speech had President Harding's sanction. During the reading, Lord Robert stood with bowed head, smiling cryptically. When the time came for his reply he declared:

"May I say just a few words of caution? Do not expect sudden results in America. The account of what Mr. Hoover said is just a little exaggerated. Do not let us look too much to the other side of the Atlantic. After all our work for the League is to be done here."

Later during conversation Lord Robert, after paying a fine tribute to the hospitality extended to him in America, said: "But I do not think it would be fair to say that all who were so hospitable to me agreed with everything I said."

Farmers Interested in Europe.

He was much impressed with the growing interest he said he found among Middle Western farmers in European affairs. He said:

"There is a strong feeling among the agricultural population of the Middle West that disturbances in Europe and elsewhere in the world have something to do with the agricultural depression in America. If the price of wheat is low in Europe, then the price is also low in America."

Despite the anti-League sentiment in the United States, Lord Robert said he found everyone, including the strongest "irreconcilables" thoroughly in favor of anything they thought would make for world peace. This sentiment, he continued, has so far crystallized into three main groups.

First, he found those who favor outlawing war by making it illegal and creating an international court, though without power for compulsory settlement of international disputes.

The second group favors codification of international law. Lord Robert opposes this because it "puts a stop to all changes in international law for many years."

The third scheme, he said, is that of Senator Pepper, who appeared to favor some sort of United States co-operation with the league, provided its organization is modified, this modification including elimination of Articles X and XVI from the covenant.

Thinks Plans Unsatisfactory.

These and similar plans, Lord Robert said, were substitutes which certain American groups proposed in place of the league, but that of Senator Pepper wasthe only one professing to cover the same ground as the league. He added he did not think they were satisfactory, and he had returned to England more than ever convinced of the league's necessity.

Asked about the German reparation note, Lord Robert explained he had seen only brief news summaries. He still believes the league should take over settlement of the reparation problem.

Shortly after he landed, Lord Robert left for his country home to rest for a few days and begin his report on his American trip for league and official quarters here.

manager of that department. His attachment to Abell was great; he helped nurse Abell during his illness.

"Another salesman under him was U. O. Whaley, who has been with us about as long as Abell. He will share largely in the estate. Four other salesmen, who haven't been here so long, get legacies graded according to the length of their employment. To show you Abell's loyalty to the house, his will provided that any bequest should be void if the legatee is no longer with the firm. Abell had no near relatives here.

"He was square in all his dealings. He was loved by all who came in contact with him and especially by his customers. He started life as a poor boy, but he made his mark in this house. He always earned a large salary, and was one of the big men of Rice-Stix in sales."

Provisions of Will.

Ernest W. Stix, president of the company, who is in Europe, and a trust company are executors of the estate. The will will not be filed for several days, in advance of which Simpson declined to announce its exact provisions. However, it is understood the bequests are substantially as follows:

Catlin and Whaley are to receive approximately equal shares, constituting about one-third of the estate each, but Catlin, who lives in St. Louis, is made heir to any residue after the other bequests are paid. J. B. Kreusch, Charles Kirsch, R. A. Wirth and Henry Brooks, salesmen, will get amounts said to range from $5000 to $15,000. Abell's stenographer for the last 15 years, Miss Cecilia Heffernan of St. Louis, is to get a sum said to be $5000. The estate, it is understood, consists largely of Rice-Stix stock.

Abell's wife, who obtained a divorce a number of years ago, is not mentioned in the will. She is beneficiary of a considerable amount of insurance that Abell carried, Simpson said. They had no children. She married again and her second husband died. Her home is in Paris, Tex. She and Abell had remained friendly.

Regarded Abell as Father.

Catlin, who seems to have been Abell's closest friend, said yesterday that he regarded Abell as a father.

"He saved my life years ago," Catlin said. "I suffered a general breakdown and he put me on a train and sent me away until I recovered. I can't tell you how I miss his counsel. He was a student and a great reader, not of fiction, but of commercial subjects and world affairs. His hobby was his busines, but reading was a favorite pastime."

A letter to company salesmen, announcing Abell's death, ended: "His judgment was valued alike by the executives of the company and those, who sought his advice on personal problems. His life was an example of noble devotion to the highest principles of business; his loyalty to his friends was unswerving. To those who have been priviliged with us to enjoy Mr. Abell's friendship we offer our deepest sympathy."

COMMISSIONERS START FOR MEXICO TONIGHT

Warren and Payne Get Final Instructions as to Negotiations Looking Toward Recognition.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Negotiations between representatives of the Washington and Obregon Governments to speed up restoration of friendly relations will be opened formally in Mexico City on May 14, it was learned today after the two American commissioners had received final instructions from Secretary Hughes.

Charles B. Warren and John Barton Payne, selected to represent the United States, will be accompanied upon their departure tomorrow night for the Mexican capital by way of New Orleans and Laredo by Matthew Hanna, chief of the Mexican Affairs Bureau of the State Department. They are to arrive in Mexico City May 11. Hanna, however, probably will return to Washington within a week or so after the conferences begin and will be at the service of Secretary Hughes, acting in an advisory capacity on Mexican affairs during the discussions in Mexico City.

Prior to his call at the State Department today, Warren conferred with President Harding. He plans to see the President again tomorrow.

Today's conference with Secretary Hughes concluded a series of meetings between him and the two commissioners at which all existing difficulties between the United States and Mexico were discussed thoroughly and full information for instructions relating to the question of recognition was prepared for use in the negotiations.

FORMER CONGRESSMAN FOUND GUILTY OF DISORDERLY CONDUCT

Attorney for Herrick Has Week to Prepare Appeal to District of Columbia Court.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Standing room was at a premium in Police Court today when former Representative Manuel Herrick (Okla.) was found guilty of disorderly conduct. No sentence was imposed, one week being allowed for his attorney to prepare an appeal to the district of Columbia Court of Appeals.

Miss Ethel Chrane, a Government employe who once worked for Herrick in his office at the Capitol, testified that he was annoying her on the street and that she called to Traffic Policeman W. H. Estes for assistance. Judge McMahon held that the real basis for the complaint was a charge that Herrick had sworn at the policeman.

Miss Chrane alleged that Herrick attempted to persuade her to accept a bottle of perfume and that she resented his attention.

Herrick testified he was connected with a local detective agency and was going about his duties when he met Miss Chrane. Knowing her, he attempted to give her some advice, he said, and then she resented it and threatened to call an officer.

BRITAIN SENDS STRONG NOTE OF PROTEST TO RUSSIA

It Warns Moscow Against Interference With British Policy in Asia.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, May 5.—The British government's strong note of protest to the Soviet government, of which an intimation was given in the House of Commons several days ago, by Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs Ronald McNeill, has been dispatched to Moscow by special courier, it was learned tonight. In effect, it is a warning that Russia would best not interfere with British policy in Asia.

On the surface, it is a very stiff protest against Russia's action on a number of questions, including the seizure of British trawlers inside the 12-mile limit and the imprisonment of the trawlers' sailors, and against anti-British propaganda and espionage generally.

112 UNDESIRABLES AT ELLIS ISLAND FOR DEPORTATION

Number Taken in Nation-Wide Roundup Includes 14 Women and 10 Children, 30 Insane Persons.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Caught in a nation-wide roundup of undesirable aliens, 112 deportees arrived today from the West and were taken to Ellis Island. Among those scheduled for deportation were 14 women and 10 children. There were also 30 insane persons and 20 criminals. Most of the undesirables were from Portland, Ore., Seattle and Spokane, Wash.

As the special train moved eastward, others seized in the roundup were taken on from Kansas City, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Chicago, Cleveland and Pittsburg. There were but few revolutionists or extremists in the party, offiicals said.

LONDON, May 5.—King George and Queen Mary, with a retinue of eight persons, including Admiral Sir Charles Madden, the King's first and principal naval aide de camp, and Gen., the Earl of Cavan, Chief of Staff of the army, left for Rome this afternoon for their visit of state to the Italian court—the longest foreign tour they have undertaken since the war. They are due to return May 14.

SURRENDERS ON SMALL JURY "FIXING" CHARGE

"Umbrella Mike" Boyle Refuses to Testify Before Grand Jury After Warrant Is Withdrawn.

By the Associated Press.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., May 5.—"Umbrella Mike" Boyle, former labor leader and accused of having been the head of an alleged cvonspiracy to "fix" the jury which acquitted Gov. Len Small, surrendered before Judge Claire Edwards today after a month's search for him had been futile.

Boyle was taken immediately before the grand jury which has been sifting the charges and Col. A. V. Smith, State's Attorney of Lake County, withdrew a bench warrant which had never been served. Boyle refused to testify and Col. Smith said he would take the record into court next Saturday with a motion to have Boyle held in contempt.

Witnesses examined during the day were called principally, it was said, to learn the whereabouts of Ben Newmark, listed as Deputy Fire Marshal, who also is sought in connection with the charges. At the request of Col. Smith, a writ of attachment was issued for Hubert Nertney, said to be a commission broker at the stockyards, who also has been accused.

Judge Robert K. Welch, of Rockford, Ill., was agreed upon as the Judge to preside at the trial of J. Bernie Field, who is charged with accepting money and a State job in return for his vote of "not guilty" at the Small trial. Judge Edwards, who presided at the Small trial and is now sitting in the grand jury investigation, expressed approval of the selection.

CANVASS OF HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS ON FILM FAVORITES

Wallace Reid Was Most Popular Player, and Mary Pickford Led Women.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 5. — Wallace Reid, who died recently in California, was the most popular motion picture player among high school students, according to a report made public today by Clarence Arthur Perry, of the Russell Sage Foundation, and chairman of the National Committee of Better Films of New York.

Mary Pickford, Norma Talmadge and Constance Talmadge are the favorite actresses, with Rodolph Valentino and Douglas Fairbanks following Reid in male popularity. With the girls, Richard Barthelmess ran ahead of Fairbanks.

Perry said it had taken a year to tabulate answers received from 17,000 boys and 20,000 girls in high schools of 76 cities and towns. According to the returns, high school boys attend movies on the average of 1.23 times a week and girls go 1.05 times.

MILLSPAUGH HOLDS UP BANK DEPOSITS OF HOUSING TRUSTS

Issues Orders to Banks Here to Stop Payment on Checks of 13 Concerns of Which He Is Receiver.

WILL LIQUIDATE INSOLVENT FIRMS

Officers and Records of 12 of Concerns Sued Taken Over, and Some Are Said to Show Few Assets.

Orders to stop payment on all checks drawn against accounts of the 18 St. Louis housing trusts, for which State Finance Commissioner Millspuagh has been appointed temporary receiver, were issued yesterday to banks here, and securities were removed from some of the company offices, in the move to take over all assets of the concerns, pending liquidation or reorganization.

Similar action was taken yesterday at Kansas City by Millspaugh, who was appointed temporary receiver for 19 of the so-called "3 per cent loan companies" there.

Receivership suits were filed simultaneously in Circut Court in St. Louis and Kansas City Friday by Millspaugh, in the effort of the State to close out the greater part of approximately 40 companies in Missouri, following passage of the last Legislature of an act repealing the law under which the companies were formed. Several companies announced they would reorganize as building and loan companies, and were not included in the suits.

Offices of 12 Firms Taken Over.

Representatives of the Finance Commissioner and Attorney-General have taken possession of the offices and records of 12 of the companies here, but have not taken over the office of the Federal Home Builders' Trust. This will be done tomorrow, it was said. Officers of this concern yesterday told a Post-Dispatch reporter it had been in the process of liquidation in the last few weeks.

Millspaugh has announced examination of the companies will be started at once, and concerns found insolvent will be liquidated. Those found solvent will be given an opportunity to reorganize and incorporate under the building and loan law, he said.

On partial examination it was indicated some of the concerns have few assets, as operation, commissions to agents and other expenses have eaten up a considerable portion of the money paid in by contract holders on the monthly installment plan.

C. F. Mayes, Deputy State Finance Commissioner, in charge of the Building and Loan Department, has been appointed agent for the temporary receiver in St. Louis, and H. S. Mueller, another deputy, has been appointed agent in Kansas City.

Cash on Hand Seized.

In the round of the companies here the cash on hand was taken over, Mayes said, together with some of the securities, and in some instances the records were taken to the office of the commissioner in the United Home Building. Inventory of other records was taken and the removal of those desired will be completed tomorrow.

Representatives of the receiver stated they were received with welcome in some of the offices, and satisfaction expressed over the Finance Commissioner taking charge.

Counsel for the Union Home Builders, one of the companies involved in the suits, yesterday filed a motion in Circuit Judge Hartmann's Court for removal of the suit to Federal Court, claiming a diversity of residence of the trustees. The petition stated "Union Home Builders" merely was a name under which the trustees acted.

The petition listed the following trustees and residence: Claude Rothery, California; Albert Wilcox, Vermont; S. Edward Beach, Virginia; Wallace C. Woodward, New York, and Frederick C. Weeks, Great Britain. The concern was organized under the laws of the District of CSlumbia.

Statement by Federal Company.

W. R. Fisher, treasurer of the Federal Home Builders Trust, yesterday stated formal service in the suit had not been made on the company. He said it had been in a voluntary process of liquidation since the Legislature passed the repeal act. No salaries have ever been paid to officers, and they had made every effort to straighten out the company's affairs, Fisher said.

He gave this statement of the approximate condition of the company: 151 certificates issued; about $14,000 collected, of which about half was paid to agents in commissions; one loan of $1000; about $3400 returned to persons surrendering contracts, and the balance of the amount collected is on deposit. The company contract provided the first four monthly payments of $8 each went to the expense fund and payment of agents' commissions.

Lyle Garrison, named as a trustee of the Federal Home Builders Trust in the suit against that company, yesterday stated he never had been a trustee and had severed a former connection with the company about 18 months ago.

New 'Richest Man in World,' According to Wall St. Street and Oil Magnate He Has Superseded in This Reputation

HENRY FORD. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER.

Henry Ford has replaced John D. Rockefeller, in the estimation of New York financial authorities, as the richest man in the world. His total fortune, including his holdings in the Ford Motor Co., figured between $600,000,000 and $750,000,000. Rockefeller has given away more than $1,000,000,000, but his present fortune is believed to be not much more than $300,000,000.

FORD'S FORTUNE BIGGER THAN ROCKEFELLER'S

Wall Street Figures That Auto Manufacturer Is Richest Man in the World.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Henry Ford is the richest man in the world, Wall Street concluded yesterday when the Ford Motor Co. made public its financial condition as of Feb. 22, 1923.

The statement as filed with the Massachusetts Commission of Corporations in Boston, shows assets of $536,351,939, compared with $400,548,946 the previous year. It reveals cash on hand of $159,605,687 against $109,232,732 in 1922, an increase of more than $50,000,000.

It gives a profit and loss surplus of $359,777,598, compared with $240,478,736 the preceding year.

Net profits, Wall Street estimated, approximated $119,000,000, which is equivalent to more than $690 a share on the 172,465 shares of $100 par value capital stock outstanding which Henry Ford and his son Edsel own.

The large expansion of Ford operations is clearly shown by the report. Accounts payable nearly doubled in the 12 months, being $61,488,980, as compared with $33,089,894. Depreciation charges, which were $50,829,307 in 1922, increased to $62,576,257. Security holdings jumped more than $21,000,000 and inventories soared nearly $38,500,000.

Has More Than Rockefeller.

Henry Ford, Wall Street reasons, has a total fortune, including his Ford Motor Co. holdings, of between $600,000,000 and $750,000,000.

John D. Rockefeller was the world's richest man but he has given away more than $1,000,000,000 and probably has not more than $300,000,000 left.

The magnitude of Henry Ford's fortune may be measured by comparison with the riches of some of his famed predecessors. Andrew Carnegie at one time possessed a fortune estimated at $300,000,000. The John Jacob Astor estate totaled $70,000,000. The Marshal Field estate reached $120,000,000.

And Ford, it must be remembered, started his company only 20 years ago, with a capital stock of $100,000, a factory floor space of about one-fourth of an acre and an average number of 311 employes. Seventeen hundred cars were built the first year. On April 7 last it was reported the Ford Motor Co. had built more than 6,000,000 automobiles and was well into the seventh million.

Next to U. S. Steel.

Wall street also noted, in connection with the Boston statement, that United States Steel, Ford Motor and General Electric lead the great industrial companies in cash and security holdings. United States Steel comes first with some $318,000,000. Ford Motor Co. is second and General Electric third, with $168,000,000.

The combined cash and security holdings of these three companies is around $600,000,000. It is only $10,000,000 short of the aggregate cash reserve of the New York Federal Reserve District, which includes New York State, Northern New Jersey and parts of Connecticut.

Bridge Collapses Under Train

HEIRESS BRIDE OF GARDENER DISOWNED BY HER FAMILY

Florence Avery of Detroit Never Will Share in Father's Millions, According to Mother.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., May 5.—Florence Avery Barrigrand, 42 years old, daughter of John H. Avery, millionaire, will never share in the family fortunes and she will never see her family again, according to her mother. This is the price the woman must pay for marrying Francis Barrigrand, 34, French gardener, who worked on the family country home, Maple Road Farm, near Oxford, and paid court to the heiress of the household while the two planned rose gardens and lovely vistas across the lake.

"We never want to see that man again. We are through with the affair forever, we cut all this from our lives and to us our daughter is dead," Mrs. Avery said as she stood on the porch of the country home, tears filling her eyes.

"She wouldn't listen. I can't believe that it is so, even yet, that a daughter of mine could do such a foolhardy thing. She is giving up more than she knows and realizes. She must learn for herself and then pay the price of her folly."

But the former heir to the Avery millions prefers the simple life on a tiny farm to life in a palatial home provided by her father and beautiful clothes which only money can buy.

For generations the family of Avery has been powerful and wealthy, both in this State and in Maine, from which the family originated. The girl's ancestors fought in the Revolution and in the War of 1812.

TRAVELING SALESMAN SHOOTS HIMSELF IN HOME OFFICE

George Hussmann, 55, Leaves Note to Wife Saying Act Is Due to Financial Embarrassment.

George Hussmann, 55 years old, 5846 Pershing avenue, a traveling salesman for the Peroxide Chemical Manufacturing Co., killed himself shortly before noon yesterday at the office of the company, Etzel avenue and Wabash Railway, by shooting himself in the mouth.

He had gone to the office to collect some royalties on a patent used by the company, obtained the revolver in the office, stepped into an adjoining room and fired the shot.

Hussmann left a note to his wife explaining that his act was due to financial embarrassment. The verdict of the Coroner's jury was suicide.

SAFE DRIVING CONTESTS HELD

The Safe Drivers' School conducted by the St. Louis Safety Council closed yesterday afternoon with a driving contest on Lindell boulevard between De Baliviere avenue and Skinker road. The cup for the best woman driver was won by Mrs. James A. Mowrey of 2818 University street, and the men's cup was won by Joseph F. Albers, 4125W Lexington avenue. Albers won in a contest by the two winners for a championship cup.

About 30 drivers competed, the tests including emergency stopping, parking, observing traffic signals and driving through a series of obstacles. Careful driving by the women contestants was commended by Capt. Gerk, in charge of the traffic officers of the Police Department, who declared women drivers were more careful in observing traffic signals in the downtown districts than many men.

herman Rogers to Address C. of C.

Sherman Rogers, industrial correspondent of The Outlook, will address a joint luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce and Safety Council at 12:15 p. m., Wednesday, at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. His subject is to be "Men, Muddlers and Safety."

WIDOW, HIT BY TRUCK, DIES AT HOSPITAL

Driver Says She Stepped Into Path of Machine Before He Could Stop.

Mrs. Jennie Johnson, 55 years old, 1443A Pendleton avenue, a widow, died at City Hospital at 9:40 o'clock last night from a fracture of the skull, suffered at noon yesterday when she was struck at Goode and Easton avenues by an automobile truck driven by Eugene Gastori, 23, of 3822 Kennerly avenue, chauffeur for the Schmuck Cleaning and Dyeing Co., 4228 Easton avenue.

She was unconscious when taken to the hospital, and was identified there by her son, Clarence Johnson, with whom she lived.

Gastori said he was driving about 15 miles an hour and that Mrs. Johnson stepped from the curb into the path of the machine before he could stop. He was arrested.

Three Firemen Hurt While Answering Alarm.

Three firemen of Engine Company No. 27, at 4571 Easton avenue, were injured at 8:30 o'clock last night, while responding to a alarm at Delmar boulevard and Taylor avenue, when the apparatus was struck by a westbound Wellston street car in front of the engine house. Two men on the rear step and one in the front seat were thrown to the street.

The injured are Lieutenant Guido R. Mollencott, 39 years old, of 4853 Natural Bridge avenue, who was riding with the driver, slight fracture of the right wrist; Dewey Hogan, 26, pipeman, of 4418 St. Louis avenue, abrasions; Alfred Brown, 46, pipeman, of 4773 Easton, cuts and abrasions. The driver escaped injury.

Damage to the apparatus was estimated at $500.

Several witnesses said a red light in front of the engine house flashed; that the bell clanged before the apparatus emerged from the building, and that two men attempted to warn the car crew to stop.

The injured firemen were treated at city and St. John's hospitals and removed to their homes. Harry Dorsey, 3971 Delmar boulevard, was the motorman, and Harry Boyd, 1223 Whittier street, conductor of the car.

26 INDICTMENTS IN SIX TEXAS MOB-VIOLENCE CASES

Goose Creek "Reign of Terror" Grand Jury Names 18 Men in Report to Judge.

HOUSTON, Tex., May 5.—The Goose Creek "reign of terror"—so described in the final report of the February term grand jury—was submitted to Judge [illegible] W. Robinson in Criminal District Court today with 26 indictments based on six cases of mob violence. Eighteen men are named.

Instructed by the Court when they took the oath, the jurors recite that they had "no idea" of the extent of the operations of the "ring" of not more than 50 men, which, it claims, was responsible for conditions threatening the ruin of the community. Witnesses, however, gave testimony that 20 men and women and one boy were flogged.

Twenty of the indictments charge assault with prohibited weapons, five charge perjury and one charges aggravated assault, a misdemeanor.

AT THE MONTHLY MEETING OF THE W. C. T. U. Federation tomorrow at 1:30 p. m., at Luccock Lodge, 3628 Delmar boulevard, there will be a "Boost St. Louis" program. Mrs. C. M. Hay, president, will report on the State Executive Committee meeting recently held in Fayette. A special speaker from the Greater St. Louis Conference Committee will tell why St. Louis should extend its boundaries.

DISTRICT BUREAU DETECTIVE SYSTEM ABOLISHED AGAIN

Second Time in Last Few Years That Plan Has Been Tried Out Here by the Police Board.

The seven Detective Bureaus scattered about the city from the Carondelet to the Mounted Police districts, were ordered abolished, effective tomorrow, by the Police Board yesterday following the unanimous appeal in writing of the 14 district Captains. It is the second time in the last few years the bureaus have been tried and eliminated. They have been in existence about 18 months this last time.

The order will affect between 40 and 50 detective sergeants and detectives. The seven detective sergeants who each headed a bureau will be transferred forthwith to headquarters and their offices at the various police stations vacated.

Bureau Heads Affected.

These affected are: Edward Behnken, Wyoming street station; George Kistler, Carr street; Christ Schmidt, North Market street; Edward Schenk, Magnolia avenue; Fred Egenreither, Laclede avenue; Oscar Collard, Newstead avenue, and Thomas P. Murphy, Page boulevard.

Lack of perfect co-operation between the captains of the districts and the plain clothes men of the bureaus led to the return to the old system of dividing the force into uniformed department and detective headquarters.

Rumblings of complaints by the captains were heard by the board some time ago. Captains "called on the carpet" for the existence of crime or liquor violations in their districts would excuse their failure to get results by saying they had no plain clothes men for investigations and all anonymous letters furnishing "tips" of value were referred to the detectives of the bureaus and the Captains were handicapped.

Opinion of Captains.

Chiew O'Brien was asked to find a way of eliminating the apparent friction. He called conferences of the Captains in his office. Thirteen of the 14 commanders said that they believed they could do better work if the detectives were sent to headquarters and left the districts to the Captains, providing the Captains were given plain clothes men of their own choice to work under them direct, instead of the Detective Sergeants. The Chief told them that if conditions were changed the board would hold the Captains to strict accountability for all crime in their districts, and told them to think it over and put their opinion in writing.

Yesterday afternoon at the final conference the Captains were unanimous in their written expressions advocating return to the old system. Capt. Robert Hanna, Mounted District, is said to have been the only Captain who originally held out for the bureaus and commended them for effective service. He joined in the general opinion, however, at yesterday's session.

Chief of Detectives Hoagland was called into the conferences. He said the detective bureaus were a modern development of effective police work and cited the promptness with which detectives were able to arrive at the scene of a crime when stationed about the city in the bureaus. He also cited some figures showing effective work of the bureaus in holding down the carrying of concealed weapons. It was said that in one period of three months last year 200 "gun toters" had been arrested by men of the bureaus, as compared with 60 for the same period the year before, when the bureaus were not in effect. He was willing, however, that the responsibility should revert to the captains if they so desired. Most all other large cities, including New York, have the detective bureau system, Chief Hoagland said.

To Name Own Men.

The captains yesterday were instructed to send to the Chief a list of the policemen they desired to work under them as detectives. Each Captain will be allowed from four to 10 plain clothes men, according to the size and importance of the district.

The Detective Bureau at headquarters will be increased about 50 men by the new order. The change will not affect the night riders, gun squad or any of the details that have been working out of the main bureau.

The dectective bureaus first were established about six years ago after heads of the department had traveled through a number of eastern cities. They were abolished by the Mansur Police Board when the captains complained of a lack of cooperation between the uniformed men and the men of the bureaus. They were re-established by the present board when Victor J. Miller was president after a number of conferences between the captains and Chiefs O'Brien and Hoagland.

Capt. John Hannegan, who as Chief of Detectives favored the bureaus, is now a strong advocate of eliminating the bureaus as commander of the Deer Street District.

BANGOR, ME., WITHOUT WATER

BANGOR, Me., May 5.—In consequence of freshets in the Penobscot River, this city tonight is absolutely without water for household purposes and fire protection. City officials say it will be several days before the waterworks station, damaged by the floods, can be in commission again.

MORE FACILITIES IN CITY PARKS FOR SPORTS URGED

Commissioner Pape in Report Points Out Need of Additional Golf Links and Baseball Diamonds.

Three recommendations stand out in the report of Park Commissioner Pape for the fiscal year which ended April 9, ni which it is emphasized that the number of persons taking advantage of the parks has greatly increased. They are:

More facilities must be provided for sports, especially golf and baseball, to maintain the department's motto, "Recreation for every citizen and every citizen for recration."

Some solution must be found for the problem of increasing automobile traffic, especially in Forest Park, and the number of disfiguring driveways in the latter greensward should be decreased.

Tree surgery and more scientific planting must be practiced, to prevent denudement of the parks.

New Golf Links Wanted.

The Forest Park Golf Club, which governs the municipal links, has petitioned for the establishment of new courses in the northern and southern parts of the city, to relieve congestion at the West End links, where golfers often have to wait several hours for their turn to "tee off."

Four amateur baseball leagues, comprising about 20 teams, had to be refused permission to use park diamonds recently, for lack of room. Other sports are suffering under similar disadvantages.

Included in the $87,372,500 bond issue voted Feb. 9 was $3,800,000 for new parks and playgrounds and improvement of those existing. Of this, $155,000 will be available this year.

Pape refers to the report of Ernest Strehle, superintendent of maintenance, concerning automobile congestion, as follows: It might be advisable to establish one-way drives (this has been done in Kansas City), and to eliminate many roads which at present are useless and mar the beauty of the parks; Forest Park especially is "littered with too many drives." Each road should be flanked by curbs to restrain careless motorists.

Loss of Trees Alarming.

As to trees, Strehle reported: "The summer of 1922 was characterized by a long dry spell, which caused devastation of our shrubs and lawns and the loss of many trees, especially those planted in the last year or two. The complaint of the botanist at Shaw's Garden is well founded, for the stifling effect on plant life of the heavy, smoke-befilled atmosphere which hangs over our city is visibly felt in many of our parks, especially Forest Park. The loss of trees is alarming. The yearly proportion of trees lost to those planted is absurd and the time has come when tree surgery and tree planting must be definitely acted upon, or our parks will be denuded in a few years of the majesty and enchantment of trees."

Pape gave the following figures illustrative of the popularity of sport facilities:

	1922-23.	1921-22.
Golf Links.
No. of playing permits......	11,209	10,339
No. of rounds played.......	182,704	179,010
Cost per round..	11.39c	10.19c
Tennis Courts.
No. of playing permits......	32,824	30,978
No. of sets played	307,025	229,529
Cost per set	4.64c	6.15c
Attendance at Facilities.
Baseball games .	1,500,000	1,200,000
Playgrounds	1,959,571	1,708,614
Swimming pools.	721,388	672,340
Community centers	202,685	202,168
Bath houses ...	413,689	478,478

One reason for the decreased number of baths taken at the public bath houses was the shutdown of one house for seven weeks because of a defective boiler.

The figures for cost per game of golf and tennis represent the cost to the city; players pay nothing, but supply their own balls, clubs and rackets. Maintenance costs for the last fiscal year were given as follows: Golf: $20,821.16; tennis, $14,262.88; baseball, $6760.42; soccer, $1788.78; playgrounds, $66,382.83; bath houses and swimming pools, $51,111.30.

Pape pointed out that it was necessary to close all the playgrounds for a period starting last Jan. 1 and to keep about three-fourths of the regular departmental force on half-time work for a period, for lack of funds, although the appropriation for maintenance was $52,000 higher than the previous fiscal year. The department obtained $140,000 more for the fiscal year just starting than for last year.

Pape reported that the maintenance cost of the parks per square foot of area is 7 mills per year, which he considers almost negligible, in view of the thousands of persons deriving the benefit. The department spent $958,181.09 for all purposes during the year. Refreshment booths operated in the parks by the city took in $92,608.46, of which $31,383.05 was profit.

2000 Trapped in Tunnel When Subway Train Is Stalled

Women Remove Shoes and Skirts in Order to Hurry Up Stairs.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 5.—About 2000 passengers, trapped in a tunnel under the East River tonight when an Interborough subway train was stalled and held up three other trains, had to walk along narrow runways to exits in Long Island City.

Burning out of electrical fuses on trains that tried to force the stalled train out of the tunnel, filled the tube with smoke, adding to the nervousness of the crowd.

One of the emergency exits used by many of the passengers necessitated a climb of 80 feet up a narrow stairway. Some of the women who used this exit took off their high-heeled shoes to make the ascent more quickly, and others with tight skirts removed these garments, the better to hurry out of the smoke-filled atmosphere.

TAXICAB DRIVERS "DO THEIR STUFF" IN "STAND" WAR

bled at the outset and endeavored to watch scores of drivers and agents who were soliciting passengers. Sometimes a "fare" would pop out of the hotel and into a cab, but to an onlooker there appeared to be a temporary decrease of business.

Some sort of an agreement was affected, whereby cabs of the various kinds lined up at the curb in order of arrival, and there was a procession of several cabs of different color schemes around the block in which is the hotel, lasting for some time. A Post-Dispatch reporter, who had opportunity to look in the front seat of one cab, saw there a long, narrow bar of iron, close to the driver's place, unattached.

There were no arrests at Hotel Jefferson, where there was a smaller aggregation of cabs and of spectators. The wide street there has afforded opportunity for all kinds of taxicabs to park.

Suit Against "Exclusivo" Stands.

The suit, which was to test validity of the exclusive-stand ordinance, was filed by the manager of the Diamond Taxicab Co.

A week ago yesterday, when an effort was made by five "independent" companies to gain places at Hotel Statler, there was a riot call for police, and 40 arrests were made. In the last 16 months there have been numerous attacks on taxicabs and several on the garage of the Yellow line, growing out of labor trouble. Recently a number of taxicab passengers, who were in the role of casual bystanders, were injured. Union chauffeurs of the Yellow cabs struck Dec. 31, 1921, and since then these machines have been run by nonunion men.

LENINE HAS RESIGNED HIMSELF TO DEATH

left and what Russia calls a middle policy—repressing internal capitalism by confiscatory taxation, having little to do with Europe, concentrating on Oriental peoples, where Russia sees hope of a Red revolution.

But Lenine's place has not been filled and cannot be filled. Anticommunists in Russia mourn his passing more than communists. His restraining hand is gone and neither Trotzky, who is brilliant but unbending; Kameneff, who is shrewd, but weak; Zinovieff, fat, lover of food, and Lenine's mouthpiece, nor Stalin, a Georgian with no European perspective, can singly or together fill the boots of the little Tartar man who shook the world.

LIQUOR DEALERS TOLD TO VACATE PROPERTY

Wood River Owners Serve Hasty Notices to Prevent Action Under Nuisance Law.

Owners of business places in Wood River, Ill., in which liquor has been sold, are serving their tenants with hasty notices to vacate, to prevent their property being declared a nuisance and nailed up for a year under the Federal prohibition law.

Mayor Nagel called into his office yesterday about 15 owners of property in which violations of the liquor law are known to have occurred and warned them that if they did not immediately get rid of law-breaking tenants, Federal agents would be brought in who would make cases against the tenants and invoke the nuisance clause against the properties. They all promised to get rid of their tenants.

Garrett Lewis, proprietor of a place at First street and Madison avenue, in whose place liquor was found when it was raided Tuesday night, yesterday in Mayor Nagel's office signed an agreement to go out of the business and stay out of it for two years. He was given until midnight last night to move out, with the understanding that the case against him would be dropped if he did so. Lewis entered a plea of guilty to selling liquor for Everett French, one of his barkeepers, and he was fined $100. He also entered a plea for Everett French, charged with fighting and assaulting Alderman R. C. Farrow, following the raid, and he was fined $10 and costs on each charge. A cross charge against Farrow will be dismissed.

CHARGED WITH THREATENING THE PRESIDENT IN LETTER

Disabled Former Air Service Man Held to Federal Grand Jury at Pawhuska, Okla.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PAWHUSKA, Ok., May 5.—Thomas B. Sperling, about 45 years old, was ordered committed to Federal prison, default of $10,000 bond fixed by United States Court Commissioner Mellott here today, on a charge of sending threatening and obscene matter through the mails. A letter introduced in evidence against Sperling addressed to President Harding contained unpublishable statements in which the threat to kill the President and to blow up Wall street was made.

Sperling, who resudes in a hut in the outskirts of Pawhuska, has been receiving $63 monthly compensation from the Government for disability which he alleges was caused by being struck on the head by a propeller while in the United States Air Service during the World War. He was recently notified that beginning May 1 his pension would be reduced to $19.50 monthly.

The signature of W. O. Bildine, Pawhuska banker and guardian of Sperling, had been scrawled at the end of the letter.

Sperling is believed to be mentally unbalanced. During the hearing he testified that he did not remember writing the letter and asserted that he was subject to flights of fancy as a result of his war injury. He was ordered held to the next session of the Federal grand jury.

FINAL AGREEMENT ON BRITISH DEBT AGAIN DEFERRED

Alterations Suggested by His Home Government Presented to American Commission by Ambassador Geddes.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The British debt settlement was again deferred today after two conferences between the American commission and Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador, who presented the alterations to the final agreement suggested by his home Government.

Both the Ambassador and Secretary Mellon, chairman of the American commission, left the meeting this afternoon reiterating assurances that there is no serious obstacle in the way of closing up the negotiations, Sir Auckland making clear that none of the proposed British amendments would entail resubmission of the understanding to Congress.

The details were held in abeyance until the Ambassador can communicate by cable with the British Cabinet and receive instructions. Secretary Mellon will call another meeting of the commission as soon as the exchange with London is completed.

Much of the time today was spent in discussing the manner in which Great Britain should give advance notice of her intended payments of principal and interest. The original agreement on the refunding made no provision for an advance notice, which this Government is anxious to receive. Great Britain has been requested to state 30 days in advance of maturity dates whether she will discharge the obligation in cash or bonds in order that the American Treasury may adjust its borrowing to the information.

Members of the American commission indicated such an arrangement can be worked out satisfactorily. They said there was still some question over the wording of phrases in the debenture but declared Great Britain, in their opinion is making no attempt to hold up the refunding by quibbling over minor points.

SELLS 1000-MARK NOTES FOR 20 CENTS AS "SOUVENIRS"

Russian Finding Market Here for "Reichsbanknotes," Now Practically Worthless as Money.

Frank Miller, whose original Russian name was much harder to pronounce, is finding a market in St. Louis for "souvenirs" which can be fitted into a photograph frame, and which bear the words, "Reichsbanknote, Ein Tausend Mark."

"Buy a souvenir thousand-mark note," Miller exhorts such gatherings as he finds in saloons and other public places. "They were worth $250 apiece a few years ago. Just now they're worthless as money, but you never can tell, people. A thousand-mark note for 20 cents, or 10 for a dollar. Buy a few and keep them, and see what happens."

The exchange price of marks is 3 cents a thousand, in large quantities. "I don't tell my customers I'm selling at the lowest market rate," Miller said yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I'm allowing myself a profit. If people want to invest a large sum in marks, they should go to the bank, which will give them a draft for the marks. If they want to invest only a few dimes, I will give them the actual German money, in new notes, good for a souvenir, maybe good as money some day, maybe not. And, say," he added, "I wish you'd correct what your paper said about my running in competition with the slot machines in saloons. I'm not saying anything against the slot machines. Since that article appeared some of the saloonkeepers have ordered me out."

ORCHESTRA AT DES MOINES

Chorus of 1500 School Children Sings at Afternoon Concert.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 5.—The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, always a favorite here, appeared in concerts at the Coliseum this afternoon and this evening under the auspices of the Des Moines Women's Club, which has sponsored two successive visits of the orchestra to Des Moines as features of the city's celebration of Music Week. Des Moines' music lovers have heard the Symphony Orchestra over the radio on a number of occasions.

A feature of the afternoon program was the part taken by 1500 public school children, who were grouped behind the orchestra to sing 11 numbers, under the direction of Alfred H. Smith, Director of Music in the city schools. The children did well in two numbers by Beethoven, and in Fischer's "Spin, Gretchen, Spin." Max Steindel was soloist this afternoon and Mme. Carolina Lassari tonight.

SCHOOLS NEGLECT MANUAL WORK, SAYS EDUCATOR

Head of Minneapolis Industrial Institute Declares Elective Courses Are Like "Educational Cafeteria."

Higher wages will fail to quell the disquietude among the working classes, it was stated last night in an address by Dr. C. A. Prosser, director of the Dunwoody School of Minneapolis.

He spoke before the St. Louis district of the Missouri State Teachers' Association at the City Club.

Bonuses, he continued, would not remedy the situation, nor would profit-sharing.

Other points of the address may be summarized as follows:

Until the American educational system restores to toil with the hands the pride and dignity it had when the skilled artisan was second to none in the community, there will be countless thousands who are resentful.

America is worshiping academic instruction, white-collar education, with the result that haberdashery clerks turn their backs on $40 and $50 a week jobs in industry because they regard manual labor as not honorable.

Educational Cafeteria.

The speaker advised the establishment of a technical high school for boys in St. Louis and of a vocational school for girls. He ferred to the recent criticism of educational tendencies made by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of teaching.

"I agree with Dr. Pritchett," Dr. Prosser said, "that we are building up in our cities cosmopolitan high schools, with a wide flare of studies and that we are offering too wide liberties in elective, so that our system resembles an educational cafeteria. Such smattering of vocational education as has been attempted has not always been successful.

"The number of electives should be reduced. Boys and girls should be enabled to take up work with some purpose behind their choice. When St. Louis puts up another high school building, I hope that it will be for the technical education of boys.

"Students of that school will become the noncommissioned officers of St. Louis industry, and if St. Louis industry is like Minneapolis industry, it is crying for 'non-coms'—men who can act as foremen bosses, to interpret the engineer above to the journeyman below while they are gaining their own practical knowledge. This, coupled with their specialized education, will enable them to ascend the ladder.

"It requires as much brains to be a good workman as it does to be a good school teacher. Put that down. Do not look down upon work with the hands."

Danger of Academic Education.

Dr. Prosser touched upon another tendency which also was the subject of Dr. Pritchett's criticism—the inclination of parents to give a high school education or better to their children, regardless of whether they can best be fitted for life by an academic education or by learning a trade.

"If the tendency is carried too far," Dr. Prosser said, "we soon will have nothing but college graduates, with no jobs to boss and no one to do the work unless we use coolies."

He declared that St. Louis young men were spending approximately $250,000 a year with correspondence schools, seeking the education which the public schools failed to provide and which they found necessary when they got into industrial and commercial life.

Dunwoody School, of which Dr. Prosser is head, is an institution for the technical education of boys of high-school age. It was established with a $7,000,000 endowment by C. A. Dunwoody, an officer of the Washburn-Crosby Milling Co., and has an enrollment of 5200.

METHODIST BISHOPS PRAISE HARDING FOR "DRY" STAND

Board Wires President Thanks for "Strong Consistent Attitude" on Enforcing Eighteenth Amendment.

WICHITA, Kan., May 5.—The Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at the last session here today, dispatched a telegram to President Harding commending his "strong consistent attitude concerning the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment" and assuring him of "our wholehearted support in his difficult task."

The telegram was sent after a resolution had been adopted deploring "the wave of lawlessness as a backwash of the great war, that has not yet spent itself. Conditions are improving greatly throughout the country," the resolution stated; "nevertheless, it is evident that there is considerable rebellion against law and order."

The closing hours of the board session today were spent in assigning the various bishops and selecting dates for the annual conferences of the church.

EXPERIMENT IN GROWING COTTON IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY

Four Varieties Planted in Test to Determine Whether Staple Can Be Raised in This Region.

An experimental cotton plantation has been started by the Vacuum Cotton Harvester Co., 1915-19 Pine street, on Olive Street road, west of Denny road, St. Louis County, to determine whether this staple can be grown on a commercial scale in this latitude, and to determine the best adapted variety and its yield per acre. Four varieties have been planted, with the advice of the Department of Agriculture, University of Missouri, and several successful planters.

Freedom from boll weevil is considered one of the most important factors in favor of raising cotton in this region. Up to last year cotton was raised within 150 miles south of St. Louis and last year the cotton belt moved to within 65 miles of this city. Planters predicted that the crop could be raised anywhere south of the Missouri River in this State. In the South it requires 130 to 140 days between frosts, to mature. The average period between frosts in St. Louis, since 1905, has been 199 days, with 253 days in 1922.

Southeast Missouri raised 68,145 bales of cotton in 1921 and 139,881 bales last year.

REPORT WOMAN HELD AS CLARA PHILLIPS HAS ESCAPED

Prisoner in Honduras Believed to Be Slayer Who Sawed Way Out of Los Angeles Jail.

By the Associated Press.

SAN SALVADOR, May 5.—It is reported from Tegusigalpa, Honduras, that the woman thought to be Clara Phillips, the California "hammer murderess," being detained there, has escaped. The report has not been confirmed.

Clara Phillips was convicted Nov. 11 last of the murder at Los Angels on July 12, 1922, of Mrs. Alberta Meadows. After being sentenced to serve from 10 years to life in prison, she sawed her way out of the Los Angeles jail on Dec. 5. The woman believed to be Mrs. Phillips was taken in custody at Tegucigalpa, April 25.

Examinations for Scholarships.

Competitive examinations for the seven high school scholarships annually given by the St. Louis University will be held in the Administration Building of the University, Grand and West Pine boulevards next Saturday at 9 a. m. It is open to students in the eighth grade of parochial schools of St. Louis and vicinity. The boy winning highest honors will receive a scholarship calling for four years of high school and four years of college work, while the six next in rating will receive four years of high school training.

RECEIVER SOUGHT FOR MEDICINE COMPANY

Texan, Who Is Part Owner, Charges Mismanagement of the Dr. J. H. McLean Concern.

A suit for a receiver for the Dr. J. H. McLean Medicine Co., 3114 Franklin avenue, was filed yesterday by Albert Kronkosky of San Antonio, Tex., who also asks that Mrs. Alva Jarratt, 56 Vandeventer place, widow of Samuel W. Jarratt, former president of the corporation, be compelled to sell to him one share of stock so he can have control.

A receiver is sought for the purpose of looking after the business pending the litigation. The petition states that Mrs. Jarratt, who succeeded her husband as president and treasurer at his death last February, is hostile to the plaintiff and dominates R. Sidney Herman, who, with Mrs. Jarratt and the plaintiff, comprise the board of directors. The court also is asked to enjoin Mrs. Jarratt and Hermann from destroying records of the company or from concealing secret formulae and prescriptions. Judge Hartmann issued a temporary restraining order and set the receivership matter for hearing on May 16.

Kronkosky states that in 1913, when he and Jarratt bought an equal interest in all of the stock of the company, they made a contract that one share of the stock should be set aside and in the event of the death of either the survivor should be given the privilege of purchase of the odd share so he would get control. It now is alleged that Jarratt's widow, who became president shortly after her husband's death and is executor of his estate, has refused to sell the one share, and because of dissensions which now exists between the owners a deadlock prevails in the management.

In his request for a receiver Kronkosky complains that Jarratt's salary was increased on Feb. 6, six days before his death, from $90 a week to $10,000 a year, the increase being effective as from January, 1921. This was accomplished by his wife and Herman at a time when Jarratt was ill, the petition states. The plaintiff asks that Mrs. Jarratt be required to return the increase paid to her husband, amounting to $11,000, and further that she make accounting of other items involving use of the company's funds.

The allegation is made that as a result of neglect on the part of the management the company fell into difficulties with the Mexican Government and is about to lose its laboratory and other property at Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, valued at $40,000. The Government assessed a fine of $50,000, which, by intelligent action, could have been avoided, Kronkosky avers.

He further complains that a 33 1-3 per cent dividend amounting to $50,000 was voted by the board of directors before Jarratt died, although the outstanding debts totaled $2000 more than the cash on hand. Kronkosky says his share was paid in five notes of $5000 each, the last maturing Jan. 1, 1926, which he has offered to return. Jarratt got most of his in cash, it is stated.

The company is capitalized at $100,000, divided into 1500 shares.

BORAH TO SPEAK HERE ON WORLD COURT ISSUE

Senator to Open Nation-Wide Attack on President's Proposal May 18.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, May 5. — Senator Borah definitely announced today that he would speak in St. Louis May 18 on the International Court issue. This is expected by the irreconcilables to be the formal launching of their plan to revive the anti-League of Nations machinery for a nation-wide attempt to swing the country against the program of President Harding.

At the same time it is designed to be the beginning of an organized movement to prevent Missouri from indorsing the court, an effort that former Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel discussed with Senator Borah when he called here early last week. The irreconcilables made known soon after the President's New York speech that they hoped to revamp the organized forces that fought Woodrow Wilson on the league issue. They want to go into every state of the Union during the next few months. They think Missouri is the most strategic spot in which to open hostilities. While Gov. Hyde has assured them the State is overwhelmingly against the court, they are taking no chances, and hope, by getting actively into the field early in the contest, to win an advantage over the President and his friends.

Borah himself expects to speak soon in several places in the far Northwest. The plans of the anti-court movement call for addresses by a number of other irreconcilables during the summer and fall in several states, in the hope of encouraging the efforts down the line among the court's opponents.

MAN HELD UP IN WEST END

A. C. Magee Robbed of $15, Ring and Watch on Lake Avenue.

Two youths stepped from a Ford coupe on Lake avenue between Delmar and Washington boulevards last night at 10 o'clock, held up Austin C. Magee of 421 Lake avenue, and robbed him of $15, a ring and a watch and chain. A few minutes later a policeman found the machine wrecked against a wall forming Portland place at a point where Lake avenue ends just south of Waterman avenue.

The license number was traced to William Gruley of 1019A Biddle street. He declared that the car was not his, that his car was in a garage at 2116 Biddle street. Police went with him to the garage and found that the lock had been "jimmied" and the car stolen.

2 DEAD, 8 MISSING IN COLORADO MINE BLAST

Three Escape From Workings—Several Rescue Men Are Overcome by Gas.

By the Associated Press.

TRINIDAD, Colo., May 5.—The bodies of two men who were entombed by a gas explosion in the north slope of the Southwestern mine of the Rocky Mountain Fuel Co., near Aguilar, were recovered late today, and eight men who were in the mine at the time are missing.

The explosion occurred about 1:30 p. m. Three men working in an upper seam of the mine escaped, but 10 were entombed. That more men were not in the workings was due to the fact that the regular shift was laying off.

Several rescue workers who entered the mine were overcome by gas. Conditions which they found led to the belief that the eight missing men are dead.

Aguilar is 28 miles from Trinidad.

Kissel Speedster

Twin of the Master Model

FINE design alone cannot create fine cars; nor can machines stamp out quality to a pattern. Here is a task for human hands, trained by long apprenticeship to translate beauty into terms of wood and metal.

It calls for craftsmanship for example, to reproduce from wood the graceful slope of the Speedster's deck. It is the expert workman who can preserve every flawless line when the aluminum sheathing is fitted to a body. Experience speaks in the satin finish of a Kissel, in the perfect fit of fenders, hood and windshield.

Rarely, even in the most expensive cars, does a motorist find such workmanship in every detail. More rarely still does he find it at the moderate price which 17 years' experience has enabled Kissel to place upon the Speedster and other custom-built models.

ROME DeLuxe QUALITY

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

What Does Real Sleep Mean to You?

It means the difference between good feeling and bad feeling. Often it means the difference between a successful day and an unsuccessful day.

—But you can't have real refreshing sleep on an ordinary bedspring. It is impossible because a sagging bedspring distorts the spine, fails to support the waist line and neck, and cramps the body.

That's why, if good health means anything to you, your choice of a bedspring is important.

The Rome De Luxe Bedspring is built to fit the body and support every part equally without bending the spine. You lie on it absolutely relaxed. It makes possible the refreshing sleep that means health.

Ask for Rome De Luxe at your dealer's today. It is interchangeable—fits either wood or metal beds.

CARDINALS BEAT CUBS 7-6; DEMPSEY SIGNS TO DEFEND TITLE

Rickey's Men Score 5 Runs in the First but Nearly Toss Game Away

After Battering Dumovich at Start, Cardinals Make Four Errors and Compel Retirement of Venerable Bill Doak, Who Hurls Well.

By Joseph F. Holland.

It is apparent that the Cardinals have, without premeditation, subscribed to the ancient football theory that a good attack is the best defense. No other conclusion can be reached, after watching the play of the team in the first three weeks of the season. The hitting is excellent and the pitching is, for the most part, sound, but the fielding compels a pitcher to beat first his own team and then the opponent.

The third game of the series with the Cubs, yesterday, was typical. The Cardinals made four errors, which resulted in Doak's untimely removal from the box; but good pinch hitting and solid hitting strength allowed the Rickeymen to score a 7 to 6 victory and attain a .500 percentage for the first time in more than two weeks.

The word had been flashed around the baseball circuit that Bill Doak was preparing his swan song. But not one of the 12,500 spectators who witnessed his effort against the Cubs will concede that Bill even approaches being "through." He won his game, assisted by Sherdel's fine relief work, but he won it in spite of his defense and through the team's hitting strength.

Three Cub Tallies Unearned.

The Cubs scored six runs. Half of those runs were unearned. They were gifts from Cardinal fielders and when Blades dropped O'Farrell's fly in the eighth it was the last straw. Bill could not recover from this last of four stab wounds. He wilted and walked Pinch Hitter Callaghan. When Statz singled, scoring O'Farrell without a man being retired. Bill took the long, slow walk and the 12,500 who witnessed his great fight against two opponents, convinced him with a volume of applause that the baseball public did not believe he was through.

The Cardinals are a good ball team. They are second to the Pittsburgh Pirates in the list of the league's team hitters. But they are sixth in the list of fielders and only Brooklyn and Philadelphia, picked by experts to finish seventh and eighth, respectively, are below them.

The first evidence of the team's wobbly defense came when Freigau threw wide to first and permitted Statz, the Cub lead-off man, to get to first in the opening inning. But this fielding break preceded the first exhibition of the powerful Cardinal attack by only a few moments as the Rickeymen scored five runs on clean-hitting in the opening inning.

Freigau's first of two errors had paved the way for two Chicago runs when the Cardinals came in for their half and batted completely around to score five runs and take a lead which they never surrendered. And, incidentally, the only Cub error of the day started them on their way.

Blades was safe on Adams' low throw. Then Nick Dumovich, a young southpaw, hit Mann. Hornsby crashed a single to center and Blades scored. Bottomley cut the ball into right field for a single and Mann tallied with the run that evened the score. Stock doubled to left and Hornsby whisked over the plate while Bottomley stopped at third.

Killefer concluded that Dumovich had failed to accomplish the purpose for which he had been nominated and Keen replaced him. Meyer crashed a double to the fence in left and Bottomley and Stock scored. Keen finally retired the last three men in the batting order, but those five runs were a deposit which secured the team against itself.

Hornsby added the sixth in the fifth inning with his second home run drive of the year into the right field bleachers off Keen. Both his homers have been made off Chicago pitchers.

The final and what eventually proved to be the deciding run crossed the plate in the seventh when Blades singled and scored on Bottomley's triple.

Three Cub Runs.

Six of these three runs were earned by clean hitting. Chicago donated only one score and it proved to be the run that cost the Cubs the game. However, Cardinal gratuities gave them three of their tallies.

In the first inning Freigau gave Statz his base on a wide throw. Heathcote tapped to Doak, whose throw to Freigau forced Statz. Even then Freigau dropped the ball, but saved himself an error by recovering in time to force Statz. Grantham and Kelleher then shot successive doubles to right and Heathcote and Grantham scored. That marked one unearned run.

The Cubs scored cleanly in the second on O'Farrell's single, an infield out and Statz's single. They got another run on three singles in the seventh, but in the eighth Blades' error gave them two runs that made a close ball game out of one that should have been won easily.

O'Farrell lined the ball to left and Blades got both hands on it, but dropped it. Doak was plainly affected by the error and walked Callaghan, who batted for Fussell. Statz singled to right and O'Farrell scored. Sherdel walked in to try his hand at overcoming the defensive handicap supplied by his teammates and retired the next three men, although Callaghan scored on the second out, a sacrifice fly to Mueller by Grantham. The ninth passed out nicely enough although Miller singled with one out.

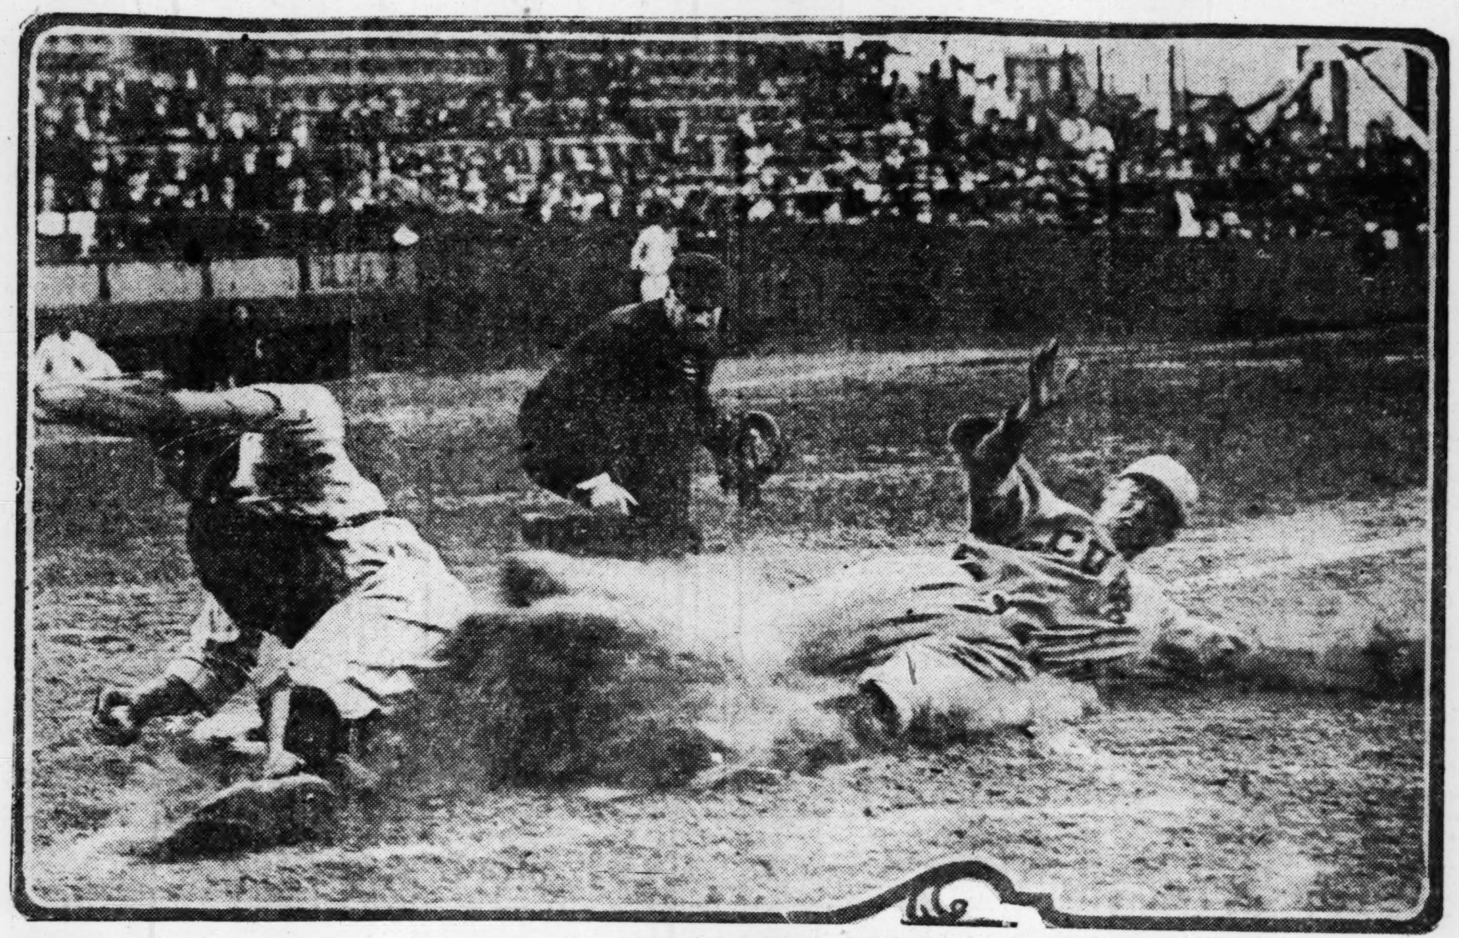
Cards Average 3 Errors Per Game.

In the last three games the Cardinals have made nine errors. Haines won a 3—2 game Thursday although five errors were made. Toney lost Friday with the team playing errorless ball, but scoring only one run, although it got 18 men to first. When the team stabilizes, look out above.

Tubby Clemons Hurt.

Tubby Clemons, Cardinal catcher, will be out of the game indefinitely because of a broken finger on his right hand, suffered in the game Friday when a foul tip struck him on the little finger. He had his fingers taped together yesterday and will make the Eastern trip with the Cardinals in the expectation of being able to play in 10 days or two weeks.

Callaghan's Great Slide in the Eighth Nets a Run



Callaghan, pinch-hitting for Fussell in the eighth, walked and reached third on Statz' single and an infield out. Grantham then flied to Mueller, who made a good but slightly wide throw to catch Callaghan whose slide to the plate gave Ainsmith no time to recover and tag him.

CARDS DEPART TONIGHT FOR TRIP EAST; WILL RETURN HERE MAY 28

Following today's game, the final of the series with the Cubs, the Cardinals leave for Pittsburg where they oppose the Pirates tomorrow on the first stop of their initial invasion of the East. Twenty games are scheduled.

They play only one game in Pittsburg and then open a four-game series with the Phillies at Philadelphia on Tuesday. On Saturday they open a series of four games with Boston and then jump to New York on May 17 for three games with Brooklyn and four with the Giants.

The team returns to Pittsburg on May 24 for three games with the Pirates and then drops off at Cincinnati, May 27, for a single game before coming back to St. Louis, May 28, to open a long home stay of 28 games against both Eastern and Western teams.

Pfeffer will pitch against Osborne in the final game with the Cubs today at 3 o'clock.

Browns' Pitching Collapses and Indians Gain 10 to 2 Victory; Williams Hits Seventh Home Run

Kolp Pounded for Seven Runs and Seven Hits in Four Rounds—Pruett Does Well After Poor Start—Cleveland Scores Four Runs on One Hit, as Result of Two Errors.

By J. Roy Stockton,
Of the POST-DISPATCH Sport Staff

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 5.—A good team with weak pitching met a fair team with strong pitching this afternoon and the fair team overwhelmed the good team. There never was a more striking example of the truth of Addie Joss' statement that a pitcher is 80 per cent of a team. The Browns, man for man and as a team, look like a much better ball club than the Cleveland Indians. And yet the difference between the work of Jim Edwards and that of Ray Kolp and Herbert Pruett was demonstrated in the score, which was 10 to 2 in Cleveland's favor.

Kolp lasted four innings. In that time, Speaker's men pounded him for seven hits and seven runs. They pounded him so hard that the Brown's defense collapsed and on one single, four Cleveland runners scampered over the plate with the ball being whipped foolishly across the diamond.

Pruett, who has not shown any signs of the great skill or the uncanny mastery over batters that he displayed last season, went to the hill starting the fifth inning. The Indians spanked him for four hits and three runs in that inning. If the game had been close, he would not have remained. But Fohl wisely decided to permit Pruett to work himself out of his weak ways. In the sixth, seventh and eighth, Pruett did better work than he had done since the spring series game in which he beat the Cardinals.

Edwards Hurled Great Game.

Edwards, a big, lanky southpaw, pitched a great game. Tobin started the game with a single and that was the only hit until the sixth inning, when Williams hit his seventh home run of the saeson, a tremendous drive over the right field fence. The ball cleared the high screen, sailed across the street and landed on the roof of a house. It was one of the longest hits the Brownie slugger ever made.

Edwards still had a nine run lead and with his one-hit game spoiled he relaxed during the rest of the game and the Browns added a run and five more singles to their total.

Speaker drove in a run for his team in the first inning, lining a triple to left center with Jamieson on base. Speaker scored on Guisto's single.

Kolp was batted hard in every inning, but escaped further scoring until the fourth, when he was most rudely treated. Sewell, first up, doubled against the right field fence. Lutzke sacrificed and Sewell scored on Myatt's single to right. Edwards grounded out, but Kolp walked Jamieson and then hit Wamby, filling the bases.

One Hit—Four Runs Score.

Speaker smashed a drive past McManus. Marty recovered the ball and his throw to the bag would have retired Speaker if Kolp had held it. The ball bounced away from Kolp, however, and Speaker dashed for second and Wamby for third. When Kolp recovered the ball, there was no chance to get either runner, but he threw toward third. The ball bounced away from Robertson and Wamby and Speaker scampered over the plate. Myatt and Edwards also had scored on the mix-up, making four runs on one scrambled play.

Because it was a hard chance Speaker was given a hit. Because Speaker advanced to second, Kolp was given an error for missing McManus' throw. Because Kolp made that useless and poor throw to third, Kolp was charged with another error, making it a terrible inning for the pride of North Canton, Ohio.

There was an unusual mix-up in the Cleveland half of the sixth inning. After Guisto and Summa had been retired on infield grounders, Sewell walked. Lutzke hit a slow roller toward third which Pruett fielded hurriedly. His throw was wide and pulled McManus off the bag. Umpire Dinneen made no motion on the play, though in the press box it was thought he had called "out." At any rate Pruett began pitching to Myatt, the next batter. After Myatt had fouled one Dinneen noticed Lutzke still was standing on first. He then notified him that he had ruled him out. That being the third out, everybody laughed, looked foolish and the Indians took the field.

Pruett Finishes Well.

After that terrible fifth inning, only one ball was hit out of the infield by the Indians. That was a double to right by Jamieson. All other batters were retired as Pruett was wont to retire them last year, on easy infield rollers or on strike-outs.

After the game was lost, Fohl sent Billings in to catch and stationed Homer Ezzell at second base. Ezzell handled two chances cleanly, struck out once and sent Jamieson to the fence for a long fly on his other trip to the plate.

To break even on the trip, the Browns must take the remaining two games at Cleveland. They will face Morton tomorrow and Uhle Monday. Vangilder will pitch for the Browns tomorrow and Danforth, who has hurled two excellent games in his last two starts will work Monday. Thus far on the road the Browns have lost three out of four in Detroit, two out of four in Chicago and one out of two here.

Champion to Receive $300,000 for Boxing Tom Gibbons, July 4

World's Championship Will Be Fought in Shelby Montana, an Oil Boom Town of Less Than 1000 Population.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, Ill., May 5.—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, will defend his title against Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul challenger, at Shelby, Mont., a boom town of less than a thousand inhabitants, on the afternoon of July 4, next. The match will be fifteen rounds to a referee's decision.

The champion will receive $300,000—the same amount he got for knocking out Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of France, in Jersey City, two years ago; while Gibbons will take a gambler's chance for his share of the receipts, in addition to $2700 for expenses.

Articles definitely closing the match were signed late today by Jack Kearns, manager of the heavyweight champion, who received a certified check for $100,000 as the first installment of the definite guarantee. The second $100,000 will be handed Kearns on June 15, and the final $100,000 will be paid over on July 2—48 hours before the champion goes into the ring.

The end of the three days' negotiations between Mike Collins of Minneapolis, the matchmaker, and Loy Molumby, a Great Falls, Mont., lawyer, representing promoters, came with dramatic suddenness late this afternoon, when orders were received over the long distance telephone authorizing Molumby to pay the first $100,000 over to Kearns.

Dempsey Posts $50,000 Forfeit.

Kearns agreed to post $50,000 to assure Dempsey's fulfillment of the contract. Eddie Kane, representing Gibbons, consented to posting a forfeit of $25,000, assuring the challenger's appearance in the ring.

Although Kearns agreed to name another referee, in addition to his first selection, Jimmie Daugherty of Philadelphia, it seemed certain tonight that Daugherty would be chosen. Kane, who protested the selection of Daugherty from the start, said he probably would be obliged to accept the Philadelphian or lose the chance of Gibbons' fighting for the championship.

"Both Tom and I are so certain that he can win, that it really won't make much difference who referees, so long as he is competent," Kane said. "I don't like to have Daugherty shoved down my throat, but can't see any other way out of it. He's handpicked, a friend of Kearns and Dempsey's, but we probably will have to take him. He's a good fellow personally and a great booster for boxing; but I don't think much of him as a referee."

Gibbons Takes Long Chance.

Unless the receipts exceed $30,000 Gibbons will not receive a dime outside of his training expenses, and a chance at the championship. According to the articles of agreement Gibbons will receive 50 percent of all money over $300,000 until the $600,000 mark is reached, after this figure he will receive 25 percent of all over $600,000 and also 25 percent of the moving picture rights.

Both boxers agreed to pitch their training camps at Great Falls, Mont., sixty miles from the battle ground, six weeks in advance of their contest. Kearns plans to leave for New York tomorrow to line up sparring partners for the champion, while Kane will attempt to arrange for sparring partners here next week.

Kearns said that Dempsey already was in light training and is ready to move on to Montana on a minute's notice. He said the champion would not weigh more than 195 pounds at present and probably will enter the ring at about 187, while Gibbons, Kane said, will only be about 10 pounds lighter.

Arena to Seat 40,000.

Collins said that work would be started at once on an arena seating 40,000 persons, with the price of tickets ranging from $20 to $50 each. The receipts can reach $1,500,000, but Collins said he would be satisfied if the gate totalled $750,000.

The railroad entering Shelby has arranged to build forty miles of side track on which to park Pullmans for the thousands of fight fans expected to make the trip.

Kearns expained his demand for a part of the guarantee by saying that he did not want to go through another fiasco such as resulted at Michigan City, Ind., last summer, when the Governor of that State re-

Theoretical Train 35 Miles Long Needed to House Fans at Shelby

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 5.

PREPARATIONS for handling a possible crowd of 50,000 persons on the Dempsey-Gibbons bout at Shelby, Mont., on July 4, were begun today by officials of the Great Northern Railway, the only road serving Shelby.

It is NOT expected that either Shelby or Great Falls will be able to provide adequate housing facilities so the Great Northern will make arrangements to use the trains for sleeping and eating quarters of fight fans.

It was estimated by rail officials here that a crowd of 50,000 would require 200 trains of ten cars each, each train carrying 250 passengers. A theoretical train 35 miles long would be needed, it is estimated. Plans will be made for adequate siding facilities at Shelby.

EHMKE BEATS ZACHARY IN HURLING DUEL, 4-1

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The Red Sox earned a 4-to-1 verdict over the Senators today in a 12-inning pitching duel between Ehmke and Zachary. Collins' triple and Joe Harris' single gave Boston a run in the fourth which was matched by the locals in the sixth when singles by Judge and Goslin, followed a pass to Rice and Stan Harris' sacrifice. Both hurlers performed brilliantly until the twelfth when Zachary weakened and hits by Burns, Shanks, Picinich, Ehmke and Fewster netted three runs.

FRISCH'S BATTING GIVES GIANTS 5 TO 2 VICTORY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—Frank Frisch's long range hitting enabled the Giants to win the second straight game from the Phils, 5 to 2. It was a pitchers' battle between Hugh McQuillan for the Giants and Ralph Head's, Fletcher's promising kid curver.

The Phils scored a run in the first inning without a hit. Rapp walked, McQuillan made a wild throw on Holke's tap, and Rapp scored on two infield outs.

McGraw's men shoved one across in the fourth on Frisch's triple, and an infield out. Frisch's home run in the sixth with a man on put his team in the lead.

McKinley Noses Out Soldan 2-1, Central Beats Cleveland 4 to 3; Yeatman, Idle, Still Tops League Defeat of West End Team, a Pennant Contender, by Tailenders, Proves Biggest Surprise of the High School Campaign—Pitchers in Both Games Effective.

McKinley High School, regarded as the "weak sister" of the High School League, administered a shock to fans yesterday by defeating Soldan High, a serious pennant contender, 2 to 1. Central ran true to form and defeated Cleveland 4-3 in a hard-fought game, in the other half of the weekly doubleheader at High School Field.

The McKinley-Soldan contest was a pitching duel between Ehrlich for the Crimson and Crause for the Brown and Gold. The little McKinleyite had the better of the argument, striking out eleven and passing one, as compared with four walks and three strikeouts by Crause.

Both pitchers allowed five hits. On two occasions the first man up hit Ehrlich for extra bases and forced the succeeding hitters to leave the runner stranded. In the fourth Stanford opened with a triple and was left on third when Roberson and Shaw fanned and Mullen popped to the infield. Again in the seventh, Roberson opened the inning with a double but failed to count when he was nabbed at home on Mullen's attempt at a squeeze play.

Crause also pulled through several dangerous places without damages. Two fast double plays by the Soldan infield cleared up some cloudy spots for the Soldan twirler.

McKinley Starts Well.

McKinley scored in the opening inning. Carl Ehrlich twin brother of the pitcher, beat out an infield roller and took second when Crause committed a balk. On Condon's roller, he advanced to third and scored a moment later when Catcher Branconier missed a throw from third, after Ehrlich had been caught in a run up.

Soldan tied the score in the third. Rawden singled through the infield, stole second and scored when DeStabler punched a hot grounder to left field.

Singles by Turner and Carl Ehrlich, with Turner's steal of second in between, gave McKinley its second and what ultimately proved to be the winning run.

The field play of both teams was sparkling. DeStabler and Hollearin made great catches of foul flies and the work of Shaw and Selucky at shortstop for the rivals was of high color. Branconier and Richenberg exhibited good throwing to the bases.

Cleveland Gives Central Hard Fight: One Big Inning Puts Central Across

The hard fight put up by Cleveland against Central was also unexpected. The Carondolet team played better ball than at any other time this season.

One big inning was sufficient for Central to win, and that one inning was the only one in which Mel Kaiser, a southpaw hurler for Cleveland, weakened. The kithogue was master of the Central hitters in all other innings; at least he was their boss in the pinches.

In the eighth Thomas and Kutterer opened the frame by poking singles through the Carondolet defense, but Kaiser fanned Gockel, Hunt and Dunkman in order and left the runners idling on the paths.

Colligan Reliable.

Red Colligan hurled a steady game for the Central nine. During the first eight innings Cleveland was able to gather a long run off his delivery despite the fact that in the seventh the Carondelet gang filled the bases with one out. In the ninth inning, however, the team from the South Side got to Red for a pair of runs, when an error of commission and an error of omission was supplemented by a long single to left field by a pinch hitter.

Cleveland opened the scoring by counting one in the fifth inning. Dodge, first up, singled and was pick off first base; Spreck walked and stole and was sent over the pan when Reinhardt singled to right.

This count was nullified by Central in its half of the inning. Colligan walked, stole second and scored when Kaiser's throw to catch him stealing third went through Musgrove. Williamson was given a walk and Margulis singled, Thomas, leading hitter of the league, drove a long fly to center it apeared to be an easy catch but Dodge misjudged it and the ball went over his head and rolled to the fence.

Williamson, Margulis and Thomas scored on the hit. This ended the Central punch and, with the exception of the above-mentioned eighth the Red and Black was easy for Kaiser.

In the ninth Cleveland gave the Mid City fans a scare. Goldberg fumbled a roller from Musgrove and then Williamson made a futile try to catch him at second base on Spreck's hit and run tap. Bowersox pinch hitting for Mel Kaiser singled scoring both runners after they had been advanced a sack on Reinhardts out to first. Bowersox was caught stealing for the final out.

TAYLOR'S SINGLE GIVES DODGERS 5-4 VICTORY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, May 5.—Schliebner's double to left field, which Bagwell failed to reach, and a single by Taylor gave the Dodgers a 5-to-4 victory over the Braves here this afternoon, with 25,000 persons present. The game was replete with sensational fielding, sloppy fielding and idiotic base running. McNamara, just getting over a two-day sickness, started for the Tribs against Burleigh Grimes.

Grimes was wild at times, but he was tight enough to weather the storms and was benefitted by some gilt-edged defensive play by Olson and Schliebner.

One of the Dodger runs was due to an error by Boeckel in the first and Kopf was responsible for another in the third. Another came over for the foe on a successful double steal in the fifth. The game was marked by arguments and disputes between Hart and Grimes.

PIRATES MAKE IT THREE STRAIGHT OVER REDS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 5.—The Pirates gained their third straight victory over the Cincinnati Reds by winning today's contest, 10 to 7. The Pirates' big inning was the fourth when they drove Keck from the box, scoring seven runs on eight hits. Traynor made two hits in this inning. Cooper weakened in the seventh inning, and after the first five men had hit safely, he was replaced by Johnny Morrison. Rixey pitched the last two innings for the Reds, and yielded one run.

Trolley League Will Open Today

Circuit Reduced From Six to Four Teams—Playing Strength Distributed.

The Missouri-Illinois "Trolley" League will open its season this afternoon with games at Alton and East St. Louis. This year the circuit has been reduced to four clubs from the usual six.

The opening schedule for today will bring the Alton Blues and the Ben Millers together, in Alton, Ill. At Polo Park, East St. Louis, the Grays will battle the Wiles-Chipmans.

The four teams have been recruited from the best timber available, and from all accounts the league will be well balanced as to playing strength.

WHITE SOX WIN FROM TIGERS IN WILD GAME

CHICAGO, May 5.—Kid Gleason's White Sox continue to make life miserable for the Detroit Tigers. They made it two straight from Cobb's crews b ywinning a wild and wooly combat this afternoon, 8 to 7.

Cobb employed three pitchers, Collins, Johnson and Cole, while Gleason tried Leverette, T. Blankenship and Cvengros. The Sox chased Collins in five rounds, assembling nine hits for seven runs. Leverette was rounted in the fifth. The game lasted 2 hours 53 minutes.

Quincy was second with 22, Macomb third with 18, Hannibal, Mo., fourth with 14, Pittsfield fifth with 13 and Keokuk, Ia., sixth, with 12½ points.

WRAY'S COLUMN

"Gibbons No Setup."—Sharpe.

JACK DEMPSEY will have no setup in Tom Gibbons when they meet in a title match, in the opinion of Referee Harry Sharpe. This view is in marked contrast to the prevailing thought, which has it that Thomas is just a tidbit for the champion.

Sharpe bases his views on the following circumstances:

That Gibbons is a better and faster boxer than any man Dempsey has fought for the title.

That Gibbons has been fighting frequently and regularly, while the champion has been idle two years.

That the training time before July 4 is too short for Dempsey to make up all that he may have lost through inaction.

That Dempsey has been accustomed to hit at big targets, slow of foot.

That the champion will be meeting a master of defense as well as a keen hitter.

That Dempsey is rather wide open and careless and that Gibbons is very difficult to hit squarely.

That Gibbons should outspeed Dempsey.

That the 24-foot ring makes it easy for Gibbons to evade Dempsey.

On the Other Hand.

BUT there are other things that weigh against the above arguments, and weigh heavily. For example:

Gibbons is 34 years, Dempsey 28.

Gibbons weighs 174 pounds, Dempsey nearly 190.

Gibbons has knocked out but one foe, who was not a third-rater or worse—Chuck Wiggins. Dempsey drops them all.

Dempsey may be slower than Gibbons, but not when it comes to hitting knockout blows.

Dempsey is always poised for a kayo, while Gibbons is thinknig too much about safety.

Dempsey's weight is all real and he has not gained since maturity to any extent. Gibbons was a normal middleweight and the additional poundage, coming long after maturity, is therefore a handicap.

Gibbons made a very poor showing against Harry Greb, who weighs 160 pounds and who will fight soon for the middleweight title.

As between their punching power there is no comparison.

May Win on Points.

SHARPE believes that if the bout goes 15 rounds to a decision—and he thinks there's a keen chance of this—that Gibbons will gain the verdict.

It probably would prove to be the case.

Dempsey makes little pretense of boxing skill. In all the training I have watched, his opponents have hit him easily. Jamaica Kid put him out of training for a week at Toledo by opening a gash over one eye. Bill Tate left-handed him in the face with ease. Jack Renault found the mark frequently.

In the Carpentier bout, Carpentier, who violated ring orthodoxy by using a right-hand lead practically all of the time, had no trouble finding Dempsey's jaw and with force enough to rock him back on his heels.

That a clever man like Gibbons will hit Dempsey often is beyond question. That Dempsey can take his blows and keep coming is equally demonstrable.

Gibbons' age precludes the idea that he can take much punishment. That he will be unable to endure 15 rounds of roughing and be there at the finish is the belief of most of the Dempsey following.

One good blow and the birdies will sing for Tommy, that's the popular view.

However, nobody ever figures an odds-on chance can be beaten until they pay off on the long shot.

And THAT happenes now and then.

TENNIS UMPIRES MEET TO PLAN FOR NATIONAL MUNICIPAL EVENT HERE

A meeting of tennis umpires will be held Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at the Cabanne Branch Library, Union and Cabanne avenues. All officials of clubs who would like to register with the local umpires, chapter are requested to attend.

Owing to the coming National Municipal tennis tournament and other events here this season it is proposed to organize a staff of umpires according to Fred A. Gardner, chairman of the local chapter of the National Tennis Umpires Association.

Moreland Breaks Record.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, May 5.—Louisiana State University defeated Tulane here today in a dual track and field meet by a score of 94 to 18. Moreland of Louisiana University broke the Southern record in the 220-yard low hurdles, negotiating the distance 25 feet. The former record of 25 1-5 seconds was held by Claire of Kentucky University.

Roy of Tulane and Shirley of L. S. U. tied the Southern high jump record of 5 feet 11¾ inches held by Robinson of Georgia Tech.

Illinois Wins Meet.

URBANA, Ill., May 5.—In a dull track meet here this afternoon, Illinois easily defeated Notre Dame, 92½ to 33½. Coach Gill's proteges copped first in all but three events.

WASHINGTON BOWLING ALLEYS CHANGE HANDS; MAY GET MIDWEST EVENT

A company of which Ed Schaefer is president and B. E. Cohen, secretary and treasurer, has purchased the Hygenic Amusement Co., which has operated the Washington Bowling Alleys.

The new owners plan to make improvements to the alleys now in use and, under the terms of their new lease have acquired the sixth floor of the building at Eighth and Washington avenues, on which they will install eight new alleys. D. J. Sweeney, who has been active manager of the establishment will continue in that capacity.

It is expected that the installation of the new alleys will remove an objection to holding the Midwest Bowling Tournament here, next fall, and a meeting of the association will probably be held in Kansas City in the near future at which it is expected the event will be awarded to St. Louis.

The Palace Alleys at Vandeventer and Olive streets have been sold by E. A. Schaefer to Charles Schmidt, who will continue to do business with A. Schaefer as manager.

Yale Defeats Princeton.

PRINCETON, N. Y., May 5.—Yale's track team defeated Princeton today, 76 2-3 to 58 1-3.

Dempsey Signs to Meet Tom Gibbons

fused permission for a match with Bill Brennan last Labor day.

"That cost Dempsey at least $150,000, because we had a chance to box Brennan in Jersey City on that date and was guaranteed this amount for our end. I would not sign to box Gibbons in Shelby without assurance that the match would go through. That's why I demanded the money in advance."

Promoter Former College Star.

Molumby, who assisted in promoting the match, is a former star athlete at the University of Minnesota, where he was captain of the track team in 1915. He competed as a sprinter, and in the broad jump, and also was a member of the Gopher football team. He graduated at law, and when America entered the war, joined the aviation service with the rank of Captain.

Molumby is the State commander in Montana of the American Legion, and has interested 177 posts in that State in promoting the match. The Shelby post will be directly responsible for the match, although the money will be subscribed by Montana bankers and oil men.

Collins, the matchmaker, has been identified with boxing for 15 years, being associated with Mike Gibbons, brother of the St. Paul challenger, in the management of 50 or more boxers. Collins also is editor of a paper devoted to boxing.

GIBBONS BELIEVES HIS BEST CHANCE TO WIN IS DECISION, NOT KAYO

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 5.—"I am going to make the most of it," Tom Gibbons commented tonight, anent his match with Dempsey. "I am perfectly willing to gamble on the gate, although I know the chances I am taking. It isn't a qeustion of the purse; a chance at Dempsey is all I ask."

Gibbons said he believed his best chance lay in obtaining the referee's verdict over Dempsey.

Gibbons has just purchased a new home here and will devote a few days to "settling down." Next week he plans to go to his summer home at Osakis, Minn., to spend a week or 10 days before starting on a training tour of the Middle West.

Gibbons is a St. Paul product and in his early days was tutored by his brother, Mike, the famous "phantom," now in retirement. Tommy was born in 1889 of Irish-American parentage. Since starting his ring career in 1913 he has engegade in 85 bouts, scoring 33 knockouts; winning eight referee's decisions; engaging in 42 no-decision contests in which he invariably was awarded the popular verdict and losing one. One fight was called "no contest."

Harry Greb of Pittsburg is the only man to obtain a referee's decision over Gibbons.

Two Records Shattered.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., May 5.—Williams scored 75 points to Wesleyan's 60, in a track meet here today. Two Williams records were lowered when Miller won the 100-yard dash in 9 9-10s and Coleman led in the 120 high hurdles in 15 7-10s.

Veteran Boxing Critic Dead.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, May 5.—Daniel J. Saunders, boxing editor of the Boston Globe and a member of the staff of that paper for the last 45 years, died at his home here today. He was one of the earliest boxing promoters in this city and was well known by the boxing fraternity throughout the country.

One World's Record Shattered, Another Tied in Track Meet

IOWA CITY, Ia., May 5.

CHARLES BROOKINS, star hurdler, this afternoon, broke the world's champion 220-yard low hurdle record when he ran that race in :23 4-10, one-fifth of a second faster than the record, held jointly by J. I. Wendell, and Robert Simpson. The record was smashed in the dual track meet between Iowa and Northwestern universities.

BERKLEY, Cal., May 5.—Eddie Sudden of the Olympic Club, of San Francisco, tied the world's record for the 75-meter race here today in 8 2-5 seconds, according to an official announcement of the Pacific Association of the A. A. U. timers. The record was made by Charlie Paddock in Paris on May 3.

Bandy Would Box Herman or Kabby

St. Louis Lightweight Will Challenge Winner of Tuesday's Feature.

Eddie Vandeventer, known to the ring world as Kid Bandy, has come back again, following an injury to his hand, suffered in a Chicago bout. Bandy, who has been working over at Wood River, Ill., last night announced that he would challenge the winner of the Babe Herman-Harry Kabakoff fight, scheduled Tuesday night at the Coliseum.

Bandy and Kabby for several years furnished about the best competition among local boxers.

Babe Herman, the shifty New Yorker, arrived yesterday, and will work out at Harry Cook's gymnasium today and tomorrow. He is a well-built young man, and he brings a fine knockout record with him.

He is matched with Johnny Dundee May 17 at Madison Square Garden for the junior lightweight championship.

Besides the Herman-Kabby bout, there will be three other fights on the program, as follows:

Leo Julius vs. Eli Stua, eight rounds; Urban Groebl vs. Frank McIntyre, four rounds; and Norman Hoke vs. Paul Steadman, four rounds.

YANKS BEAT MACKMEN AND MOVE INTO LEAD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Yankees had an easy time defeating the Athletics today, 7—2, the wildness of Pitcher Heimach of the Quakers pratcically assuring them of victory. Meimach gave six bases on balls, hit two men at critical moments and made a balk that allowed a run to score. In addition he was plastered for 10 hits by the Yanks and had none too good support. With the Tigers losing, the Yanks went into first place.

Joe Bush pitched for the Hugmen. Joe struck out seven.

Heimach struck out the Bambino twice, once with the bases loaded. The slugger did not get a safe hit.

Another big crowd, estimated at 40,000, witnessed the contest.

Municipal League Star Hits Homer With Bases Full

Deutsch Helps Wabash Club Gain Easy Victory Over Fisher Aggregation.

The Triple A team, of the Manufacturers' League, scored its second victory of the season, yesterday, defeating the Frisco Lines, 8 to 5. Schnurr of the winners gave five hits. Linnemeyer had two hits in as many official trips to the plate and scored three runs for Triple A.

The Muckerman-Cushman team piled up a large score in the early innings to defeat the Triangle A. C., 18 to 7.

The Wabash Club entered the win column by trimming the Fisher Bodies, 11 to 3. Troutwine held the Fishers well in hand throughout the game. Menges, Watson and Deutsch hit home runs, the latter getting his four-base wallop with the bases full in the sixth inning.

In the other game the American Brakes defeated Butler Bros., 13 to 5.

Pikeway Athletes Win 13 Firsts In 16 Events, at Triangular Meet With Grinnell and Drake Teams

Washington University Men Score 83 Points, With Blanchard Leading All Rivals With 15—Anderwert Wins the Century Dash in Fast Time.

Completely out-classing their opponents, Washington University's track team easily won the triangular meet from Grinnell and Drake at Francis Field, yesterday afternoon. The Pikers scored a total of 83 points. Grinnell was second with 33 points and Drake third with 28.

The Pikers presented a well-balanced team and won 13 first places in the 16 events scheduled. In only one event, the discus throw, did Coach Rider's men fail to place.

The Piker honors were well distributed. Ralph Blanchard, the sensation of the conference this year, led the point scorers with 15 points. Without being pressed, he won both the hurdles and captured the broad jump handily. He also helped his teammates win the half-mile relay.

Anderwert's performance in the 220 and 100 yard dashes was sterling. He won the former in good time and in the century sprint his time was 10 seconds flat. Two of the four timers' watches caught him at 9 4-5 seconds, the Valley record.

With a brilliant burst of speed near the finish Joe Bier won the quarter-mile run in the face of a breeze. He ran as anchor man in both winning relays, overcoming a good lead in the mile relay to win.

Capps Wins Mile Run.

The most exciting race of the day was the mile run, won by Capps of Washington. He was trailing Howard of Grinnell by a few steps all the way until the last 50 yards, when he closed the gap and passed his rival just before reaching the tape.

Cantwell, in the high jump; Morton in the shot put, and Mitchell, who pole vaulted in spite of a very sore back, helped swell the Piker total by capturing their events.

Drake won two first places. Denton won the discus throw with a heave of 127 feet 2½ inches. Lingenfelter easily won the javelin event with a throw of 179 feet. Orebaugh was the individual star of the Bulldogs with a total of 7 points, gained by placing in both hurdles and the high and broad jumps.

Boge Grinnell's Ace.

Boge starred for Grinnell. He placed in three events and earned 8 points. He was second in the discus throw and shot put and tied for second in the high jump.

One of the closest races of the meet was the two-mile run, won by Meyers of Grinnell. He made a brilliant dash at the finish to nose out Schwarz of Washington.

The Piker half-mile relay team, composed of Anderwert, Hoagland, Blanchard and Bier, made the distance in the fast time of 1 minute 29 4-10 seconds.

The Summaries.

Mississippi Valley Scholastic Meet is Next Big Event Here

ENTRIES for the Third Annual Mississippi Valley Interscholastic Field and Track meet, held at Francis Field under the auspices of Washington University, will close tomorrow. The meet will take place Saturday.

The Second Annual Interscholastic Swimming Meet will be held in conjunction with the track meet.

A feature of the track meet this year is that there will be two divisions, one for schools with an enrollment of more than 350 students and another for school with less than 350. A number of medals and cups will be awarded.

Cleveland and Soldan high schools each have a leg of the silver trophy which becomes the property of the school winning it three times.

Webster Athlete Sets Discus Mark

Wohlschlager's Heave Came on Extra Try and Will Not Be Recognized.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 5.—Fast time and close competition featured the annual State interscholastic track and field meet on Rollins Field here this afternoon. Henley of Kansas City Northeast broke the State record in the 220-yard dash, running that distance in 21 4-5 seconds, and equaled the record of 10 seconds flat in the 100-yard dash. Wilcox of Liberty tied the old record in both the dash events and the Kansas City Northeast relay team equaled the old mark in the 880-yard relay.

Wahlschlaeger of Webster Groves went after a record in the discus, but failed to make it until after all of his trials were used up. On an extra try, which was not official, however, he hurled the discus 120 feet, which would have shattered another record had it come on an earlier throw.

Liberty, Mt. Vernon and Harrisonville had a close race for first place in Division 1 of the meet, Liberty winning with 22 points, and the others lagging with 18½ and 15½, respectively. Other schools in that division were far behind.

Northeast of Kansas City with Henley and Lancaster starring, proved itself the class of the larger high schools entered in the meet, running up a total of 52, while Westport, in second place with 28½ had hardly twice as many.

Kemper swept Division 3 with a total of 80, more than doubling the score on Kemper, which finished in second place in that division. Missouri Military Academy was an also ran with but 3 points.

Williams of Harrisonville and Lancaster of Northeast, with 13 points each, led the scoring in Divisions 1 and 2, respectively. George of Kemper counted a total for scoring honors in Division 3.

The scores of the meet follow:

Division 1—Liberty 22, Mount Vernon 18½, Harrisonville 15½, Monett 13, Carl Junction 10, Kirkwood 10, Milan 7, Higginsville 6, Prairie Hill 2½, Newark 3, Triplett 3, Brunswick 2½, Salisbury 2, Slater 1, Greene City 1, Chilhowee 1, California ½.

Division 3—Kemper 80, Wentworth 37, Missouri Military Academy 3.

Division 2—Northeast 52, Westport 28½, Central 28, Manual 7, Joplin 4½, Moberly 3½, Independence 2, Webster Grovesc ½.

O'Rourke Resigns as St. L. U. Coach

Names of Several Prominent Athletes Being Considered for a Successor.

Steve O'Rourke, director of athletics at St. Louis University and coach of its football team will not be in charge of the team next fall when the eleven will play a pretentious schedule, with the Notre Dame on Thanksgiving Day as a climax.

The St. Louis University authorities last night made the announcement that O'Rourke had resigned and that his resignation had been accepted, to take effect at the close of the current school season.

O'Rourke was considered very successful with the St. Louis squad. No names were given out as among those being considered for the position.

TWO STARS OF CUBS ARE IN THE HOSPITAL

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO May 5.—Two stellar infield players of the Chicago National Baseball team were in Chicago hospitals today. Ray Grimes, first baseman, who who injured in a game at St. Louis Thursday and Charley Hollocher, crack shortstop, who has been ill since February, having come to Chicago from St. Louis today for medical examination.

Several vertebrae in Grimes' back were dislocatetd when he slid into third base in the St. Louis game. An X-ray examination was made today and the results will be studied tomorrow. His attending physician announced tonight that he did not believe Grimes was seriously injured.

An examination of Hololcher's condition also was begun today, and is expected to be completed tomorrow.

GREEN YALE CREW IS WINNER OF RACE WITH COLUMBIA AND PENN

By the Associated Press.

DERBY, Conn., May 5.—A lowly-rated Yale varsity eight, fashioned from green timber in less than a season by the new Blue coach, Ed Leader, and stroked by a man with less than two weeks of training, swept to a brilliant victory over the Houstonic River course this afternoon, beating Columbia's sturdy eight by three-quarters of a boat length and Pennsylvania by two lengths.

Another Yale eight, the Freshman crew, beat the Massachusetts Institute of Technology crew over the 2-mile stretch by 10 boat lengths. The Blue Junior varsity finished third in the junior event after a magnificent effort. Pennsylvania's men rowed to victory in this event, spurting in the last sixteenth to defeat Columbia by a yard. The Blue shell was half a length behind.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Harvard varsity golf team defeated Pennsylvania and Columbia in matches here today. Harvard defeated Pennsylvania, 4 to 2, and Columbia, 6 to 0.

Pikers Crushed By Kansas Nine

Jayhawkers Hammer Out Thirteen Runs and Blank Rider's Men.

The University of Kansas baseball team entrenched itself more firmly in first place in the conference race by winning the second game from Washington yesterday by a score of 13 to 0.

Kansas has won four games and lost one. Washington is now securely resting in last place, having lost six out of eight conference games played. The two teams were tied for the championship last year.

The Jayhawkers played errorless ball in the field, and at bat smashed out 18 hits, on a double, to clinch the verdict. Their attack was so vicious in the third inning, during which they scored five runs, that Bremser had to be replaced by Levy to pitch for Washington.

While all this was going on, the Pikers were merrily kicking the ball around the infield, committing a total of nine errors, most of which aided Kansas in scoring.

Tigers Win From Cornhusker Team

Knight Pitches Good Ball in Gaining 9-5 Victory—Missourians Hit Well.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 5.—The Missouri Tigers defeated the University of Nebraska in baseball today, 9 to 5. Knight, Missouri twirler, was in fine form. He was found for eight hits, but kept them fairly well scattered, and was given excellent support by his teammates.

The Tigers hit hard, collecting 11 hits off two Nebraska hurlers. Five of the safeties went for extra bases. Terry, Roberts and Faurot poled three-base hits.

Missouri scored three runs in the second on Denny's double, singles by Faurot and Bunker and Roberts' three-ply wallop. Terry hit a triple and scored on Quick's sacrifice fly in the third. Two more runs came the Bengals' way in the fourth when Hayes drew life on Janda's boot, stole second and scored on Taylor's two-bagger. Taylor scored on Russell's error. The Tigers also counted a run in the sixth and two scored in the seventh.

Nebraska counted two in the first innings on three singles. The Huskers scored three runs in the fourth frame when Volz doubled and Carmen walked. Faurot then missed Gibbs' hit, the ball rolling to deep center, and all the runners came home.

INFORMAL OPENING OF CEDAR-RIDGE COUNTRY CLUB SET FOR MAY 12

The Cedar-Ridge Country Club, recently organized Golf and Country Club on the Meramec River at Castlewood, will have its informal opening May 12, with another celebration the following day, according to announcements made by the present Board of Governors.

The Cedar-Ridge Country Club is the first golf club to be located on the Meramec River. The Castlewood Hotel has been leased by the club for a temporary clubhouse to be used until the club completes its permanent clubhouse to be erected during the summer months.

The grounds comprise 110 acres and run parallel with the Meramec River from Castlewood to Drake Station. The grounds have been laid out with an 18-hole championship yardage golf course. Actual construction of the golf course will start soon, according to Sam C. Hardin, general manager of the club.

MISS CUMMINGS WINS FROM BRITISH PLAYER

BURNHAM, Somersetshire, England, May 5.—English women golfers won the international championship in their quadrangular competition today with teams representing Ireland, Scotland and Wales.

Afterwards matches were played between British women who had not taken part in the championships and overseas players who are here for the ladies' open golf championship tournament beginning next Monday.

Miss Edith Cummings of Chicago, the only American among the 128 entrants, defeated Miss Phyllis Lobbett of Clevedon, 2 up and 1 to play. Mrs. Guy Williams and Miss Dorothy Chambers went four extra holes in the hardest match of the day which had to be abandoned when a heavy rainstorm broke.

THREE CENTRAL STATES TENPIN EVENTS LED BY ST. LOUIS BOWLERS

St. Louis bowlers hold the lead in the doubles, singles and all-events of the Central States Tenpin Tournament at the start of the final week.

Only in the team event did a St. Louis entry fail to lead, the Smith Arcades of Milwaukee are first in that division with the good score of 3051.

Jerry Ameling and Howard Smith are first in the two-man event with a total of 1265. Ameling rolled 668 of thta total and leads the all-events with 1973.

G. Suttter, a Hope League star, took the lead in the singles division when he rolled 642 for his three games and topped H. Bippen also of St. Louis with 627. Howard Smitth, P. Spencer and B. Cohen of this city are trailing in third, fouth and fifth positions with 610, 608 and 606 respectively.

Witter's Razz and the Rex team with 2864 and 2861 are the only St. Louis teams in the high fives, they hold fourth and fifth positions.

RECORDS SHATTERED AS YALE TRACK TEAM WINS FROM PRINCETON STARS

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 5.—Yale beat Princeton in their annual dual track and field meet today, 76 2-3 points to 48 1-3.

Hills of Princeton set a new meet record in the shotput with a throw of 47 feet 2 inches and Storms of Yale hurled the javelin to a new mark of 180 feet 10 inches.

Chaucey Wester's defeat of Mal Douglas in the mile run featured the track events.

Columbia Trims Princeton.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 5.—The Columbia tennis team today defeated Princeton, five matches to four.

Mehlhorn Gets Score of 67 at Glen Echo

BILL MEHLHORN, professional at the North Hills County Club, went over the Glen Echo course yesterday in 67, believed to be the lowest score ever made on the links. Mehlhorn made three "birdies" on the first nine holes and completed the last nine in par. He was paired off with A. S. Martin.

Mehlhorn's card follows:

Out .. 344 424 453—33
In .. .444 344 344—34—67

Mehlhorn is in fine form this spring and is playing over all courses in the city when not engaged in instruction.

New Leaders in City Pin Tourney

Krug and Jelenik Take First Place in Doubles and Heidel in All-Events.

Frank Heidel, with a score of 1763 for nine games, took the lead in the all events of the City Handicap Tenpin Tournament on Stein's alleys last night. Heidel, with his partner, Eirich, rolled into third place of the doubles event with 1206 and in the singles Heidel shot 635 to take fourth place.

In the three other events Heidel rolled scores of 570, 585 and 608 scratch, and it is on this basis that the all events winner is decided.

Krug and Jelinek went into first place in the doubles event with a score of 1232, Krug rolling 526 and Jelinek 586. The pair had a handicap of 120 pins.

Eirich rolled 663 to go into second place in the singles, and Krug took third with 651.

The Pevely Salesmen retain first place in the team event with 2868.

RECORDS SHATTERED IN BRADLEY TRACK MEET

PEORIA, Ill., May 5.—Tolouca High School won the Bradley Interscholastic track meet here today when Joe Dicenzo, star sprinter, copped firsts in the 50, 100 and 220-yard dashes. Dicenzo broke the 220-yard dash record by making it in 22 2-5s. Manual High of Peoria finished second and Lasalle Perdue High landed third.

Laplante of Chillicothe Hogt created a new record in the half mile by negotiating the distance in 2m 4 3-5s a few minutes after R. Schaub of Manual had clipped 1 3-5s of the old mark of 2m. 8 3-5s.

Joie Ray outsprinted his Illinois Athletic Club team mates, Ray Buker and Ray Watson, in a special mile race and won in 4m 16s. Harold Osborne, holder of the American high jump record, came within one-half inch of the world's record when he leaped 6 feet 6 1-2 inches.

CONCORDIA SEMINARY LOSES TO WESTERN M. A.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ALTON, Ill., May 5.—Western Military Academy defeated the Concordia Seninary baceball team, here today, 9 to 8. Feature plays were a catch of a line drive by Hart, Westerr shortstop, in the eighth inning with two men on bases, another by Boggs, left fielder, and the pitching of Johnson of Western and Meischner of Concordia. McDaniels of Western hit home run in second with one man on base.

The score—Western M. A., 9-10-4; Concordia, 8-8-4. Batteries—Johnson and McDaniels; Land, Malhring, Meischner and Henck.

Western plays Principia here next Saturday.

Paddock Fails to Equal Own Record In 220-Yard Dash

U. S. Star Disregards Advice and Again Competes at Paris, Defying A. A. U.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 5.—Charles Paddock, the American sprinter, continued participation today in the international student's athletic sprint here. Starting in the semifinals of the 200-meter run he won the event in 22 4-5 seconds, which is 1 3-5 seconds slower than his own world's record.

Before today's events Col. Garland, French Olympic delegate, sent for Paddock and endeavored to point out to him that his decision to remain in the games was likely to cause open warfare between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association in America and that it might also be responsible for the disqualification of his university colleagues here. Paddock, however, disregarded the advice. The organizers of the meet supported him in this decision.

Herrick Intervenes.

American Ambassador Herrick, acting on the request of the French athletic authorities, cabled to the president of the American Amateur Athletic Union suggesting that the disqualification of Charles Paddock be rescinded, and that the American sprinter be authorized to participate in the international students meet here, in order to avoid dissension that might cripple the next Olympic games and impair the authority of the athletic bodies.

Rubien Replies to Herrick.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Frederick W. Rubien, secretary of the American Amateur Athletic Union, today characterized as absurd the suggestion advanced in a cablegram from American Ambassador Herrick in Paris that the disqualification of Charles Paddock, American sprinter, might cause dissension among members of the International Olympic Committee and might impair the authority of athletic bodies.

"I have no fear on that score," he said, commenting on the suggestion that Paddock's disqualification be rescinded, which was sent to the A. A. U., by the Ambassador acting on the request of the French athletic authorities. "Nor have I any fear that America will be poorly represented in the sprints at the Olympic games. Paddock won the 100-yard dash in 1920 by two or three inches from two American contestants; he was beaten in the 200-meter race by a foot by another American.

"Paddock's case is the case of a spoiled child. He said he was going to France for business purposes, to gather material for lectures in this country. He refused to pay any attention to the authorities of his university or to the warning of the A. A. U. The French athletic federation acting in accordance with the long standing rules of the international federation, backed up our disqualifications."

Olympic Club Wins Meet.

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., May 5.—The Olympic Club of San Francisco won the annual meet on the Pacific Association of the A. A. U., here today with 78 points. Stanford University was second with 46 and University of California third with 44.

Rigel Wins From 3-Year-Old Stars In Jamaica Race

Messenger, August Belmont's Star, Finishes Bad Fourth—Greatman Is Third.

GREY LAG NEAR RECORD

Son of Star Shoot Does Mile and Sixteenth in 1:44 4-5, Beating Snob II.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Sam Hildreth saddled three winners and made it possible for the Rancocas Stable to score a triple victory at the Jamaica track today. Hildreth sat quietly in his box while the first two races were run and then cut loose with Rigel, Grey Lag and Eaglet, one right after the other.

Rigel not only won the third event, but beat Dot, Greatman and Messenger, among others, and be it told the two last named have been highly considered among the leading 3-year-olds of the year.

That over, Grey Lag stepped forth and won the King's County Handicap giving weight and a decisive beating to Snob II, Prince James and Southern Cross, and then to make it a perfect day for the "White Green Cap," Eaglet, a half-brother to Goshawk, galloped to easy victory in the fifth event after overcoming a little trouble at the far turn.

Grey Lag Close to Record.

Grey Lag stripped for his first race as a 5-year-old ready for any question which might be asked. Earl Sande patiently rated him well off the pace forced by Snob II, but moved up smoothly rounding the stretch turn and came away through the last furlong to win easily amid the wild shouts of the crowd. The son of Star Shoot ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 4-5, only three-fifths of a second behind the track record, which he might easily have equaled if it had been necessary to drive him out. He is ready to face his engagements and it will take a good horse to beat him.

Rigel's victory in the third event was impressive. He got a step at the barrier and Fator, taking quick advantage, sent him to the front and there he stayed to the end, winning with something in reserve in the good time for the six furlongs of 1:12 3-5.

Rigel Named for Big Races.

His performance, however, was partly swallowed up by the running of August Belmont's Messenger, of which so much was expected. The son of Fair Play broke in a slight tangle and raced up the back stretch about three lengths off the pace, but head and head with Greatman. It looked as if he could move up to the leaders at any time but when Dugan called on him at the head of the stretch he flattened out and struggled in a badly beaten fourth.

Harry F. Sinclair, owner of the Rancocas stable, was particularly elated with the performance of Rigel, in view of the fact that he is named with Zev in both the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby, which gives him two strings to a bow already strong, judging by Zev's impressive victory in the Paumonok Handicap on the opening day of the meeting.

POWERFUL NAVY CREW GAINS VICTORY OVER PRINCETON AND HARVARD

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 5.—The United States naval academy's powerful 'varsity crew swept to spectacular victory today over Princeton and Harvard in the triangular regatta over a course of one and three quarters miles on Lake Carnegie. Navy's time was 10:13.

The midshipmen, rowing with the smoothness and precision that stamped them as worthy successors of the great 1921-22 championship eight of the navy, led all the way and finished six lengths ahead of the Tigers, who rowed the course in 10:36 2-5. Harvard, fighting gamely but in vain, was a length and a quarter behind the Orange and Black shell. Harvard's time was 10:42 2-5.

The Crimson, however, gained some consolation when its strong freshman crew captured the opening event, pulling away from the Navy Plebes in the last quarter of a mile after a neck and neck battle with the midshipmen most of the way and winning by 3 1-2 lengths.

Recommendation	108	4	6	6	6	6	6	Gantner	30 to 1	50 to 15	5 to 1

Rigel beat the barrier by two lengths, was rated along in front and easily held Dot safe. Dot made a game effort and held on gamely. Great Man ran a good race. He was away poorly, but displayed good speed. Messenger high in flesh; not ready. He ran well for a quarter, then tired. Carol was away poorly.

GRAY LAG AT HIS BEST

FOURTH RACE—The Kings County Handicap, for 3-year-olds and upward, $3500 added; one mile and a sixteenth. At post, 4; of, 4:01. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Time, 1:44 4-5. Winner, ch. h. 5, by Star Shoot-Miss Minnie. Owner, Rancocas Stable. Trainer, S. C. Hildreth.

HORSE.	Wt.	PP.	St.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Opg.	Close.	Plc. 3d.

Southern Cross	107	1	2	3½	3½	4	4	4	Shut'ger	20 to 15	4 to 1

Grey Lag, in great form, was rated off pace for first six furlongs, moved up under stout restraint, took lead on turn and won galloping. Snob II displayed a high turn of speed. He forced a terrific pace, but tired in stretch and was next best. Prince James was outrun for entire trip. Southern Cross was outclassed.

Navy Athletes Star.

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 5.—Except for the loss of the baseball game, the Annapolis midshipmen would have a clean sweep in today's program of athletic contests. Columbia University was defeated in a dual field and track meet by 87 to 39 points. Penn State's Lacrosse team was smothered under a score of 12 to 2, and the rifle team defeated the District of Columbia National Guardsmen 2334 to 2262 points. The Columbia athletes held up pretty well in the track event, but in the field and the weight contests they were outclassed by the Middies.

Wright Turns in Practice Score of 70 for Deal Links

American's Card Includes Pair of 2s — Willing and Sweetser Star.

By the Associated Press.

DEAL, England, May 5.—Three of America's amateur golfers displayed superb form in practice rounds today over the seaside links of the Royal Cinque Ports Golf Club, where on Monday they will begin their battle for the amateur championship of Great Britain.

Fred Wright made a sensational round of 70, his card including a pair of 2s, three 4s and only three 5s. Dr. O. F. Willing, runner-up for the St. George's cup, went around in 74, and Jess Sweetser, the American champion, sweated through two rounds of 77 and 75, under a blazing sun that caused even some of the English players to peel off their coats.

Francis Ouimet, the new holder of the St. George's cup, devoted the day mostly to practice shots over the more difficult parts of the course. Robert Gardner, captain of the American invaders, was off his game and had a high score, as did Max Marston, Harrison Johnston and others.

Scottish Amateurs Victors.

The Americans had to squeeze their practice rounds in between the matches of the English and Scottish amateurs, who had their day of international matches, an annual event. Scotland won today, taking four matches to three in the singles, with three halved and three out of five in the foursomes.

The contests were so hard fought that eight of the singles matches went to the eighteenth green, and the others to the seventeenth.

The veteran, Robert Harris, of Scotland, who was Ouimet's partner in the stroke play at Sandwich after being four down on the fifth hole, defeated E. W. E. Holderness, the British titleholder, and John Wilson, the Priestwick schoolmaster, defeated Cyril Tolley, the former champion, both on the eighteenth green. Roger Wethered won from Willis MacKenzie, also on the home hole.

T. A. Torence defeated N. E. Hassall, and Bernard Darwin halved with Harry Braid.

Represent Pick of Countries.

The men of the two teams represented the best of English and Scottish amateurs, and almost all of them will stand in the path of the Americans next week in their attempt for the title.

Competitors in British Amateur To Play Over 6600-Yard Course

Two Outstanding Features at Deal Are Length of Links and Undulating Greens, Writes Ouimet—Two Long Wooden Shots Needed on Six of Last Nine Holes.

By Francis Ouimet.

(Copyright, 1923.)

DEAL, Elgland, May 5.—On Monday the best golfers of two great nations will tee off here in quest of the British amateur championship. The links for this event will be the Royal Cinque Ports Golf Club, one of the championship courses of England and incidentally one of the longest and most difficult I have ever seen.

One marvels, after playing the links, that George Duncan finished with two successive 71s, to win the open title in 1920. It seems impossible, but Duncan did just that. Nine years ago, to be exact, I played my first round at Deal and while admitting to a fair memory, I must confess that the holes look entirely different from what they did in 1914.

Two Features of Course.

There are two outstanding features at Deal—the length of the course and the undulating fairways. The course is supposed to be approximately 6,600 yards long, and quite the longest of any of the championship links, on a windy day!

With the prevailing wind in operation, six of the last nine holes call for two long wooden shots, and even then only a Cyril Tolley is able to get home on his second on some of these.

At least three of the first nine holes necessitate using a spoon brassie for the second shot so it can easily be seen that Deal is a "man's golf course."

There are three one-shot holes, each one of which is a most testing affair, and I dare say that a three would be always welcome to most any competitor.

Speaking of the undulations, the average American golfer is naturally inclined to consider the parts of putting greens. It is not so at this course, for, although the greens have undulations for the most part they run a poor second to the fairways in this respect.

Wind Blows Constantly.

The little valleys and on the mounds here give much to think about. We have nothing like this in America and I suppose that is one reason why our British friends excel as shot makers.

Sometimes you must get your ball up very quickly in order to escape a sharp mound and at other times you are confronted with a down hill lie. All of which tends to keep you thinking about what club you are going to use or how you will play the shot.

Another feature, and by all odds the most difficult, is the wind, which blows constantly. I have hardly seen enough of the course as yet to form an accurate opinion as to what direction, but I think it is dead against the player on the last nine holes where he needs every yard he can get and still making most holes in 5s instead of 4s.

The first seven holes skirt the channel, running northerly; the next four are almost at right angles to the first group and the last seven are almost in a bee-line back to the clubhouse.

The fairway is one of such undulations as the nearby channel itself knows; the ground rolls like a sea with big swells, little swells and medium sized swells. But it is after all a generous fairway; mostly firm; without many blind holes hiding behind high mounds, sand and tough high grass. Just now the course, which has been blistering for several days under a hot sun, is slick and fast.

Announcing a New

Service Station

for Owners of

MOON MOTOR CARS

Moon owners will now find a new Moon Service Station at 3114-16 Washington Boul.—one of the largest and best equipped service stations in St. Louis. Complete service by mechanics who are experts on Moon cars, in a new special building located directly behind the Moon showrooms on Locust Street. You can drive in from either Locust or Washington Boul.

Moon cars seldom need mechanical attention, but due to the large and rapidly increasing number now seen on the streets—many of these being the fifth and sixth time the owners have repeatedly chosen the Moon—this station will be welcomed by all.

Located on the city's main artery of travel, east and west, and at a point at mid-distance between the north and south sections of the city, this enlarged maintenance department offers exceptional facilities for all owners of this St. Louis made car.

Discussion of Celebrated Works National Sculpture Society Has on Exhibition in New York

Prof. Victor S. Holm of Washington University Comments on Some Art Pieces St. Louisans May See on Trip East This Summer.

By Victor S. Holm,
Professor of Sculpture in the School of Fine Arts of Washington University.

NOT since any of the world's fairs has the public been treated to so charmingly arranged outdoor exhibition of sculpture as in the gardens and terraces of the Hispanic and Numismatic Societies on upper Broadway and 156th street in New York City, where the National Sculpture Society is now holding its greatest and most important exhibition of contemporary American sculpture, ranging from heroic equestrians to life-sized figures in marble, stone and plaster to tiny bronzes displayed in the interior galleries of the building grouped around the court and gardens.

Roughly speaking, some 800 examples of extemporary American plastic art are here shown and I have never seen so delightful a spot as these gardens studded with statues, each arranged with its suitable setting of trees, shrubs and flowers which have, at great cost, been planted temporarily for the exhibition.

Victor S. Holm.
—Strauss Portrait.

Directly in front of the grounds on Broadway, the exhibition is heralded by a monumental flagpole base in white plaster, the work of Lentelli, a young Italian-American sculptor, whose bold and florid style is adding to American sculpture a note of energy and vivacity. Some other notable works by this young sculptor are his very decorative Finial figure and some very freely handled decorative figures for a building down-town.

In the first court of the grounds are placed three large statues, in between which are grouped some smaller bronzes. Directly on the axis of the entrance is the big marble statue called "Memory," the work of Daniel Chester French, now the dean of American sculpture. It is an entirely nude female figure of heroic size, half reclining and holding in her left hand an object which I should say is a little mirror. The figure is done in Mr. French's latest style, beautifully simplified and reposeful.

On the right side of this figure, near the entrance, is an heroic figure by Cyrus Dallin, which the artist calls "The Last Arrow," and one thinks regretfully of how much better this veteran sculptor would have been represented by his famous equestrian, "The Appeal to the Great Spirit," or "The Medicine Man."

Memorial to Fourth Division.

Opposite this is another heroic statue in bronze by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, a memorial to the Fourth Division. The artist has handled the modeling of this figure in so generalized a manner that this soldier boy, without any equipment whatever and none too steady on his feet, fails to express just what the artist tried to say.

In this same court are a number of beautiful little bronzes of which might be mentioned a group by Isadore Konti; "A Girl and Butterfly," by Henri Creiner; "Caestus," by Niehaus. "A Frog Fountain," by Charles Hinton, and an interesting essay, by a woman, Alice M. Wright, in utter simplification and elimination of every detail in her stone figure called "The Wind." The attempt is very interesting and the figure does convey a whirlwind. Yet, I think if she had not pushed the generalization of all form quite so far the figure would have been a bit more coherent. But all these new tendencies give zest to art. At all events let us do something.

On the upper terrace, flanking the staircase, are placed two heroic equestrian monuments by Augustus Lukeman. They are respectively Gen. D. MacM. Gregg and Francis Asbury. These heroic figures are what one might term standard; good, hard, serious work, but somehow lacking in that touch of dramatic quality that always makes sculpture interesting. The eye would be more delighted by less strict adherence to actual fact and a little more blending here and there.

Two works on this terrace demand attention. The details of a monument to the soldiers and sailors of the Civil War, placed in Albany, N. Y. They are the work of Herman A. MacNeil, with whose delightful group of two Indians in the City Art Museum St. Louisans are well acquainted. These two works represent the models for the two sides of a great Pylon, at the base of which are placed a group of soldiers representing the charge of the Union troops and a group of sailors depicting the navy in action. On the shaft of the Pylon, behind and above the groups are carved in low relief two heroic figures respectively of the army and navy which in their simplified and conventionalized handling not only keep their proper place upon the wall, as a part of it, but are a complement to the more realistic figures of the groups. This monument exemplifies, as do all MacNeil's works, the artist's great ability in composition, difference of textures and true plastic feeling.

Another, and entirely different work, by Mr. MacNeil is his beautiful nude female figure, "Into the Unknown," which has now become the seal of the National Sculpture Society.

Among other large statues on the upper terrace are the portraits of Alexander Hamilton by Frazer, which impresses me a good deal the same way as Lukeman's equestrians, much hard work and not much joy.

Portrait Statue by Bartlett.

Then there is the portrait statue of "Robert Morris," by Paul Bartlett, which somehow leaves you disappointed when you think of that great work of sculpture, that splendid statue by the same artist, of "Gen. Warren," a copy of which is in the City Art Museum. I have always considered the "Warren" and the "Michael Angelo" by Bartlett as among the very greatest of portrait statues in modern times and have always felt that in the work of no other American is there so well blended incisive characterization, dramatic feeling and masterly handling of the bronze as in the best works of Paul Bartlett. Many great American sculptors possess any one or two of these qualities, but none that I know of possess all of them so equally. Everything that Mr. Bartlett does is, first of all, sculpture, and then, afterwards, something else, but always pre-eminently sculpture. A full-size head of the "Michael Angelo" is in the galleries.

Only the very opposite can be said of the heroic figure of the "Laborer," by Henry Herring.

A Flight Into Space.

Among the purely imaginative works on this terrace should be mentioned Frederick Guinzburg's bronze group called "The Prey of the Manhorse," which is not only a flight of imagination, but a flight into space as well. The group is very decoratively handled, though a little tiresome here and there and the utter complacency of the comfortably reclining "Prey" makes you feel somewhat doubtful as to what it is all about. The negro lady who trails along on the drapery, behind the group, does not quite explain herself. The group has lots of "go," though I am afraid that I am too old-fashioned to fully

WE HAVE OUR CHOICE, LEAGUE OR WAR

SAYS PROF. IRVING FISHER IN NEW BOOK

'Dream of Ages, Parliament of Man Has Come'

Seat of Honor Made for Us, but Instead of Taking It We Picket the Premises With Unofficial Observers, Writes Yale University Economist.

Council Was Built Up by Efforts of Our Own Great Men, He Points Out—Declares Opinion Is Turning Away From Isolation Policy.

By CHARLES G. ROSS
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The case for the League of Nations is clearly and comprehensively put in the book by Prof. Irving Fisher, which Harpers have scheduled for publication Monday. "League or War?" is the title under which the author, who is professor of political economy at Yale University and president of the American Economic Association, traces the history of the long controversy over the League, examines the arguments pro and con, and reaches the conclusion that "we have our simple choice, League or War."

There is so much quotable matter in this closely reasoned, yet eminently readable, book by one of the leading economists of the United States that a friendly reviewer, like the present, must be in danger of piling up excerpts beyond the space limits of a newspaper article. A characteristic passage in the admirable summarizing chapter which concludes the book is the following:

"What, then, do we find? After waiting since the Armistice, through a longer period than the period of the war, we are still debating what to do, while 52 other nations are doing it. The dream of the ages, the Parliament of Man, has come, with a seat of honor made for us. But, instead of taking it, we picket the premises with unofficial observers. And all this despite the fact that the League grew out of the efforts of our own great men, including especially our last three Presidents."

Five Reasons for Entering League

Prof. Fisher sets out five specific reasons why the United States should enter the League of Nations. They are all reasons of self-interest, as follows: To keep a foreign market for our farmers and manufacturers; to enable Europe to pay some of its debts to the United States; to maintain our greatest international asset, international good-will; to avoid the need of a costly navy and army; to avoid wars which would injure and probably involve ourselves.

"The last reason," he says, "is the biggest one; although, in a distorted perspective, it seems so far off as to be the smallest. We need the League to escape world war."

The alternative is "too horrible to contemplate." He itemizes the cost of the last war—its cost in money, 186 billion dollars, not counting the devastation in France and Belgium or the intangible costs of disrupted trade and industry; its cost in human lives, 10 millions killed, and its cost in morale, in the vigor of the next generation and in racial vigor. Then:

"'The next war' will probably cost more in every one of these ways. In that war not soldiers only, but helpless women and children will be asphyxiated by the newly invented gas bombs to be dropped from the sky. Whole cities, like New York, will have their inhabitants put to death by this method and their buildings set on fire by other gas devices. The next world war means the suicide of the world."

The writer marvels at a situation which finds the United States, more than four years after the Armistice, not in the League of Nations, not the creator of the "Association of Nations" promised by the Republican platform of 1920, not even a member of the Permanent Court of International Justice.

Public Turning From Isolation

Despite the earnest desire of the vast majority of the American people for peace, "America still remains without participation in any effective organization to prevent the recurrence of a world war." It seems to the author that "four years is a long time in which to do nothing but discuss what shall be done." He believes, however, that at last, because of the growing realization that chaos in Europe destroys American markets and lessens our chance of collecting the war debt, American "public opinion is turning away from the policy of isolation toward a vague idea of some participation in European problems."

Prof. Fisher brands as baseless the assumption by opponents of the League of Nations that Roosevelt, had he lived, would have been of their number. Quoting from an editorial written by Roosevelt just before his death, Prof. Fisher says the conclusion cannot be escaped that Roosevelt's "farewell advice to the world was to carry out the project of the League of Nations, to prevent the recurrence of world war." The impression created by "irresponsible statesmen" that Roosevelt opposed the actual league covenant is completely refuted, Prof. Fisher points out, by the fact that even the first draft of the covenant was not drawn until six weeks after the former President's death.

"How does it happen," asks Prof. Fisher, "that we, with all our love of peace and all our constructive work for peace through Roosevelt, Taft, Root, Hughes and Wilson, are still outside the League while practically the rest of the world is inside? In one word the answer is: Politics."

The fate of the League in the Senate, he shows, hung on a slender thread. Had any one of a number of things been done differently, America would be in the League today.

Seating of Newberry as Factor

"In fact," writes Prof. Fisher in an illuminating paragraph on the political aspects of the League fight, "it is possible that we should have been in the League if Senator Newberry had not been allowed to take the seat which afterwards he was forced by pressure of public opinion to relinquish (since without him the Republican control of the Senate would have been doubtful; for if La Follette be considered Independent, the Republicans and Democrats would have been tied)."

The fight might have been won, Prof. Fisher thinks, if President Wilson had yielded a little in order to win a little more political support in the Senate. There were other "ifs," which he enumerates. But instead of "crying over spilt milk" the thing to do now is to—

"Resolve, and resolve solemnly, to sink our old differences and forget, so far as we can, the old storm centers, namely (1) the Treaty and its enemies; (2) Wilson and his enemies; and (3) the Republican-Democratic struggle; and, following in the footsteps of our greatest conciliator, 'with malice towards none, with charity for all,' consider on its merits the great question of whether or not our America shall join with the 52 other nations in the effort to bind up the wounds of this bleeding world and safeguard it against ever getting so grievously hurt again."

The League of Nations, Prof. Fisher declares, is "absolutely essential from the standpoint of the self-interest of the world in general and of the United States in particular." This for three reasons: to enable us to "finish the job" that we undertook when we went to war; to prevent competitive armaments; to prevent more world wars.

Would Have Averted Last War

On the second of these three topics he says: "The United States has reached the parting of the ways. Either we must compete in armament with the rest of the world, or combine in disarmament with the rest of the world." Concerted disarmament, he says, would benefit almost every individual through a lessening of his tax burden.

In an interesting chapter on the philosophy of war, Prof. Fisher asserts that if the League had been in existence in July, 1914, the war would probably never have happened. For this belief (which, he notes, is the positive opinion of Lord Grey), he gives four reasons: (1) The nations concerned would probably not have been armed to the teeth; (2) the circumstances leading to the war would probably have been altered by friendly intervention; (3) had they progressed to the danger point, Germany and Austria could not have refused Sir Edward Grey's suggestion of a conference, when a conferring body stood ready; and (4) the offender in all probability would not have dared start a war had it been apparent that the whole world would be offended.

The objection that man, being a "fighting animal," cannot and will not abolish war is characterized as "wholly unfounded." In fact, Prof. Fisher argues, war has been in process of abolition from the first beginnings of the law.

"The experience of all history proves that, when given the two alternatives, mankind will not 'because he is by nature a warlike animal,' choose war, but, on the contrary, because he is 'by nature a peaceful animal,' will almost invariably choose law. * * * The fundamental reason why war ever occurs is, in general, simply that no alternative method of settling disputes is available. The need of the hour is to realize that an alternative method now stands ready, if we will but use it."

League Issue Not Settled, He Declares

In the course of a detailed analysis of the anti-League arguments, Prof. Fisher disputes the claim that the country gave a mandate against the League in the 1920 election.

"Even if we assume," he says, "that all the 14 per cent of the voters by which the Republicans won were anti-League and that half of their normal 50 per cent (i. e., 25 per cent of the electorate) were anti-League—surely excessive figures in each case—we can thereby muster only 39 per cent of the total as having been opposed to the League. It seems more reasonable to conclude that the League opponents numbered less than 33 per cent of the voters."

It is "ridiculous," Prof. Fisher continues, to say that the League issue has been settled, for—

"Great questions are seldom really settled until they are settled right. Let us remember that the slavery question was once 'settled' by the Missouri Compromise. But, much to the surprise of the politicians, it didn't stay settled. If there is anything clear to all who are not, ostrich-like, burying their heads in the sand, it is that isolation, at this time, is no settlement at all.

"In short, the League question, in a new form, is now before us."

A chapter of the book is devoted to "The Senate Irreconcilables" who killed the League. They "made their clamors vocal and insistent, in season and out of season, and they possessed the power, through the franking privilege, to disseminate their propaganda through every nook and cranny of the land. The only voice loudly raised against them was one, that of the President, and that voice was soon stilled by illness. The great progress made by the little band of irreconcilable Senators in affecting public opinion is thus a testimony to the power of persistent and loud advertising."

Sums Up Achievements of the League

America failed to keep step with the rest of the world "simply and solely because we had a deadlocked government. The President negotiated the Treaty; the Senate failed to ratify because of hostility to the President—not great enough to blind all Republicans, but great enough, with the help of personal enemies in his own party, to block the President. Only by perceiving and understanding the struggle can we understand how far many Americans missed the real point of the League and how misled was public opinion. The public, by bitter experience, is now gradually waking up to these facts."

Summing up the achievements of the League to date, Prof. Fisher says it "has accomplished wonders in hundreds of unobtrusive ways. * * * In particular it has stopped four wars which might otherwise have spread throughout Europe; in three of these cases it has settled the

Lloyd George Asserts British Regard Prohibition as Joke; But Watch U. S. Experiment

Says People Are Not in Least Persuaded Evils of Alcohol Cannot Be Dealt With Effectively Without Drastic Law.

War-Time Premier of Great Britain.

LONDON, May 5.

FOUR years ago, the United States of America, by a two-thirds majority, voted prohibition of the sale of alcoholic liquors. The British House of Commons has just voted down a bill for the same purpose by a majority of 236 to 14.

America treats prohibition as one of its greatest moral triumphs. Britain treats it as a joke.

David Lloyd George.

What accounts for this remarkable disparity in the attitude of two great English-speaking communities toward one of the most baffling and elusive problems civilization has to deal with? It cannot be a fundamental difference in temperament or in moral outlook. The men who engineered prohibition in America are of our own race and kind, bred in Puritan traditions and came originally from our shores. If the evils of excessive drinking had been more apparent in America than in Britain, I could understand the States of the Union deciding to take more drastic action than has been thought necessary in our country.

But the facts are exactly the reverse. The consumption of alcohol in the United Kingdom before the war per head of population was twice that of the United States. The poverty, disease and squalor caused by alcohol were, therefore much greater in Britain than in America. What, then, accounts for the readiness of America to forbid sale and the reluctance of Britain even seriously to restrict?

Possible Explanations.

I would not care to dogmatize on the subject, but will hazard two or three possible explanations. I set aside the suggestion that property owners are frightened by the sequel to prohibition in Russia. I have heard it argued that the prohibition ukase of the Czar was responsible for the Russian revolution. That is probably true, for people stupefied by alcohol will stand anything. The inefficiency and corruption of the Czarist regime was so appalling that no sober nation could have tolerated it without rebellion for a single year, and when the fumes of vodka ceased to muddle and blind the moujik, he rebelled against the autocracy that had betrayed his country in disaster. The Russian experiment in drink, therefore, contains no warning against prohibition except the very limited one that those who wish to misrule a country in safety must first of all drench it with alcohol.

There is, of course, the ready explanation that old countries are very conservative and do not take kindly to change. Their joints are stiff with age, and they creak along well-worn paths slowly and painfully, but they lack the suppleness of limb that tempts younger communities to spring across untrodden country. That is the argument. I am afraid this explanation will not hold. Old countries, when thoroughly moved, can leap like a hare.

People Must Be Convinced.

The French Revolution demonstrated how vigorously one of the oldest nations of Europe could tear along unbroken tracks when impelled by a new passion. And I saw Britain spring to arms in 1914, when five millions of men joined the colors without the lash of compulsion to stir their blood. England renewed her youth, and her movements had the energy, the audacity and the endurance of a people untired by a march of centuries. This people, if stirred by a call which reaches its heart or conscience, is capable of action as bold as that which wrested Magna Charta out of a despot in the twelfth century, overthrew an ancient religion in the fifteenth century, led a King to the scaffold in the seventeenth century or challenged the greatest military empires in the world in the sixteenth, nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

If they were convinced that the liquor traffic must be destroyed they would execute it with as little compunction or hesitation as they displayed in suppressing the mass, or in decapitating Charles the First. At the present moment the British people are not in the least persuaded that the evils of alcohol for the minority of the population cannot be dealt with effectively without resorting to the very drastic expedient of forbidding its consumption by the majority who use it in moderation. Are they likely to be convinced? That depends on the failure or success of all other expedients to exterminate the evil of alcoholism.

That brings me to another explanation. America reached prohibition by the path of experiment. The Federal system lent itself to a trial of every form of remedy, including prohibition. For well over half a century you have had almost every form of temperance expedient ever suggested in actual working in some state or other of the American Republic.

When I was a lad I heard debates and addresses in Welsh about the comparative merits of "the Maine law" and high license. High license, reduction of licenses, local option, prohibition have all been tried. They have all been in operation quite long enough to enable the American public to form a judgement on their merits. Statistical results over long periods constitute a reliable basis for inference. American Federalism furnished the opportunity, and the states took full advantage of it. Hence the prohibition law. To the practical man, figures in the prohibition states looked attractive from a business point of view. He hesitated, but the moral wave that swept America carried him over the bar. But without experience at his door I doubt whether the American business man would have assented to prohibition.

Wary of Experiments.

The British Constitution does not lend itself to these valuable experiments. Otherwise London might have tried one experiment, Lancashire another, Yorkshire a third and Wales a fourth. The whole legislative power of the United Kingdom was until recently vested in the Imperial Parliament. Ireland has now a Legislature of its own. In theory, what suited one part of the kingdom must do for the whole, and what did not suit more populous parts could not be permitted to others. As far as Scotland, Ireland and Wales were concerned, there was in practice a certain relaxation of this rule. But as far as liquor laws went, any serious alteration in any part of the kingdom was difficult to secure if it offended prejudices or damaged the interests of the rest. It took years to get it through Parliament, even in mutilated condition. There was no real freedom of experiment. The Scottish local veto act is a compromise modified to suit English sentiment. Even as it is, it took 30 years of Scottish insistence to carry. Wales has been denied local option, although it has been demanded by four-fifths of its representatives for more than a generation. We have, therefore, in this country, been de-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Curbing the Supreme Court.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court in regard to the child labor law and the minimum wage law are in line with their other decisions against the working people of this country, and show that the people cannot expect a minimum wage law nor decent working hours from the United States Supreme Court, so the only thing left for the workers of this country to do is to join forces through their unions and other organizations and demand a constitutional amendment giving them a minimum wage and eight-hour day. This law should apply not only to the children and women, but to the men as well, thousands of whom are being killed by degrees by long hours of labor in the steel mills, mines, locomotive works and other places over the country.

If we had a minimum wage and eight-hour day law for every man, woman and child, it would not only protect the lives and morals of the people, but would go a long way in settling the immigration problem, as American employers would hire American workers in preference to foreigners if they were required to pay them a minimum wage and work them only a certain length of time, because, as everybody knows, an American will do twice as much work as a foreigner.

Get together, labor leaders and all Christians, and demand the two laws in one amendment to protect the men, women and children of this country from inhuman employers who are killing them by degrees and ruining the country. And prohibit the Supreme Court from nullifying the acts of our Representatives, which was never intended by our Constitution.

Oh, Pussyfoot!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AFTER gazing at the amiable features of our friend, "Pussyfoot" Johnson in the large cut of him shown in Saturday's Post-Dispatch, my eyes traveled down to his hands, and I was shocked to observe that he actually smokes. Assuming that he is fond of his cigar, it would indeed be a matter of interest to find out from him just what he thinks of the nicotophobiacs who are quite sure that tobacco in all forms is just as proper an object of denunciation and prohibition as liquor in any form. Wonder if he could be induced to frankly express his opinion on this subject? DAVID ROSS.

Socialism for England.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ACCORDING to the election returns from England, the aggregate Socialist vote was 4,252,011. The party that received a majority in Parliament received 5,467,871 votes. Socialists believe England is theirs, and believe the next election will prove it.

The Socialist party started in England in 1885, with only 61 votes. They showed little strength in 1908 in the United States, but polled about 1,000,000 votes in 1912. The war set them back in 1916 and 1920. They are showing signs of getting back to the 1912 figure, and may exceed that in 1924. They are watching the handwriting on the wall of England with keen interest.

What Is "Americanism"?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I RECENTLY noticed a letter in your columns signed by the Rev. C. McGehee offering a reward of $1000 to anyone who can cite an instance where a member of the Ku Klux Klan has been convicted of misdemeanor. For some time past I have been under the impression that the Rev. McGehee is not a reasonable man, and this statement confirms my impression. How can anyone convict a tribe of bigots, outlaws and murderers who parade on their missions of righteousness with sheets over their heads? If the reverend gentleman will read the daily papers he will see that the only thing keeping most of the Egan-Hogan gangsters out of jail is the lack of sufficient identification (and they don't even wear sheets).

Rev. McGehee further states that the Ku Klux Klan stands for the principles of Americanism. He desecrates the word when he uses it in such a manner. Will the reverend gentleman kindly define his idea of the word "American?" Does he not know that this country was discovered by a Catholic, who sailed the unknown seas on ships purchased by a Catholic Queen? Also I might mention that the fearless missionaries who labored among the savage Indians were Jesuit priests.

The colony of Maryland, founded by a Catholic, was the first to pass a law tolerating all religions within its boundaries, and then Protestants later expelled the Catholic settlers who had befriended them. Read your American history from 1492 to the time of the great World War and you will find that it abounds with the names of Irish Catholics who fought for the United States. And Mr. McGehee would brand them as un-American. To anyone who contemplates joining the Ku Klux Klan, and to those who are already members, I would suggest that they study the history, beliefs and practices of the Catholic Church, and if they are still convinced that it is un-American let them keep on barking. There is an old saying to the effect that if you have no enemies you're a "dead one," and that applies to this instance.

READER.

GARY, BARNES AND MUSSOLINI.

The fact that Gary, head of the Steel Trust, and Barnes, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, both expressed themselves as delighted with Mussolini and his achievements as chief of the Fascisti, should be considered in conjunction with what Fascism means to the Italian Fascist leaders, both as an economic and political idea.

When Gary was welcomed by the Italian Fascists on landing at Naples last February, Under-Secretary of the Interior Finzi boasted to him that Fascism had banished the word strike from the dictionary as far as Italy was concerned. To which Gary replied with congratulations. As everyone knows, the Italian workers under the Fascist Government do not dare to strike, having been completely cowed into temporary submission by Fascist violence, although the workers were not without guilt. Democracy, for the time being, is dead in Italy.

Barnes tells the bankers that "Mussolini is a great man. The conversion of that man, with his strength and following, to the principles of the so-called capitalistic system that we believe in, is the most extraordinary encouragement to us."

Before following Gary and Barnes in their admiration for Mussolini, let us see what Italian Fascism is doing for Italy, its birthplace. Having bulldozed the blue-shirt, or Nationalist, party into joining the black-shirts, or Fascisti, the organ of Fascism, Impero, is now shouting for a new Roman Empire. Among other things it says:

> Seeing that fate has ordained that there shall be commanding and obeying nations, there is no nation more fit to command than the Italian, the most imbued with genius, intelligence and talent.
> Since there must always be wars by decree of fate, the highly civilized nations must be masters of war, who will not abuse their power, but merely follow the voice of the inevitable.
>
> In order that the initiative for war may not fall into the hands of inferior nations, the superior nations must be more convinced than the others that war is inevitable and must be prepared for it.
> The international theory of eternal peace is utopian. It increases the possibility of war instead of decreasing it.
> We shout for a Roman Empire, because the time is favorable. Thus we fulfill our mission of heralds. We have in Benito Mussolini a leader of the new generation. Let it be clearly and unmistakably proclaimed that we are dreaming of a new era of Roman rule. We want to make Rome once more the head of the world because we are convinced that in this way we are serving in an enlightened manner the peace of the world.

This incitement to a new war of conquest, of course, is the inevitable fruit of the triumph of the ideals embraced by Mussolini since his successful march to the virtual dictatorship of Italy. The world is weary of liberty, he asserts, and if that were the fact, of course, it would welcome the dictatorship of some nation that could keep it in orderly servitude. That was what induced Prussia to embark on its attempt at world conquest. The ravings of Impero forcibly remind one of the ante-war ideals of the Prussian imperialists.

The more or less benevolent labor feudalism of Gary and Barnes and the outspoken imperialism of Mussolini are of the same stamp. They both challenge democracy, and their triumph would be the end of American ideals in society and government.

COLLEGE HORSEPLAY.

From the statistician's point of view the number of college men killed or crippled in hazing and class rushes is insignificant as compared with the number engaged. This fact, however, will not appeal to parents whose sons may happen to be the victims. Northwestern University, having sustained a double blow within a few days, has taken the side of the parents. It has abolished class rushes and hazing on the campus forever.

The action of the university authorities is drastic and may have been a little hysterical in response to the spirit of the hour. Class fights are not without their benefits. To some students they bring the first knowledge that life is a rough game, demanding strength, courage and aggressiveness as well as virtue. That is something the curricula do not teach, and it is a fact which should be brought somehow to the realization of the student.

Amiable scrimmage, the spirit in which class fights are usually conducted, is harmless. It is only when a few individuals of the mass take advantage of the occasion to indulge an appetite for cruelty and foul play that the class rush becomes dangerous. Old-fashioned hazing also is subject to abuses which may descend to barbarity and crime.

College rules should not be for the protection of mollycoddles or for the encouragement of that sort of manhood. They should not interfere with reasonable, if rude, endeavors to mellow the verdancy of freshmen. They should discriminate between harmless tradition, which may be salutary, and indefensible practices which are a persecution and lead to serious consequences.

UNIONISM IN THE THEATER.

One of the strangest industrial disputes in this country has started between the Actors' Equity and the theatrical producers. War has been declared on the seven-day week and seems likely to continue until companies are made up for the season next fall.

Although the battle cry is "no Sunday shows," both sides have been preparing for the final fight almost since the inception of the Equity. Trades or professions in which lucky individuals have a chance to rise with flashing rapidity are usually the last to be unionized. It is only when advancement is slow and uncertain for a man that he is ready to join with his fellow workers, and by raising the mass, help himself. So producers expected the quick break-up of the Equity, which so far, besides sponsoring several remarkably unsuccessful plays, has accomplished little. In the meantime we will be able to watch Ethel Barrymore perhaps as an agitator, or possibly Jacob Ben-Ami as a strike leader.

Producers are counting on the jealousy, cupidity and ambition of the individual actor to abolish finally the union shop forced on some of them two years ago. Guerilla warfare will go on through the summer with the decisive struggle in September. If the Equity weathers it, one of the most curious examples of unionism will be an established fact. By November St. Louis will feel the effects in the prices of tickets and character of companies.

If the Equity wins, its victory may stir up the other "white collar" unions, such as that of the stenographers and bookkeepers, which so far has failed miserably to emulate the success of miners and plumbers.

ANTAGONIZING THE WORLD.

France, by Poincare's orders, will "vigorously protest" the Supreme Court's decision forbidding foreign ships to carry liquor stores within our three-mile limit. England's unofficial grumbling will doubtless presently appear in formal complaint. Other nations will join in the demurrer. Nor may the justice of such proceeding be questioned.

As the Post-Dispatch has pointed out, the forbidden practice does not imperil any American law or person. Frankly it is none of our concern. France insists the ruling is contrary to international law. That contention is yet to be upheld; but there is no doubt that the ruling lacks consideration and a "decent respect for the opinion of (the rest of) mankind." To the other nations, with the exception of Turkey, which alone shares our alcoholic apostasy, it must seem a gross impertinence.

There are practical complications. The ruling places the captains of foreign ships in the dilemma of having to violate the laws of their nations or ours. Manifestly no choice is possible.

Of course, we have one advantage at present. Most of the other nations owe us money. And among nations, as individuals, perhaps, the debtor may be disposed to smile at the whimsies or crotchets of his creditor. That condition, though, will not always obtain. Even in the present circumstances it is neither prudent nor proper to count too much on "that patient merit of the unworthy." National pride, national custom, national selfrespect are too weighty imponderables to be flouted thoughtlessly.

Are we ready, in the name of prohibition, to effect a coalition of world sentiment against ourselves? Are we willing, because we happen, possibly, to have the power, to impose our prejudices upon other peoples? Can we afford to offend the sensibilities of other peoples and inspire in them a contempt for us which must, in the nature of things, wax into a hatred that will seize the opportunity for reprisal whenever that opportunity comes?

STORE COMBINATIONS.

Gimbel Bros. and Saks & Co., operating big stores in New York, have combined. The new organization will maintain five large stores, some of them in other cities, including Philadelphia and Chicago.

The merger is interesting as indicating the trend of the times. It is notable that combination and coalition of large stores have been occurring for some time. One of the large St. Louis emporiums is involved in such a combination. Then there has been the meteoric rise of chain stores in nearly every line of merchandise.

Such a combination in the interests of profit appears to be inevitable, however much it may be regretted in the interests of healthy competition and opposed by those whose interests may suffer. There are economies to be realized, through combination, from the cutting down of overhead and from large buying operations which may include the output of entire factories. Considerable savings are to be made also by consolidating distribution forces.

The question of the effect of such combinations on the public interest is vital. Monopoly never is beneficial to the public unless it is regulated, as in the case of public utilities. The field is yet so large, however, that monopoly in stores is a remote possibility. The effect upon society is, for the time, the more interesting consideration.

Theoretically, our mercantile population, instead of being scattered around in many small stores, would become employes of the large stores. The former proprietors would be managers or department heads. The clerks would only be going from small employers to large employers. The incentive of the former storekeeper to become affluent would become the incentive of the store employe for advancement. Public suspicion and tendency to curtail big retail business by legislation would be largely tempered by the sale of stock to the public, a measure which is already well established. What new developments in the economic and social order are to come out of the tendency of combination? It will be a growth worth watching.

OVER THE BACK FENCE.

When Representative Stephen G. Porter wrote a hoodlum letter to "Mr. Robert Cecil," setting forth the high position taken by the United States on the narcotic traffic as compared with the sordid policy of the League of Nations he little suspected that the State Department would yet go begging to the League to join it in a program which it found itself powerless to enforce without that organization.

Such is the humble role to which our country has been reduced, according to a statement of Secretary Hughes read before the National Anti-narcotic Conference in New York. An American delegation will be sent in a "consultative" capacity to a meeting of the Opium Advisory Committee of the League at Geneva to urge curtailment of the production of opium and coca leaves in line with the resolution of Congress referred to by Representative Porter in his letter to Lord Robert.

Regardless of the League's record in narcotic suppression, the scheduled action of the State Department at Geneva is equal to a confession that any position taken by our Government in this line is ineffective without the co-operation of the League of Nations. It is an admission that we cannot fight the opium traffic successfully by assuming a superior attitude toward those whose assistance is necessary to our success.

In his speech in St. Louis former Justice John H. Clarke said "it would seem as if Washington is afraid it may become contaminated if it comes in touch with this great experiment (the League of Nations)." Apparently it is losing its fear of contamination, but it is ashamed to be seen in the front room. It is negotiating over the back fence in cringing horror of obligations and responsibilities.

PANETELA.

YES, Luella,
Mr. Harding
Went and did it,
Sure enough;
Looks as if
The anti-leaguers
Meant to treat him
Pretty rough.
Anyway,
Their opposition Fairly makes
The welkin ring,
And Gamaliel
Is sorry
That he ever
Said a thing.

Thus it goes,
My little girlie:
Everything
Was like a dream
Until Mr. Harding
Wandered Back to this
Forbidden theme.
Head and spokesman
Of his party,
Lo, his crown
Began to lift
When his lute,
Disdaining safety,
Ventured this Immortal rift!

What the trouble is,
Luella,
Ought to make
A body laugh:
Turning down
The League of Nations,
Now we seek
To take the half.
Having first
Repulsed the parent,
Shouting "Go!"
In accents wild,
Now we pull
The contradiction
Of alliance
With the child!

Is it therefore
To be wondered That Gamaliel
The blest
Feels he would Perhaps have better
Let this grievous
Matter rest?
Or does it
Surprise us greatly,
Seeing Mr. Harding in Such a plight
For indiscretion,
That a lot
Of people grin?

No, Luella,
Life is earnest,
Nor should peace
Be called its goal;
Mr. Harding,
Past debating,
Is a good
But simple soul.
What he missed
Was that while Justice
Ought in truth
To have its fling,
Justifying
Mr. Wilson
Would be quite Another thing.

GOOD FROM AN UNEXPECTED QUARTER.

Monroe County (Mo.) Appeal.)

Well, anyway, the Republican party didn't put anything over on Missouri when it elected Jesse Barrett as Attorney-General. He is big enough for a similar position in the President's Cabinet and there's where he ought to be. Big Business, however, is always particular to keep a man of his type out of a place where he could send it to jail for its crimes against the public. Jesse comes from a good Democratic newspaper family at Canton, Mo., and really is more of a patriot than a politician.

Sir: Allow me, through your column, publicly to felicitate the Post-Dispatch upon the conspicious intrepidity and high moral enterprise it displayed in sending a reporter to count the number of automobiles parked in Forest Park Wednesday evening. I earnestly trust that you have not concluded the extent of your revelations merely with giving the actual number. The survey, in order to be thorough and adequate to the demands of scientific analysis, undoubtedly should include the make and the model of the cars, the number of occupants, divided by sex; the names of the owners, as indicated by license registration, and reporter's observations touching conduct, and his impressions therefrom.

If it be found, for example, that a majority of the cars were Fords, and that a majority of the Fords were coupes, and that a majority of the occupants thereof were between the ages of 7 and 65, it would then be feasible and intelligent to introduce a bill in the Legislature to limit ownership of Ford coupes to persons over the age of 65 and under 7. Again if the statistics revealed that youth of occupants and newness of cars showed an affinity, young persons could be prohibited form using any models of later manufacture than 1914.

At any rate, I feel confident that you are on the right track. The inexplicable tendency of modern boys and girls to sit together in unlighted outdoors in the spring is a deadly threat to the existence of this great moral republic. Pitiless publicity will curb it if anything will.

No other editorial writer of our acquaintance fishes around the pool of comment as patiently as Br'er Martin of Life. He has just hooked another beauty after an interval that must have meant all but starvation. You may perhaps recall that some of our churchmen have spoken of the Volstead act as if it were something deserving respect as a law, no matter how far public sentiment disagrees with it. Very well. When Russia executed some of her churchmen because they gave religious instruction to children, which is against the law in Russia, these same people in the United States protested vigorously, as if law deserves one sort of respect here and another there. That is sufficiently contradictory, says Br'er, to show how sincere these people are about law anywhere. Bravo, Br'er!

EPITAPH.

Here lies Otto Murk,
Unknown to fame.
The pie crust was heavy,
But Otto was game.

Money doesn't always bring happiness. An American sailor who exchanged a $100 bill in Odessa, Russia, got 12,960,000 rubles for it.

A little powder now and then,
Is brushed off by the best of men.

All those crazy motions a jazz band goes through are nothing at all compared to the ones the dancers go through when they hear 'em.

THEODORE TRILSEY.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

U. S. COURT ON STATE RIGHTS.

From the New York Evening Post.

A MAJORITY of states having minimum wage laws joined the authorities of the District of Columbia in their recent fight to preserve the minimum wage act passed by Congress. It was their battle, for the court's decision endangers their statutes. But two much more interesting appearances of the states as litigants, this time on both sides, are soon to come before the Supreme Court. Massachusetts, through its Attorney-General, has attacked the Sheppard-Towner maternity act, and a growing list of Western and Southern states, together with Pennsylvania, is intervening to defend it. Simultaneously, New York is attacking the Federal water power act. Already Pennsylvania and seven Western states have announced that they will fight the suit, and Federal officials consider it possible that in the end 40 states will appear against New York. Even more direct legal battles between states than this are no novelty. Our Constitutions permit states to sue each other before the Supreme Court, and a number of such suits—chiefly over boundaries—have been famous. But never have 40 states lined up against a sister commonwealth. In both these pending cases it is desirable that the defence be as strong as a combination of state resources can make it. Annulment of the Federal water power act would produce a chaotic situation in Western states, where much hydro-electric development has begun under it, and would open the way to selfish state discrimination against neighbors. The more searching the arguments in such cases the better.

FLORIDA ON TRIAL.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE least that may be said in condemnation of cruelty practiced by exponents of peonage in Florida is that the State has been pilloried by Americans in whom survives a sense of law or of justice. Palm Beach, Daytonia, St. Augustine, Miami—East Coast or West Coast—whatever delights any one of, or all, these progressive communities may offer, weigh little in the balance against the atrocity that has been committed in this Tabert case, and in cases like it, in Florida's convict camps. The government of the State of Florida is indicated by what has taken place in these camps. High and low, State as well as county, officials are arraigned to answer charges of barbarism. It is distinctly "up to" officials of Florida to wipe this stain out.

LORD ROBERT CECIL.

From the New York World of April 25.

LORD ROBERT CECIL sails today, leaving behind him a host of new friends. Wherever he went the people turned out to hear him and then went home convinced that no disagreement about details of political machinery could obscure the fact that the cause Lord Robert represents is the cause of peace and greater happiness for mankind. Nor can anyone really doubt the importance of his visit. No Senator may actually have changed his mind, and the hard-boiled partisans may be as hard-boiled as ever. But in the country, as a direct consequence of Lord Robert Cecil's speeches, the discussion of world politics has once more begun. Above the bickering of machine politicians about the court there is to be heard also reasoned and informed consideration of how to go about making the world secure. Lord Robert came as the agent of no Government. He came with no personal ambition to promote. At no point and in no instance did he attempt to intervene in American politics. He is an active worker in the league and he came to make the league better understood. It is better understood, and his complete sincerity has warmed and opened up the minds of a people who care more about sincerity in public life, and are often disappointed, than about anything else. He has accomplished more than anyone had reason to expect. He has disarmed many of the enemies of international order. He has restored the subject to the [illegible] of intelligent discussion. He has greatly encouraged every friend of peace.

British Watch Course of Prohibition in America With Interest Though They Regard It as Joke

nied the practical experience which has guided America to so dramatic a conclusion.

In the absence of such experience it has been found impossible to educate and organize public opinion throughout Britain to the point of concentrating attention and pressure on this one issue. Other issues always cut across and jam the current. You cannot secure unanimity of action on temperance reform, even amongst the religious forces. If they were united in their demand and prepared to enforce it at elections, nothing could resist their power. Between elections they seem agreed in their policy, but no sooner does the party bugle sound than they all fall into rank in opposite armies and the temperance banner is hurriedly packed into the cupboard for use after the polls have been declared. It is then once more brought to wave over the tabernacle and its wrinkles are straightened out in the breeze.

I have seen the fiercest champions of local option supporting brewers at elections because they were official opponents of Irish home rule in the contest. I remember being told by an eminent Scottish divine, who was a strong temperance advocate, but who had hitherto supported antitemperance candidates because of his inveterate opposition to Gladstone's home rule, that unless his party carried a measure of local option for Scotland soon he would have to abandon them, home rule or no home rule. He died without redeeming his promise. The time never came for him. The Irish issue dominated the elections for nearly a generation. Free trade played a great part also.

If the exigencies of party conflict had permitted the same consistent propaganda work, extending over the some number of years, to be devoted to the drink problem as was given to the wrongs of Ireland or free trade, no doubt public opinion could have been educated up to the point of supporting drastic reform. But this has not been found practicable by the political parties owing to distraction on other issues. This is the main reason why British opinion is so far behind American opinion on the temperance question. The battle of sobriety was fought on the state platform, whilst the national platform was left free for other conflicts.

War Reforms Cut Consumption.

The war, however, enabled the British Government to effect reforms which have materially reduced the consumption of alcohol in this kingdom. These results have been achieved by enormous increase in taxation of alcoholic liquors, and by considerable reduction in hours of sale. Taxation of beer was raised from 13,000,000 pounds sterling in 1913 to 123,000,000 pounds in 1921. Duty on spirits in 1913 yielded 22,000,000 pounds. In 1921 it gave a revenue of 71,000,000 pounds. One of the effects has been an appreciable reduction in the alcoholic strength of the beverage sold. The hours of sale in the morning and afternoon have been curtailed appreciably. By this measure the workman is prevented from starting his day by drinking alcohol, and the afternoon break prevents the drinker from soddening all day.

The effect of the combined measure has been highly beneficial. The quantity of beer sold fell from 34,152,739 barrels of beer of 36 gallons at standard gravity of 1.055, in 1913, to 23,885,472 standard barrels in 1921. Spirits fell from 30,736,088 proof gallons in 1913 to 20,162,395 in 1921. These figures represent a remarkable and almost sensational reduction in the quantity of alcohol consumed by the population. Convictions for drunkenness fell from 188,877 in 1913 to 77,789 in 1921. Deaths from alcoholic diseases were more than halved during the same period. This is the most distinct advance in the direction of effective temperance reform hitherto taken by the British Parliament, and an effect striking in its encouragement.

It would be a serious national misfortune if the admirable results attained by these war measures wer lost by relaxations. Most of the pressure exterted upon Parliament has up to the present been in the direction of easing the grip of the State on the traffic. Most candidates in all parties at the last elections were forced to pledge themselves to support a reduction in the beer duty. Clubs, even more than "pubs," have urged extensions in the drinking hours. The beer duty has already been reduced. It is anticipated that the reduction will have the effect of increasing consumption. This is regrettable, for it means so much reclaimed land once mere sinking into malarial swamp.

Women Factor to be Considered.

There is one consilation, however, that women will claim the next turn in the reduction of taxation. Sugar and tea will then provide effective barriers in the way of a further cheapening of alcoholic liquors just yet.

But all this is a long, long way off prohibition. The majority of 20 to 1 against Mr. Scrimgeour's prohibition bill, and a majority of 4 to 1 in favor of cheaper beer — both recorded in the same parliamentary week—is not encouraging to those who would suppress alcohol in Britain.

Temperance reformers here are, therefore, watching the progress of America's bold bid for sobriety with hopeful, if anxious, eyes and with longing hearts. What Britain does next will depend entirely on the success or failure of what America is doing now.

DISCUSSION OF SCULPTURE BEING SHOWN IN NEW YORK

appreciate "flying sculpture."

At the end of the terrace is a strenuous relief by Robert Aitkin, of a soldier boy of the late war advancing to the fray. Mr. Aitken has attempted a very extreme simplification of form and planes in order to retain a feeling of the stone, in which it is carved, but I think he has carried it just a little too far, and, if he had "melted" it a little here and there it would have been more glyptic and less metallic. When we modern sculptors attempt works of this sort we have always to reckon with the great example of stone carving left us by the ancient Egyptians. His bronze group called "Comrades in Arms," a soldier supporting a wounded comrade, is a fine piece of modeling and ideally compact. Would he but "wipe" it here and there and blur the realism in spots, it would be a great piece of sculpture. In the gallery of one of the buildings is a much more interesting work by the same artist, a large panel with two nude figures, a very sculptural work, indeed.

Interesting Portrait Busts.

Besides the works mentioned here there are a number of very interesting portrait busts and some smaller ideal works; a very amusing and splendidly modeled bronze rooster by Piccirilli and a very interesting low relief decoration, handled in a sort of modern-archaistic style by Oscar Lowrie.

The sculptures in the sunken garden and in the galleries are too numerous and important to be discussed in this article and will be described later on.

Not for many years to come will there be such an array of American sculpture gathered in one place, and it is the endeavor of the writer to place before his fellow townsmen this little resume in the hope that the hundreds of St. Louisans who will leave for the East this summer will take the time to stop in New York long enough to see this interesting display of American art.

LEAGUE OR WAR, SAYS PROF. FISHER IN NEW BOOK

dispute. It has probably prevented a number of other quarrels ever reaching the war stage. It has established what may be considered the highest and most important court in the world, which will doubtless prevent war in even more important cases than the four which have been prevented by the Council and Assembly. It has safeguarded labor, health, morals, education, treaty publicity and other great international interests. It has established important commissions to work out plans for disarmament and other objects. It has called important conferences on monetary and other problems; it has cultivated an international spirit of peace and good will.

"For a league, in its infancy, born in a world of chaos, with no authority except its own merits, subject to the jealousy and suspicion of the Allied Council and of European politicians, chilled by much cold water thrown upon it by its own mother, America; several times proclaimed by some of her politicians as dead and scrapped it cannot be denied that the league has proved its vitality and right to live. * * *

"The league will live. The United States cannot and ought not to kill it; it can and ought to strengthen it. In short, the league's greatest need is to complete the circle of its membership by including the United States. And the United States needs the league as truly as the league needs the United States."

There is no need of reservations, Prof. Fisher says, except to placate the irreconcilables. It would be better to be in the league with all the reservations ever suggested, he thinks, than not to be in at all. As a clincher to his argument for American participation, he reminds his readers that we could always withdraw from the league on two years' notice.

"Why not try it two years at least?" he asks.

Speech by Late Sen. Nelson Quoted.

He quotes from a speech by the late Senator Nelson (Republican) of Minnesota, who never let himself be blinded by partisanship. "I may be a heretic," Nelson told the Senate, "but I have always believed that it was the greatest mistake, economically and every other way, for America that we did not enter the League of Nations, with one or two amendments to the covenant."

As to the alleged "entanglements" with Europe that our membership in the League would bring about, Prof Fisher says:

"Of course, we do not wish to send troops to Europe to settle petty troubles there. But we had to prepare to send 2,000,000 of them once and are now headed straight toward another situation in which we may have to do the same thing, perhaps before the children already born are out of their teens. * * * It is better to send a few police troops like those we have had on the Rhine, to keep order, than a thousand times as many to fight in a world war.

"Clearly the isolation method of keeping the peace used by Abram and Lot is impossible for America today. There is no longer any opportunity for nations to separate and keep out of each other's way. There is but one effective method now available, that of the League of Nations."

SPLEEN NOT AN INDISPENSABLE ORGAN, SAYS FRENCH SCIENTIST

Probably Has Some Usefulness, However, Prof. Charles Richet Concludes.

(Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, May 5.—The spleen is not an indispensable organ of the human body, although it probably is useful. This is the conclusion reached by Prof. Charles Richet of the Academy of Sciences.

In a communication to the academy, Prof. Richet suggests other organs are unnecessary to life, but have certain usefulness.

Animals, which have had their spleen removed, lived a normal period without appreciable physiological disturbances. Human beings have undergone the same operation without noticeable inconvenience, it is stated. Prof. Richet discovered that animals have had their spleens require more food than others.

Prof. Richet experimented on 11 dogs which had their spleens removed and five normal ones. All were deprived of food for 30 days. The mortality among the spleenless dogs was 27 per cent. All others survived.

G. O. P. TO URGE GRAND JURY BALLOT INQUIRY

Committee Will Suggest Investigation of Alleged Fraud in Returns in 5th District.

A grand jury investigation of alleged irregularities in election returns in certain precincts of the Fifth Justice of the Peace district will be suggested to Circuit Attorney Sidener tomorrow by a special committee of the Republican City Central Committee, E. E. Butler, chairman of the special committee, announced yesterday. Charles Kallman and Anton Schuler are the other members of the committee.

Butler said his committee was named some time ago to consider the apparently unreasonable irregularities in the returns and had recommended to the City Committee that a grand jury investigation be requested. The City Committee approved the suggestion.

Butler said his committee will base its request upon the fact that seals on ballot boxes in the vaults of the Board of Election Commissioners were found broken. He said it is the belief of himself and other members of the committee that the ballot boxes were tampered with after having been placed in the vault.

CURB MARKETS OPENED WITH LARGE CROWDS

One at Sarah Street and Easton Avenue Sold Out in Four Hours.

Five municipal curb markets, where producer and consumer can meet, were formally opened for the season yesterday in various parts of the city. They are at Sarah street and Easton avenue, Taylor and Easton avenues, East Grand avenue and Twentieth street, Jefferson avenue and Chippewa street and Grand boulevard and Gravois avenue.

The market at Sarah street and Easton avenue was attended by 10 motor trucks from St. Louis County and about 500 customers. It opened at 7 a. m., and was sold out four hours later.

The farmers and truck gardeners informed their customers there would be plenty of home-grown vegetables and fruits during the summer, barring heavy rains. Home-grown vegetables offered yesterday were of the same staple varieties usually offered early in May. The kinds and average prices were:

Asparagus, two bunches for 25 cents; lettuce, two heads for 15 cents; green onions, two bunches for 5 cents; radishes, red and white, three bunches for 10 cents; rhubarb, two bunches for 15 cents; spinach, 5 cents a pound, and parsley, 5 cents a bunch. These were special prices for the season's opening, the customers were told. Later, when the curb market business gets going well, the prices will correspond with the retail store levels.

In addition to the vegetables, the farmer-merchants carried stocks of pot flowers, including geraniums and daisies, and a variety of flower bulbs for backyard planting, which they offered at attractive prices.

The curb markets will be open Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week during the season.

PIANOLA

Delivered to Your Home for a Small Down Payment

Balance $4 a Month

$495

The word "Pianola" has become in the minds of many, merely another name for any player-piano. This is an error. The word "Pianola" is the patented trade name of the player-piano made exclusively by The Aeolian Company. And because of the superiority of Aeolian workmanship, and its famous exclusive features, it is known throughout the world as the greatest of all player-pianos, the one which the foremost musicians have pronounced really artistic, really musical in its effects.

When one is buying an article which will take an important and permanent place in the home, to buy the cheapest obtainable is but poor economy. To choose the finest musical instrument for the price asked—the one which will endure the constant use of years and retain its beautiful musical tone—this is real economy.

The instrument advertised herewith at $495 is a Genuine Pianola, the greatest of Player Pianos. Its actual value is far greater than this sum. It combines a piano of rich, mellow tone, modern in design, with the great and only Pianola—which enables you with a little practice to play the great master works of music in a truly artistic manner.

Make up your mind to have one of these splendid Pianolas now. The stock of those to be offered at $495 is limited, so make your selection early.

An Added Feature for This Week Only

We will take in exchange your "silent" Piano and make an allowance of 20% above the regularly scheduled valuation of an instrument of that type and age. This we do in order to keep our staff of expert repairmen busy over the dull Summer period, reconditioning these instruments for Fall selling.

WABASH STRINGING OUT CROSSING ROW, BEGUN IN 1911

Railroad's Plan to Appeal Service Commission Order May Mean Case Will Be Carried to Last Court.

Answering a statement by James E. Taussig, president of the Wabash, that his railroad had been prepared since 1916 to proceed to the elimination of the grade crossing on Delmar boulevard, City Counselor Haid yesterday said that Nathaniel S. Brown, vice president and general solicitor, had stated to the Missouri Public Service Commission in public hearings that the railroad did not admit that the crossing should be eliminated.

"He added," Haid said, '"but if it is to be eliminated, it should be by the plan prepared by the railroad, and not by the plan of the city.'"

The effort of the city to have the crossing eliminated began in the Kreismann administration in 1911. President Taussig's announcement yesterday, that the railroad intended to appeal the Public Service Commission order directing the railroad to proceed to eliminate the crossing under the plan submitted by the city, is the beginning of another long delay, the end of which appears to be only in the court of last resort.

James L. Ford Jr. of 54 Westmoreland place, president of the Franklin Bank, sent a letter to the Department of Public Service of the city yesterday, suggesting that large shippers using the Wabash petition the railroad to cease to combat the city plan and to proceed to the separation of grades. Ford said that those shippers coming in contact with the danger and inconvenience of the crossing through residence in the West End likely would be willing signers of such a petition.

Railroad's Objections.

Taussig yesterday, in a statement to a Post-Dispatch reporter, set forth the railroad's objections to the city plan as follows:

It provides for depression of tracks in such a fashion as to make the right-of-way an open sewer for the drainage of heavy rains. The city asserts that its plan for the enclosure of the River des Peres eliminates any such danger.

The city plan provides a grade of .8 per cent as against a grade of .2 per cent by the railroad plan. The grade will make continuous stoking and the emission of dense smoke necessary for a distance of two miles through a section where smoke would be a nuisance. The city answers that no railroad now enters St. Louis on a grade of much less than .1 per cent and that a grade of .8 per cent would not be an operating hardship.

The enclosure of the tracks in a culvert-like cement depression would send smoke rolling over the top on to boulevards and into residences adjoining Forest Park. An overhead structure would send the smoke out at sufficient altitude to reduce its effect to a minimum.

The elevated structure, which is not to be a trestle, would not be unsightly as its sides would be grassed as is the right-of-way through the park. Other cities—Detroit, Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore—have adopted elevation of tracks as the method for grade separation. The city declares that the elevation would be unsightly and would ruin the beauty of the district contiguous to Forest Park.

The city plan provides a right-of-way for only two tracks, while the railroad plan suggsts four as provision for industrial development in the future.

The city plan provides for only an 18-foot clearance under bridges, an insufficient space to permit a brakeman to ride freight cars in an upright position.

Taussig said that if the road's plan were accepted, it would proceed to the elimination, not only of the Delmar crossing, but of all other crossings from King's highway west to the city limits and beyond as a continuing project with a fixed appropriation each year.

City Considers Reprisal.

The city leases a small area of ground being Ashley and Dickson streets on the levee to the Wabash, which operates its main line over the piece. City officials are considering whether they could not cancel the lease as a reprisal. This could be done upon 30-day notice.

It is not thought likely that such action, if it were contemplated to suspend the road's main line, would be successful. Courts likely would not permit the suspension of a trunk line road's main line and shippers served by it would protest. The only accomplishment likely would be an increase in the rental price, whcih now is $39.50 a month.

Runaway Boys Found in Illinois.

Two runaways, Dorman Claypool, 13 years old, son of Mrs. Bessie Brinkman, 2906 Vandeventer avenue, and Russell Cobb, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Cobb, of 3809A Labadie avenue, were found Thursday in Glen Carbon, Ill. They said that after leaving the Farragut School, Tuesday afternoon, they rode to Granite City by interurban, and then got automobile rides.

LECOINTE, FRENCH AVIATOR, TO ENTER TROPHY RACE HERE

Cables Acceptance of Invitation to Take Part in Derby Event of National Air Meet.

RIVALS AMERICANS FOR SPEED RECORDS

Laurels Have Been Snatched From Him by U. S. Flyers —England and Italy May Enter Contestants.

The St. Louis Air Board, in charge of general arrangements for the 1923 meet of the National Aeronautic Association, to be held in St. Louis, Oct. 1-3, was given a thrill yesterday when information was received from the East that Sadi Lecointe, one of the leading aviators of France, had cabled acceptance of an invitation to compete in the derby event of the meet—the Pulitzer Trophy Race. Lecointe announced in his cablegram that he would bring his two fastest planes and go in to win.

Lecointe, holder of a number of speed records, is the first foreign airman to accept a general invitation to the world to participate in the Pulitzer race, which is for the speediest planes in the world.

Rival for Speed Records.

He is America's closest rival for speed records. In 1920 he won the Gordon Bennett Cup, and, on Dec. 12 of that year, at Villacoublay, broke the world's record by attaining an average speed of 194.5 miles an hour.

This record did not stand long, but Lecointe came back Jan. 1, of the current year, with a record of 216 miles an hour at Marseilles. This record later was excelled by Brigadier-General William Mitchell of the United States Army, who hung up a record of 224 miles an hour.

But Lecointe on Feb. 15 last, in a 300-horsepower Nieuport, maintained an average speed of 234.64 miles an hour in four circuits of course, a world's record.

Laurels Again Lost.

Lecointe's laurels again were snatched from him by an American, when, in March last, Maj. Leo G. Heffernan, U. S. A., flew, with an observer, from Columbus, N. M., to Fort Bliss, Tex., at the rate of 250 miles an hour, or more than four miles a minute.

Now Lecointe is coming to America to meet his competitors for world honors in air on their own fields, and judging from his performances in France, most likely will extend the American contestants to the limit of their capabilities in the airplane derby to be flown at St. Louis Field.

England and Italy also are expected to enter contestants in this race, the invitations having been extended by the National Aeronautic Association.

Unforgetable Service Has Silvered Mother's Hair

—yet adoration and remembrance are hers today and she is twice—yes thrice—repaid. Tiny rose-leaf fingers of yesterday may be fingers of steel today—yet her first-born son, filled with memories, sends his tribute of love today, bringing gleams of joy and retrospect to tired eyes and spirit. The baby girl that was so adored rules a home of her own perhaps—yet she softly smiles the while she recalls mother's fondness for delicious confections—she knows how sweet remembrance is best expressed on this day of days.

25th ANNIVERSARY of Nemo WEEK

Begins Monday, and Offers the New Duplex Self-Reducing Model No. 525—Very Efficient and an Unusual Value

At the Popular Price of .... $5 Exactly What Many Women Require

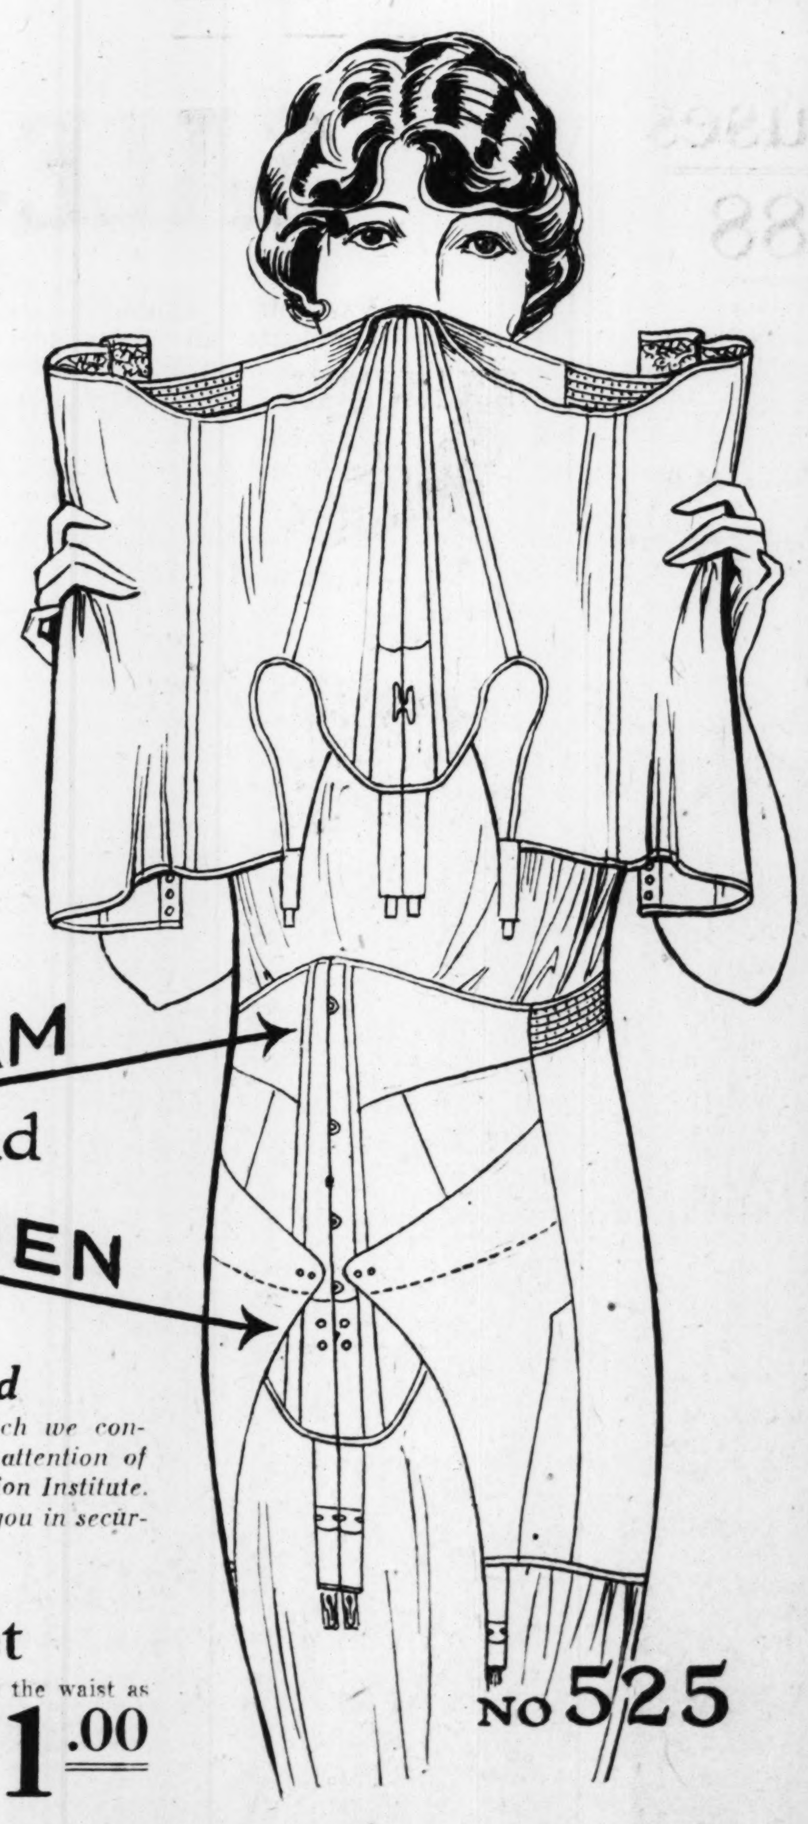
For a quarter of a century, women have had access, with great benefit, to the scientific Nemo Corset Service and now, with the introduction of a new model which embodies different features, this service is broadened considerably. The new "Nemo" is Duplex Self-Reducing Model No. 525, which, comfortably and without pressure, flattens and reduces both the diafram and the abdomen. A model that is needed by many women of average as well as large size.

This new model is typical of "Nemo" service, for the makers have always studied and provided for those in most urgent need of special corsetry. If you are one of them, determine to be no longer encumbered with surplus, unsightly flesh and be fitted at once in the Nemo Self-Reducing Corset that is adapted to your figure—the one which will give you needed support and assist you to hold a correct posture. And in this you will want to benefit by the years of experience we have gained in meeting the same problems for thousands of women as now confront you.

DIAFRAM and ABDOMEN



NO 525

Two Great Services Combined

Nemo Corsets are performing invaluable service to which we contribute, with equal importance, the skillful, painstaking attention of corsetieres who are graduates of the Nemo Hygienic Fashion Institute. Without adding to the cost of your purchase they will aid you in securing the proper model and will fit you perfectly.

A New Nemo Circlet

Garment fashions demand the appearance of slenderness above the waist as well as below—and the Nemo Circlet, in conjunction with the Nemo Corset, accomplishes the desired effect. Self-adjusting, practical and comfortable, giving straight, unbroken lines. Model No. 1010 is priced.............. $1.00

MARKED WEAKNESS FEATURES WEEK IN NEW YORK MARKET

Reactions in Chief Speculative Markets Coincided With Slackening in Several Buying Movements—Better Tone Late.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review says:

"Pronounced weakness in the chief speculative markets assuredly has been the feature of the past week. Short selling clearly supplied the initial impetus and part of the continuing motive power for the declines. It has been equally evident, however, that a considerable volume of liquidation, coming from weak holders and tired longs, has been induced. Little resistance was shown during the greater part of the week, a circumstance which indicates the extent to which speculative sentiment has been unsettled. Towards the close stocks displayed a somewhat better undertone, which suggested that this particular movement was approaching its close, as would, indeed, be reasonable after so sustained and severe a decline.

Ease in Buying.

"It probably is significant that these reactions have coincided with a slackening in a number of the larger buying movements. Steel buying has been falling off for some time and a similar condition has been apparent in the non-ferrous metals market. It is worth noting that the shrinkage has been in the demand for materials for future rather than immediate delivery. What has happened in the cotton and cotton textile markets probably is particularly illuminating. Until recently mills have been buying cotton freely at approximately 30 cents a pound. Now they have had to increase wages and must pass the added cost on to the jobbers and retailers, who naturally hesitate to stock up at the higher prices, particularly with the current talk of boycotts. The mills in turn check their buying of cotton and then see the commodity fall 3 or 4 cents below the price at which their stocks were purchased.

"After all th nub of the mateter undoubtedly is the labor situation. The past month has seen a wave of wage increases sweep over the country. As the productivity of labor seems to be decreasing rather than increasing, it is clear that costs are in the process of being inflated. How are these increased costs going to be absorbed? If we assume that the consumer will refuse to pay higher prices a check to business is assured. If, on the other hand, we conclude that the wage increases spell increased purchasing power and that consumers will force the issue and demand the goods at higher prices, the revival is more likely to terminate in an inflationary boom. In either case the epidemic of wage increases is unfortunate; it constitutes the really unpleasant phase of the situation. Production is running extraordinarily high and probably will continue to do so for some time. The point of uncertainty is as to when new buying movements will start and how strong they will run.

The Foreign Situation.

"News of the German reparations offer and its rejection by France has caused a certain amount of pessimism over the foreign situation. It cannot be maintained, however, that the turn of affairs is a surprise to well-posted persons. The latter anticipated that the German offer would be unsatisfactory and that France would refuse it. Granting that it is unfortuate that an agreement could not be reached now, it would seem that the offer has a certain value. It tends to bring the issues into clearer definition and prepares the way for further negotiations. A reparations agreement, it must be remembered, is a thing which can be obtained only after surmounting great political obstacles in both France and Germany. A gradual approach to a settlement must therefore be expected. There is nothing in the events of the week which suggests that a settlement has been rendered more rather than less difficult."

"Stocks continued to show up better in the last two hours of the week's trading. A good opening was followed by rather active buying, largely of a short covering nature, interspersed with scattered liquidation in specialties. The character of the trading differed greatly from that of the previous days of the week in that at no time was there any determined effort to force prices down. With the first burst of short covering out of the way toward the end of the first hour announcement of a further cut of 10 cents a barrel in the price of Mid-Continent grades of crude oil had the effect of slowing down the market, though even the oils held up well for the balance of the session. Bonds were dull but moderately firm.

Exchange Steady Saturday.

"The foreign exchange market continued steady with trading on a quiet basis. Not enough business was transacted, in fact, to establish any particular trend. Sterling was quoted at $4.63¼ at which price it was ¼ lower. French francs, meanwhile, were ¼ higher at 6.66½ cents and Italian lire were unchanged. German marks were priced at .0329 of a cent, but the quotation was merely nominal. Scandinavian exchanges scored further improvement.

"A small increase in surplus reserve accompanied by small declines in loans and deposits is shown by the weekly statement of the Clearing House. Excess reserve of $11,000,000 is $1,800,000 greater than in the previous week. Loans and discounts now stand at $4,696,000,000, a drop of $14,337,300, while demand deposits of $3,715,000,000 are $12,000,000 under the total of last week.

"Cotton displayed a steady tone with futures somewhat higher early on reports of more rains over the belt and an unfavorable weather forecast for the week-end, and some short covering. At a late price of 26.80 the May future was up 5 points. Trading in wheat was quiet with nothing in the way of news to influence the market one way or the other. The leading futures met with a fairly good demand at somewhat better levels.

COTTON PRICES MIXED ON NEW YORK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 5.—The cotton market showed the influence of a firmer technical position following the severe declines of the earlier week and in addition to covering for over Sunday, there may have been some scattered buying on reports of an increased spot demand. The opening was steady at an advance of 2 points on October, but generally 3 to 14 points lower under overnight selling orders. These were in no great volume, however, and prices almost immediately rallied on covering and trade buying, with July selling up to 25.55c and October to 23.92c during the early trading, or 5 to 13 points net higher. There were complaints of showers or rains and low temperature in eastern belt sections, but otherwise weather conditions were considered more favorable in the South.

After selling up to 25.65c for July and 24.02c for October, or about 15 to 23 points net higher on the early advance, cotton turned easier on a renewal of liquidation, reacting to 25.27c for July and 23.75c for October. The close was barely steady, net 15 points lower to 5 points higher.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Cotton spot quiet; middling, 26.85c.

New Orleans Spot.

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 5.—Spot cotton quiet and unchanged. Sales on the spot, 177. Sales to arrive, nine; low middling, 25.75c; middling, 26.50c; good middling, 27c. Receipts, 1165; stock, 107,265.

St. Louis Spot Cotton.

Spot cotton was unchanged in St. Louis. Quotations: Good ordinary, 21.25c; low middling, 26.75c; middling, 27.50c; good middling, 28c; middling fair, 28.50c.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted foreign exchange review today says:

"Foreign exchange moved in an irregular manner all through the week, various movements being based on special developments. Most importance was attached to continuous offerings of sterling which could not be traced to any definite source, forcing demand down to $4.62¼, against $4.64 early in the week, bringing it close to the low record of the year. The announcement of the German reparations offer had a distinctly unfavorable influence on the position of German exchange, marks ranging from .0035¼ to .0025¼, a new low since the effort at stabilization was made. Dealings in marks on this decline were of the heaviest volume on record. French exchange moving over a wide range, checks on Paris selling as high as 6.78¼, followed by a decline to 6.59, and showing a loss of over 10 points for the week's trading after a rally from that level.

"Italian was heavy during the first half of the week when lire checks sold down to 4.87. Several continental exchanges yielded to new low records for the year, among them being Switzerland, Norway and Spain. The market for Norwegian exchange was unsettled by the banking troubles in Christiania. Large sales of cables transfers being made in this market. Danish exchange was under steady pressure.

"Exchange on Holland showed a stronger tone after the sharp decline in the preceding week and made a partial recovery. Japanese exchange was a strong feature, yen checks moving up to 49.20, a new high for the year. Canadian had a range selling at 98.06 to 98.00.

"The foreign exchange market Saturday continued steady with trading on a quiet basis. Not enough business was transacted, in fact, to establish any particular trend. Sterling was quoted at $4.63¼ at which price it was ¼ lower. French francs, meanwhile, were ¼ higher at 6.66¼ cents and Italian lire were unchanged. German marks were priced at .0029 of a cent, but the quotation was merely nominal. Scandinavian exchanges scored further improvement."

FIRMER TONE SHOWN ON NEW YORK CURB MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The curb market opened decidedly firmer today with the general list disposed to rally from the closing levels of Friday under purchases for short account.

Unofficial reports that Prairie Oil and Gas had cut all grades of Mid-Continent crude another 10 cents a barrel—the third reduction in the past two weeks, was practically ignored in the market for oil stocks. In face of this announcement Prairie Oil and Gas led the recovery in the Standard group, getting within a point at one time of the closing quotations of a week ago and up five from the Friday final.

Standard of New York was another favorite, rallying a point, and Magnolia Petroleum, Standard of Indiana and Vacuum Oil went higher. Mountain producers at 107 was at the highest for the week.

Durant of Delaware opened almost a point higher and advanced two and one-half points before the rise was checked. Others in the motor group were little changed. Goodyear Tire continued to improce. Despite heavy selling during the past week in speculative favorites, Glen Alden Coal, above par today was less than two points under the closing quotation of a week ago.

Mining shares were quiet, but where changes occurred they were on the side of higher prices.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, May 5.—A much firmer feeling prevailed in the local raw sugar market today. There was a sale of 15,000 bags of Cubas, May loading at 5.90c f. o. b. Cubas, to an outport refiner, equal to slightly above 6.00c cost and freight or 7.78c for centrifugal.

The raw sugar futures market was firmer and closed at net advances of 23 to 27 points. The recent heavy liquidation evidently left the market in a firmer technical position and there was covering today which apparently found comparatively few contracts for sale. Trade buying was also reported and final prices were within 5 or 6 points of the best of the day. Closing: May, 6.00c; July, 6.06c; September, 6.15c; December,

There was no improvement in the demand for refined sugar, and the little fresh business seemed to be through second hands at lower prices than those asked by refiners prevailed. List prices were 9.50 to 9.60 for fine granulated.

Wall Street News and Comment
—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Sugar stocks did the best of any other group in the stock market today. Sales of Cuban raw sugar for export were reported at 5.80 cents, which was some improvement over the low of 5⅝ Friday. Cuba Cane preferred and Punta Alegre stocks were the leaders today. At their best prices they were up between 3 and 4 points from the lows of the previous day.

Copper stocks stood out strongly at the start of the day, reacting, however, later. Kennecott and Utah were the leaders.

Shipping stocks were weak, especially Atlantic Gulf and West Indies. Consolidated Gas opened down a point on the passage of the dollar gas bill by the New York State Legislature, but it rallied later.

Among the equipments, American Locomotive and Lima showed support, but in Baldwin Locomotive there was more uncertainty.

The buying in General Motors under which the stock touched 17, was in process.

In the last quarter of an hour pressure was renewed against some of the leaders like Baldwin Studebaker, the steel shares and Phillips Petroleum. It had the effect of effacing most of the early gains and bringing about a series of moderate net losses at the close, but the final selling movement was entirely of professional origin and did not seem to indicate any renewal of actual liquidation.

The Bond Market.

The bond market as a whole was a trifle firmer today, but changes were not large nor was trading on an extensive scale. Liberties did better and high-grade bonds generally held their own fairly well.

The feature so far as there was any, was furnished by the French issues which were active and higher. Whether this represented a new forward movement or whether it was founded on confidence in the eventual settlement of the reparations problem cannot be said.

Buying in foreign securities is coming from abroad. The attraction is not only the high yield which these bonds offer, but their exemption to foreign holders from the United States income tax. Doubtless there has also been foreign buying in American rails and industrials, but it has not been as conspicuous as in foreign government and in such other foreign issues as the Anton Jurgen 6s.

Fluctuations in domestic obligations were small and of little importance as far as the trend of the market goes. Some St. Paul issues were up and some were down. The St. Paul report for 1922 made public today would have made very dismal reading had it not been for the assurance that earnings in the last half of the year more than covered charges for that period. Missouri-Kansas-Texas adjustments were as usual largely traded in, but without much net change.

The convertible sugar bonds moved irregularly.

CORN LEADS LOWER RANGE TO GRAINS

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, May 5.—Grain futures closed lower on the local market after a steady early market. Corn took the lead, selling being credited in part to report of favorable weather for field work. Wheat sales followed corn.

In the local cash grain market red winter wheat was 1c to 2c lower. Offers were extremely light, and mostly of undesirable quality. A little good soft wheat could have been placed, it was thought, as buyers expressing a willingness to pay $1.32 to $1.33 for good No. 2 red, and there was a limited demand for sound milling qualities of the cheaper grades. Flinty No. 2 red late brought $1.30. Samples showing any heat damage were discriminated against. Hard wheat was scarce, but demand light, and prices were 1c lower. No. 2 yellow hard was offered locally at $1.20. Limited shipping demand for mixed wheat was noted. Cash corn was affected by decline in futures, ranging down 1c to 2c. Elevators and local industries took the offerings at the reduced levels. Oats were featureless and ¼c to ½c lower. Local trade and shippers were buyers.

The tone of Liverpool wheat, which closed unchanged to ⅜d lower, brought reports and covering by shorts over Sunday were factors in the early wheat price movement. Corn followed much the trend of wheat.

July wheat opened at $1.16⅞@1.17; September wheat, $1.16½; July corn, 82⅞c; September corn, 80½c.

The three Northwestern markets combined Saturday had 548 cars of wheat, compared with 531 a week ago and 522 last year. Minneapolis receiving 89 cars, Duluth 59 and Winnipeg 400.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators Saturday were 410,561 bu of wheat, 385,291 bu of corn, 444,440 bu of oats. Grain stocks comprised 1539 bu. of No. 1 red winter wheat, 107,873 bu No. 2 red winter wheat, 1540 bu No. 1 hard winter wheat, 123,043 bu No. 2 hard winter wheat, 74,929 bu No. 2 corn, 85,812 bu No. 2 yellow corn, 204,816 bu No. 2 white corn, 272,952 bu No. 2 white oats, 92,418 bu No. 3 white oats, 116,533 bu No. 2 rye, 28,015 bu Kaffir corn.

CORN LEADS BREAK IN GRAIN LIST AT CHICAGO

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Wheat had a sharp setback in the last hour of trading today. The market exhibited a better tone at the start and up to midsession the advance held well. There was more or less covering by shorts and it looked as if the longs were reinstating lines being influenced by dry weather complaints from territory east of the Mississippi River. The cables were not as weak as expected and this was encouraging to the bulls. Corn really started the break. The slump in that cereal tended to disturb the confidence of people who bought wheat on the drop and when shorts stopped covering the weight of these offerings was manifold. Some support on the dip was noted. Shipping demand for wheat was quiet and export trade was small. Receipts of wheat are moderate. Market closed 1@1½ lower, May $1.18, July $1.17¼@1.17⅛, September $1.15¼.

Corn was calm most of the session following the trend of wheat, but after midsession there was a rush to sell by longs who feared that their market would follow the example of wheat. The break uncovered stop-loss orders to sell which added to the weakness. It has been intimated for the last few days that the market was viewed as badly overbought and today's break was a result of this condition. Shipping demand was quiet. Market closed 2@2⅝ lower, May 78@77¾, July 78⅝@78½, September 78@78¼.

Oats followed the trend of other grains, breaking under liquidation pressure after a firm tone early. Market closed unchanged at ⅜c lower, May 43½c, July 44c, September 43c.

Provisions were lower on May liquidation and influenced by grain slump. Lard closed 12½@15c lower and ribs 25c off.

RUN IS MODERATE, LIVESTOCK STEADY

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	17,136	18,048	18,456
Hogs	93,269	80,170	75,197
Sheep	4,596	4,335	6,617
Totals	115,001	102,553	100,270

Moderate receipts of livestock at the St. Louis National Stockyards the past week sold on a fairly active basis and values closed steady to unevenly higher for the period. The cattle market did not show any great fluctuation in price and closing quotations were generally steady to 15c and in some cases 25c higher than a week ago. The improvement applied largely to light yearlings, the better grades of steers, bulls and canner cows. Low-grade beef steers, butcher cows and stocker and feeder cattle of all kinds closed about steady. The bulk of steers suitable for beef sold from $7.50 to $8.50, with $7 per cwt. or under taking a low grade, and $10 paid for a choice 1159-pound drove of Hereford beeves fed in Callaway County, Mo., constituting the top. Several other droves of good steers registered at $9.10@9.50. Light yearlings were most numerous at $7 to $8.50 and a car of steers and heifers topped at $9.35. Butcher cows sold largely at $5.25 to $6.70, with $4 representing the low end and $7.50 the top. Cutter cows were valued at $3.25 to $3.75, in some cases $4, and canners $2.50 to $3. Beef and bologna bulls were most numerous at $5 to $5.75, some of the best around $6. Receipts and demand continued light in the stocker and feeder department. Steers sold mainly from $6.75 to $7.50, with top feeders registering from $8 to $8.40. Closing prices for veal calves at $9.50 to $10, a few at $10.50, were $1 to $1.50 higher than a week ago, when the bulk sold from $8.50 to $9. Southern canner yearlings around $3, were without change.

Hog Receipts Heavy.

Hog receipts continue to run heavy for the week the total up to date showing approximately 93,269 head. The offerings have increased in numbers during the latter part of the week the supply overrunning the estimate for a number of days. Last week the receipts were 80,170, this week's run showing an increase of 13,097 head. Last year for the same period records show that 75,197 hogs arrived. Compared with this week's run an increase of 18,070 head is shown. The light runs earlier in the week enabled salesmen to force a climb in prices, the top for the first of the week reaching $8.40. Increased supplies later in the week caused prices to take another drop and the late top is $8.35. Heavyweight swine when compared with the close last week are 15c higher, hogs from 250 pounds and up selling largely at $8 to $8.15. This class has met with a right good demand all through the week. The medium weights from 230 to 250 pounds also are higher, the advance in this case being about 5c. Lighter kinds from 150 to 230 pounds are no more than steady, today's market being practically on the same basis as a week ago. Pig prices are up for the week the better weights from 130 to 140 pounds, selling from 25c to 50c higher than a week ago. Medium weight pigs from 120 to 130 pounds are also higher, advances ranging from 25c to 50c. In fact, all classes of pigs are higher, the light pigs and pee wees showing advances of 25c to 50c, in line with the better weight kinds. Rough hogs show no radical change from conditions a week ago, packer sows selling generally steady at $6.25 to $6.35 and stags also steady at $5.25 to $5.75. The week's close finds the different classes of hogs selling in the following spreads: Heavy hogs from 250 pounds and up, $8 to $8.15; medium weights from 200 to 250, $8.15 to $8.25, and the lighter weights from 150 to 200 pounds, generally from $8.25 to $8.30. Pigs from 130 to 140 pounds are selling largely at $7.50 to $8 and, 120 to 130-pound kinds at $7.25 to $7.50; lighter kinds of 110 to 120 pounds at $6.75 to $7.25; pee wees at $5.50 to $6.75. Packer sows at $6.25 to $6.35, and stags at $5.25 to $5.75.

Sheep Prices Up.

With but a light supply on sale this week, last trade for clipped sheep and lambs was quite good and they show a good gain over the previous week, but spring lambs show a weaker tendency, which, however, is but natural as the season advances and the supply increases. Clipped lambs made a gain during the week of $1 and sheep around 50c. On the present basis best clipped lambs are selling at $12.50@13, fair grades $11@12.25 best handy-weight mutton sheep $7.50@8 and heavy ewes and poor kinds in general around $7, or but little better. Heavy sheep and lambs both are poor sellers even where fat and good quality. Spring lambs were more numerous than any week so far this year, and showed a weaker tendency. Bets grades sold at $15.50@17. However, very few went above $16, and not a great many higher than $15.50. Fair grades sold at $12@14.50, choppers and bucks $4@5, and the canners $1.50@2.50.

Livestock Elsewhere

CHICAGO, May 5 (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Cattle receipts, 500. Compared with week ago: Beef steers of value to sell at $9@9.75, 10c to 15c lower; spots more; lower grades, together with strictly choice kinds, about steady; top matured steers and yearlings, $10.25; better grades beef cows, 25c lower; other grades and classes, she stock about steady; bulls 15c to 25c lower; veal calves largely 50c higher; stockers and feeders unevenly, mostly 25c to 40c, up. Week's bulk prices follow: Beef steers and yearlings, $8.25@9.65; stockers and feeders, $7.@8; bef cows and heifers, $5.75@7.75; canners and cutters, $3.35@4.50; veal calves, $8.50@9.25.

Sheep receipts, 200; market for week: Fat wooled lambs, 25c to 50c higher. Week's top, $15.35; clipped lambs 50c to 75c higher; extreme top, $13.10; next best, $12.85; few under $12; sheep supply very limited; handy weights steady to 25c higher; weighty kinds draggy. Bulk follow: Fat wooled lambs, $15@15.25; clipped lambs, $12.50@12.75; not enough sheep and yearlings to warrant bulk quotations; beginning Monday, May 7, quotations for Chicago will be given on shorn basis.

Hog receipts, 11,000; steady to 10c higher; lightweight up most; top, $8.30; bulk 160 to 225 pound averages, $8.15@8.25; 240 to 340 pound butchers, $7.80@8.10; packing sows mostly $6.50@6.75; estimated holdover, 2500; heavy-weight hogs, $7.50 @8.10; medium, $7.85@8.25; light, $7.80@8.30; light light, $7@8.15. Packing sows, smooth, $6.65@7.10; packing sows, rough, $6@6.75; killing pigs, $6@7.50.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 5.—(U. S. Department of Agriculture):

CATTLE—Receipts, 500; calves, 40 for week; fat she stocks, steady to 25c higher; calves, steady to 50c higher; stockers and feeders, 25 to 50c higher; all other classes uneven but mostly steady; top heavy steers, $9.85; best light and medium weight lots, $9.75; top mixed yearling steers and heifers, $9.50; bulk choice vealers, $9@9.50.

HOGS—Receipts, 4000; fully 5c higher to packers than yesterday's average; bulk desirable, 180 to 270-pound, $7.75@7.80; bulk of sales, $7.55@7.80; top, $7.80; packing sows steady; mostly $6.50.

SHEEP—Receipts, 200; market for week: Lambs, 50c to $1; higher shorn offerings up most; best wooled lambs, $15.10; closing top, $15; bulk, $14.50@15; top clippers, $12.75; others, $11.85@12.60; extreme heavies, $10.50; sheep strong; shorn wethers largely $8.85@9.10; shorn ewes mostly $7.25@7.85; top $8.

Horses and Mules.

Light receipts of horses and mules for the week influenced an active market at steady to strong prices. Horses on commission approximated 150 head, of which big offerings and medium to good work kinds received the best attention. There was also a reasonably good Southern trade. Thick work horses are quotable at $100 to $160; blemished stuff, with some age, if thick and good workers, up to $125, and mares $85 to $130 or $135.

All kinds of mules received good attention and particularly big, rugged stock. Dealers absorbed the extra good big mules on the alleys and remaining supplies were sold largely at auctions.

Scrap Iron and Rubber.

RUBBER, RAGS, ETC.—Rags, $1.40 per 100 lbs.; old rope manila at $4.50; common at $1. Rubber—No. 1 boots and shoes, 2c; No. 2, 1c; auto tires, 50c, and inner tubes at $2.50 per 100 pounds.

TALLOW—No. 1 country in barrels or tubs at 6¼c per pound, and No. 2 at 5¼c.

GREASE—Country, in tums: Brown at 5c; yellow at 6c and white at 7c per pound.

FURTHER REDUCTINS MADE IN PRICE OF CRUDE OIL

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., May 5.—The third cut in mid-continent crude oil prices came this morning. Like the two preceding cuts, this one is for 10 cents per barrel on oil purchased at the wells in Kansas, Oklahoma and North Texas. The prices, as announced by the Prairie Oil and Gas Co., vary from a low of $1.20 for oil of less than 28 degrees Beaume gravity to a maximum of $2.30 for oil of 41 degrees gravity and above.

The prices for the various grades as announced at the Prairie headquarters here follow: Below 28 degrees Beaume gravity, $1.20 per barrel; 28 degrees to and including 29.9 degrees Beaume gravity, $1.30 per barrel; 30 degrees to and including 32.9 degrees Beaume gravity, $1.40 per barrel; 33 degrees to and including 34.9 degrees Beaume gravity, $1.55 per barrel; 35 degrees to and including 36.9 degrees Beaume gravity, $1.70 per barrel; 37 degrees to and including including 38.9 degrees Beaume gravity, $1.90 per barrel; 39 degrees to and including 40.9 degrees Beaume gravity, $2.10 per barrel; 41 degrees Beaume gravity and above, $2.30 per barrel.

DALLAS, Tex., May 5.—Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas crude oil were reduced 5 to 10 cents per barrel in price by the Magnolia Petroleum Co. today. The new rates are: Under 28.9 gravity, 70c per barrel; 28 to 30 degrees, $1.05; 31 to 32 degrees, $1.40; 33 to 34.9, $1.55; 35 to 36.9, $1.70; 37 to 38.9, $1.90; 39 to 40, $2.10; 41 degrees and over, $2.30; Thrall Texas crude, $1.60; Mexia, $1.70; Corsicana (Tex.) light, $1.30; Corsicana heavy, 70c per barrel.

TULSA, Ok., May 5.—The Prairie Oil and Gas Co. announced another reduction of 10 cents per barrel in all grades of mid-continent crude oil at the opening of the market here today.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The Texas Company and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. today announced a cut of 10 cents a barrel in the price of mid-continent crude oil.

Weekly Butter Review.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Although real confidence was lacking, this week's butter market temporarily assumed a firm tone in comparison with the market of the previous week. During the week buyers operated more freely in order to replenish depleted stocks held at a minimum for weeks.

Sentiment was for lower prices, but while advances were hard to affect and maintain because of lack of confidence, it was also quite difficult to bring about declines. Stocks were kept so closely cleaned up that any irregularity in the movement of shipments to the markets or slight increase in demand brought about an actual shortage of butter.

Instead of the sharp increases in make expected, it appeared that the season is somewhat retarded and that production of butter is making only small gains from week to week. Prices have been lowered to a point where consumptive demand was encouraged. Retail prices were lower and large distributers reported wider outlets.

The entire market situation indicated the realization that the spring decline is not yet completed and that realization molded sentiment for lower prices and kept the market nervous.

The Chicago market showed more strength than Eastern centers. All markets advanced together, but the Eastern markets were first to feel the weakness of the close of the week. A relative increase of undergrades was reported by all markets, but with the exception of Chicago.

The closing on 92-score stock at Chicago was 41½c, a gain of 1¼ points.

Roots.

ROOTS—Per lb.: Golden Seal, $2.60; Lady Slipper, 32c; Seneca, 55c; pink, 58c; washed black, 11c; May apple, 10c; snake, 52c; black snake, 20c; angelica, 5c; wahoo bark of root, 35c; bloodroot, 6½c; stripped blue-flag, 10c; sassafras bark of root, 8c; wild ginseng, $12.50@13; transplanted, $7 to $10; cultivated, $3@8; star root, 38c. Black Indian hemp, 20c. Foregoing prices are for clean, dry roots free of foreign matter.

Beans and Peas.

BEANS AND PEAS—Choice handpicked Michigan white beans at $8.50; prime machine-picked at $8.25 per 100 lbs. Scotch peas, 8c; green split peas, 10c; yellow, 7c per lb. Choice lima beans at $10.50. California pink beans at $7 and large white at $8 per 100 lbs. California black-eye peas at $7

HIGHER VOLUME OF TRADE THAN 1920 FIRST QUARTER

British Board of Trade Journal Makes Comparisons—Stock Exchange Pause.

LONDON, May 5.—Aathur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review today says:

"Momentarily both the money market and the Stock Exchange are halting and taking stock of that position, a disposition which is partly prompted by the latest development in the Ruhr crisis, but still more by remembrance of the phenomenal character of the recent rise in securities and also of the abnormally low rates for money. Concerning the latter it also is recognized that London is quite the cheapest market in the world and that many banks in continental countries, including Norway, have now raised their rate of discount and that your rate is much above ours.

"Conditions, of course, are peculiar and, owing to the unrest in Europe, the tendency is for credits to come here in spite of low rates. Nevertheless, the feeling of caution in the money market is increased by uncertainty as to your monetary policy and the possibility of a rise in your Federal reserve ratio has increased the uncertain feeling here.

"The securities markets are affected by monetary uncertainties and by the reasonings just recited; and also by the Ruhr crisis.

"The Board of Trade Journal has an interesting analysis of the trade figures for the first quarter of the current year, showing how values have been affected by the fall in prices over the last two years. This article revalues the results on the basis of 1920 prices and shows that there was a higher volume of trade during the past quarter than in the first quarter of 1920.

"The chairman of the British Bank of South America at a meeting of the share holders emphasized the likelihood that as regards expansion of trade and the future course of money rates the lead is likely to come from your side. The Federal Reserve Bank, he pointed out, has not followed our fall in money rates, yet, as we know, America is enjoying active trade and even a shortatge of labor."

FINE "ON EXECUTION" IN CAFE RAID CASE

Means Payment Will Not Be Enforced Against Jasper Lillie, Who Swallowed 'Evidence.'

Jasper Lillie, arrested in Cafferata's cafe Dec. 23, charged with illegal possession of liquor, pleaded guilty in Federal Court yesterday. Judge Faris fined him $200, "on execution," which means that payment of the fine will not be enforced.

The question which caused the Judge to be lenient was whether Lillie was under arrest when he was searched under a blanket search warrant. Lillie told the Court he had not been arrested. The half pint of whisky which was found on him had been purchased before prohibition, he said. Counsel for the Government said Lillie swallowed the "evidence" after he and two women seated with him had been commanded not to.

The raid was conducted by Chief Prohibition Enforcement Agent Nations and was the first in which a blanket warrant, such as was used in the Hotel Chase raid of New Year's eve, was his authority.

"Of course you were guilty of transporting liquor, by your own admission," Judge Faris said, "but there is some law to be considered in these cases. I believe I know what this law is. I could say some things about it, which, however, I'll refrain from saying as a matter of the best public policy."

The Judge, after looking directly at Nations, who was seated at the counsel table, went on: "In this case, I'll say this: I'll fine you $200 on execution."

PUBLIC INVITED TO STUNT FLYING TODAY

Six Planes Will Give Exhibition at Reception to St. Louis Air Board.

A reception and exhibition of formation and stunt flying in airplanes will be given for the St. Louis Air Board at St. Louis Field, near Bridgeton, beginning at 3 o'clock this afternoon, which the public may attend without cost by invitation of the Flying Club of St. Louis.

The object of the reception is to give members of the Air Board and their friends an opportunity to inspect the field, which is to be the contest ground of the 1923 meet of the National Aeronautic Association, Oct. 1-3, the feature of which is to be the Pulitzer Trophy race. The Air Board contemplates making St. Louis Field a permanent air terminal for transcontinental commercial and military traffic.

The formal program for today provides for six airplanes in a demonstration of military formation flying. The pilots will be William B. and Frank H. Robertson, Raymond Wassall, Robert Laughlin, Otto Scott, Joseph F. Read and John Campion. Read, Wassall and William Robertson will provide the aerial acrobatics.

Scott Field Ships to Land.

At 3:30 o'clock these pilots will fly eastward to escort three huge airships from Scott Field to St. Louis Field. Maj. John A. Paegelow, commandant at Scott Field, plans to send over the TC-1, AC-1 and SST. The TC-1 and SST are each 190 feet long and will land at St. Louis Field for inspection by the Air Board and the public. The AC-1 will not land.

W. Frank Carter, chairman of the Air Board; Mayor Kiel and Martin J. Collins will act as a Reception Committee to receive Maj. Paegelow and his lighter-than-air crews from Scott Field.

Coffin Will Attend Dinner.

Howard E. Coffin, president of the National Aeronautic Association, has sent word that he will attend the dinner at Hotel Chase Wednesday evening, when the future of aeronautics as it may affect St. Louis will be discussed. Others who have accepted invitations are Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, head of the Navy Air Service; Major-General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the Army Air Service; H. H. Emmons, president of the Detroit Board of Trade, and George Thenault, a noted pilot, now air service attache of the French Embassy at Washington.

Emmons will tell what Detroit is doing to establish a permanent air terminal there. Moving pictures of the national races there last year will be shown. A message from Gen. Pershing will be read.

Arrangements for the dinner contemplate an attendance of about 2000.

FORMER AUDITOR TO OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING TOMORROW

Eleven Children and 16 Grandchildren to Spend Day With Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Sheehan.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Sheehan of 6248 Pershing avenue will observe their golden wedding anniversay tomorrow. A nuptial mass will be celebrated at 8 a. m. at St. Roch's Church, and their nine sons and two daughters and 16 grandchildren will be at their home all day.

Sheehan was City Auditor in 1913 and was one of the last Democrats to be elected to a major city office. In that year he speeded up the wheels of Government to pay city employes in time for Christmas. He was elected Alderman in the first year of Mayor Wells' administration, and then served on the Mullanphy Board until he resigned to become Auditor.

He and Mrs. Sheehan, who was Miss Alice Delaney, were married in St. Patrick's Church. Sheehan recalls when the Market street car line ended at Ewing avenue, the Franklin avenue line at Garrison avenue, and a "dinky" connected the latter line with the race course at the Fairgrounds.

At the time of their marriage, Mrs. Sheehan was 18 years old, and he was 24, a journeyman plumber, Irish-born. Three years later he became a contractor, and now, at 74, he is still the active head of his plumbing contracting firm, with offices at Fifteenth and Olive streets. Two sons are associated with him, and a third is in a similar business for himself. He was twice elected president of the National Association of Master Plumbers.

LEGION TO AID IN TREE-PLANTING

Commander Urges State Posts to Cooperate in Gold Star Highway Plan.

At the request of the St. Louis Chapter, National Society of World War Registrars, State American Legion, Commander Kinkhead yesterday issued a statement urging all American Legion posts to co-operate with the society in planting trees along the Gold Star highway from St. Louis to Kansas City. This road, most of which now is in existence, is the route prescribed under the State Highway Commission's system for a cross-State highway.

It is planned to plant a tree for every Missouri soldier who lost his life in the World War. The St. Louis Chapter hopes to interest other States in naming a gold star highway for each, thus forming a system which would radiate from St. Louis.

Program for "Sunny Weather" Is Announced

Lonesome Man Whose Happiness Is Restored by French Actress Feature of Plot In Amateur Production.

THE story of an unhappy, lonesome life-weary man, in the person of Lansden McCandless, who has his hopes revived and his happiness completed by meeting a petite French actress, Miss Eppes Hawes, is the theme of "Sunny Weather," to be produced by the Amateur Players Friday and Saturday nights at the American Theater. The first scene opens in a French cafe, where Kenneth Drummond as "Shufeld" and William Luyties as "Eugene McNeil," the starving playwright, provide the amusement. It is here that the "jewel chorus," headed by Mrs. Virgil Lewis as Sonia, the cigarette girl, hold forth and tempt the hero after the fashion of the boy in the play, "Experience."

Then follows an historical skit, "King Tut," with Humphrey Gifford as king, who goes blissfully to sleep singing "I'm Glad I Lived Two Thousand Years Ago," after looking at the world of today. Miss Mary Denman Clark will play the flapper.

Miss Mary Scott, singing "What Tennessee to Me" is next in order, after which Virgil Lewis will lead a blackface chorus with Harry Papin doing a clog dance.

A scenario, "Loose Women," by William H. Luyties, will feature Garneau Weld as "Hurton Bones," lecturer; Miss Elizabeth Carter and Lannan Benoist.

Spanish garb will be worn by the Rudolpho Valentino chorus led by Richard Upshaw. Miss Louise Francis and Harry Papin will dance.

The second scene is laid in a garden in Vienna with Mrs. Samuel Conant at the piano playing a French song, at the conclusion of which six girls portraying different types pass in review before Mr. McCandless, who sings "Leave Me Alone."

Marion Niedringhaus and 10 girls will comprise the violin chorus, with Mr. Niedringhaus singing the accompanying chorus, and Miss Elizabeth Mauran seated on a park bench pushing a baby carriage, with Carl Koehler on a bicycle, will do a "two-in-one" preceding Miss Gloria Geisinger's Oriental dance. A series of tableaux, in which 10 girls gowned as the figures in portraits by old masters, and Marion Niedringhaus as "Lilliom" singing "La Bouche," will be the concluding acts. Miss Jean Allison with five girls as Krazy Kats, will sing "The Kat's Meouw" as the finale.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Scudder of the Warwick Court Apartments have gone to Chicago to spend the week-end with Mr. Scudder's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Reynolds.

Miss Lulie Simmons, and Miss Peggy Parle, expert horsewomen among the younger set, who will participate in the Horse Show

Dinner Dance on Tennis Court Saturday Night Will Be One of Social Novelties of Horse Show

Seventy-Five Tables Will Be Set Outdoors and Dancing Will Be on Waxed Tarpaulins to the Accompaniment of Jefferson Barracks Band—Informal Sports Clothes Will Be Worn by Guests, Who Include Exhibitors and Wives and Boxholders.

A SOCIAL novelty in connection with the Second Annual Military and Civilian Horse Show, which opens at Jefferson Barracks Friday and continues until Sunday night, will be a dinner dance Saturday night on the tennis courts. Informal sports clothes will be worn by the guests, who will include olny the exhibitors and their wives and boxholders, and the bright-hued sweaters and hats of the women will vie with the brilliant riding colors of the Barracks and the St. Louis Riding Club in creating a colorful scene.

Dinner will be served at twilight, at the close of the day's tanbark events, at 75 small tables grouped about at intervals, and later there will be dancing on waxed tarpaulins to the accompaniment of the Jefferson Barracks band. The adjoining Officers' Club will be used for recreation rooms on Saturday and the day preceding and following it.

The popularity of the Horse Show has made necessary the construction of an additional tier of boxes, the one raised several feet above the other, and these will be shaded by a white canopy lashed to the frame work by bunting streamers, blue and gold for the Riding Club and green and white for the Barracks, while poles 16 feet tall between each two boxes will be connected by banners of the same colored material.

At a tea pavilion back of the arena girls prominently socially will serve refreshments to participants and spetcators, and the proceeds so raised are to be given to the Army Relief Society.

Of the events themselves little has been said of the Olympia four-hurdle Steeplechase to be run Saturday morning, although persons interested in the Steeplechase as it is done in England proclaim it of much interest.

"Olympia jumps," as copied from the English, consist of immovable gate and brush hurdles which the horse must clear or throw its rider.

The complete list of entries in the show, as announced yesterday by the committee, is as follows:

Messrs. George W. Simmons, W. G. O'Fallon, Mahlon B. Wallace Jr., C. P. Delore, Leslie Manewal, A. A. Busch Jr., E. L. Musick, Marquis Musick, E. J. Scott, J. R. Numerous Parties Planned for City's Spring Visitors

Many are Being Entertained at Country Clubs, While Affairs in Town Attract Attention of Others.

ST. LOUIS, as is usual at this time of the year, is crowded with visitors, lured here by the hospitality of our hostesses and the beauty of our springs. Some are being entertained at the country clubs, while a round of parties in town claims the attention of others.

Miss Florence Heywood, an American residing in Paris, will come to St. Louis May 9 for a five-day-visit to Mr. and Mrs. Garfield David Merner of 7001 Washington boulevard. Miss Heywood is an officer d'Academie in Paris and has the distinction of being the only English-speaking lecturer at the Louvre. She is a member of the Lyceum of Paris, the Authors' Society of London, Appui aux Artistes, is president of American College of Women, and director of American Women's Clubs in Paris.

During her visit Miss Heywood will be a guest at the Art Museum, where she will talk on "How to Enjoy Pictures," illustrated by slides furnished her by M. d'Estournel de Constant, director of the Louvre.

Mr. and Mrs. Merner have sent out invitations for a reception Thursday, May 10, from 3 to 6 and from 8 to 11 o'clock at their home.

Miss Eleanor Jewett of Detroit, Mich., will arrive this week according to present plans, for a visit to Miss Dorothy Simmons. She will remain until May 14, when Miss Simmons will accompany her home for the Junior League Conference to be held in Detroit.

Mrs. Daniel O'Gorman of New York is the guest of her sister, Miss Grace M. Bell, 5045 Westminster place. The visitor is en route home following visits in Little Rock and Memphis, Tenn.

Miss Josephine McDonnell of Detroit is visiting her sister, Mrs. Floyd Augustine of 304 Skinker road.

ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST TO SOCIETY

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Hilmer of 31 Arundel place of the engagement and approaching wedding of Mrs. Hilmer's sister, Miss Edna Prosser, and Dr. Omar Richain Sevin, son of R. P. Sevin of 775 Clara avenue. The wedding will take place the afternoon of May 26 at the Hilmer home.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. A. J. Prosser of Schenectady, N. Y., formerly of St. Louis, and the late Dr. Prosser. Due to her mother's illness the wedding will be simple. Mrs. Prosser will not come to St. Louis for the ceremony. Miss Prosser is a graduate of Mary Institute and the Ogontz School in Philadelphia. She did not make a formal debut because of the World War, but has participated in the social activities of the younger set.

Dr. Sevin is a graduate of Washington University, and is associated with Dr. Harvey G. Mudd. During the World War he served as a Captain and for three years was detailed with the Army of Occupation.

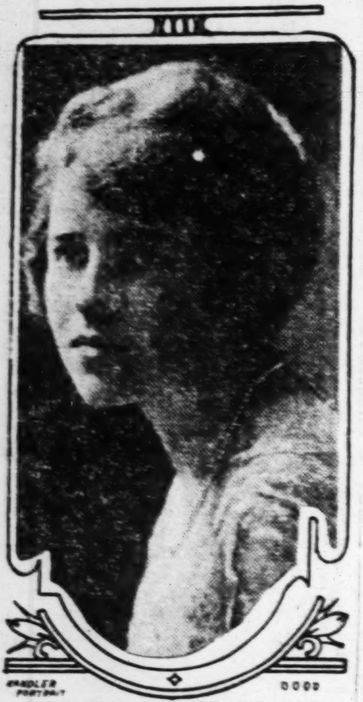
Mr. and Mrs. Wayman Crow of Herculaneum, Mo., are visiting Mr. Crow's father, William Crow, in Biloxi, Miss., where he is spending the winter. They will remain a fortnight longer. Mrs. Crow was formerly Miss Mary Gilmer Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Berry Moore, of 6036 Washington boulevard.

Mrs. Arthur R. Deacon of 24 Algonquin lane, Webster Groves, and her daughter, Miss Virginia Deacon, will depart in June for Plymouth, Mass., to spend the three summer months.

Miss Harriet Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Thompson, of 1 Hortense place, will sail in June to spend the summer in Europe.

Miss Dorothy Partridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Partridge of 5188 Cabanne avenue, will depart in June for a visit to her sister, Mrs. Hobart Bemis Swan, in Springfield, Mass., formerly Miss Vivian Partridge. Miss Partridge had as her guest last week Miss Jane Rogers.

VISITING SISTER AND PARENTS



MRS. WILLIAM LEE GRAVES

Mrs. William Lee Graves is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. Anson More, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin G. Tutt, on her way to East Orange, N. J., to reside.

Miss Rose Helmerichs and Miss Sophie Hager have returned from a three-months' trip through California and the Hawaiian Islands.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Simmons of the Clayton and Hanley roads, and their daughter, Miss Dorothy Simmons, have taken a cottage at Estes Park, Colo., for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Walsh of Westminster place and their family will also spend the summer there.

Mrs. Charles P. Stanley of 4241 Westmenister place, her daughter, Mrs. Marion Bracken and the latter's baby have returned home after spending the winter at Havana, Cuba, and the Florida resorts.

Mrs. Therese Lumaghi of Pershing avenue and Miss Mayme Lumaghi will leave St. Louis in a few days to sail for Europe. They will pass the summer in Southern France and Spain. Their brother, Joseph Lumaghi and his son, Octavius Lumaghi, will also spend the summer abroad.

Mrs. William Bagnell of 12 Westmoreland place, and Mrs. Benjamin Gray of 570 Walton avenue, have gone to Washington, D. C., for a several weeks' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar E. Niedringhaus of Pershing avenue, will go to California in August and will sail the latter part of the month for China and Japan.

Miss Frances Wallace of 5409 Enright avenue has as her guest Miss Mary Julia Burke of Springfield, Ill.

Mrs. A. R. Glock of Pasadena, Cal., formerly Mrs. Eugene J. Gross (nee Miss Adele Belthasar) of St. Louis, will be the guest of her niece, Mrs. H. Foelsing, of 4523 Adelaide avenue. Mrs. Glock is on her way home from St. Paul, Minn., where she is attending the Supreme Shrine, White Shrine of Jerusalem. She is worthy high priestess of Artaban Shrine, No. 5, of Pasadena.

Miss May Gamble, daughter of Mrs. David C. Gamble of Portland place, is visiting Mrs. Arthur Lambert at Arcadia, Mo.

Yavitz of 5547 Vernon avenue, and Sidney Marcus of Minneapolis, will take place Wednesday evening, May 16, at the Gatesworth Hotel. The ceremony will be performed by Rabbi A. E. Halpern in the presence of relatives and friends. The bride will be attended by her younger sister, Miss Beatrice Yavitz, as maid of honor; Misses Alma Solomon and Ella Goodman as bridesmaids, and Mrs. L. J. Leonson and Mrs. V. H. Emmer as matrons of honor. Edith Yavitz, a cousin of the bride, will be flower girl. A. Harris will serve Mr. Marcus as best man, and Harold Schweig and Joe Kusmer will be ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Earl of 1228 North Euclid avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jenette Louise Earl, to Ray Cooke Burrus of New York. A number of parties are being planned for the prospective bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holtzman of 2123 Carr street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elfreda Holtzman, and Fred Cohn of Los Angeles. Miss Holtzman resided in St. Louis until eight months ago. The wedding date will be announced later.

A wedding which took place at St. Margaret's Church on April 28 was that of Miss Mary Higgins, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Higgins, 4062 Shaw avenue, and T. B. D'Arcy. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father J. J. D'Arcy, brother of the bridegroom. The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, T. P. Higgins, and was attended by her sister, Miss Nell Higgins, with Mary Schreiber as flower girl. J. Leach served as best man. The bride wore a gown of white satin. Her veil was held in place with orange blossoms. The bridesmaid was gowned in apricot taffeta with a hat of the same shade.

The wedding of Miss Florence Blackmore, daughter of Mrs. M. Blackmore of 4223 North Market street, and Frank Hammond, son of F. Hammond, took place April 28 at the Zion Church, the Rev. Toelle officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Thomas Gookey and C. Schwartz was best man for Mr. Hammond. After a short honeymoon trip the couple will be at home at 4223 North Market street.

The wedding of Miss Olivia G. Zeroff of 2630 Armand place and John H. Gersbacher of 4427 Wilcox avenue took place Wednesday morning, May 2 at SS. Peter and Paul Church, the Rev. Father Stevens officiating. J. F. Zeroff gave his daughter in marriage.

The bridesmaids were Miss Cecilia Zeroff and Miss Elsie Kassen. Arthur Hartman and Samuel H. Parker Jr. were groomsmen. A breakfast followed at the home of the bride and the couple will make their home there until their new residence in Wayne place is completed

From Oakland, Cal., comes news of the wedding of Miss Mildred McClellan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. U. S. McClellan, formerly of St. Louis, and Wallace H. Smith of Oakland, which took place April 7 in Oakland. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are at home at 3948 Ruby street in that city.

The McClelland family formerly occupied what is known as the old Milliken home at Belt and Bartmer avenues.

Mrs. Georgia N. Brunaugh of Los Angeles is visiting her sister, Mrs. Celsus Orear of 6111 Pershing avenue.

Mrs. Hugh McCullough of 5857 Enright avenue is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Marshall, of Winchester, Vt.

Mrs. A. A. Rowe of 5612 Julian avenue has had as her guests for the past two weeks her sisters, Mrs. E. J. Doll and Mrs. H. J. Douthit, of Omaha, Neb. They returned Friday to their homes.

Mrs. William Caleb Sipple of Brentmoor gave an informal tea yesterday in honor of Mrs. Clayton W. Sponsler of Budapest, Hungary, who arrived Friday to be her guest.

AID FOR AMERICAN TOURISTS

English-Speaking Union in London Conducts Information Service.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 5.—American visitors to England may obtain information of a general nature, or expert guidance on special subjects from the headquarters of the English-Speaking Union at No. 1 Charing Cross, overlooking Trafalgar Square, according to Alfred E. Johns, the executive secretary. Such service to visitors will be rendered either upon their arrival or in advance of the trip.

"The scope of the union's service for American visitors is now very comprehensive," said Johns. "We can give information on where to stay, both in London and the country, and a list is kept of hotels and boarding houses from which suitable addresses are given. Country tours are planned and traveling guides are recommended."

PRIZES FOR GIRLS WITH FRECKLES

To show girls how gently Stillman's Freckle Cream causes freckles to fade, we are offering 103 prizes this summer.

Enter the contest any time. Have your picture taken "with your freckles on" before beginning treatments. After freckles are gone, take another picture. Send both in. Contest closes Oct. 15. To the girl who started with the greatest number of freckles will be given $25 and her choice of $5 worth of Stillman toilet articles.

Second prize is $15 and $5 assortment. Third prize is $10 and same. In order next 100 girls will be given choice of $4 worth of Stillman toilet articles. In case of any tie, duplicate awards will be given to each tying participant. Pictures will not be printed nor winner's name published without her permission.

This contest is not for advertising—but to encourage more girls to use Stillman's Freckle Cream. At all druggists, 50c and $1.00. Write for "Beauty Parlor Secrets" and instructions for taking freckle photo. Stillman Co., 51 Rosemary Lane, Aurora, Ill.

Do you feel perfectly well?

If you are listless and tired perhaps you don't sleep restfully. May be the reason is an uncomfortable mattress. Better investigate—it's worth while.

Choose a Red Cross Mattress that comforms to the bedding laws of every state. It is filled with Kapoc from the South Sea Islands—the cleanest, most sanitary vegetable down known. The special Red Cross process of preparing Kapoc from the South Sea Islands makes it non-absorbent and ventilating.

Kapoc is germ-proof; it will not harbor disease and will not absorb perspiration which naturally makes the Red Cross Mattress more sanitary. A sun and air bath quickly restores a Red Cross Mattress. Simply throw it over two chairs.

For your protection the Red Cross Mattress is sold only in sealed carton. As it weighs only a little more than half as much as the ordinary mattress—no trouble to turn.

You'll feel better because you'll sleep better on a Red Cross Mattress. At all good dealers or write us. Look for the Red Cross trademark—it protects you. Don't accept a substitute.

MEETINGS OF WOMEN'S CLUBS SET FOR THIS WEEK

The College Club of St. Louis will end its fiscal year in May. Election returns will be announced at the final business meeting, to be held at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Evarts Graham is the only nominee for the presidency. Mrs. Theo. W. Crossen as corresponding secretary and Miss Charlotte Gerhard as treasurer also are unopposed in the election.

Two candidates are in the race for each of the offices of first and second vice president. They are Miss Mildred McCluney and Miss Gertrude Blodgett, for the former, and Miss Dorothy Jackes and Miss Cornelia Brossard for the latter. Miss Frances Mason and Miss Charlotte Lomax are the nominees for recording secretary. There are 14 nominees for directors, seven to be elected.

The annual luncheon will be held at the Algonquin Golf Club May 19 at 1 p. m. A play "The Love Affairs of Pentinax," based on Jeffrey Farnol's story, "The Jester of Duke Joceyln," will be given under the direction of Miss Clara Kooser. The story was dramatized by Miss Mathilde Watson.

A week later, May 26, the garden party previously announced will be held. The purpose of the event is to raise a $1000 with which to make the next payment on the clubhouse of the College Club.

Members have volunteered to make cakes, cookies, candy and other dainties. There will be bridge for those who wish to play, and many other features of entertainment. The party will last all day and through the evening and will be held on the grounds of the clubhouse at 5428 Delmar boulevard.

A day spent as guests of Lindenwood College, May 12, and a discussion by Miss Mary Herold West of "American Women Poets of Today," May 15, will fill out the month's program.

A new year book recently was issued, showing 516 members. Miss Hildegarde Frerichs is the retiring president.

The final meeting of the Wednesday Club for 1922-1923 was Inauguration day, May 5. The following officers were installed: President, Mrs. Edgar Rombauer; first vice president, Mrs. William C. Rumsey; second vice president, Mrs. George H. Capen; third vice president, Mrs. Sidney Carter Johnson; corresponding secretary, Miss Bertha M. Flach; recording secretary, Mrs. William P. Durkan; treasurer, Mrs. Edmund H. Wuerpel; auditor, Mrs. Walter G. Clark; Membership Committee, Mrs. Harry E. Sprague and Miss Sarah Tower; House Committee, Mrs. Norman Lincoln, Mrs. Benton H. Pollock and Mrs. E. C. Saxton.

All incoming and outgoing presidents of the Eighth District, M. F. W. C., are urged to attend the presidents' meeting to be held in Vandervoort Auditorium, at 11 a. m. Tuesday. All who are to attend the biennial at Joplin, especially the delegates, are also asked to be present, as final instructions and information will be given at that time.

Presidents are asked to bring the 1921-1922 year book, in order to study the proposed change in bylaws. Miss Axtell, who represents Miss Anne Morgan in the interest of the "Good Will Tour" for devastated France, will speak on plans for St. Louis delegates. Plans for getting out the annual directory will be discussed, and blanks will be distributed to the presidents to be filled in with material for compiling data.

The Fortnightly Club of Kirkwood M. F. W. C., met Thursday afternoon, May 3, at the home of Mrs. William Conway on North Taylor avenue. "Current Events" brought many responses to roll call.

Reports of the various Federated Committee meetings, and also of the reciprocity meetings during the last two weeks were given. Mrs. F. Keane, a guest, read a paper on "Our Young Soldier Poets of the War."

Mrs. J. W. Pickel will be hostess for the club on May 7.

Mrs. Marc Seguin will have charge of the program of musical numbers.

The Republican Woman's Club will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Vandervoort's auditorium. Reports of the various committees will be read, followed by a forum program in charge of Mrs. Charles A. Stix. Each speaker will be allowed three minutes on any topic. The idea is being copied from the National Republican Club of New York which Mrs. Stix has visited. Mrs. Frank P. Hayes, president of the club, is on a vacation until June 3.

The Monday Charity Club will hold its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. G. R. Fearnley, in Normandy, tomorrow. Luncheon will precede the usual routine of business.

The annual meeting of the St. Louis Section, Council of Jewish Women, will take place Monday, May 14, at the Columbian Club. The luncheon will start promptly at 12 o'clock, followed by a special hour devoted to discussion of the coming Triennial Convention, to be held in this city next November. The reading of the yearly reports of committee heads, the election of officers for the ensuing year and the president's address will follow.

The Young Ladies' Society of the Jewish Orphan Home will hold its regular meeting at the Jewish Community Center, 3636 Page avenue, at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening.

OVER $7500.00 for Grape-Nuts Recipes

The Postum Cereal Company will buy not less than 101 Recipes or suggestions for new Uses of Grape-Nuts, paying $50.00 for each one accepted. And in addition—

Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by Good Housekeeping Magazine, will decide an award of $2500.00 for the best four of the 101 or more Recipes or suggestions for new Uses of Grape-Nuts, so purchased:

$1000.00 for the 1st selection $750.00 for the 2nd selection
$500.00 for the 3rd selection $250.00 for the 4th selection

Read carefully the terms of this offer so that you may have the fullest opportunity to share in its benefits. The conditions are so simple and fair that every housewife in the United States can take part in this National Recipe Festival!

There Is No Other Food Like Grape-Nuts

WHILE practically every man, woman and child in the English-speaking world knows Grape-Nuts as a delicious, nourishing and wholesome cereal, and while it is common knowledge that Grape-Nuts with milk or cream is a complete food, many housewives do not know of the appetizing and economical dishes that can be prepared with Grape-Nuts. It lends itself, we believe, to more uses than any other cereal. The convenience and economy of Grape-Nuts, and the flavor, zest and wholesomeness which it imparts to other food, make it invaluable in every home.

Frequently we receive interesting letters from women throughout the country, telling about the attractive dishes they make with Grape-Nuts—delicious puddings, salads, dressings for fowls, etc. No doubt there are thousands of women who are finding varied uses for Grape-Nuts in their home cooking, and even more thousands who will be glad to learn of those varied uses; for while we all cling to old favorite dishes, we also welcome and enjoy a change.

So that is the thought back of our offer of more than $7500.00 in cash for new ways of using Grape-Nuts. To those women who are already using Grape-Nuts in various ways, other than as a breakfast cereal or in the recipes given here, and to those women who would like to try their hand at developing some new way to use Grape-Nuts, we offer to buy at $50.00 each not less than 101 new Grape-Nuts Recipes. We plan to include these new Recipes in a beautifully illustrated cook book.

What Is Grape-Nuts?

Grape-Nuts is a highly nutritious food in the form of crisp, golden granules. It contains the full nutriment of wheat and barley, including vitamin-B and mineral elements required for building sturdy health. These elements are often lacking in the ordinary diet, chiefly through "over-refinement" in the preparation of food.

No other food is so thoroughly baked as Grape-Nuts. More than 20 hours are consumed in the baking process which makes Grape-Nuts easy to digest, and also develops a natural sweetness from the grains themselves.

The form and crispness of Grape-Nuts invite thorough mastication—a decided advantage because this not only provides proper exercise for the teeth, but makes for good digestion.

Every housewife in the Land should take advantage of this extraordinary opportunity to earn the tidy sum of $50.00 by a little pleasant and educational effort in her own home. Also the fair and equal chance to secure one of the liberal awards to be made by Good Housekeeping Institute.

Moreover, there's the greater knowledge of the value of Grape-Nuts, not only as a delicious breakfast cereal, but in the preparation of a variety of appetizing dishes that add to the health and pleasure of the whole family.

Conditions Governing the Purchase of, and Awards for Grape-Nuts Recipes

The Postum Cereal Company will buy not less than 101 Recipes or suggestions for new Uses of Grape-Nuts, paying $50.00 for each one accepted. This offer is open to every person in the United States.

Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by Good Housekeeping Magazine, will decide an award of $2500.00 for the best four of the 101 or more Recipes or suggestions for new Uses of Grape-Nuts, so purchased. $1000.00 for the 1st selection; $750.00 for the 2nd selection; $500.00 for the 3rd selection; and $250.00 for the 4th selection.

Recipes must be mailed between May 1st, 1923 and August 31st, 1923.

Recipes or suggestions for new uses submitted for purchase must not duplicate any of the ten Recipes printed in this announcement.

No Recipe will be purchased from anyone directly or indirectly connected with the Postum Cereal Company, Inc., or Good Housekeeping Institute.

If more than one Recipe is offered, each must be written on a separate sheet. Write name and address plainly on each Recipe submitted.

In the event of a tie for any award offered, an award identical in all respects with that tied for will be made to each one tying.

It is not necessary to purchase Grape-Nuts. A suitable quantity will be sent upon request to those desiring to submit recipes.

Your Recipe should state the exact number intended to be served. Recipes should be carefully tested to make sure that proportions and directions for preparing will bring best results.

Form of Recipe: First, write name of your Recipe at top of sheet; underneath list all ingredients, using level measurements only; then the directions for preparing, worded simply and accurately. Do not send specimen dish.

In considering Recipes for purchase, and for awards by Good Housekeeping Institute, account will be taken of the following points:

(a) Palatability.
(b) Simplicity and economy.
(c) Accuracy and clearness of expression of recipe.

Announcement of the Recipes purchased, and Awards by Good Housekeeping Institute, will be made in January Good Housekeeping.

Recipes submitted to the Postum Cereal Company for purchase will not be returned.

All Recipes must be addressed to RECIPE DEPARTMENT
Postum Cereal Company, Inc., Battle Creek, Michigan.

Below are ten Recipes showing a few of the many appetizing dishes that can be made with Grape-Nuts. Read them over, try some of them, and then you will find it easy to work out a new Recipe or think of a new use for Grape-Nuts, that we may purchase. And remember, your Recipe or suggestion for new use of Grape-Nuts may also merit one of the large awards.

GRAPE-NUTS Ice Cream

Prepare plain flavored ice cream in the usual way. Just before the cream hardens in freezing, add Grape-Nuts as it comes from the package, in the proportion of one-half cup of Grape-Nuts to one quart of ice cream. If you buy ice cream ready made, add Grape-Nuts in place of nutmeats. You'll find the resulting flavor unique.

GRAPE-NUTS Salad

1 cup Grape-Nuts
1 sliced orange
½ cup cubed pineapple
2 cubed bananas
2 teaspoons lemon-juice
Cream Salad Dressing

Cut up the fruit, add lemon-juice, mix with Grape-Nuts, and serve on bed of lettuce with Cream Salad Dressing. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Six Minute Pudding

1 cup Grape-Nuts
1½ cups scalded milk
1 tablespoon sugar
½ cup raisins

Cover Grape-Nuts with scalded milk. Add sugar, raisins, and a little nutmeg. Cook six minutes directly over the heat, stirring constantly, and serve with any good pudding sauce. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Cookies

1 cup Grape-Nuts
½ cup shortening
1¼ cups light brown sugar
½ cup milk
2 well-beaten eggs
2¼ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking-powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped seeded raisins

Cream shortening and sugar. Add milk and well-beaten eggs. Add well-sifted dry ingredients, and raisins that have been dusted with part of the flour, and then the Grape-Nuts. Beat thoroughly and drop from a spoon on baking sheet one and one-half inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes.

GRAPE-NUTS Cheese Casserole

¾ cup Grape-Nuts
1½ cups milk
1 tablespoon butter
¾ teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1¾ cups chopped American cheese
2 eggs
Few grains paprika

Scald the milk. Add Grape-Nuts, butter and seasonings and combine with the cheese and eggs, the latter slightly beaten. Pour into a buttered baking dish, surround with hot water and bake slowly for forty-five minutes in a slow oven. Serve as the main course at luncheon, supper, or a meatless dinner. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Fruit Pudding

1 cup Grape-Nuts
1 package lemon Jell-O or lemon flavored gelatine
1 pint boiling water
½ cup seeded raisins or chopped dates

Add the boiling water to the Jell-O or lemon flavored gelatine and stir until it is dissolved. Pour into a mould, and after the mixture has cooled slightly, add the Grape-Nuts and fruit; then allow the mixture to chill and harden. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Meat Loaf

1 cup Grape-Nuts
1 pound veal, mutton or beef
⅛ pound salt pork
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons milk
1 egg
½ tablespoon lemon-juice
2 tablespoons tomato catsup
½ tablespoon chopped parsley
½ minced onion

Put the meat through a food chopper, add seasonings. Brown minced onion in a little fat before adding Grape-Nuts, milk, and slightly beaten eggs. Pack in a baking dish, shaping like a loaf of baked bread and smooth evenly on top. Bake for forty-five minutes, basting frequently using one-half cup of hot water, a tablespoon at a time. Just before taking from oven, brush with some of the beaten white of egg and a little milk. Brown for one minute. Makes four portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Loaf Cake

1 cup Grape-Nuts
½ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs
1 cup milk
2½ cups Pastry flour
2 teaspoons baking-powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter and sugar; add egg-yolks well beaten; then milk and Grape-Nuts. Beat the mixture thoroughly, fold in alternately the stiffly beaten egg-whites and flour sifted with baking-powder three times; lastly, add the vanilla. Have cake pan previously greased and lightly floured; fill two-thirds full and bake in a moderate oven for forty-five minutes.

GRAPE-NUTS Tomato Soup

¼ cup Grape-Nuts
1 quart tomatoes
2 cups water
10 peppercorns
1 sliced onion
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon soda
4 whole cloves
3 tablespoons butter

Cook tomatoes, water and seasonings twenty minutes; strain and add salt and soda. Crush the Grape-Nuts with a rolling pin. Melt the butter, add the rolled Grape-Nuts, combine and heat the soup to the boiling point. Substitute whole Grape-Nuts for croutons in serving individual soup plates. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Fudge

½ cup Grape-Nuts
2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup milk
2 squares chocolate
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon vanilla

Combine the sugar, milk, chocolate and salt; place over a slow heat, and stir constantly until the sugar is dissolved. Then continue boiling gently, without stirring, until the thermometer registers 238 degrees F., or the mixture forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Set the pan in bowl of cold water and allow to stand undisturbed until there is no heat in the fudge mixture. Remove and add the butter and vanilla. Beat the mixture until creamy and thick, then add Grape-Nuts and continue beating until stiff enough to knead. Turn out on a buttered plate and cut into desired squares.

Missourians Take Part in Capital Social Affairs

Mrs. Breckinridge Long, Mrs. Dwight Davis and Mrs. Selden P. Spencer Among Delegates to Colonial Dames' Convention.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The National Society of Colonial Dames is having its annual meeting. This exclusive organization never reveals its membership at conventions to the press, but it is known that Mrs. Breckinridge Long, Mrs. Dwight Davis and Mrs. Selden P. Spencer are among the Missouri delegation.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes will entertain at dinner on May 9 as a farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, who are leaving Washington shortly for Mr. Bliss' new post at Stockholm. Mr. Bliss has been appointed Minister to Sweden, after having been Third Assistant Secretary of State.

"Genevieve Clark," as all Washington knows her from the President and Mrs. Harding down, even if her proper name is Mrs. James M. Thomson, paid a visit in Washington this week that lasted only a day and a night. With Mr. Thomson, she has gone to Summit Point, W. Va., to visit Mr. Thomson's mother, Mrs. A. P. Thomson. Mrs. Thomson will return to Washington early this week.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt have canceled all their engagements on account of the death of Col. Roosevelt's uncle, Admiral William S. Cowles.

Missourians played an important part at the meeting of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Association at the home of Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins to discuss the proposal to purchase Monticello, the historic home of Thomas Jefferson in Virginia as a national shrine. Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, wife of the president of George Washington University and a native Missourian; Mrs. Dwight Davis and Mrs. William S. Burkhead Jr. of St. Louis all made addresses.

Mrs. Burkhead spoke of the interest of the women from all over the country in the project and pledged herself to a committee of Missouri women in interest of the movement.

Mrs. Hodgkins, who is a member of the Washington Board of Education, past president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, vice president-general of the D. A. R. and active in other organizations, also pledged her support.

Mrs. Bessie Walker Bruggeman of the United States Employment Compensation Commission is taking an interest in the arrangements for the conference on social welfare which is to meet in Washington beginning May 16. This promises to be one of the most interesting conferences ever held in this city and will be attended by women from all over the world. Mrs. Philip North Moore of St. Louis as president of the National Council of Women, will also be prominent at the conference.

A group of debutantes and sub-debutantes entertained at a dinner dance in honor of Miss Bertha Coontz, daughter of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Robert Coontz, who will shortly leave Washington. Miss Coontz, who is a student at the Western High School, has been popular in Washington among the younger set. Admiral and Mrs. Coontz entertained at a supper dance for their daughter last week, when the guests were a number of young naval officers stationed in Washington and daughters of naval officers.

Mrs. A. Fusz, State governor of the organization of Missouri, was the guest of honor of the District of Columbia governors and the International Board of Catholic Alumnae at dinner last Saturday. The party were also entertained at the home of Miss Mary Louise Darr and made a sight-seeing trip of Washington as the guests of Mrs. Charles Semmes.

The popularity of Col. and Mrs. Dwight Davis has even increased, if that be possible, since his appointment as Assistant Secretary of War and no dinner is considered complete without them among the guests. They were the honor guests at the last of the series of dances being given by the officers and ladies of the air service. Mrs. M. Patrick, wife of Major-General Patrick in command of the army air service, received the guests with Col. and Mrs. Davis. Before the dance Col. and Mrs. Davis were the guests of Maj. and Mrs Leonard H. Drennan.

Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Frederick Gillette, wife of the Speaker of the House of Representatives, come from families closely associated in Massachusetts, as Mrs. Davis is only a Missourian by adoption. So, the former Miss Helen Brooks, now Mrs. Davis, and the former Miss Christine Rice, now Mrs. Gillette, daughters of intimate friends, find themselves intimately associated in Washington official circles.

Mrs. Davis wore at the dance given in her honor a gown of white satin brocaded in silver, draped with handsome silver lace in jabot effect. At one of the concerts she wore a gown of black crepe silk, embroidered in black in straight-across designs, made with hanging pieces on the side and with round collar of the same material coming well over the shoulders. Her hat was of satin and straw, turned up on one side.

Mrs. Burkhead wore a gown of green silk figured in Egyptian designs, made on the new side-draped, long-waisted style. Her hat was of green silk embroidered in Egyptian colored straw, and fitted close to her head. Over this she wore a wrap of beige duvetyn with a beige caracul collar.

FORMER CONVICT HELD IN MAIL ROBBERY CASE

Guns and Ammunition Found in Home of Gus Dietmeyer, Near Creve Coeur Lake.

Another arrest in connection with the daring downtown robbery of an armored mail truck April 2 was made Friday night when Gus Dietmeyer, former convict, was taken into custody at his home near Creve Coeur Lake.

Dietmeyer, the police say, is an associate of William F. (Whitey) Doering, paroled burglar and Egan gangster, in whose bungalow at Richmond Heights securities taken in the mail truck holdup were found April 9.

Weapons Found.

In Dietmeyer's cottage, Postoffice Inspectors and city detectives found a sawed-off shotgun, two rifles, a revolver and a large quantity of ammunition for the gun and rifles. So far as could be learned, the officers found no loot in the robbery, but the sawed-off shotgun was such as was described by the chauffeur and guard on the mail truck as having been used by one of the robbers.

Following the failure of the chauffeur and guard to identify Dietmeyer, witnesses to the theft of 52 barrels of bonded whisky from the Government storeroom at 4116 North Union boulevard, April 25, when two watchmen were tied with rope by the robbers, were asked to look at him.

In response to a question from detectives as to why he kept so many weapons in his home Dietmeyer replied: "You got to do it with so many gangs of 'red-hots' (crooks) running around."

A search for Dietmeyer had been in progress ever since the arrest of Doering, but officers who were watching his home and haunts were unable to find him until Friday night. County officers also had been asked to arrest him on sight.

Dietmeyer's police record includes numerous arrests in connection with burglaries and highway robberies. On Dec. 12, 1910, he pleaded guilty of second degree robbery and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. He was discharged from prison in June, 1912.

Taken on Burglary Charge.

He was arrested on charges of burglary and assault to kill Jan. 25, 1907, in connection with the looting of a residence at Leffingwell avenue and Market street, in which former Justice of the Peace Martin Moore was shot in the abdomen when pursuing the burglars. The burglary charge was dismissed Feb. 14, 1908, and on May 28, the same year, the assault to kill case resulted in a mistrial, the jury failing to reach a verdict.

The last time Dietmeyer was in the hands of the police was in February, following the murder of "Oklahoma Red" Deaver, a police character, in a St. Louis County roadhouse. Dietmeyer was arrested when he appeared at the Coroner's inquest, but later was released.

550 RUSSIAN REFUGEES TO U. S.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Governor-General Wood of the Philippines cabled the War Department today that the 550 Russian refugees from Vladivostok who, after many vicissitudes, put in at Manila, would arrive at San Francisco about July 1 on the transport Merritt. Their arrival is being timed so as to permit their entry under next year's immigration quota, beginning with July 1.

Just a few drops combed into the hair and almost immediately you can see "listless locks" begin to take on new life, new lustre, new silky sheen—stray ends and straggly strands melding into glorious waves and curls.

And in 20 minutes your mirror shows you a new head of hair—marcelled and curled as you like it best; with a natural wave that no artificial beauty-parlor process could possibly duplicate.

Marvelous New Spanish Liquid

Makes any hair naturally curly in 20 minutes

The Spanish Beggar's Priceless Gift

by Winnifred Ralston

FROM the day we started to school, Charity Winthrop and I were called the touseled-hair twins. Our hair simply wouldn't behave.

The hated name followed us through the grades and into boarding school. Then Charity's family moved to Spain and I didn't see her again until last New Year's eve.

A party of us had gone to the Drake Hotel for dinner that night. As usual I was terribly embarrassed and ashamed of my hair.

It seemed that everyone had wonderful, lustrous, curly hair but me and I felt they were all laughing or worse, pitying me behind my back.

On the dance floor I saw a beautiful girl dancing with Tom Harvey. Her eye caught mine and to my surprise she smiled and started toward me.

I think she had the most beautiful hair I ever saw. My face turned scarlet as I compared it mentally with my own. It was Charity Winthrop who once had dull, straight hair like mine.

It had been five long years since I had seen her. But I simply couldn't wait, I blurted out—"Charity Winthrop—tell me—what miracle has happened to your hair?"

She smiled and said mysteriously, "Come to my room and I will tell you the whole story."

Charity tells of the beggar's gift

"The day before I left Madrid I stopped in the plaza to say goodbye to my old friend, Miguel, the beggar. Before I left him I pressed a gold coin in his palm."

"Hija mia," he said, "You have been very kind to an old man. Digamelo (tell me) senorita, what it is your heart most desires."

"I laughed at the idea, but said jokingly, "Miguel, my hair is straight and dull. I would have it lustrous and curly."

"Oigame, senorita," he said—"Many years ago—a Castilian prince was wedded to a Moorish beauty. Her hair was black as a raven's wing and straight as an arrow. Like you, this lady wanted los pelos rizos (curly hair). Her husband offered thousands of pesos to the man who would fulfill her wish. The prize fell to Pedro, the droguero. Out of roots and herbs he brewed a potion that converted the princess' straight, unruly hair into a glorious mass of ringlet curls.

"Pedro, son of the son of Pedro, has that secret today. Years ago I did him a great service. Here you will find him, go to him and tell your wish."

"I called a coche and gave the driver the address Miguel had given me.

"At the door of the apothecary shop, a funny old hawk-nosed Spaniard met me. I stammered out my explanation. When I finished, he bowed and vanished into his store. Presently he returned and handed me a bottle.

"Terribly excited—I could hardly wait until I reached home. When I was in my room alone, I took down my hair and applied the liquid as directed. In twenty minutes, not one second more, the transformation, which you have noted, had taken place.

"Come, Winnifred—apply it to your own hair and see what it can do for you."

Twenty minutes later as I looked into Charity's mirror I could hardly believe my eyes. The impossible had happened. My dull, straight hair had wound itself into curling tendrils. My head was a mass of ringlets and waves. It shone with a lustre it never had before.

You can imagine the amazement of the others in the party when I returned to the ballroom. Everybody noticed the change. Never did I have such a glorious night. I was popular. Men clustered about me. I had never been so happy.

The next morning when I awoke, I hardly dared look in my mirror fearing it had all been a dream. But it was true—gloriously true. My hair was curly and beautiful.

I asked Charity's permission to take a sample of the Spanish liquid to my cousin at the Century Laboratories. For days he worked, analyzing the liquid. Finally, he solved the problem, isolated the two Spanish herbs, the important ingredients.

They experimented on fifty women and the results were simply astounding.

A Matchless Marcelle

Lovely Curls

Take advantage of their generous trial offer

I told my cousin I did not want one penny for the information I had given him. I insisted, however, that he introduce the discovery by selling it for a limited time at actual laboratory cost plus postage so that as many women as possible could take advantage of it.

No need to undergo the torture and expense of the so-called permanent wave, which might even destroy your hair. You can have natural curly hair in twenty minutes. One application will keep your hair beautiful for a week or more.

Don't delay another day. For the Century Chemists guarantee satisfaction or refund your money.

ANTISALOON LEAGUE APPEALS FOR FUNDS

Circular Letter Gives Warning That Wets Are "Organized as Never Before."

Warning that anti-prohibition forces have "hundreds of thousands of dollars" at their disposal and are now raising a fund for use in coming elections is contained in circular letters sent out by the Anti-Saloon League to its members in an appeal for funds for the league.

One letter is signed by the Rev. Dr. A. H. Post, recently installed as superintendent. He declares that the "liquor traffic is organized as it never has been before," and that the wets will enter the coming campaigns financially equipped to put up a hard fight. The Rev. Dr. Post writes that it is his desire "to meet them on their own ground, in fact, carry the fight into their own territory."

Another circular is signed by the Headquarters Committee of the League, of which Christian Bernet is chairman. This letter introduces the Rev. Dr. Post, inclosing a photograph of him. The Headquarters Committee also mentions that the former superintendent, the Rev. Mr. W. C. Shupp, who resigned, was the victim of attacks on his character by "an irresponsible, unlisted, private publication." The letter declares that since those behind the publication are irresponsible, any libel action would be fruitless.

The letters do not state whether the league has set a definite financial goal. Members are urged to pay up subscriptions promptly and make such other contributions as they feel able to make.

MEASLES EPIDEMIC CHECKED

The epidemic of measles, spreading here since Jan. 1, has been checked, the Health Department announced yesterday, in reporting a gradual decrease in the number of new cases registered last week. Eight deaths resulted from the disease last week, the highest number reported in a like period since the start of the epidemic.

Three hundred and five births and 216 deaths were recorded in St. Louis last week. Twenty-nine persons died of Bright's disease, 28 of heart disease, 25 from pneumonia, 19 of cancer, 16 from tuberculosis, and one from whooping cough. There were seven suicides, seven deaths by accident, three homicides and two deaths from other external violence.

INTER-RACIAL MOVE TO BE SUPPORTED HERE

Plan to Promote Better Understanding Discussed at Community Council Meeting.

A movement for inter-racial good will in St. Louis was officially sponsored by the Community Council at a meeting in Vandervoort's auditorium yesterday, attended by representative negroes and a few white persons interested in social welfare work.

The meeting was addressed by Dr. George E. Haines, a negro, secretary of the Committee on Race Relations of the Federal Council of Churches, New York City. He told of the work carried on in Philadelphia, Washington, Dayton and Cincinnati by Inter-racial committees.

In Philadelphia, he said, the committee has gone so far as to cause a revision of geography text books in the public schools so that they treat the negro race more fairly. In general, the plan is to co-ordinate the organizations working among negroes and whites and promote better understanding between the races.

An inter-racial committee has been in existence in St. Louis for more than a year, but has done little as a group except to discuss the problems falling in its province.

After Haines' speech a forum was held, various speakers making suggestions from the floor. An effort will be made to interest more persons in the work before the Community Council takes steps to push it. The general opinion seemed to be that an organization of this sort could best serve its purpose if operated as a clearing house for ideas where white and negro civic leaders could obtain information. It is expected that a subcommittee of the council will be formed in the near future to handle this work.

CHARGES OF STORING GAME IN 'COMMERCIAL HOUSES' DROPPED

Judge, Dismissing Cases Against St. Louis and University Club Managers, Rules Clubs Are Not Commercial.

Basing his decision on repeated court rulings that clubs maintained by revenue derived exclusively from membership dues cannot be classed as commercial establishments, Judge Miller in the Court of Criminal Correction yesterday dismissed charges of storing game in "commercial establishments" against managers of the University and St. Louis clubs.

Warrants were issued against the club managers following a raid by Deputy State Game Warden William J. Wiemeyer, Dec. 18, last, when he confiscated 13 quail and a meadow lark at University Club and 108 wild ducks at St. Louis Club.

The quail and meadow larke belonged to J. P. Rand of Hotel Chase and the duck belonged to Harry Scullin and Charles Gilbert of the Scullin Steel Co. The club managers, Charles Bertrand of University Club, and Schuyler E. Arnold of St. Louis Club, testified the game had been stored for the benefit of the owners and other members of the clubs.

RIDING SCHOOL TO BE BUILT

Incorporation With $150,000 Capital Stock Announced.

Incorporation of the Kentucky Riding School, with a capital stock of $150,000, and plans for construction of a $100,000 riding school and arena on Papin street just east of King's Highway boulevard, were announced yesterday.

The directors of the school are George T. Sams, who managed the old Kentucky Riding School on Easton avenue; Dr. H. W. Soper, T. L. Horne, Edwin Meissner and Thomas Garland. Officers are to be elected this week. A special advisory committee is being selected to supervise construction of the new building. August Busch Jr. is chairman of that committee. Mrs. Allen West is at the head of the women's committee, which will co-operate with the men's committees.

YOUR SKIN NEEDS A SPRING TONIC

Kantol Is the Purgative for Winter-Clogged Pores

The freshness of youth and springtime should be reflected in your face during these glorious spring days. But winter lies just behind and it has left its ugly heritage of rough, scaly skins; blemishes, blackheads, dust and smoke-clogged pores. Your skin needs a spring tonic! Kantol is the answer to that need.

Approved by Dermatologists

William P. Kahn, noted beauty culturist, has compounded a scientific blending of plants and vegetables containing no injurious bleach or chemicals, which acts as a skin purgative and clears up a muddy complexion.

It Is Refreshing

Kantol is not a forty-minute clay "pack" or disagreeable mud, but it is a soothing plastic cream which will rejuvenate tired skins.

No Waiting for Results

Wash off with cold water just ten minutes after application and you will marvel at the change! It lightens a sallow skin several shades, and leaves it with an exquisitely smooth texture and delicate coloring.

Start Treatment Now

Ward off the ills of wind and sun by starting now to use Kantol. Be prepared for Summer. Sunburn is on the way!

For Sale by Leading Stores

Wolff-Wilson, Famous-Barr, Stix, Baer & Fuller, Judge & Dolph, Nugents, Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney and Enderles, and other leading stores have Kantol, or write to the Wm. P. Kahn Corp., Dept. A-56, St. Louis, Mo.

Note Carefully

Be sure you get the genuine Kantol. All products manufactured by Wm. P. Kahn bear the label of the Wm. P. Kahn Corporation. Accept No substitutes.

Like a Boy at 50 Full of Life and Energy

Brimming Over With Vim and Vitality That Keeps Him Keen, Active and Alert

Magic-Like Power of ARIUM Is What Helped Him to "Come Back" With Old-Time Strength

In a recent discourse, a well-known New York Doctor said: "Altogether too many people, especially those between the ages of 40 and 60, are suffering from weakness, nervous disorders, kidney and liver complaints, rheumatism, neuritis, dangerously high blood pressure, stomach and intestinal troubles, sleeplessness and general debility. Yet with the discovery of ARIUM, it should be easy for them to rapidly restore much of their strength, power and youthful activity."

"I know of one man 50 years old who was broken in health from several of these distressing ailments but after taking ARIUM found that his blood pressure had been reduced to that of a boy of 20; he was able to enter gaily into the sports of the young folks, go at his business with a keen, alert mind and put in long hours without fatigue. In fact, thanks to ARIUM, he was really as full of vigor, vim and vitality as when a young man."

So definite is the action of ARIUM that it goes right to work the minute it enters the body and sets up healthy functioning of the blood, glands and organs almost immediately. You often begin to feel this amazing revitalizing influence on your system within only 24 hours' time, yet it is so harmless that even a child may take it with perfect safety.

A leading Medical Authority says that ARIUM should be used in every hospital and prescribed by every physician to quickly enrich the blood, strengthen the nerves, put youthful power into the veins and fortify the body against disease and signs of premature old age.

If you want to increase your strength, vitality and nerve force, rid yourself of pains, aches and disease—if you want to feel your whole body vibrate with new vigor and ambition you will find it well worth while to try ARIUM for two weeks and if you are not amazed and overjoyed at what happens in your own case, go back to your druggist and get your small deposit without trouble or question.

There are no drugs in ARIUM and success is guaranteed, so you run no risk whatever. Your local druggists state that they now have a sufficient supply of ARIUM on hand to meet immediate demands. (5-4)

ARGUMENTS HEARD IN THE GONNELLA CASE

Government Contends "Belvedere Joe" Violated Injunction in Opening Auto Shed as Drink Parlor.

The application of the Government for a citation for contempt of court against "Belvedere Joe" Gonnella, owner of a resort on Olive Street road and North Groby road, St. Louis County, was heard by Federal Judge Faris yesterday and taken under advisement. The citation is being sought on the charge that Gonnella has violated an injunction, granted April 9 under the nuisance clause of the Volstead act, closing his place of business for a year.

Federal agents testified that while Gonnella has closed the building in which he formerly operated, he has reopened for similar business in a converted automobile shed about 50 or 75 feet east of the former building.

Gonnella, on the stand, admitted he had been operating in the converted automobile stand. He said that he was serving only soft drinks and food. Attorneys for Gonnella argued they did not believe the injunction granted April 9 could go farther than the request made by the Government in asking for the injunction. They declared the petition asked only that the building where it was charged liquor had been sold be closed.

Judge Faris said the matter had resolved itself into a question of law, of whether the converted automobile shed, having been used as such in connection with the former business building, was a part of the curtilage as defined in the old common law. The court gave each side 10 days to file briefs on that point.

A similar proceeding against Joseph M. Fisk, proprietor of Riverview Inn, on Riverside Drive, was passed for 10 days.

WRAPE FUNERAL TOMORROW

Stave Manufacturer and Lumber Man Died Friday.

The funeral of Henry Wrape, 78 years old, stave manufacturer and lumber man, who died Friday of stomach trouble at his residence, 5602 Enright avenue, will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock from St. Rose's Church, with interment in Calvary Cemetery.

He came to St. Louis in 1892 and incorporated as the Henry Wrape Co. Up to a month before his death Wrape was actively engaged in his business and had offices in the Liberty Central Trust building. He was a graduate of Notre Dame University.

He is survived by a son and three daughters.

NEW BARGE SERVICE TO MEMPHIS ON FRIDAY

Weekly Package Service From St. Louis Expected to Prove Big Aid to Merchants.

A weekly package service to Memphis by water, with departures at 5 p. m. Friday for Monday morning delivery and the return to leave Memphis at 5 p. m. Monday for delivery here on Thursday, will be instituted this week by the Mississippi-Warrior Waterways Service.

This is considered epochal in Federal river development. It places river freight traffic between St. Louis and Memphis on a par with the hey-day of the packet lines. The improvement on previous Federal barge line time to Memphis is immense, and the rates are the same as by that service.

The shallow channel between here and Cairo made it necessary for a tug to take half of a heavy tow to Cairo, leave it, and come back for the remainder. The custom was to put a light barge with the Memphis freight in the second half, and if the tow had to wait for a tugboat at Cairo, as some times happened, the Memphis barge might be 10 or 12 days in transit.

Gulfport Self-Propelled Barge.

The new time is 40 hours there and 72 hours back. The barge is the Gulfport, self-propelled, one of four built for coffee and sugar trade and the like in Federal service on the Warrior River in Alabama. It came upstream with a load of ore, and at present is being unloaded at the East St. Louis docks. Open cargo boxes, which make up most of its 1200-ton capacity, will be hatched over to form tidy package holds.

Executives believe the time possibly could be lessened, but their efforts will be concentrated on regularity, as that is considered the principal desire of merchants who may find the service convenient. Unloading will begin Sunday evening immediately upon arrival at Memphis, and reloading will follow for a prompt start on the return trip.

The barge will be unloaded here Thursday for delivery that day. Freight will be accepted for the next trip up to 3 p. m. Friday.

The principal objective of the package line is St. Louis merchandise, which already supplies a Memphis tonnage of near the Gulfport's capacity. It is expected that Memphis merchants will take advantage of its regularity to make Thursday orders and advertise Sunday for Monday sales. Prospects now are that the first trip will utilize all the barge's capacity.

Additional Barge Possible.

Upstream tonnage will not be inconsiderable. There is constant shipping of secondhand automobiles from Memphis to St. Louis, and the weekly service is expected to catch this trade and also to promote its growth, on account of the uncertainty of getting automobile cars for shipment by rail.

Eeven the addition of a second barge to the package line, probably for a semiweekly service, is looked for. Another of the Gulfport's type will be readily available if the tonnage warrants.

Relief of the New Orleans towns is not to be overlooked. Shipping by the barge line is heavier than it has been for some months. Factors are the gradual return of merchandise shipping by the water route, and an unlooked-for revival in grain shipping, which is just getting under way.

PROTESTANT CHURCHES GAIN 13,614 IN CITY AND COUNTY

Membership Increase Figure Covers Year From Easter to Easter.

An increase of 13,614 in membership of the Protestant evangelical churches in St. Louis and St. Louis County in the last year from Easter to Easter, is shown in the reports made to the Church Federation. This increase did not include the growth in negro churches. There are now 177,990 members in the white and 32,293 in the negro churches

The M. E. Church South was first in gains with an increase of 2379; Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., was second, gain 2046; Evangelical Lutheran third with 2024, Evangelical Synod of North America fourth with 1836, and Baptist fifth with 1737. Conversions and transfers from other churches are included in the figures on growth.

ADVERTISING CHARGE DISMISSED

Coal Company Had Been Accused of Using Misleading Statements.

A charge of using misleading advertising matter against the Robinson Crescent Coal Co., 4552 McRee avenue, and its president, Oscar W. Robinson, was dismissed by Judge Miller in the Court of Criminal Correction yesterday.

The charge was based on a complaint that the company had advertised Mount Olive coal at $6 a ton during a ten-days period in March, 1922, and had filled orders with another grade of coal. The company's defense was that Mount Olive coal did not mean a particular strata of coal, but was a trade name for various productions of coal of certain quality. The company further contended the coal it sold under the advertisement was not inferior to the grade required under the designation of Mount Olive coal.

345,388,000 Government Envelopes.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—It will require 345,388,000 envelopes to enclose the mail of the Government next year, and, as an indication of what these figures mean, the Postoffice Department announced today that a contract had been let for 140,000,000 official envelopes for that department alone at a cost of $178,061. The purchase of envelopes for the Government is centralized in the Postoffice Department for purposes of economy.

FUNERAL SERVICES TODAY FOR RALPH M'KITTRICK

Son of Former Head of Dry Goods Company Died Friday From Pneumonia.

The funeral of Ralph McKittrick, 4328 Westminster place, who died Friday morning, will take place at 2:30 p. m. today form the residence to Bellefontaine Cemetery.

McKittrick, who was a son of the late Hugh McKittrick, former head of the Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co., had been ill a week with pneumonia and was thought to be improving when he took a turn for the worse. He was connected with the Ely-Walker Dry Goods Co. He is survived by his widow and four children.

LEFT $800,000 TO COLLEGE THAT HE NEVER WOULD VISIT

Robert H. Stockton Always "Too Busy" When Friends Insisted That He Make Trip to Canton, Mo.

WORKED HARD AND LIKED HARD WORKERS

Although Never Active in Church Affairs, He Bequeathed Large Sums to Church and Ministerial Relief.

Robert H. Stockton, the stove manufacturer who, in his will filed last week, left $2,000,000 to Culver-Stockton College at Canton, Mo., the Christian Church, its Ministerial Relief Fund, and its Orphans' Home at 2951 North Newstead avenue, never was active in church affairs and resisted all attempts of his friends to have him visit the college.

Before his death, which occurred a week ago Friday, he had, however, contributed several hundred thousand dollars to the institutions named in his will. Friends explain his gifts by his strong confidence in men connected with those institutions, rather than any intimate personal knowledge of their needs.

"He did not believe in pampering anybody," said the Rev. George A. Campbell, pastor of the Union Avenue Christian Church, who knew him for years. "You observe that his only considerable personal bequest was $25,000 to his housekeeper.

"Liked Hard Workers."

"He liked hard workers, and was a tremendous worker himself. I had been with him at social gatherings where he would excuse himself about 8:30 p. m., remarking that he always retired at 9 o'clock. The story goes that he kept three stenographers busy in his office at the Majestic Manufacturing Co. Once he decided he was old enough to quit work, and spent a year in Europe, but returned and started the Majestic concern.

"Although he was farm-bred and was always attracted by the country—five paintings in the hall of his home at 4528 Maryland avenue were pastoral—he seemed to live almost entirely in his work, rarely was out of the city and never would visit the school, which is situated on bluffs overlooking the Mississippi River and the town of Canton. He would say he was too busy or something of that sort, even when the school in 1917 was named after him and his business associate, Mrs. L. L. Culver."

The specification of hard work certainly was met in the college, which, established as Christian University in 1853 by an act of the Legislature "to foster Christian education," was closed during the Civil War, occupied by Federal troops, and since then has struggled through with a heavy deficit each year.

It burned down in 1903, when Dr. Carl Johann was its president, and he took the financial responsibility of keeping the institution alive, gathering contributions himself from churchpeople of the State to rebuild an academic hall and a dormitory and to pay the tiny faculty a living wage. Stockton met Dr. Johann and liked his grit. He had his own architect put up a main college building, and Mrs. Culver gave a gymnasium and dormitory.

Other Difficulties.

These gifts were a big lift, but the school was by no means out of difficulties. Its endowment was small, and in 1918 many members of its student body and even of its faculty were drawn away to war. The enrollment was only about 60.

Then the Men and Millions Movement of the Christian Church came along with $380,000 to be paid gradually into the endowment fund, to which is to be added about $100,000 from a similar State movement, and now the General Board of Education, a Rockefeller board, has proposed to contribute $100,000 conditional upon the raising of $300,000 by the school. With the two-fifths of his estate which Stockton bequeathed, amounting to approximately $800,000, the endowment is estimated as about the highest of any similar college in the State.

League of Women Voters to Meet.

The League of Women Voters will have a round table discussion at the University Club at 8 p. m. Thursday on whether the United States should remit any part of the foreign debt and whether the United States should join any international association, the object of which is prevention of war.

"Naughty Marietta" Goes Into Rehearsal Tomorrow for Opera

Municipal Theater's Fifth Season Only Three Weeks Away—Advance Seat Sale Exceeds $70,000, and Total Attendance of 500,000 Is Expected.

WITH only three weeks remaining until the opening of the fifth season of the Municipal Theater Association, principals and chorus will begin rehearsals tomorrow in the initial work, Victor Herbert's "Naughty Marietta." The management is preparing for an attendance bordering upon half a million. The advance season ticket sale has already passed $70,000, and it is expected that $100,000 of seats will have been sold when the open-air auditorium in Forest Park is thrown open on the evening of May 28.

The gathering at the premiere will find many improvements in the theater's equipment. The aisles have been rearranged, and new concrete walks built. The lighting facilities are said to have been bettered, and the dressing-room buildings are being rehabilitated. Back of the public stage, a complete rehearsal stage, of equal dimensions, has been constructed, making it possible to give a performance every night in the week, instead of only six a week, as heretofore.

What promises to be the most important alteration is the installation of a sound amplifier, at a cost of $12,000, which, it is said, will solve the serious problem of acoustics in the auditorium. This device was tested last week, with the result that the management engages audibility for every syllable sung and spoken, in the free seats at the rim of the stadium, as well as in the boxes adjacent to the stage.

History of a Growing Plant.

THESE are the most recent of a series of changes which have converted the sylvan glade of 1916 into a permanent and elaborate theater plant. When "As You Like It" was presented in that year, the stage was turf, the floor of the auditorium was gravel, and portable chairs were used for seats. There were no shelters from rain and few other conveniences.

The first season of municipal opera, in 1919, was presented with accommodations little better than those attending the production of "As You Like It." The initial season showed a deficit, but nevertheless the association proceeded to provide a reinforced concrete base as a floor for the auditorium, and to supplant the temporary dressing-room facilities with permanent buildings. An ornamental facade at the entrance and a pergola along one side were also erected.

The 1920 productions resulted in a profit, and the next thing done was to build a permanent stage on a concrete base. This lesson was learned from a flood of the River des Peres, which on the opening night of the 1920 season wrought havoc with the theater's equipment. A large scenic studio was added to the structures at the rear of the stage, together with another dressing-room building and extensive electrical appliances.

Before the opening of last summer's cycle, a new pergola on the other side of the stadium had been completed, and parking space had been provided for 500 automobiles, in the immediate vicinity of the theater.

According to the ordinance under which the association operates, the profits each season must be reinvested in the opera enterprise. Sums are set aside for operatic production during the ensuing year, and to meet any emergencies that arise. The larger amount, however, goes into improvements and additions in the physical plant.

Student Actors to Give "Winter's Tale"

ON Tuesday evening the Shakspeare Association of Washington University will present "The Winter's Tale" at the outdoor theater on Liggett Terrace, in the university campus. This play is almost a novelty, so many years have passed since it was last performed in St. Louis. Especial effort has been devoted to the pastoral scenes of the fourth act.

The directors, Prof. and Mrs. W. R. Mackenzie and Prof. F. M. Webster, recently witnessed a performance of "The Winter's Tale" at the Shakspeare Memorial Theater in Stratford-on-Avon, and will give the benefit of their observations to the present production. There will be dances under the direction of Miss Agnes Cady and Miss Elizabeth Childs. Miss Cady, who has just returned from an 18 months' study of folk-dances in Europe, is to reveal some of her discoveries.

With a few exceptions, the costumes have been made by a committee of wives of faculty members and students, under the supervision of Miss Margaret Ewing and Mrs. William Steele, from materials donated by St. Louis women. William G. Carson is business manager. The roles of Leontes, Hermione and Perdita will be taken respectively by Arthur Krause, Florence Walters and Laura Hinchman.

Other parts have been assigned to Ellen Barber, Morgan Beatty, Gilbert Hyatt, Paul Reed, Helen Bechtell, Chester Hart, James McCormick, Vladimir Jelinek, Robert A. Kissack, Adolph Pessel, Robert Emmet Kane, Morris Solomon, Anna Frein, Charlotte Coombe, Deming Tucker, Leota Diesel, Edith Lange, Louise Jamieson, Alvina Schraubstadter, Carol Kemerer, Georgia Hughes, Harriet Chittenden, Richard Kraft and George W. Hampe.

"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

THE Woodward Players, at the Empress, will present a well-known comedy, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," after a novel of Kate Douglas Wiggins. Miss Hazel Whitmore will take the Pollyannaish part of the heroine. In the cast will be Bobby Reed, Margaret Spooner, Caroline Morrison, Kitty Rose, Virginia Springer, John Warner, J. Raymond Brown, Laura Lovett, Marjorie Fulton, Marian Schilling, Maud Fulton and Helen Holtselaw.

Frank Tinney, blackface and musical comedy luminary, who is appearing in vaudeville for the first time in several years, is this week's headliner at the Orpheum. He has a skit called "Meet My Wife." Others on the bill are Miss Patricola, violinist and singer; Jimmy Morgan, with his jazz band; Billy Gleason, with an offering of topical humor; Harry Holman and two assistants, in "Hard Boiled Hampton," and Edwin George, comedy juggler.

Renee Robert, dancer, and the Giers-Dorf Symphonists lead off at the Rialto. Others acts are those of Will J. Ward in songs and anecdotes; the Alex trio of equilibrists, and Yost and Clady, who model in clay. The new bill, beginning Thursday, will feature a dance act, "Promise Me," with Nelson Snow, Charles Columbus and Harriet Hector.

"Stolen Moments," a dance act with a plot, is the principal offering at the Columbia, with Milton Sylvia, Marie Dayne and the Dolores Twins. The Richard Brothers and Cherie will present "Two Fun Merchants and a Mack Sennett Girl;" Ray and Hale appear in "Two Gentlemen from Kokomo;" Jimmy Ashley will have a humorous monologue, and Alfred Lawrence will provide a musical novelty. The picture is "Gossip," with Gladys Walton. The schedule for the second half of the week is headed by the Cheyenne Days Co. in "A Round-Up of Laughs and Thrills."

THE list at the Grand Opera House includes a company of 10 acrobats and dancers recruited from the "Yip Yip Yaphank" show staged at Camp Upton during the war; the Dan Fitch minstrels; J. Frank Holliday and Willette, in "Detailed;" Lady Alice's pets, a menagerie of trained rats, cats, dogs and pigeons; Monte and Lyons, in "A Letter From Italy;" Waiman and Berry, musical comedians; Ray and Edna Tracy, dancers; and Paul Kirkland, with a company, in "High Steppers."

German Troupe Disbands.

At Eagle Auditorium tonight, the German Theater Stock Company will give a special added performance of "Chaste Joseph" ("Der Keusche Josef"), in which Felix Marx will play the title role by way of celebrating his twenty-fifth year on the stage. After the performance, the troupe will disband. The Gayety closed last night for the summer.

"The Rivals" Will Be Played by Star Cast

NEW YORK, May 5.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

ALTHOUGH the normal hour of sunset for the dramatic season has passed, the tail-end continues to wriggle far from feebly. There will be five openings Monday night, the most since Christmas.

"The Rivals," by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, will be presented for one week only by the Equity Players, at the Equity Forty-eighth Street Theater. The all-star cast will include Francis Wilson, James T. Powers, Maclyn Arbuckle, Sidney Blackmer, Mary Shaw, Violet Heming, Eva Le Gallienne and Vivian Tobin.

"The Mountebank," a play after the novel of William J. Locke, adapted by the author and Ernest Denny, will open at the Lyceum, with a company comprising Lillian Kemble Cooper, Marjorie Chard, Nora Swinburne, Norman Trevor, Lennox Pawle, Charles Romano and Louis La Bey. "For Value Received," by Ethel Clifton, will be presented at the Longacre; "The Apache," by Josephine Turck Baker, will try its luck at the Punch and

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

SIDNEY LEWIS, "The Original Nut Comedian," has decided to desert the vaudeville stage for the movies. He has just signed a contract to appear in a series of six domestic comedy dramas of the Sidney Drew type, to be called "Comedy Classics," and controlled by the General Film Manufacturing Co., and directed by Romaine Fielding, at the Egyptian Building in University City.

Production of "Old Madrid," starring Clara Kimball Young, has been begun. The story, an adaptation from the novel, "La Rubia," by W. H. Roberts, is one of the star's most ambitious undertaking. Appearing opposite Miss Young is Lewis Dayton, who had a role of similar importance in her recently completed Metro picture, "Cordelia the Magnificent." Others in the cast are Wedgewood Nowell, Louise Bates, Arthur Hull and Lillian Adrin.

Premier Mussolini, members of his Cabinet and the British and American Ambassadors, were among those present at the premiere performance in Italy of the Rex Ingram production, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," at the Costanzi Theater in Rome.

A cast of extraordinary distinction has been engaged to support Jackie Coogan in "Long Live the King," the first motion picture which the young star will make for release by Metro Pictures Corporation. Vera Lewis, Alan Forrest, Walt Whitman, Rosemary Theby, Alan Hale and Ruth Renick are a few of the large list of celebrities. Jackie himself will play the role of Crown Prince William Otto, heir apparent to the throne in one of those mythical Balkan principalities that are so popular on the screen.

Harry Myers, Margaret Seddon and Windham Standing have been engaged to support Johnny Hines in "Little Johnny Jones."

David Belasco and Lenore Ulric, the Belasco star, have planned to arrive at the Warner Brothers' studios in Los Angeles on June 4 to begin the filming of "Tiger Rose," in which Miss Ulric will be starred.

A movie star who has never visited a beauty parlor is a decidedly unique personality. Cleo Madison, who plays the leading role in "The Man From Ten Strike," holds this unusual record. Miss Madison has never even had her hair arranged or marceled by a hairdresser, nor has she ever had her face massaged. These toilette requirements she attends to herself. Miss Madison never uses cold creams, except for the removal of her camera makeup, and never uses "street" makeup.

"The Man Next Door," the Vitagraph special adapted from the novel of the same name by Emerson Hough, author of the "The Covered Wagon," "North of 36" and other stirring stories, has been completed at the Hollywood studios and is undergoing final edition at Vitagraph's Eastern studios. Like most of Hough's stories, much of its action takes place in the Far West, but there is an almost equal amount of society life. David Torrence, Frank Sheridan, James Morrison and Alice Calhoun have the leading roles.

Louise Fazenda, recognized as one of the cleverest comediennes in pictures, has been added to the all-star cast of the new John M. Stahl special, "The Wanters," which is being produced for First National release.

"Captain Applejack" is going to be nautical. Not in the Ohioan sense of the word, but in every other particular. Neil Jack, illuminating engineer of Fred Niblo's unit, has bought a bosun's pipe to whistle the lights on and off. The old whistle was mistaken by carpenters on the set to mean that they should stop hammering; and nothing makes a carpenter madder than to stop work by mistake.

Florence Fair, who played the lead in "Clarence," with Alfred Lunt and Glenn Hunter, and who was the lead in the Chicago company of "The Bat" last season, makes her debut in motion pictures in Dorothy Dalton's new Paramount picture, adapted from C. M. S. McLellan's play, "Leah Kleschna." Miss Fair has been on the stage only four years. She made her first appearance with John Drew in "The Gay Lord Quex."

"Within the Law" "The Ne'er-Do-Well", on Photoplay Bills

Martin Johnson's "Trailing Wild African Animals," "Down to the Sea in Ships," "The Abysmal Brute" Also Showing.

Norma Talmadge is featured at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol Theaters this week in a picturization of the famous stage play, "Within the Law." In the cast are Joseph Kilgour, Eileen Percy, Jack Mulhall, Lew Cody, Ward Crane and Helen Ferguson.

The story is that of Mary Turner, department store employe, who is sentenced to serve three years in prison for a crime she did not commit. When she is freed she attempts to take her life, but is saved by a crook. In spite of efforts to make her crooked she "goes straight," but hits upon a plan to cheat people by remaining "within the law."

She and a girl friend prosper as they fleece love-sick old men, but Joe Garson, the crook, continues to be a robber. He kills a stool pigeon and some of the most exciting scenes of the picture revolve about the efforts of the police to find the murderer and Garson's ultimate confession. The role of Garson is played by Lew Cody.

The Dennis Sisters introduce three new songs in a stage appearance at the Grand Central only. The numbers are "In a Tent," "Mighty Lak' a Rose" and "Suzanna."

Doris May in "The Understudy" and a Harold Lloyd revival are to be offered at the West End Lyric the last half of the week, beginning Wednesday.

The Missouri's attraction for the week is "The Ne'er-Do-Well," starring Thomas Meighan. It is a Rex Beach story.

The entire company was sent to Panama for authentic "locations" and the interiors were made at the Famous Player Long Island studios. The cast includes Lila Lee, Gertrude Astor, John Miltern and Laurence Wheat.

The story has to do with a young man who, after being disowned by his father, winds up in Panama, among strangers, and without money. He overcomes all difficulties and wins a beautiful Spanish girl. The scenes made in Panama show the great canal from one end to the other.

On the program also is the Imperial Quartet, which is being held over for another week.

"Trailing African Wild Animals," motion pictures taken by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, is the week's feature at the Delmonte Theater. The Johnsons recently returned to the United States from British East Africa.

For two years they braved the dangers of deserts and forests. Many of the species caught by their cameras are nearly extinct.

More than 100,000 feet of film were exposed during the two years spent in British East Africa. Every known kind of wild animal, and many which are familiar only to scientists and naturalists, were photographed. Of this tremendous footage only six reels have been retained for show purposes.

Nairobi, in British East Africa, was the starting point of the expedition. Traveling in a northeasterly direction, the party crossed the equator in the slopes of Kenya Mountain and from there proceeded to the edge of the Lorian swamp region. Finding further invasion into the marshy territory inadvisable, the expedition turned directly west, crossing the Uasa River north of Kenya, and continuing north to Marsabit. From the latter city, the party traveled over plains through densely wooded sections, over swamps and deserts for a distance of several hundred miles of land rarely visited by human beings, finally reaching the goal of the trip, Lake Paradise. The return to Nairobi was made around Lake Rudolf, following southwesterly to the shores of Lake Victoria.

Elmer Clifton's super-special production, "Down to the Sea in Ships," is the feature attraction at the Liberty Theater. The picture is designed to perpetuate the romantic thrills and adventures of the whaling days of more than half a century ago. The adventures a whaler met on a single voyage would often supply enough material to fill a dozen volumes. The actual harpooning of a whale is shown in this picture. The chase, the spearing and the great moment when the giant mammal, enraged and maddened with pain, charges the small boat and smashes it to kindling are seen.

The week's principal attraction at the Rivoli is "The Abysmal Brute," with Reginald Denny in the leading role. This is said to be a quick-moving drama which gives Denny fine opportunities to display his prowess as a fighter. Dorothy Wolbert has the leading feminine part.

The film is based on Jack London's novel of the same name. It deals with the life of a clean-souled, big-hearted son of the open spaces who goes to the great city to match his strength against the craftiest masters of the prizering. He defeats all comers, but succumbs to the charms of a woman, and then his greatest fight begins.

Stabbed by Neuritis

Many people suffer attacks by this [illegible] fiend, commonly called "nerve inflammation." The first warning is usually a sharp stabbing pain, which may "come and go" or hurt constantly. You may feel it in the shoulder, neck, [illegible] small of the back, or down the thigh [illegible] leg to the heel. It is sometimes mistaken for sciatica, rheumatism or neuralgia which often end in neuritis.

No matter where you have nerve [illegible] or what caused them, you can get [illegible] relief without using narcotics [illegible] Apply Tysmol over the part that [illegible] and the pain will be gone.

Tysmol is absorbed through [illegible] the skin. It has a soothing [illegible] upon the diseased nerves [illegible] ing to restore them to healthy [illegible]

No More Gray Hair or Dandruff

No longer is it necessary to use dyes to restore the original color to the hair

THOUSANDS of men and women have restored the original color of their hair NATURALLY with a genuine tonic which feeds and nourishes the hair, restores its luster and life, promotes its growth, cleanses the scalp and banishes dandruff.

Because of universal dissatisfaction with hair dyes an American chemist sought to develop a genuine tonic which would restore the original color of the hair by reproducing Nature's process and WHICH SHOULD NOT BE a DYE. After thirty years of patient experimentation he successfully produced a tonic which restored the color to all hair, whether it be black, brown or blond, by feeding and nourishing it with the coloring elements the body had ceased to furnish. He aptly named this tonic NOURISHINE.

NOURISHINE is wonderfully beneficial—so much so that many who do not have gray hair use it regularly to keep the hair healthy and the scalp clean and free from dandruff. NOURISHINE CANNOT cause the hair to become brittle, deaden or split. On the contrary, it revitalizes the hair. It restores the original color evenly, naturally—no streaks. Does not stain scalp or hands. NOURISHINE is not applied like a dye, does not operate like a dye—BECAUSE it is NOT A DYE. It is pleasant to use and can be applied by anyone at home. One bottle is usually effective. The one liquid restores for all colors, whether black, brown or blond.

If NOURISHINE did nothing else but remove dandruff it would remain a remarkable testimonial to scientific accomplishment. We have many cases where one-half of a bottle, used, has banished dandruff. The average case requires one bottle. It stops itching, cleanses, invigorates. Act today, for your hair health and regeneration. For dandruff alone it is worth many times the price asked. Whether you have gray hair or not use it as a tonic and to banish dandruff.

No matter what you have tried—try NOURISHINE. Sincerely we tell you it is different. Price $1.25 per bottle, all drug and department stores, including Enderle Drug Co., Judge & Dolph, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co.

ALBERT STOESSEL

STOESSEL MUSIC HEAD AT N. Y. UNIVERSITY

Former St. Louisan, in Twenties, Is Made Director of New Department.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The foundation of a new department of music, under the direction of Albert Stoessel, a former St. Louisan, is announced by Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of New York University. Mr. Stoessel's new duties will not necessitate his relinquishing his present position as conductor of the New York Oratorio Society.

The new department, which will be ready to receive students when the University opens next fall, was established with the support of a number of men interested in musical affairs, and it was at their suggestion that Stoessel, though still in his twenties, was chosen as director. The department will divide its activities between the College of Arts and Pure Science at University Heights and the Washington Square center of the university.

"It will be the endeavor of the department of music," said Stoessel, "to offer the students courses that will give a comprehensive understanding of music as a most important element of liberal culture; to teach the theory of music and all that is included in the term 'composition;' and to provide an outlet for the energies of those musically inclined students who are gifted with good voices and also for those who possess the ability to perform upon orchestral instruments."

Born in St. Louis about 28 years ago, Stoessel is the son of A. J. Stoessel, formerly musical director at the Standard Theater. The boy attended the Ashland Public School, and had his first violin instruction under Frank Gecks, now director of the St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra, and with Hugo Olk, former concert master of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

At the age of 16 he went to Germany and continued his studies under Emmanuel Wirth and Willy Hess. Afterwards he became a member of the famous Willy Hess String Quartet and toured Europe. Soon after the war broke out he was appointed violin teacher to Prince Osman Fuad, then heir to the Turkish throne.

He returned to America in 1915 and appeared as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra in November of that year. He has since made further appearances with the orchestra and in recital in his native city. Upon the retirement of Mr. Olk as concert master, Stoessel was chosen to succeed him, but was prevented from serving by America's entrance into the war.

His military service was first as leader of the 301st Infantry Band, and then as director of the A. E. F. Bandmasters' School at Chaumont, France. Returning to civilian life, he divided his energies between composition and solo playing. When Walter Damrosch resigned in 1921 as conductor of the New York Oratorio Society, Stoessel was chosen as his successor.

BIT OF OLD SPAIN IN LONDON

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 5.—Antonio Martinez came to London 14 years ago from Seville, Spain, and went to work as a waiter. But he was a Spaniard with ambitions and ideals, and today he is the proprietor of the Spanish Club, an institution started in 1917 with $750 of his savings.

Now the club has 800 members, a third of them English, and it is housed in Cavendish Square. The club is a little bit of old Spain, and whenever King Alfonso comes to London he visits it. Alfonso Merry del Val, the Spanish Ambassador to England, recently opened an exhibit of the painting of Antonio Faure, at the Spanish Club.

26 Chinese Shot as Bandits.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

HOFRI, China, April 5.—After one of those swift and informal hearings characteristic of Chinese legal procedure in the lesser centers of the interior, 26 of 30 prisoners held to be bandits by the city magistrate were summarily shot here recently. The rule of procedure in dealing with the bandit menace is that the "killing one puts fear into the hearts of a hundred."

Other Fellows Were Athletes I Was a Weakling

Pale and Scrawny With Flabby Muscles—A Physical Failure —Today I Have Outdistanced Them All and Have Muscles Like Iron Because I Have Learned the Secret of the Difference Between Strong and Weak Men.

Try making this slight change in YOUR MEALS for two weeks and watch what astonishing results it so often gives.

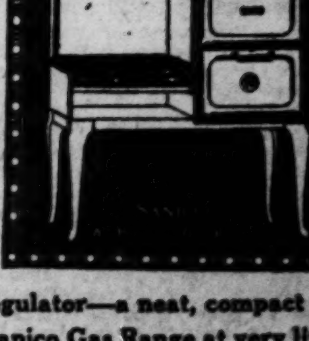
"For years I was such a weakling that the other boys always bullied me and laughed when I tried to make any of the athletic teams. Just a few weeks ago I read an article in the paper by Jack Kearns (Manager of Jack Dempsey, World's Heavyweight Champion), which told how a slight change in the daily diet often helps to build up rugged strength and power. He stated that science has now proved that your real strength, energy, and endurance, that mysterious force that enables you to dominate and control others and win in every walk of life, all depend upon the strength and nature of the millions of cells that compose your body and brain—that the physical strength of these cells depends absolutely on the food you eat, that is, the material with which they are built, just like a house that is built of boards and mud is not so strong as one built of stone and iron. The most important element in building strong, forceful cells is a peculiar form of iron found in the husks of grains and the peels and skins of certain fruits and vegetables, but modern methods of cooking throw these important things away so that today probably not one person in twenty has 100 per cent iron in his body. I at once tried mixing a little of this peculiar form of iron with my daily food to help build strong, iron-like cells. I am already astonished at the increase in my health, energy and endurance for I know I have learned a vital secret of great physical power and strength.

The above is a typical hypothetical case, and it would seem that every man, no matter what his age, who wants to increase his strength and bodily powers, would try adding a little of this newer form of iron to his daily meals. Thousands of others have secured surprising results in even two short weeks. It has been widely prescribed by physicians everywhere. This newer form of iron is comparatively inexpensive and may be obtained from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron, to be mixed with your food as directed on every package. Do not make a mistake and get one of the old forms of metallic iron instead of Nuxated Iron, which is a totally different thing.

SANICO

The RUST-PROOF PORCELAIN RANGE

Prices on Sanico Ranges are very low. They do not indicate the elegance and attractiveness of the stoves. Built into a beautiful porcelain exterior are mechanical features which make it a perfect cooking machine. The Sanico has successfully solved the oven lining problem—that is to have a rust-proof, sanitary, clean looking lining. This is done by making it all of porcelain enamel.



The Sanistat Oven Heat Regulator—a neat, compact device—may be had on any Sanico Gas Range at very little additional cost.

For APARTMENT HOUSE BUILDERS we have SANICO rustproof porcelain Gas Ranges especially designed for compact kitchens. They will last a lifetime and are priced extremely low. These high-class Ranges appeal to desirable tenants.

KAISER PORTRAYED ON STAGE

Dismissal of Bismarck Is Theme of Berlin Play.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, May 5.—Bismarck's dismissal by the exiled Wilhelm is now enacted nightly in Berlin before audiences which include many diplomats. Lord D'Abernon, the British Ambassador, and Ellis Loring Dresel, the American commissioner to Germany before the resumption of diplomatic relations, were among the prominent foreigners who attended the early performances of the play which Emil Ludwig has written around the clash between the young Kaiser and the old Chancellor.

The play is really only a political episode and is without a sustained plot. It is highly interesting and exciting, as Robert Muller, who plays Bismarck, and Dietrich von Oppen, as Kaiser Wilhelm, bear striking resemblances to the two historical characters and are excellent actors. The production concludes with a brief monologue by the broken and angered ex-Chancellor in which he declares that the young Kaiser will be overthrown by war. This assertion always calls forth loud applause. Ludwig's play is called "Die Entlassung," or "The Dismissal."

Operetta in Three Acts Given by Marionettes

LONDON, May 5.

THE application of the ancient art of marionettes to the conditions of the modern stage, as exemplified by the Teatro dei Piccoli of Rome, at the New Scala Theater, has proved full of possibilities in new laughter, new magic and perhaps new tragedy. The chosen test, at the recent opening performance, was an operetta in three acts written about the story of "The Sleeping Beauty," and sung in English by vocalists unseen. The text is by Gian Bistolfi and the score by Ottorino Respighi.

At first, however, there was little hint of high endeavor, says the Times. We leaned back and smiled at the skill with which the puppets were manipulated and laughed aloud at their amazing acrobatics. Signorina Legnetta, with her shaking curls and trembling forearm as she took a top note, was a splendid caricature of a concert singer. A negro puppet, doing fantastic things on a slack wire, swung and leapt and tumbled with a zest so superhuman that the giants in the audience—and we were all giants that night—roared their immoderate and gigantic approval.

But that, as the program was careful to explain, was just "Charivaria displaying the versatility of marionette technique." The ambition, the artist's venture, was to come in the opera. Here were avoided many of the disadvantages which sometimes tempt opera-goers to sit far back in their boxes and close their eyes.

Command of the Inanimate.

IF, when the Princess pricked her finger, the Old Woman seemed to fret a little tediously, there were on the other side of the stage a Cat and a Spindle dancing for our diversion as no men had ever danced. If, when Prince April came to break the spell, it was necessary that he do battle with a spider, the marionettes had no difficulty in that, for to them a spider is no harder than a Prince.

They have, indeed, within their range all things animate and inanimate. Their fairies fly without agony of suspension, their roses dance, their horses roam across the stage with the same easy undulation as the King and Queen. They weep with an odd little gesture of the hands and an exaggerated heaving of the shoulders that would win the wickedest fairy to pity. They can, in sport, do everything but walk as we walk, and are none the worse for that.

There were moments when the humor faltered, the fantastic beauty came to earth, and we found ourselves watching no more than a stiffened version of the ordinary stage. But such moments were rare enough to make clear that they were the chance accompaniment of the Teatro dei Piccoli's experimental courage.

More Amusing Than Dramatic.

IN a new melodrama at the Lyceum, "A Night of Temptation," by Percy Gordon Holmes, Queen Catherine, the chief character, may have been a spiteful woman, but she had great provocation. Sir Benjamin Graysdale, of the British embassy, interrupted the royal entertainments so that he and his grotesque nephew might provide the most distressing comic relief that can ever have bored a monarch; and Princess Viola was as solemn about her fair-haired virtue as Paul Azario about his martial heroism.

A less tolerant Queen would have decreed a massacre. But Queen Catherine held the center of the stage and said quite simply that the chivalrous Azario must take as his mistress the paragon Princess. As Azario remained persistently glum and the Princess began further speeches about her lineage and honor, the Queen—wise and fortunate woman—went to bed.

We, on the other hand, were taken to the Hunting Box at Kasan, where Azario was conquering the Turks and behaving honorably towards his captive Princess. But one night he yielded to temptation. The Princess flung herself against locked doors and was tossed upon leopard-skin couches almost as if it were a villain and not a tempted hero who was thus violently expressing his affection for her. Fortunately a clap of thunder, a flash of lightning and a downpour of rain reminded Azario of the watchfulness of the gods, and set the gallery cheering the spectacle of chivalry restored.

With that, we went back to court and found that the competent Queen knew as well how to end a melodrama as to begin one, for it was she who decreed that these resisters of temptation should be united by no simple priest, but a mitred Bishop.

Japan Regaining Foreign Trade.

TOKIO, April 1.—Slowly but surely the enormous adverse foreign trade balance which Japan suffered following the collapse of the huge wartime boom is being cut down and indications are that further economic and commercial readjustment will bring the country back to normalcy in foreign trade. Complete figures for February, just issued by the Department of Commerce, show an adverse foreign trade balance of 31,781,000 yen. The adverse balance for February, 1922, was 95,488,000 yen—meaning a reduction of more than 65 per cent within a year. Exports during the past month totaled 122,482,000 yen, an increase of 21,091,000 yen over the same month last year. Imports were valued at 154,263,000 yen, a decrease of 42,616,000 from February, 1922.

Permanent Wave Effect Now Quick, Cheap and Easy

New Liquid Discovery Makes Straight Hair Wavy, Soft and Wonderfully Curly

YOU have always longed for soft, fluffy, curly hair. And now—at last—you can have it! For science has perfected a wonderful new liquid, which when applied to the most stubborn hair, gives it a beautiful permanent wave effect, making it wonderfully curly, delightfully soft, gloriously wavy.

It is called Domino Curlette. Nothing just like it has ever been known before. No occasion to do away with your tried and tested method of kids or silk curlers. But Domino Curlette is something more, something different, something entirely unique. Use the same old kids or silk curlers if you wish, but before doing so moisten your hair with just a few drops of Domino Curlette—and, behold! A miracle of beauty will have been performed. Not only you, but your friends will be astonished at the sudden, beautiful transformation in your hair.

Watch the Amazing Transformation!

No matter how straight or dull your hair may be you will be simply astonished at how Domino Curlette makes it soft, wavy and charming. No more torturous electric treatments. For just one application of Domino Curlette will make your hair delightfully fluffy and curly—and keep it so for a week or more.

WAS $1.45 NOW $1.00

A Marvelous Beauty Discovery

A so-called "permanent wave" costs about $25 and sometimes lasts four months, often less. But now you can have what we consider a far more beautiful wave—full of life and fluff—and you can have it now for $1.00.

Just think what this means! No more costly fees to hairdressers. No more sitting for hours undergoing the tortures of permanent wave methods. For in your own home, you can now quickly acquire charming wavy hair that your friends will always envy.

Natural—Not Artificial—Waves

No matter how straight, dull or unmanageable your hair may have been, just one application of this wonderful discovery will make it fall in soft, glistening waves and natural silky curls. It gives the most lifeless hair a new entrancing luster. Only one application will keep your hair wavy and in curl for a week or more!

"Permanent wave" methods often kill the natural luster and life of the hair, and produce waves too artificial looking to be beautiful.

But Domino Curlette contains the very elements needed to make your hair naturally wavy and curly. That is why it always adds a new charm to one's appearance.

Money-Back Guarantee

Domino Curlette is sold at good drug stores and department stores everywhere—at the amazingly low price of only $1.00 for a bottle lasting many weeks.

So that everyone may try this new discovery, we are making this special introductory offer. Get Domino Curlette today. Try it. Then if not more than delighted with the beautiful wavy hair it gives you, your money will be instantly refunded. The money-back guarantee is backed by a special deposit of $10,000 in the Producers and Consumers Bank of Philadelphia, so you do not risk a penny.

New Beauty Awaits You

Don't let your beauty be spoiled by straight, dull hair. Domino Curlette will beautify it immeasurably. No more straight, wispy strands—no more straggly ends. For with Domino Curlette your hair will always be neat, dainty and charming. Try it once—and you will be amazed and delighted with results. Get it from your druggist or department store today.

New Way to Remove Hairs Creates Sensation

(Actually Takes Out the Roots)

What beauty specialists regard as one of the most important discoveries in recent years is the phelactine method of removing superfluous hair. Its great advantage, of course, lies in the fact that it actually removes the hair roots. It does this easily, instantly, harmlessly. Sufferers need no longer despair. The actual hair-roots come out before your very eyes, leaving the skin smooth and hairless as a babe's. Because it offers such complete relief, a stick of phelactine is the most inexpensive thing one can buy for the removal of hairy growths. Druggists are having a big demand for it.

Unusually Lovely Rugs

and priced amazingly low★

What is one to do? It's not the easiest thing to find attractive rugs, even with unlimited money to spend. But when you discover that your hoarded rug money must purchase several rugs instead of one—when $30 or $25 must buy a 9 x 12 rug and smaller ones besides—then you have a real problem!

Naturally, you can't content yourself with inartistic floor coverings, just because they cost little. Any rug that you select must be a pleasant thing to live with.

Where will you find such a rug at the price you can afford to pay?

WASHABLE

Go to any of the stores. Ask to see Kimlark Rugs. They are beautiful rugs—soft and smooth and pliant underfoot—lovely of coloring—charming in design!

They come in delightful patterns, suitable for every room in the house—living and dining room, bedroom, hall and sun room. You can even afford them for the porch.

REVERSIBLE

They wear like iron; are waterproof and washable; specially treated so that the colors wear indefinitely; closely woven in three-ply thickness. And they give double the wear of ordinary rugs because they can be used on both sides.

Dealers can show you Kimlark Rugs in many designs and in solid colors. They will tell you that they are the finest low-priced floor coverings they have ever known.

ESKIMOS IN ARCTIC CANADA BREAK OUT IN MURDER SERIES

General Traders, One Member of Royal Mounted Police and Numerous Natives Are Among Slain.

3 WHITE MEN AMONG THIRTEEN KNOWN DEAD

Corporal Doak Was Killed by His Prisoner While Asleep —Woman Saved From Attack by Maniac.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

REGINA, Saskatchewan—In an annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, a statement was given of an epidemic of murderous violence which has broken out among the usually kindly and docile Eskimos in the Arctic Circle.

"It is unfortunately necessary to report a large number of crimes of violence among the Eskimos," says the report. At present we have under arrest on charges of murder or related crimes no fewer than nine of these people, three at Pond's Inlet (on the northern coast of Baffin Island), five at Herschel Island and one at Tree River. The number of deaths is 13, and of the dead three are white men. In addition, several other murder cases are under investigation, but arrests have as yet not been made.

"In the summer of 1923 two courts will proceed to the Arctic regions to try these cases, one to Pond Inlet and the other to Herschel Island.

"This epidemic of murderous violence is surprising as the Eskimos in general are a kindly and docile people. In all probability in the past many quarrels among them had fatal endings, and in any case they are now armed with exceedingly deadly weapons. A grave feature of the situation is the number of white men who have fallen victims to the violence of these people. In 1912 two men named Radford and Street were killed at Bathurst Inlet, in the course of a quarrel. In 1913 the Rev. Father Rouvier and Le Roux were murdered on Coppermine River, apparently for robbery.

"In 1920 Robert L. Janes, a Newfoundland trader, was shot at Cape Crawford on Baffin Island as a climax of a series of disputes. In April, 1922, Corporal W. A. Doak of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Otto Binder of the Hudson Bay company were killed at Tree River in a treacherous and brutal manner—Doak because the slayer, an Eskimo prisoner, did not wish to be taken out of his familiar surroundings and Binder with no provocation at all. Apart from the deaths of white men, the deaths of 10 Eskimos amount to a serious proportion in so scanty a population."

Doak Expected Trouble.

Corporal Doak was expecting trouble with the natives four months before he was murdered. He said in a report that he feared trouble unless the natives were made to understand what the police were doing in the country.

"We should have a first class interpreter here," he wrote. "This would greatly facilitate our work with these natives. They require everything to be explained to them in detail, otherwise they imagine they are being bluffed, and sooner or later there will be a mix up in making an arrest."

A murderous affray among the natives on Kent Peninsula resulted in the death of five Eskimos. Pugnana, one of the killers, was in turn murdered by Alikomiak and Tatamigana. Doak went out from Tree River to investigate these murders in December, 1921. He arrested Alikomiak, the sole survivor, taking him to Tree River. Alikomiak had frozen feet and Doak, besides attending to the Eskimo's feet, allowed him a certain amount of liberty. He repaid the treatment shown to him by waiting until Doak was the only white man at Tree River post and then shooting him while he was asleep. The Eskimo then waylaid Otto Binder, who was in charge of the Hudson Bay Co. post near by, and killed him.

Here is the way in which Doak summed up his investigations:

"We traveled east to Cape Barrow and then following a zigzag route through islands into Bathurst Inlet, our general direction being southeast.

"We visited three large snok villages, besides meeting several bands of natives coming from inland.

"The natives are very short of seal oil, and as they are depending on this for both food and fuel, they were putting in a most miserable time. At one village the natives were down to eating deerskins (we made our stay short at this place).

Needlework Done on Ice.

"This, of course, is entirely their own fault, for they should have been out sealing, but, according to their custom, the women must do no needlework out on the ice and the winter clothes must be made on land. They prefer putting up with two or three weeks' hardship rather than break any of their rules.

"Leaving the inlet, we traveled northeast, and on Dec. 13 we came to another village at the head of Kent Peninsula. I stay there that day, investigating the shooting affair and taking statements from those who witnessed it. We left the village the following morning, and as a result of my investigation, arrested Tatamiganx, who is the only suvivor of the actual combatants. His partner, Pugnana, had been killed by Alikomiak.

"We stayed that night at the Hudson Bay Co.'s post at Kent Peninsula, and the next day I went inland after Alikomiak, using Tatamigana as guide. We reached the native village about 9 p. m. on the second night and I arrested Alikomiak.

"The natives at the village were not particularly friendly, for, according to their customs, the boy had just done the right thing in killing Pugnana, and it was hard for them to see why I should take him away.

"This is the same band of natives that a few years ago was implicated in the murder of Radford and Street."

Staff Sergeant Jay of the Canadian Mounted Police undertook the investigation of the murdering of a Newfoundland trader named Robert S. Jones. He had to act in various stages of the case as policeman, Coroner and Magistrate, which led to the arrest of three Eskimos in the Northern wilds of Canada.

Jones had spent many years in the North and served as second officer on the 1910-11 Arctic expedition. His commercial operations as a trader at Patricia River, Eclipse Sound, were unsuccessful. His financial backing in Newfoundland fell through and for several summers in succession he waited in vain for a ship. He was in miserable circumstances during the last 18 months of his life, and decided to make a long and arduous journey along the west coast of Baffin Bay. With Oo-took-ito as a driver, he sat out early in 1920 and arrived March 14, at a large native encampment at Cape Crawford. Noo-kud-lah lived in this camp, and Jones had been at variance with him. Some time after his arrival Jones was shot and killed. Noo-kud-lah being the alleged murderer.

Sergeant Jay's beat, in connection with this case, covered the northern parts of Baffin Island, some 300 miles long and 200 miles wide. The only other white men anywhere near him were those at two trading stations at Pond's Inlet. He was up against the usual difficulties of travel, and to make matters worse there was a scarcity of dogs owing to an epidemic.

Nineteen days after setting out from Pond's Inlet he found the body of the murdered man at a large native encampment at Cape Crawford on the extreme northwest corner of Baffin Island. It had been buried in the snow by four Eskimos. Sergeant Jay speaks of this as "an admirable Christian-like act" as the Eskimos expose their dead to the elements and wolves, but these men, knowing the practice among white men is different, went to considerable trouble to bury the murdered man.

Conducting the autopsy, Jay found two bullet wounds and incontestable evidence that Jones had come to his end by violence. He re-

A verdict of murder against Noo-kud-lah was returned and Oo-roo-ung-nah and At-tee-tah were implicated as aiding and abetting in the murder.

The accused, Noo-kud-lak, was not present during the inquest, having moved to Igloo-lik, on Fury and Hecla Strait, nearly 500 miles from Pond's Inlet. Sergt. Jay, who has a commission as a Justice of Peace in the northwest territories, as well as another as Coroner, issued warrants for the three Eskimos named in the verdict. He spent the rest of the winter and spring collecting his prisoners and the necessary witnesses, who were scattered all over the northern part of Baffin Land.

The three accused were arrested at intervals of about a month. One of the difficulties encountered by Jay was with the interpreters. He had to postpone the formal arrest of Noo-kud-lak for a week until he could obtain services of an interpreter who could understand the warning given at the time of arrest.

An investigation is now being conducted by Sergt. Jay into another series of murders among Eskimos.

According to a preliminary report Sergt. Jay was informed by Capt. Munn of the Arctic Gold Exploration Syndicate that an Eskimo in charge of a trading outpost at Kiveltung, Hom Bay, was said to have become insane during the winter of 1921, and to have claimed he was Christ. Acting under the orders of the insane man, another Eskimo is said to have shot and killed two Eskimos who refused to accept the insane man's views or do his bidding.

Some time later, when the insane Eskimo was threatening to kill a native woman who was on her knees pleading for mercy, a native named Kidlappick shot and killed the insane man just as he was about to kill the kneeling woman with a hammer.

The Eskimos said to responsible for the deaths are living in the vicinity of the Hudson Bay Co.'s post at Cumberland Gulf, about 200 miles south of Kwee-tung.

WOMAN, 102, SAID TO BE GRANDCHILD OF ETHAN ALLEN

Mrs. James Rowley, Resident of Cedar Rapids, Ia., Spry as Most Women of Sixty.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., May 5.—A woman who is said to be the only living grandchild of Col. Ethan Allan, New Hampshire patriot who defied the British at Fort Ticonderoga and received its surrender in May, 1775, will be 102 years old on May 23.

Mrs. James Rowley was born at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., 19 days after Napoleon Bonaparte died on the Island of St. Helena, and while James Monroe was President of the United States.

She has been a resident of this community since 1865 and has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church 86 years, having been a regular church attendant until she was more than 100 years old. She still retains her pew and pays her church dues and takes an active interest in church life, though she no longer goes to church.

Mrs. Rowley has not been sick for more than a half century. She is as spry as a woman of 60, takes care of her own room, dresses and undresses herself and up to two years ago ran her spinning wheel as she had done since she was 17 years old. Her hearing is excellent and she wears glasses only when she reads. She sits at her front window and distinguishes her acquaintances across the street.

Mrs. Rowley is the last of 10 children. Her mother, who was Jane Barton, was a daughter of Col Ethan Allan by his second wife. She is also a cousin of Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross. Mrs. Rowley was the mother of four daughters, one of whom, Mrs. Marvin Wilsey, is living at the age of 75.

Mrs. Rowley recalls when the first steamship crossed the Atlantic. She remembers the first telephone and the first sewing machine. She saw the first train pass through Poughkeepsie. She saw the first electric street car on the streets of New York City.

BERLIN, May 5.—Ambassador Haughton made a motor trip to Baden-Baden with his family just before his recent departure for America. On their return to Berlin the Houghtons stopped at a small wayside inn in Odenwald for luncheon. Houghton was surprised at being addressed by a tall pedestrian in Alpine costume who strode into the dining room with a group of companions in knickers and feathered caps. When the tall man came closer the Ambassador saw he was "Ebert, the Saddlemaker," President of the German republic, whose favorite recreation is hiking.

BRITONS AGAIN TO ATTEMPT A FLIGHT AROUND WORLD

Capts. Malins and Macmillan Plan to Resume Thip When Last Trip Ended in Failure.

Correspondence of the Post-Disptch.

LONDON, April 24.—Another around the world flight is soon to be attempted. Plans are now complete and the whole scheme has been approved by Major-General Sir William Sefton Brancker, Director of Civil Aviation.

The flight will be made by Capt. Geoffrey H. Malins and Capt. Norman Macmillan of the British Royal Air Force. The attempt is to be made with one machine, the exact build of which is not yet disclosed. The machine is being made in three separate parts by different manufacturers. The two Captains already have covered 10,000 miles of the route they propose to follow. Their first world attempt last year ended in the Bay of Bengal and they intend to take up the attempt from there and continue by way of Japan, the Kurile Islands, Kamchatka, following the line of the Aleutian Islands to Southern Alaska and Vancouver.

From Vancauver the route lies across Canada and the United States to New York, thence north to Halifax, Newfoundland and Greenland and back to London by way of Iceland, the Shetlands, the Orkneys and Scotland.

To make sure of the North Pacific crossing, the most difficult stage of the flight, a steam yacht will go out to Alaska with a special crew of adventurers in charge of Capt. Roger Pocock of the Legion of Frontiersmen, under whose auspices the expedition is taking place.

The entire flight will take from four to six months and the yacht is being provisioned for a 15 months' cruise.

MMR's Red Seal HAIR NET

FREE—Two M.M.R. Red Seal Hair Nets with two you buy

This week at Drug and Department Stores

NOW!
a longer wearing hair net

—without sacrifice of daintiness or invisibility

For many years, MMR, creator of women's fashion accessories, has made a special study of the hair net.

To Milady it is perhaps but a little detail of the toilette, but not so to MMR. To him it is a matter to be taken seriously—a challenge to his craftsmanship.

He refuses to accept the idea that the hair net must of necessity be a thing of cheapness, a perishable trifle, hastily made.

Delicate it should be, but certainly not flimsy. And by all means, perfectly invisible, yet sturdy and substantial.

The result is MMR's Red Seal Hair Net—a longer wearing hair net that is at once as dainty as it is durable.

And how does MMR achieve this finer, stronger net? His method is simply one of superlative workmanship.

In every detail he demands the most exact care and precision.

Only the longest hairs are used. These must pass a rigid test of fine texture and natural sheen of color—to match perfectly your own hair.

The mesh—and here is where MMR's care especially counts—must be spaced so many measures this way, so many that. Every knot is firmly tied at regular intervals—carefully, firmly tied. Thus there are no pulled strands to weaken, no puffy places to stick up.

The size must be amply large for any coiffure, the shape faultlessly designed. MMR insists on this, because it means so much to the life of the net.

Because it gives you longer wear, MMR's Hair Net means a saving of no small total sum.

Because of its perfect design and handiwork, it assures a finishing touch to the coiffure not possible with a net of less perfection.

Everwear Hosiery Insurance

ASKING for Everwear is a form of "hosiery insurance"—for every pair of Everwear, before it goes to the stores, is minutely examined in every detail by skilled women inspectors. And these women work for you—not us. They reject hose for defects so tiny that you wouldn't notice them. But the hose they pass, for you to buy, is acclaimed "Perfect"—and it is!

Better-class shops display Everwear Hosiery—in modish colors and styles for all the family. Buy in confidence that you will get your full money's worth—for the plain truth is embodied in the trademark.

'THE RIVALS" WILL BE PLAYED BY STAR CAST

Judy, and the Ethiopian Art Theater, a negro troupe, will make its New York debut in Oscar Wilde's "Salome."

"Sweet Nell of Old Drury."

THE leading event for the following week will be the presentation of "Sweet Nell of Old Drury" at the Equity Forth-eighth Street Theater, with Laurette Taylor, Lynn Fontaine, Alfred Lunt and some 20 others. J. Hartley Manners is staging the piece, which is scheduled to run four weeks, but will be extended if it catches on.

The Equity Players are to produce the "Antigone" of Sophocles at special matinees, on May 25 and 26, with Edith Wynne Matthison, Charles Rann Kennedy and Margaret Gage, and with a chorus of 30 girl students from Miss Bennett's school, who have been trying for a year.

"The Laughing Lady," in which Ethel Barrymore was starred, closed tonight at the Longacre. She will betake herself to a summer engagement in vaudeville, presenting one of Barrie's short pieces—probably "The Twelve Pound Look." * * * Richard Bennett's next play is to be "Debris," by Wilson Collison. * * * The success of "Anna Christie" in London assures the production of another O'Neill play there next season, either "The Hairy Ape" or "The Emperor Jones."

The End of the Hippodrome.

THE Hippodrome went out, it is said forever, a week ago, but there will be a special performance Wednesday night for the United States Chamber of Commerce, and on the following evening President Harding will speak from the stage. A monster benefit for the National Vaudeville Association, on May 13, will form the final entertainment in the famous auditorium which, during its 18 years of existence, has housed 40,000,000 patrons.

Raymond Hitchcock and Thomas A. Wise have been added to the cast for the revival of "The School for Scandal," next month. The former will play Sir Benjamin Backbite. * * * With Thursday's matinee, the Theater Guild's "Peer Gynt" reached its one hundredth performance, thus breaking the world's record for consecutive presentations of Ibsen's fantasy.

The Theater Guild's new art theater is assured. At the close of its campaign last Sunday night, it was announced that 1500 persons had subscribed $530,000 for bonds. The cost of the playhouse is estimated at $850,000, and the subscription books will be kept open in the hope that it will not be necessary to place a mortgage on the property. There were 1024 purchasers of $100 bonds, 312 purchasers of bonds in denominations between $100 and $1000, 181 purchasers of $1000 bonds, and a considerable number who took bonds in excess of $1000. Among those listed as having subscribed between $5000 and $20,000 are Otto H. Kahn, Sir Edgar Speyer and Jascha Heifetz.

Balieff's "Chauve Souris" concluded tonight its run of 551 performances at the Century Theater. After an engagement this summer in Paris, the troupe will return for a transcontinental tour. . . . Henry W. Savage has discovered that the provinces want not only New York casts in their musical shows, but New York chorus girls. So he announces that next season he will pay a bonus of $300 a girl to those who consent to tour in his companies.

Runs of 1000 Performances.

IT happens that four members of the "If Winter Comes" company at the Gaiety have appeared in 1000 or more consecutive performances in various plays. Cyril Maude acted more than 1400 times in "Grumpy." Echlin Gayer played more than 2000 performances with William Hodge in "The Man From Home." Herbert Ranson played 1200 performances in England with a touring company in "When Knights Were Bold." F. Gatenby Bell reached the 1000 mark in "Are You a Mason?" They all agree that while every actor dotes on long runs, these are unfavorable to his art.

Mrs. Fiske, too, wants to establish a repertory company, and would like to act "Becky Sharp," "Hedda Gabbler," "Pillars of Society," "The Rivals" and a few other masterpieces. . . . "Sally" closes in Chicago next Saturday night. . . . Plans for another repertory theater in Times Square, with a $1.50 top, have advanced to a stage where Otto Kruger and Galina Kopernack are announced to open the enterprise in one of Ibsen's plays.

In one scene, a Maypole minuet, to be given during the Equity dance carnival at Hotel Astor next Saturday night, will appear Eva Le Gallienne, Helen Menken, Violet Heming, Genevieve Tobin, Margolo Gillmore, Constance Binney, Madge Kennedy, Mary Hay, Richard Barthelmess, Donald Brian and others.

Having disposed of Shakspeare in "As You Like It," Marjorie Rambeau will appear next season in "The Road Together," by George Middleton. . . . Harry Fender, former St. Louisan, has been engaged to play opposite Vivienne Segal in "Adrienne."

Princess to Wed Teacher.

BERLIN, May 5.—Maria Rosa Adelheide, Princess of Schoenlohe-Bartenstein, has caused a stir in monarchist circles by announcing her engagement to a young school teacher, Joseph Waldenmayer. She will make her home in a school house at Vollmaringen. The Princess is 19 years of age, while her fiance is 10 years older. She is a niece of former Queen Luise of Saxony, who deserted King Frederick August III and eloped with the tutor of her children. Her mother was born an Imperial Princess of Austria.

DR. W. O. COFFEE

Relieving Deafness, Head Noises, Catarrh With New Treatment Wednesday and Thursday.

Dr. W. O. Coffee, the noted specialist, says that catarrh is a constitutional condition, must be treated through the system as well as the nose, head and throat. He says 90% of the cases of deafness, head noises and ulcers of the ears are caused from catarrh. If the hearing is getting better and worse with each cold, or noises gradually getting worse, or one ear is getting real bad and the other just getting started with crackling or other noises, most cases can be helped or completely relieved by his new nonsurgical treatment. He treats diseased tonsils, diseased turbinated bones. He treats 50 patients a day here and is making many wonderful cures. If you suffer with deafness, head noises or catarrh of the nose, head, throat or system, he wants to examine and explain his new method of treatment to you free of charge. If you cannot come to St. Louis write him for his book on catarrh, deafness, head noises, eye diseases, cross-eyes. He will send it free. He says catarrh often causes stomach trouble, rheumatism, etc. He is in his St. Louis offices, room 409 Odd Fellows' Bldg., 816 Olive st., every Wednesday and Thursday. Hours, 8:30 to 4:00. Stomach Pressed On His Heart

Gas on Stomach Pressed on Heart and Lungs

"I suffered from indigestion pressing on heart and lungs. Was told I had heart trouble. Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) did more for me than anything I ever tried. (Signed) E. Morris.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gasses, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by WOLFF-WILSON DRUG CO., 7th and Washington, ENDERLE DRUG CO., and other leading druggists.

The POST-DISPATCH is the only St. Louis evening newspaper giving Associated Press news service.

RADIO—For the Amateur and Expert

DIFFERENT TYPES OF RADIO TRANSMITTERS

Explanation of the Various Kinds and How They Operate.

A radio transmitter is primarily an alternator. Instead of generating the usual commercial frequencies, however, radio transmitters generate frequencies in the order of from 20,000 to 1,000,000 or 2,000,000 cycles. Obviously the usual form of alternator cannot be employed for this purpose, and the system used is usually one which is not dependent on moving mechanical parts.

The function of a radio transmitting equipment is to generate alternating current at these frequencies and transfer its output to the antenna system.

The antenna system, consisting of aerial wires, inductance units and ground or counterpoise, forms an alternating-current circuit series, which represents the load on the transmitter. Frequencies of this magnitude (socalled radio frequencies) are essential in order that efficient radiation of energy be obtained from the antenna. Of the total power in the antenna, the percentage that is radiated decreases very rapidly as the frequency is lowered, or (which is the same thing) as the wavelength is increased.

Radio transmitters in order to be applicable for commercial use must usually be capable of generating any one of a number of frequencies and in many cases must be so designed that the frequency of its output can be changed by throwing a single switch.

This requirement is brought about by the fact that, in commercial traffic, it is customary to use one wavelength for calling purposes and then to transfer to a second wavelength for communication, keeping the calling wave free for calling purposes.

When the transmitter is used for telephony, a modulation system is incorporated in the radio transmitter proper. For telephony this modulation or control system consists of a group of radiotrons termed modulators. The function of the modulators is to vary the amplitude of the radio-frequency alternating current in the antenna circuit in such a manner that the variations of the maximum amplitudes of the radio frequency alternations reproduces the wave form of the voice.

Modern radio transmitters are rated in terms of their output in watts or kilowatts, which is in keeping with the rating of other electrical machinery. For example, when we speak of a "one kilowatt radio transmitter,' we mean a transmitter which puts one kilowatt of power into the antenna system.

Radio transmitters are built with outputs from as low as one watt or less to as high as several hundred kilowats. The largest single radio transmitter was built by the United States Navy Department at Bordeau, France, and has a capacity of 1200 kilowatts.

This station, known as the Lafayette Station, call letters "LY" sends on a wavelength of approximately 23,400 meters and can be readily heard in the United States.

The proportion of the input into the antenna system which is actually radiated into space depends upon a number of things, chief among which are the wavelengths at which transmission is carried and the resistance of the antenna system, and also the ground or counterpoise.

For the Notebook.

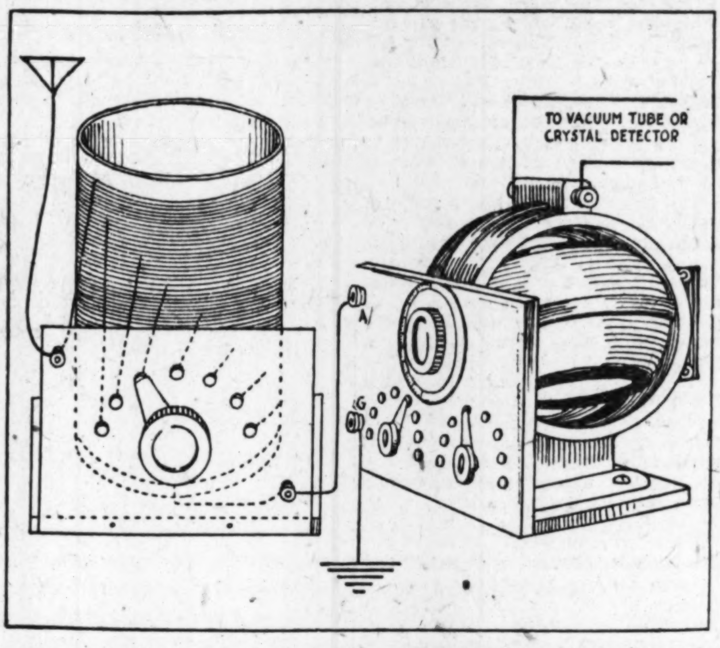
Use a nonacid flux when soldering connections.

Radio has been a part of boy scouting since 1909.

Phonograph records are made which teach the wireless code.

A vernier rheostat should be used with a detector tube, but a hard tube does not require fine current adjustment.

Is Your Receiving Set All Right For the New Broadcast Wave Lengths?



This shows how a loading coil is connected in series with the tuning instruments and antenna for increasing the wave length. A single slide tuner may be substituted for the tapped loading inductance.

Suggested Changes Which May Be Necessary for Radio Reception After May 15th

When the new allocations become effective, May 15, many radio enthusiast will have to make changes in their apparatus in order to hear the programs broadcast from all stations. There are some, however, who are already fortunate in having aerials and sets which will cover the entire range of 222 to 546 meters without any change whatever. It is for those whose sets will respond only to a limited range that the following suggestions are made:

Although the electrical condition of the atmosphere during the summer months is not conducive to long-distance reception, it might be well to make any needed changes and improvements in the aerial during the summer, as an efficient antenna, well grounded, provides the best possible protection from lightning.

The new broadcasting wave lengths will range from 222 meters for class "A" stations to 546 meters for class "B" stations, and to enable the average set to respond to signals transmitted on the lowest as well as the highest, it is recommended that the antenna be changed so that its natural period will be about 200 meters. For the longer wave 200 meters, then, for the longer wave lengths a loading coil can be very satisfactorily employed.

The ideal antenna having a natural period of 200 meters would be a single wire composed of seven strands of No. 22 copper, 90 feet long and having a lead-in 35 feet in length. The lead-in is a very important factor. In fact, it is quite as important as the flat-top portion of the antenna, and therefore must be counted in the over-all length of any aerial.

Obviously, an aerial having a natural period of 200 meters will require some method of "loading" in order to enable it to respond to, signals transmitted on longer wave lengths. This may be accomplished in two different ways, either by adding a variable condenser in parallel "across" the aerial and ground terminals of the receiving set, or connect a loading coil inductance in series with the aerial.

Each method has its own desirable features. The condenser connected in parallel and set at maximum capacity will increase the wavelength and set of the aerial only 100 per cent, but wheas a tapped loading coil will make it possible to increase the wave lengths to several times the natural period of the apparatus and aerial, but it does not allow for fine variation. This, however, to some degree, can be compensated for by varying the inductance on the primary of the tuning apparatus.

A suitable loading coil for "loading" a 200-meter antenna is shown above. It consists of 70 turns of No. 28 double cotton covered wire on a tube four inches in diameter, tapped every 10 turns. This may be used with even a smaller antenna for responding to signals up to 600 meters. A single slide tuning coil will serve equally well. The aerial may be connected to the coil and the slider binding post attached to the vario-coupler or tuning instruments of the set.

Those enthusiasts who thus far have had satisfactory results with an indoor aerial will probably find it impossible to "tune" their sets to long wave lengths without either a 43-plae, variable condenser, or a loading coil of the type described above.

RADIO IN NEW YORK TAXIS

Drivers Enjoy Concerts While Waiting for Business.

Several New York taxis are equipped with radio, not for the entertainment of passengers, but for the driver of the cab. While waiting for a theater to close last week one taxi driver dropped a wire out of the car and attached it to a hydrant. Other drivers enjoyed the music picked out of the air. The hydrant furnished the necessary ground connection. Lampposts are second choice as ground contacts. If someone calls for a taxi the ground wire is quickly reeled into the car and the concert ends.—New York Times.

ANOTHER BROADCASTING STATION IN WASHINGTON

May 15 Will Mark Opening of New Public Service Station at Capitol.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. announced today that by May 15 Washington will have another broadcasting station. It will probably be a Class B station with an individual wave length which will reach to all corners of the nation. This company, which is a member of the American Telegraph and Telephone Co., has started the erection of the second of the Bell System broadcasting stations, and plans to duplicate in power and quality the New York station, "W E A F."

A unique feature is that the new plant will be a public service station; that is, it will be operated without profit and may be leased or chartered by other interests for periodic broadcasting at a rate equivalent to the proportional cost of operation.

It is understood that a local broadcasters' association may be organized and the operating time of the station scheduled to care for its members. This, it is believed, will save small operators considerable money in comparison to the costs of installation and upkeep of private broadcasting stations. Certain hours of any schedule would be reserved by the telephone company for the transmission of matter of public interest, such as presidential addresses, congressional debates and governmental information. Important concerts broadcast from W E A Z in New York may be sent by land line to Washington, and broadcast simultaneously from the new station, officials say.

The electrical equipment is the product of the Western Electric Co. and will be installed under the direction of C. & P. and A. T. & T. Co. engineers. The station will be located on the telephone building, 725 Thirteenth street, the towers being erected on the roof.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

ANOTHER SERIES OF WAVELENGTH TESTS

Bureau of Standards Signals to Be Transmitted for Calibration of Receiving Sets.

Radio broadcasters, fans and amateurs within approximately 1000 miles from Washington, will be able to check up their radio instruments and sets on standard wave lengths transmitted by the Bureau of Standards on May 7, 11 and 29.

On the night of May 7, the bureau will transmit six standard waves between 600 and 300 meters; on May 11 waves between 200 and 300 meters will be broadcast, and on May 29 waves between 150 and 200 meters will conclude the present tests.

Station WWV, located at the Bureau of Standards, just outside of Washington, will transmit standard radio signals on 600, 500, 428, 375, 333 and 300 meters, commencing at 11 p. m. Eastern time, May 1 and 7, after broadcasting has ceased.

The proper adjustment of transmitting and receiving apparatus, it is pointed out by Government officials, is of great importance, since the allocation to broadcasting stations of specific wave lengths. The standard frequency signals are intended for use in calibrating wave meters and adjusting both transmitting and receiving sets. Transmitters, according to recent rulings of the Department of Commerce, must be checked up so that all stations can keep exactly on the wave lengths assigned them.

The general call by radio telephone commencing at 11 p. m., May 1 and 7, will be followed by a similar continuous wave telegraph announcement. The repetition of the call of the bureau station, "WWV," repeated, with very long dashes intervening, constitutes the standard frequency signals transmitted on unmodulated continuous waves. It is believed that with sensitive receiving apparatus these signals can be received anywhere east of the Mississippi River.

TWO BROADCASTING STATIONS ON AEOLIAN HALL TO OPEN MAY 15

Separate Transmitting Equipment Will Permit Simultaneous Operation on Different Wavelengths.

When the new radio broadcast station which the Radio Corporation of America is erecting on the roof of Aeolian Hall, Fifth avenue and Forty-second street, goes into commission on May 15 the former station which that corporation and the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. have maintained in Newark will be closed, it was announced recently. The new station will have two aerials, one of which will broadcast on 455 meters, with the former Newark call of W J Z transferred to it, and the other will send out programs on 405 meters, with W J Y as its call. The two aerials can be used simultaneously for broadcasting different programs. The station has been heard lately in tests using 2 X R as a call.

Concerts and recitals in Aeolian Hall can be connected to the broadcasting station and two separate studios are also provided for performances when the concert hall is closed.

The transmitting stations will have a photographic device to show the operators the electric vibrations as they leave the aerial, and to enable them to watch the correctness of transmission.

HOW TO CHECK A HOOK-UP

Simple Method of Tracing Each Connection After It Is Made.

After you have decided on the hookup you wish to use and have assembled the set ready for wiring, the following suggestion will, I am sure, help you in accomplishing a speedy and easy way to wire your set correctly the first time.

Cut out the diagram of your hookup and tack it on to a piece of cardboard just large enough to take the diagram; next take a piece of thin tracing paper, same size, and tack over diagram.

Decide next what wires should be put in first so as to avoid any acrobatic stunts of soldering other wires later on.

Now here is the stunt: Every time you attach a wire to your set trace it off the diagram in red ink or crayon, being sure first before you do so that it represents the progress of your work. Repeat this process until the diagram has been completely traced.

If you do this right your hookup will be right the first time and the set will function properly provided the apparatus used is good.—The Wireless Age.

Ammonia Eliminates Acid Stains.

To keep from staining a floor, carpet or furniture always have a small bottle of ammonia and a cloth near the storage battery. The cloth, saturated with the ammonia and rubbed over the surface upon which the battery acid has leaked or been spilled, will stop its effect, and if applied soon enough will wash the acid off without leaving a stain.

Loud Speakers Vary.

Some types of loud speakers merely work on the principle of the megaphone, while others really build up the signal.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

All Queries Must Be Accompanied by the Name and Address of the Writer

Q. I wish to build a loop antenna. Which is better, the type having the wire wound parallel or in spiral form? J. M.

A. This is a matter of personal opinion. The spiral wound will tune much more sharply than the first mentioned.

Q. (1) Would you advise me to put an aerial on top of a 100-foot steel tower, the other end of the aerial being 75 or 80 feet high? (2) Would an aerial 200 feet long be all right at this height? W. L. W.

A. (1) Yes. (2) 100 feet is sufficient for broadcast reception. Take your lead in from the low end.

Q. Would it increase the signal intensity or the efficiency of my set if the wires connecting the different parts were covered with spaghetti tubing?

A. No.

Q. In a two-stage audio frequency amplifier, will a 10 to one amplifying transformer in the first stage and a three to one in the second give best results or a 10 to one in both? A. T. S.

A. Use a 10 to one first and the three to one in the second stage.

Q. Will an ordinary telephone receiver work satisfactorily for radio reception? T. N.

A. No, the resistance is too low. The average telephone receiver has a resistance of 75 ohms, whereas the radio receiver is wound to 1500 ohms.

Q. (1) What determines the capacity of a condenser? (2) What is the capacity of a 23-plate variable air condenser?

A. (1) Area of the plates and the thickness and material of the dielectric. (2) .0005 mfd.

Q. What ratio audi-frequency transformers give good results with a reflex hook-up? C. N. H.

A. Usually four to one ratio.

Q. What is the best kind of wire to use for a loop aerial? A. K.

A. Litzendraht is the most efficient, but stranded copper will serve. Flexible lamp cord will give very good results.

Q. Will the ordinary loud speaker on the market today give satisfactory results, using only one stage of audio-frequency amplification? W. B.

A. For local signals, yes, although two steps are much more satisfactory for the amplification of signals from distant stations.

Q. I live outside of St. Louis and am unfamiliar with radio apparatus. Who can I get to make a three-coil honeycomb set for me, and how can I get in touch with them? W. L. R.

A. Communicate with any of the radio dealers whose advertisements appear in this section.

Q. My landlord refuses permission to erect an aerial on my roof. What kind of an indoor aerial will be the most efficient? W. F.

A. Run a wire around the molding of the largest room. Stranded copper wire would be preferable to solid wire. A vacuum tube set will give much better results than a crystal set, and particularly when an indoor aerial is used.

Q. What would be the most practical and satisfactory set to take on a vacation trip? Much of the time will be spent on a gasoline launch. C. G.

A. A regenerative receiving set will answer the purpose if it is to be used when the launch is tied up to the shore and a temporary aerial can be rigged up. However, for good results when the boat is under way a three-foot loop aerial and two stages of radio frequency are recommended. Audion tubes requiring dry cells are recommended, of course.

Q. I have a Reinartz set and am unable to get it working satisfactorily. I have tried condensers of different capacity, and various sizes of grid-leaks in the grid circuit, but the signals are loudest with the grid-leak entirely removed from the circuit. What is my trouble?

A. The trouble may lie in your tuning inductance. Look up the instructions for making a Reinartz tuning inductance. You may have the tapped-wire short circuited. Often this is the cause of poor results.

Q. How is it possible for receiving sets to work wihout antenna or ground connections? N. W.

A. The tuning inductance and the wire connecting the different parts of the set serve as an aerial. To work without aerial or ground connection, a receiving set must be near to a powerful transmiter, or else be of the super-regenerative type. With a ground connection and no aerial, however, an efficient straight regenerative set has satisfactorily picked up signals from stations 800 miles away.

Q. I have a Flewelling set and the tube does not oscillate. What might be the trouble? M. S.

A. The trouble can only be found by making one change and another. The most critical points of a Flewelling circuit are the grid leaks. These must be exactly right. Try varying them, and you might also substitute new condensers in the three-condenser bank if the ones you are now using are of the paraffine paper type, as they are easily punctured. Trace all connections and see that they are correct.

Q. How can I test my Reinartz tuning inductance for a short circuit? R. W.

A. Remove the switch arms from the contact points and test with a dry battery and buzzer for short circuit between the independent portions of the coil.

Q. Will two receiving sets operating simultaneously on closely located antenna mutually interfere? J. B.

A. Yes. This often occurs when one of the sets is a single-circuit regenerative.

EVERY SHIP MAY MAKE ITS OWN WEATHER FORECAST

Can Be Done by Mutual Exchange of Information by Ships in Different Parts of the Sea.

Within a short time "skippers" of ocean-going vessels equipped with radio will be making their own forecasts and weather maps daily, according to Chief Forecaster Edward H. Bowie of the United States Weather Bureau. This is due primarily to efficient and immediate radio service.

With the vast amount of meteorological information broadcasted today from practically all large radio stations and many ships it is possible, he says, for the masters to make their own forecasts and even make a daily plot of weather conditions, just as is done in the Weather Bureau in Washington. The naval radio station at Arlington sends out daily a general report from North America and in return receives a similar report from Paris on European conditions.

Since most storms journey eastward, a captain in the Atlantic knows generally what is coming and by keeping in touch with vessels west of him he can do his own forecasting. In turn he keeps other ships posted as to conditions in his location, and by co-operation many floating weather bureaus will eventually benefit each other and the countries with which they are in touch.

Several new radio stations to transmit weather information from the north of this country are now planned, Mr. Bowie stated; one at Cape Farewell in Greenland, three in MacKenzie Valley, Canada, and one on Baffin Island.

"Radio has done wonderful things for meteorology," Mr. Bowie said. "In the old days we issued statements, ran up storm warnings on the coasts and had to let that suffice, whereas today we broadcast everything and ships at sea are as well informed as shore stations."

GREAT AMPLIFICATION ACHIEVED IN RADIO

Marvelous Results Due to Vacuum Tube—The Heart of All Broadcasting and Many Receiving Sets.

Imagine a man big enough to haul at one time all the freight moved in the United States in a year! But an average man could perform that super-Herculean feat if his strength were amplified as much as is the tiny flow of power from a radiotelephone microphone before it reaches the transmitting antenna.

In the studio of every broadcasting station is a delicate microphone. The minute capacity change which occurs when voice waves impinge upon the exposed plate of a microphone causes a change in potential on the grid of a three-element vacuum tube.

This tube and others amplify the feeble output of the microphone and overcome the resistance of the wire line from the studio to the transmitting apparatus, usually on the roof of the building. In the transmitting room are other tubes which increase the power and control the output of the high-power oscillator tubes. Between the studio and the antenna the power is amplified three thousand billion times.

To help you conceive this figure, imagine what an average man could do if his strength were amplified to that degree! Imagine all the locomotives of the United States working at their highest capacity, moving the largest haul in our history as they did in 1918. That year our total freight movement was 408,011,453,783 ton miles. Not only could this amplified man move all that freight traffic and replace all the locomotives in our freight service, but he would find the task as easy as you find lifting a four-ounce weight. This imaginary giant could perform a similar service for 400 countries at the same time, each handling a tonnage of freight equal to that of the United States. Not only would this giant be endowed with immense power, but were he as sensible as the amplified current to the variations in the microphone circuit, he could control this immense power with the utmost flexibility; increasing and decreasing the speed of the giant freight system between minimum and maximum as frequently as 3000 to 5000 times per second.

CLEVELAND AMATEURS URGED TO OBSERVE TRAFFIC RULES

New Amateur Regulations Announced by Radio Association of That City.

New traffic regulations have recently been put into effect by the Cleveland Radio Association.

The following rules have been sent out to every amateur in the Cleveland district, according to E. H. Poad, president of the association:

8 a. m. to 7 p. m.—Free air, all types of transmitters. Confine your testing to this period. If special testing is required get in touch with the president or the traffic manager.

7 p. m. to 8 p. m.—Fifty-mile radius only. No high-power C. W., spark, nor chopper.

8 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.—Quiet hour. Battery power C. W. can be operated at any time during this period provided no complaints are received. Wave length to be 200 meters or below.

10:30 p. m. to 8 a. m.—Message work, long-distance phone or L. D. tests. No local except emergency.

NEW BROADCASTERS LICENSED

Department of Commerce Issues 10 Class "A" Licenses During Week Ending April 28.

Although three of the following stations received the same wave length, it will be noted that they are all in different districts and states, separated so that interference will not be marked.

8000-Mile Record.

A new radio distance record was recently established when a message was broadcast from the Brazilian Centennial Exhibition at Rio de Janeiro to the United States Government stations at Honolulu, 8000 miles away.

Radiograms.

Radio concerts from all parts of the United States are now heard in Mexico City.

In Holland, concerts and news are now broadcast daily from The Hague on the 2600-meter wave lengths.

A new army radio school for training air service radio operators and electricians has been established at Chanute Field, Ill.

The radiophone station W H A Z, at the Renssalaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y., recently established a new world's record for long-distance broadcasting, when a concert of both music and speech was heard in the Hawaiian Islands, a distance of 5500 miles.

An English radio manufacturer is offering a prize of $50 to the first English amateur who is successful in receiving a message from W D A P of Chicago, Ill. The stipulations in connection with the prize are that no more than three stages of radio frequency amplification shall be used in the successful set.

FIRST GOOD WILL TOUR TO ILLINOIS NEXT WEEK

About 100 St. Louis Business Men to Make Trip—Band to Be Taken Along.

The first Good Will Tour of Illinois, by St. Louis business men, will take place next week, beginning with departure from Union Station at 11 p. m. next Sunday, May 13, and ending with the return to St. Louis at midnight Saturday, the 19th. The sales managers' bureau of the Chamber of Commerce is in charge of the tour.

About 100 executives of St. Louis concerns have enlisted for the tour, and a band and several entertainers will go along. At each scheduled stop the delegation will march to the business center, headed by the band, and the visitors will then scatter and visit friends and business acquaintances. Merchants will be asked to remain in the stores and await the calls of the delegates.

A large electric sign, extending for several car lengths, will compose the words, "St. Louis to Illinois Good Will Tour." Souvenirs will be distributed by the delegates in each town.

The first night's run will be to Quincy, and Galesburg will be farthest north of the group of towns visited that day. Monday night will be spent at Peoria, Tuesday night at Springfield, Wednesday night at Danville, Thursday night at Terre Haute, Ind., and Friday night at Cairo. Besides these night stops, 34 day stops in as many towns are scheduled. At the night stops, dinner meetings with local business organizations are planned.

YOUTH IDEAL, IF IT CAME LATER IN LIFE, SAYS ASQUITH

Former British Premier Asserts When We are Old the Best Thing of All Would Be to Be Young Again.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch

LONDON, April 25.—"Youth would be an ideal state if it came a little later in life. We take its hopefulness, its zest, and its vigor for granted and hardly notice them because we have no other experience with which to compare them."

So writes former Premier Asquith as his part of a symposium on "Youth and Age" in the "Hospital Carnival Journal" of Paisley, the constituency, he represents in the House of Commons. He adds:

"Thus it is only in age that we fully enjoy our youth. This is one of the advantages of age, but it is not the only one.

"In age, just because we have material for comparison, we become less critical, less dictatorial, and more hopeful. We learn, among other things, that nothing is ever finally lost, and that it is always worth while to begin again.

"This makes us happier. Perhaps it also makes us more useful. It is to be hoped that it does, for when we are old we know that the best thing of all would be to be young again."

The House of David

WHAT THIS CURIOUS RELIGIOUS SECT, NOW UNDER FIRE, IS, HOW IT WAS ORGANIZED, AND ITS CUSTOMS AND BELIEFS

"Brother" Tucker, Spokesman for Prophet Benjamin, "The Seventh Angel" Now Mysteriously Missing, Tells of Colony's Work

Types of the membership of the House of David as shown by photographs gathered at the colony by the Post-Dispatch staff correspondent.

Scoffs at Charges of Immorality and Declares That Purnell Would Be Kicked Out Like Anybody Else If He Were Guilty of the Practices Imputed to Him—Post-Dispatch Correspondent, on Visit to Benton Harbor, Finds Evidences of Industry and Thrift, With Opinion of the Townspeople Favorable to the Sect as a Whole Though Inclined to View the Conduct of the Prophet With Misgivings.

By F. A. BEHYMER,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., May 5.

SPRING housecleaning is in full swing at the Israelite House of David. The bearded and braided brothers are cleaning up and painting up, and the sisters are assisting. The ingathered "Israelites" are furbishing and garnishing for the annual ingathering of nonbelievers' shekels, for the spring time and summer time are harvest times at the House of David, and the signs and symbols as discerned and interpreted by the queer community are that this year's harvest is going to be of all the harvests the most plenteous.

In one way and another the colony has been getting an awful lot of advertising the past few months and the judgment of one of the greatest and wisest of the brothers is that this will bring "mobs of people" to the doors of the House of David, who will pour much money into the coffers of Brother Benjamin, who says he is the Seventh Angel of the Book of Revelation, set apart to loose the seventh seal and sound the seventh trumpet.

Whether Benjamin will be there to watch the wealth pour into his strong box is not at all certain. At present he is discreetly missing, leaving his lieutenants to look after the spring housecleaning, while the courts are probing his conduct and an effort is being made to enforce a liquidation of the colony and the distribution of its wealth among the members.

The buildings at Eden Park are getting a fresh coat of white paint, the lawns are being trimmed, the shrubs attended, the animals and birds of the zoo are getting a grooming, the miniature railway has steam up, the band is tuning up, the baseball players are limbering up, the summer cottages and rooms are being made ready for renters and spring plowing and planting and pruning are in progress on the 3000 acres of farm and fruit land.

"An Efficient Industrial Group"

There is a "Key to the House of David." Benjamin, who bloweth the trumpet, has written it. Anyone who likes may read it and gather from it a measure of illumination. And there is a keynote of the House of David. The keynote is unhurried thrift. That note is struck in the leisurely but thorough preparation for the colony's season. It is struck in all the colony's activities. The impression an open-minded observer gets is that of a capably organized, efficiently functioning industrial group, commercializing peculiarities which grow out of an eccentric interpretation of the Scriptures.

As a religious order it is curiously lacking in the observance of the usual outward forms. The rank and file are amiable and pious, with some sort of an inner light that is reflected in their eyes and faces. That, as a rule, the faces of these do not betoken unusual mentality or will, is perhaps beside the point as bearing upon the sufficiency of personal religion. There is lack of the familiar emotionalism which is the fashion among the more extravagant of the evangelicals. There is no public prayer or congregational singing in their public gatherings. Public services are only held as a concession to the expectation of visitors and as one of the Sunday attractions of the place. Omission of such services throughout the winter, attributed to the difficulty of properly heating the auditorium, has not been felt as a hardship by the faithful. There are no regularly held devotions of the membership.

Rules and Regulations of the House of David

"READ these rules carefully and often, and remember them. This good advice is not written for fun and it is best every way to render obedience strictly and be careful you do not lose or drop these rules about nor are you to tack them up anywhere except it would be in your private rooms. In your Bible or star might be a good suggestion.

"These rules are only for such as I, Benjamin, give them to. Therefore you must keep your own carefully.

"Girls. I furthermore warn you against pleasure seeking and selecting certain company and becoming thick. The hatching is not good.

"No person must interfere with business nor appoint himself. They each must be appointed to their respective work. If Benjamin puts anyone to a job, that must not be changed without Benjamin's permission or sanction.

"Anyone who is guilty of any improper conduct in any way, either by word, smile or eye, or any other way which is contrary to Israel's most Holy faith, will be put out of business at once and not only this, but after being judged and if the offense is worthy, other means will be applied.

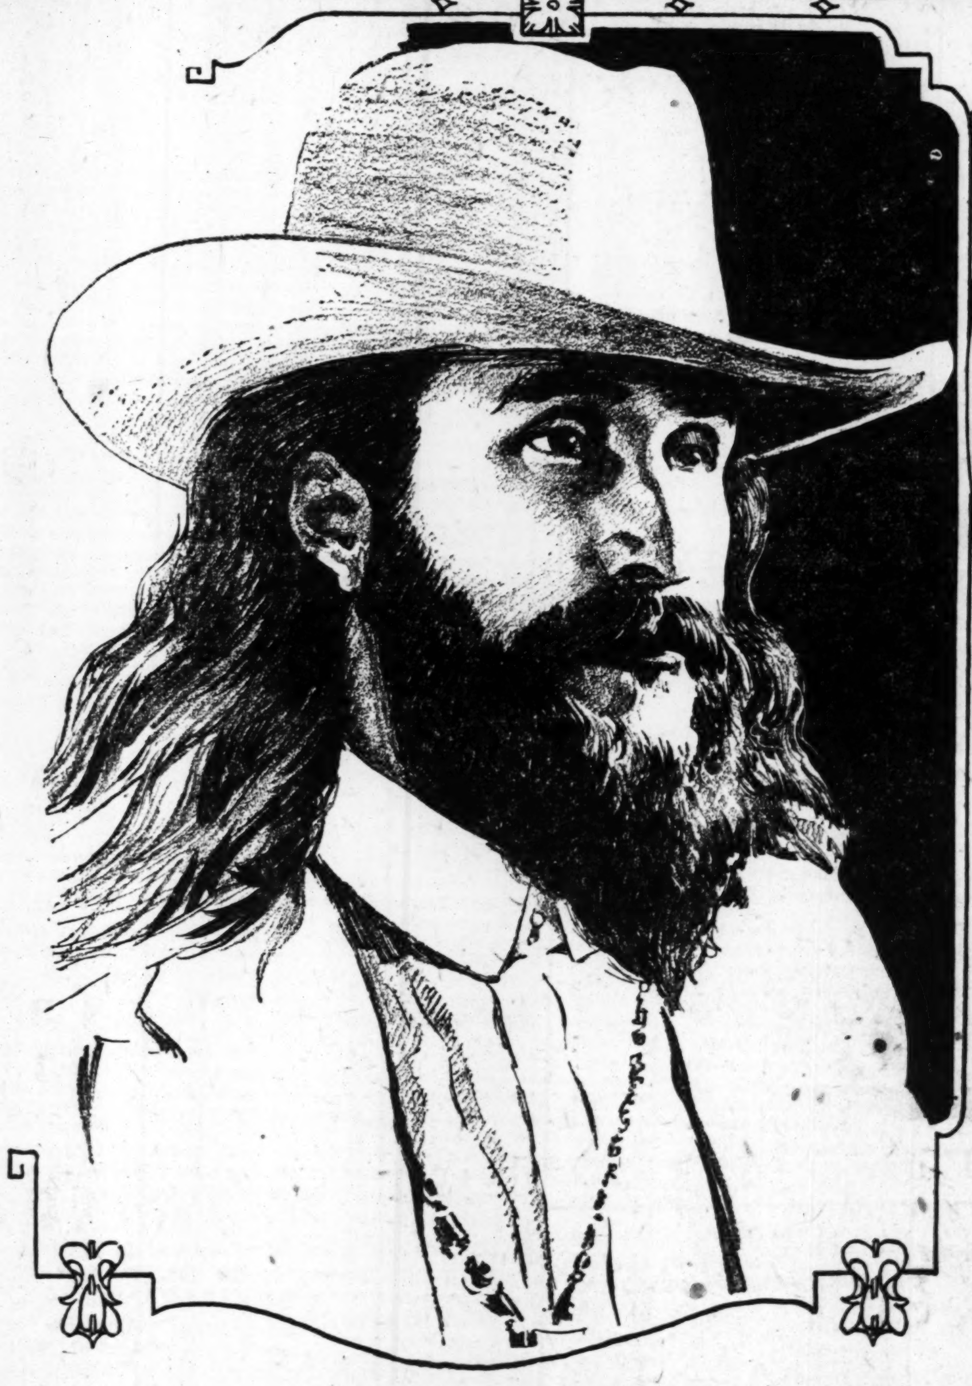
"It is furthermore the indispensable and holy duty of any and all to make reports for the sake of Israel's faith and the House of David and all of the members and anything contrary is disobedience and disgraceful to the most High Calling. Any one concealing evidence is a partaker of the same and an enemy, and such report may be made to Mary and Benjamin only—no talking about it to each other. Anyone concealing matters of this nature or any other misdemeanor, will be dealt with accordingly and with righteous judgment.

"No running about among the gentiles except on business. Such do not belong to this work nor does it recommend an Israelite. No running to town except on business.

"Always pull down your window blinds at once when lights are on. No collecting in halls or passage ways.

"Take notice for summer—all who are not at their work must go to bed at 10 p. m. Then if you arise at 5 o'clock, that gives seven hours sleep. This is necessary for your own good and must be obeyed except for those whose business keeps them later.

"A substantial reason must be given in the event of breaking any rules or laws given. In collecting in rooms, remember, any old excuse disguised as "business" will not work. None will be justified except by a substantial business reason."



"KING" BENJAMIN J. PURNELL,
Long-haired and shaggy-bearded leader of the colony, who is known among his subjects as "Brother Benjamin" and revered as the seventh angel, chosen to reunite the 12 lost tribes of Israel. Since the State began inquiry into charges of his offenses against women and girls of his flock he has been discreetly missing.

The system, then, seems to be a foundation of claimed revelation and elaborate exegesis, lacking the customary superstructure of ceremonial observances, seemingly productive in most cases, of graces of character, but finding its fullest expression in a communal economic system.

That the fruits of the communal life go to Brother Benjamin and Sister Mary, as trustees for the faithful, who get nothing out of it but their keep, is an incident which the incredulous may look upon as tending to invalidate Benjamin's angelic pretentions, not to mention his alleged exercise of other prerogatives highly inconsistent with his claimed character, but the verdict of the community acquits the rank and file of the practices imputed to the leader.

There is a weight of proof against Benjamin which is not lightened by his disappearance, and naturally there is more or less flippant opinion, based on the disclosures concerning him and the peculiar matrimonial teachings of the sect. There may be immorality in the colony, as there likely would be in any group of upward of a thousand people, and there undoubtedly is considerable digression from the "apartness" of men and their wives which is taught as the highest good, but the belief of people best qualified to judge fairly is that few have had knowledge of Benjamin's alleged delinquencies and that there is a reasonably consistent adherence, on the part of the membership, to the cult's tenet of celibacy. It is upon this "apartness," as enjoined in the twelfth chapter of Zechariah, that the colony is founded.

Brother Tucker, oracle of the order, expounder of its theology and defender of its faith, stands at the portal of the House of David. He is past 60 years of age, with untrimmed beard and length of hair, a full-figured proof of the excellence of vegetarian diet, one of the founders of the sect and a member of the inner circle, earnest, fluent, thrice-armed with the words of Scripture, but not above use, from time to time, by way of emphasizing his chaste and stately discourse, of an idiom culled from the easy speech of the multitude which he hears on bright days in Eden Park. If you would know about the House of David, hear him:

"The Israelite House of David was founded according to the Scriptures as contained in the twelfth chapter of Zechariah. It is, as David said while yet a prophet, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. And, as Paul says, the body is the temple of God. The object and aim is to attain the immortal life of the mortal body by the law of life. There are three laws in the Scriptures, the law of the spirit of life, the law of sin and death and the law of Christ. Enoch and Elijah kept the law of the spirit of life and did not see death. It was breaking the law of the spirit of life that brought the fall. Obedience to it will place men back were Adam fell from, immortal, without blood. This will remove the evil, or tares, that causes death.

"Paul says that at the fullness of the Gentiles all Israel shall be saved. Israel means neither Jew nor Gentile, but a distinct class of people now mixed among the Jews and Gentiles but who are being called to the great ingathering here at Benton Harbor. God has said: 'I will sift the House of Israel from among all nations and bring them to Zion and keep them as a shepherd keepeth his flock.'

"Israel is constituted of the 12 tribes, 12,000 of each, making 144,000, who are to be redeemed from among men, not from the grave after death, for God says by the mouth of Job that they that go down to the grave shall come up no more. These are to be found alive on Mount Zion, to live and reign with Him on earth 1000 years, 'and there shall be no more sorrow, crying or pain, neither shall there be any more death.' Then there will be universal peace on earth and good will to men. For there is no heaven in the sky to go to, as taught by christendom.

"The Scriptures show death is an enemy of both God and man. It is the body that dies. Those who die suffer the eternal loss of the body. That is why Jesus says in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage. Paul says they are neither male nor female. Why? Because they have lost the corporeal body. So those who die in the resurrection will have only soul and spirit, making them equal unto the angels, but Jesus was raised higher than the angels, because he did not lose the body of flesh and bone, and he says Israel shall be bone of his bone, flesh of his flesh, and they shall never perish.

"QUEEN" MARY PURNELL,
The wife of Benjamin, and his associate in the management of the colony as one of the directors. Benjamin and Mary have a son, now 35 years old, who is in no way connected with the sect.

"BROTHER" TUCKER,
Spokesman of the order, defender of the faith and expounder of Benjamin's teaching, which embodies the "apartness" of living of a man and wife as one of its fundamentals. "Brother" Tucker is a member of the inner circle of the colony.

Hope for Immortality on Earth

"Benjamin does not claim to be immortal. None of us do. To be immortal means to be living by the spirit of God, without blood. Immortal is the exact opposite of mortal. We are mortal now, but by obedience to the law we can attain to the cleasing of blood, then we will be equal to what Jesus was the 33 years of his mortal life. Then we will walk the walk that he walked for three years and abstain from the world, the flesh and the devil. We don't claim that we have attained the first stage. That would be boasting. It is a matter of inner knowledge, each for himself. It is a process. The blood of Jesus was taken away on the cross. He arose without blood. How our blood will be taken away is not disclosed to the public, but it will be done by a law. We will be changed from mortal to immortal without death. We do not say we will not die. We leave it up to God. We know that if we keep God's law perfectly we will not die. We do teach absolutely that this is possible of attainment.

"John's book was sealed with seven seals. Seven angels were to be sent to seven mortals, each to unloose a seal and sound a trumpet, and the seventh was to finish the mystery. Benjamin is the seventh messenger. The other six, in order, were Johanna Southcott, Richard Brothers, George Turner, William Shaw, John Wroe and James J. Jezreel. Jezreel prophesied from 1871 to 1881. He died in 1885. Benjamin received the visitation about 1895. How do we know that these are the seven that should come? Their writings are their credentials. That way we know that this seventh is the author of the finishing message. The full and complete interpretation of all the Scriptures since the world began is now in the hands of the Israelite House of David.

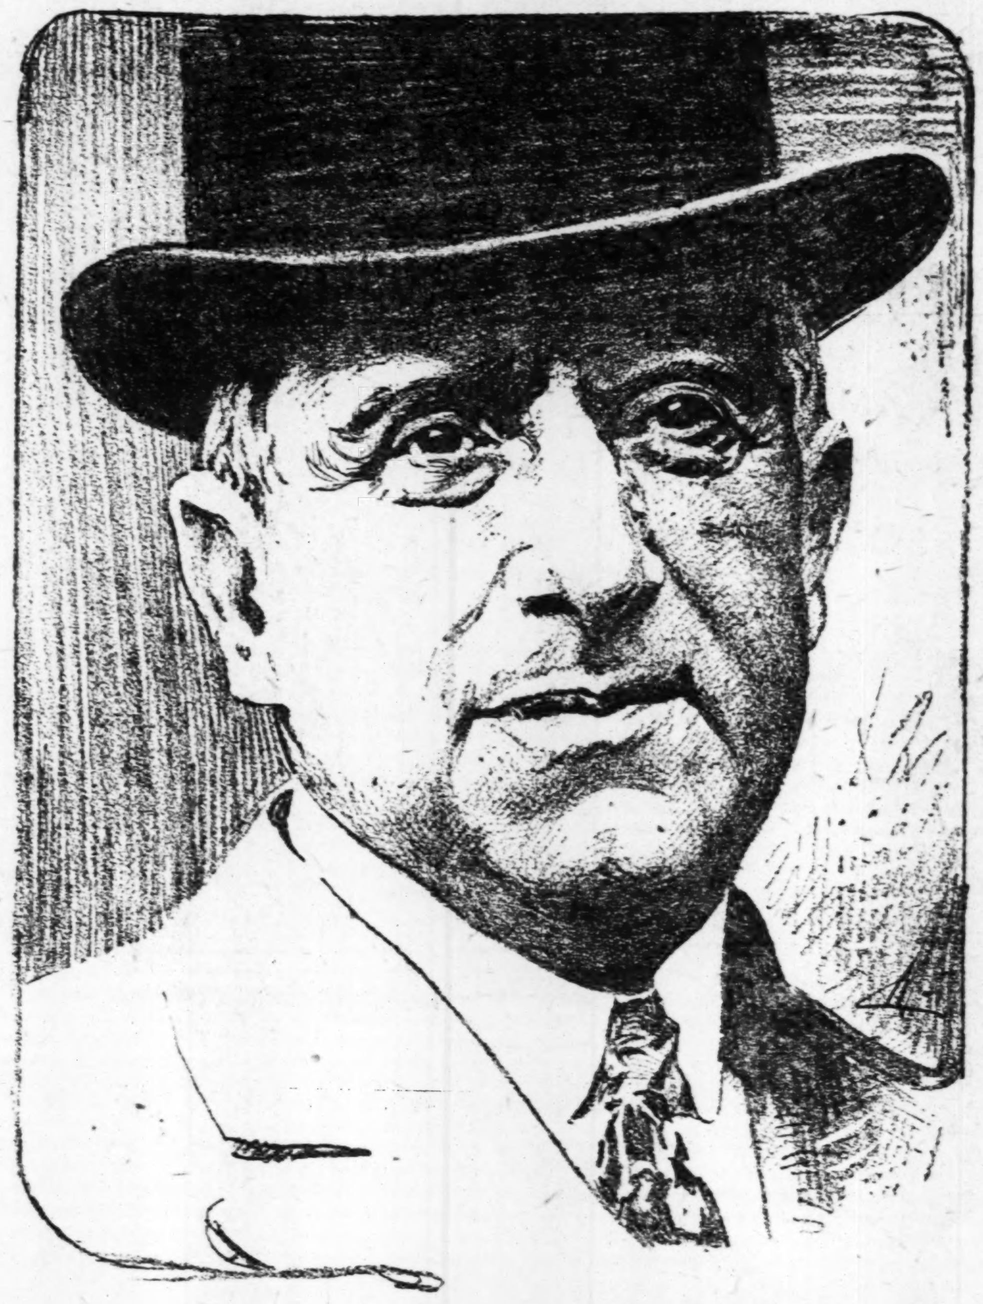
Three $1-a-Day Boys, Who, Starting Life Together, Have Become Rivals of the Steel Trust

Schwab, Dinkey and Corey Began in Same Plant and, After 40 Years, Are Working Together Again

Story of How "Thinking Beyond Their Jobs" and Disregarding the Quitting Whistle Made Them Steel Kings and Millionaires Before They Reached the Age of 40—Recent Merger of Midvale and Cambria With Bethlehem Corporation Has Brought Them Back Into the Close Association They Established as Helpers in the Carnegie Plant and Maintained During the Years They Were Partners of the Great Iron Master—Known to Trade as "Carnegie's Boys."

Each of the Three Had His Turn as President of the Carnegie Works—Account of Their Rise to Fortune a Demonstration of Schwab's Favorite Maxim That the Fellow Who Sits Still and Does Only What He Is Told Will Never Be Told to Do Big Things—Talk About Geniuses Is Nonsense, He Declares, Because Jobs Vacated by "Stars" Are Always Filled by Ordinary Men Who Have Worked a Little Harder Than Their Fellows.



CHARLES M. SCHWAB.
The one time stake driver, who had a habit of getting acquainted with the job just above him and who once refused to work for a $1,000,00 a year salary, preferring to take a percentage of the "extra" profits he could make.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 5.

FORTY years ago three youths, a stake driver, a water boy and a chemical laboratory helper, were working together—making steel, as they were pleased to call it—in Andrew Carnegie's old Edgar Thompson Steel Works at Braddock, Pa. Their hours of labor were long and their work just as hard as the labor of stake drivers, water boys and helpers in a great, seething steel plant usually is. As for their pay, at a dollar a day or thereabouts, it was not such as to stimulate ardent hopes of acquiring a controlling share in the company's stock.

But it happened that these particular youths had other ends than daily wages in view. Occasionally—but not often—there was a spare moment that afforded an opportunity to study the business or to experiment with new manufacturing processes, and when that moment came it was not allowed to escape.

For this practice of thinking beyond their jobs there was a manifest reward and those youths got it. Their rise was rapid. They became the most brilliant of the "Carnegie boys"—the young partners with whom the great iron master surrounded himself, whom he developed, disciplined, promoted, sometimes failed to control, but always loved, and who, after they had reached high places, dined with him year after year in an annual reunion, the like of which probably never has been known.

Eventually their paths diverged as each pursued further his career in big business operations and they came to head steel companies of their own. They became competitors. But now, 40 years after their first association, they are back making steel together again, the same companions they were in the old dollar-a-day, dinner-pail times. The stake driver is Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation; the water boy is Alva C. Dinkey, president of the Midvale Co., and the laboratory helper is William Ellis Corey, chairman of the board of the Midvale Co. Their reunion has come about with the gigantic $100,000,000 consolidation of the Bethlehem with the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Co. and Cambria Steel Co., through which Schwab's ambition to make his Bethlehem corporation a formidable rival of the United States Steel has been realized.

The story of the rise of any one of the three is just as absorbing, just as inspiring and romantic as that of either of the others. Opinion may differ as to just what factor contributed most to the advance of each, but it is perhaps significant that in each case there was the same conspicuous tendency to disregard the quitting whistle when work remained to be done, and there was also a noticeable habit of devoting spare moments to getting acquainted with the next job higher up.

It has always been a favorite maxim of Schwab's that the fellow who sits still and does only what he is told will never be told to do big things. He has applied that maxim from early childhood and the results themselves show whether or not his plan worked.

The son of a village storekeeper of slender means, Charley Schwab began at an early age to go out and get the opportunity if it didn't come any other way. The story is told that in the summer of 1881, when Schwab was a freckled-faced boy working in a grocery store in Braddock, and dreaming, between errands, of becoming a civil engineer, Capt. Bill Jones, one of Carnegie's superintendents from the Edgar Thompson Steel Works there, happened to enter the place to purchase a cigar. Charley Schwab waited on him. Somehow, in the course of the transaction the visitor disclosed his identity. That was enough. Probably not one boy in a hundred would have risen to the occasion as Charley Schwab did, for he promptly froze to the superintendent and made a tumultuous appeal for a job. He wanted to be an engineer and insisted that all he needed was a chance. Could he drive stakes? He could drive anything, if it meant a job with the steel company. Would he work for a dollar a day? Certainly; he would work for anything he could get.

Schwab Cast Lot With Carnegie

And so it came about that Charles M. Schwab cast his lot with the Carnegie company. He probably did not drive stakes any better than any other freckled-faced boy, but he kept his eyes open and nothing in the way of learning the business got away from him. Whenever there was nothing for him to do in his own line he would tackle somebody else's job just to get familiar with it.

Meanwhile, about his old home the people were wondering what had become of the affable grocery boy. When the report spread that he was working in the Carnegie steel works for $1 a day they concluded that his fate was settled for life and most of them proceeded to forget all about him.

But his fate was far from being settled with a dollar-a-day job. It was only a few months until the plant needed a new manager. Capt. Bill Jones got the job, but that left a vacancy in the department superintendent's position. That was where Schwab made his first great stride toward success. He got the job and he made good in it. His policy of doing more than what he had been told to do had demonstrated its value.

A few years later, upon the death of Capt. Jones, Schwab was made general superintendent of the entire Thompson works and three years after that the Homestead Steel Works were placed under his management and thenceforward for several years he conducted the operations of both enormous companies, which produced several million tons of steel a year.

Schwab, as is well known, has always disliked employment on a strictly salary basis. He has persistently clung to the plan of taking a percentage of the profts rather than a stipulated amount that might not be increased by unusually efficient work.

Made More Than His Million

Some 20 years ago the story was circulated that Schwab was drawing a salary of $1,000,000 a year and widespread discussion of his achievements followed. But it seems that the facts about the matter were these:

J. Pierpont Morgan had proposed to make his salary $1,000,000 a year as head of the United States Steel Corporation. Schwab replied that he did not care to work for a salary and then remarked that he supposed Morgan would expect the earnings of the company, under Schwab's management, to be $70,000,000 a year. Morgan admitted that that was about what he expected. Schwab promptly announced that instead of a salary he would take 2 per cent of all the earnings over $70,000,000. Morgan agreed and Schwab made considerably more than his million. In fact, his share of the profits is said to have run nearer $2,000,000.

In 1903 he retired from the head of the Steel Trust with holdings of stock in the corporation worth $30,000,000, to take over the rundown Bethlehem plant, which was said to be losing money at the rate of $1,000,000 a year.

Today this plant and its subsidiary plants cover thousands of acres and Schwab, as head of them all, is the largest individual employer of labor in the world, and his higher officials are described as the "wealthiest beneficiaries" of the profit-sharing system in the world, this method of reward being in line with his own policy, learned through his experience under Andrew Carnegie.

Made $5000 a Year at 22

If there is one of the many remarkable phases of Schwab's career more remarkable than another, it is the rapidity of his rise to immense fortune, and that rise accomplished by a steady earning process rather than spectacular stock investments. At the age of 22, two years after he started work as a stake driver, he was earning $5000 a year as a department superintendent. It was then that he returned to his old home at Loretto, Pa., and married his childhood sweetheart, who was Eurania Dinkey, a sister of Alva. At 38 his fortune was estimated at $30,000,000, and he was then steadily increasing it at the rate of $2,000,000 or more a year. What it is now, it is doubtful if he himself can tell.

Schwab has often been called America's greatest salesman. He proved his right to this title, it is declared, when he sold Carnegie's steel company to Morgan and his associates in 1901 for $487,000,000. This sale, it is related, followed an after-dinner speech Schwab made in the hearing of Morgan and in which he painted the future of the steel business, if combination should take the place of ruinous competition. He again proved his ability as a salesman when, at the outbreak of the European war, he slipped across the Atlantic and returned with millions of dollars in orders more than the Bethlehem corporation could produce. He turned the surplus over to competitors.

At the time Schwab was startling the world in 1901, however, by putting the $487,000,000 deal with Morgan across, Alva Dinkey, the ex-water boy, and William E. Corey, the former laboratory helper, were also to be heard from. For when Carnegie was induced to yield his controlling interest in the Carnegie Steel Co. to permit the formation of the United States Steel, he made one personal stipulation. He reserved the right to name the president of United States Steel for five years. Naturally, Charles M. Schwab got the appointment, but two years later, when Schwab left the trust to put the failing Bethlehem corporation on its feet, William E. Corey stepped into his shoes as head of the United States Steel and Alva Dinkey stepped into Corey's place as head of the Carnegie works. He remained in that position until 1915, when he became vice president and then president of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Co. At that time Judge Elbert H. Gary characterized him as the ablest all-around man in the steel business in America, and expressed keen regret at his loss by United States Steel.

Record as Given in Who's Who

Upon reading the sketch in "Who's Who in America," one finds between the lines a story of the life of Dinkey. It, of course, was approved by its subject before it was printed.

"Steel manufacturer, born Weatherly, Pa., Feb. 20, 1866; son of Reuben and Mary Elizabeth (Hamm) deceased," it reads. "Educated, public schools; married Margaret M. Stuart of Braddock, Pa., June 11, 1891.

"Entered Carnegie Steel service as water boy at Edgar Thompson Steel Works, May 21, 1879; telegraph operator same works, 1885; machinist Pittsburg Locomotive Works, Allegheny, Pa. 1885-8; expert machinist, McTighe Electric Co., Pittsburg, 1889-93; secretary to general superintendent 1889-93; electrician, 1893-6; superintendent electric light and power plant, 1898-9; assistant to general superintendent, 1899-01; general superintendent, 1901-03, all Homestead works, Carnegie Steel Co.; president Carnegie Steel Co, 1903-15 (resigned); appointed vice president Midvale Steel and Ordnance Co."

That is the record of a boy who went to work at 13 and at 35 headed the corporation, one of the greatest in the world, where he had begun as "water boy." He was a boy looking ahead. That shows between the lines. He learned to be a telegraph operator, became so expert that he decided to go after the bigger jobs that his employment in handling the wire correspondence showed him lay within reach of him who learned how to grasp and handle them. He began again as a workman and learned to be a machinist. Soon he was an expert machinist. That was that and Dinkey decided that electricity must be thoroughly known to any man who aimed to play a big part in the steel business. Back to the workroom again for this persistent, tireless chap and next he is an electrician.

The Man for Superintendency

The boy who knew the works from the ground up, could handle telegraph messages, was an expert machinst and who mastered electricity as easily as he had other details of the work of many sorts he found in his road to success was just the sort of man to be made general superintendent in a Carnegie corporation.

First, however, Dinkey took on his really big job, the management of the great electric power and electric light plant of the Homestead works of the Carnegie Steel Co.

He qualified there as he had in everything else from water boy to machinist. Nobody was surprised when his next step was to the top of the ladder, the presidency of the Carnegie Steel Co.

One of the great assets as an executive in the steel business of Alva Clymer Dinkey is that he knows men and knows how to handle them. He knew thousands personally by name and as a friend of the workers in the Carnegie plants he knew their habits of thought and what they would do in any circumstance as a body. He had the reputation of calm, kind, sure judgment. He kept his word, yes or no. The men never quarreled with him. Though they differed with him often, they remained his friends. Dinkey never faced a hostile camp of workers, even when the workers and the company were at odds. The best element, the soundest of the workers, believed in Dinkey, knew he was "on the level," and were his friends as men, no matter what their differences as employer and employe.

When Midvale induced Alva C. Dinkey to leave Carnegie Steel and join its forces at its Wall street, his old comrade, William Ellis Corey, was there, a very rich man. Corey was the son of a well-to-do Braddock merchant, and Corey made money from the first. He is an inventor as was Alva C. Dinkey during their years in the workshops of Andrew Carnegie. Corey was a strong supporter of Dinkey to succeed to the presidency of Carnegie when Corey left that post to head United States Steel in 1903.

Corey had more school opportunities than Schwab or the "water boy," Dinkey. His first job was dumper of coal on his uncle's coal tipple in Braddock. He soon left it, however, and obtained a place as helper in the laboraries of the Edgar Thompson Steel Works. For years Corey worked day and night in perfecting himself in chemistry, especially the chemistry of the steel business.

Corey was born at Braddock, May 4, 1866, less than three months after the birth of his lifetime friend, Dinkey, and was educated in the public schools and in Duff's College. He was 16 when he entered the employ of the Thompson Steel Works. Then, five years later, he went, rising always, to the Homestead works. He had specialized in the chemistry of steel-plate making, and he was only 23 years old in [illegible] when he was made superintendent of the Homestead plate mill. Four years later he was made superintendent of the armor-plate department and in 1897, at the age of 31, he succeeded Schwab as general superintendent of the Homestead works.

Worth $10,000,000 at 35

When Schwab was nominated by Andrew Carnegie to the presidency of United States Steel in 1901, Corey became president of the Carnegie Steel Co., and held that post until he was made president of United States Steel in 1903. He remained in that position until [illegible], though his marriage in 1907 to Mabelle [illegible], an actress and light opera singer, started [illegible] that the gossip occasioned by his marriage [illegible] caused United States Steel directors to [illegible] against further retention of their president.

Astonishing Revelations in New Texas-Arkansas Oil Stock Frauds

$100,000,000 GATHERED IN FROM "SUCKERS" BY MISLEADING BUT "SAFE" ADVERTISING

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic Explorer, Among the 92 Promotors Indicted on Charges of Using the Mails to Defraud—Convictions Considered Unlikely Because of Skillful Wording of Literature That Legally Destroyed Promises of Riches to Investors.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
FORT WORTH, Tex., May 5.

IF an oil promoter publishes an alluring advertisement that appears to promise what it really doesn't promise at all, and if it serves to separate a few thousand innocent fortune seekers from their savings, the fault lies entirely with the investors for being "suckers" and not with the promoters for taking their money, according to the pleas being advanced by some 92 Texas oil promoters who soon will be brought to trial in the United States Court here on the charge of using the mails to defraud.

The situation recently revealed in this country of oil booms, sudden riches and equally sudden bankruptcies, by the indictment of these 92 promoters is one that in many respects resembles the old childhood game of "prisoner's base." As everybody will recall, in that old school-day frolic, the adventurer might invade forbidden territory with impunity and flirt outrageously with capture so long as he remembered to shout "king's excuse" upon being pursued by that individual designated as "it."

Now, in this grown up game of "prisoner's base," as it is played in the Southwest, the Government is "it" and the oil stock sharks are cavorting about under his nose, fleecing their victims and piling up millions in profits, but never forgetting to provide "king's excuse" immunity for themselves by employing certain carefully selected and inconspicuous words to nullify their advertisements' promises of riches.

Elusive Verbiage as Protection.

Even now that the Government has decided the game has gone far enough and has declared that the "king's ex" stuff is off, the decision and the indictments growing out of it are not causing the oil sharks to worry a great deal about prison terms, because they are well acquainted with the notorious tendency of courts in this country to try cases on technicalities rather than on their merits, and they are smiling with ill-concealed satisfaction at the picture of helplessness they expect the prosecutor to present when he tries to convict them.

What if their advertisements did carry impressive photographs of derricks and spouting gushers and busy refineries, and what if they did speak eloquently of fortunes that might be made overnight on small investments and of staggerings dividends the operators aimed to distribute? Those ads didn't actually say the wells belonged to the particular company represented in the literature, and as to the fortunes and dividends, they only said that fortunes "might" be made and that the operators "aimed" to make liberal distribution of dividends.

What if these ads were instrumental in extracting $100,000,000 from some 2,000,000 investors in two or three years? How is the Government going to prove intent to defraud with those advertisements so carefully worded as to say one thing to investors and another to the law?

And so, with this sort of argument, the promoters are going right ahead with their little game—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Arctic explorer, now turned oil magnate; S. E. J. Cox, "the aviator-oil man;" J. W. Carruth, E. C. Kingsbury and almost a hundred others. Only a few weeks ago Cox won an acquittal in the Federal Court at Houston on similar charges, and he won it because of the skillful wording employed in the letters, telegrams and advertisements shown in court.

The prosecution couldn't prove intent to defraud.

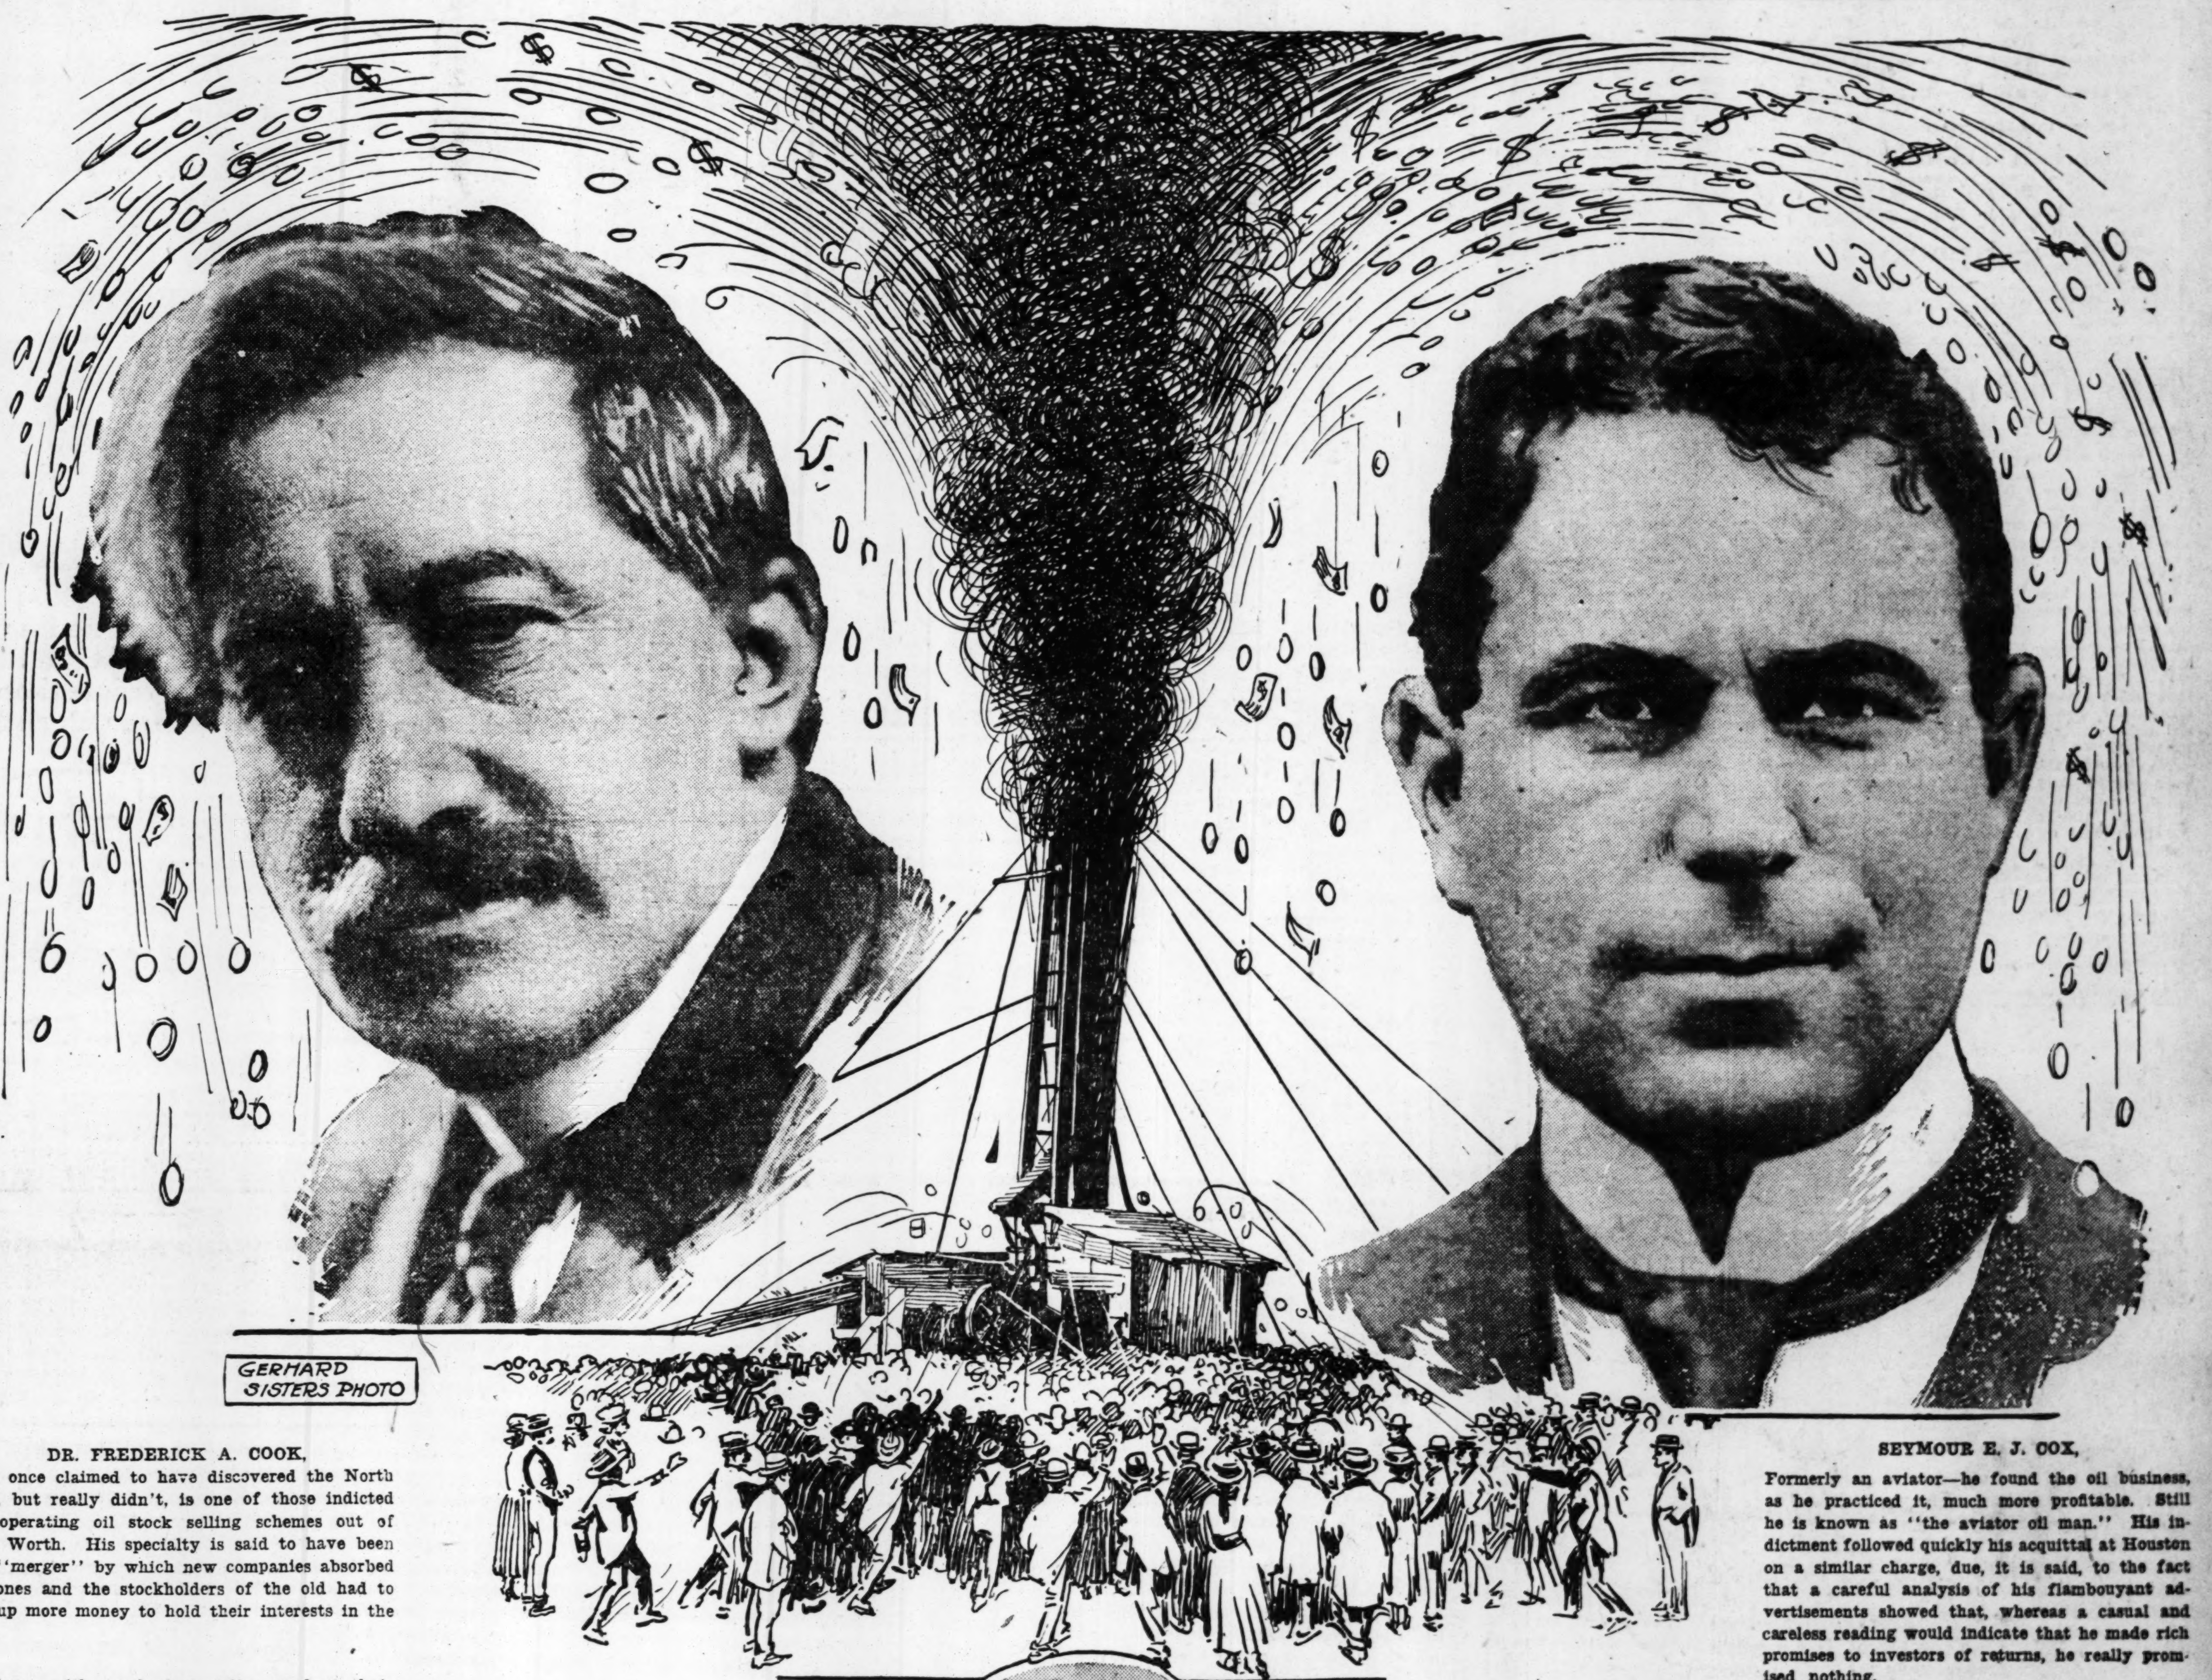
Now, Cox again and the others accused along with him are relying on the same technicalities to defeat the Government's case. Their only fear seems to be that the widespread publicity given to their methods may operate to cut down their profits.

Even in this, though, there is some solace, for long acqutainance with the "sucker's" penchant for parting with his money has taught oil stock sharks that it takes more than publicity and even one good fleecing to cure him.

However, the Government is taking another view of the situation, and it is one that bodes no good for fraudulent promoters. United States District Attorney Zweifel, who conducted the investigation, is out for a finish fight on all manipulators of questionable stocks, and even though there is little hope of convicting most of the promoters of making false agreements, officials assert there is an excellent prospect for convicting them of illegal diversion of funds, for it is charged that virtually all the companies regarded the money received for shares as their own, once it came into their hands, and disposed of it accordingly.

Victims From All Compass Points.

Since oil was discovered in North Texas in 1917, or rather since the first big field was opened in that year, there have been at least a thousand oil companies operating in Fort Worth. Many of them have large and valuable holdings, with producing wells, conduct their business on a strictly legitimate basis and pay liberal and honest dividends to their stockholders. A large number, however, without a single producing well, have piled up tremendous fortunes simply through the sale of their stock. Some of these were simply fly-by-nights which flared forth brilliantly for a few days in elaborately furnished offices and then disappeared, their officials having filled their pockets with investors' money. This is the sort of business that the Government is now trying to wipe out.



DR. FREDERICK A. COOK,
Who once claimed to have discovered the North Pole, but really didn't, is one of those indicted for operating oil stock selling schemes out of Fort Worth. His specialty is said to have been the "merger" by which new companies absorbed old ones and the stockholders of the old had to put up more money to hold their interests in the new.

SEYMOUR E. J. COX,
Formerly an aviator—he found the oil business, as he practiced it, much more profitable. Still he is known as "the aviator oil man." His indictment followed quickly his acquittal at Houston on a similar charge, due, it is said, to the fact that a careful analysis of his flambouyant advertisements showed that, whereas a casual and careless reading would indicate that he made rich promises to investors of returns, he really promised nothing.

The Texas public by no means furnishes all the victims who fatten the purses of these concerns. In fact, Texans are in the minority, for they have had better opportunity to become acquainted with the oil shark's operations. The "sucker list" is not restricted to any state or community. It inhabits a belt that stretches from New England to California and from Alaska to Mexico.

The "literature" and oil journals carrying the "end-of-the-rainbow" advertising are sent to paid lists. Once a "sucker," always a "sucker," is the theory upon which the oil sharks proceed and they try diligently to see that none is overlooked. If a person in Maine buys a few shares of Texas oil stock his name is handed around to 500 oil companies or so and thereafter for several years he will receive every day literature calling his attention to the marvelous chances for wealth he is missing unless he wakes up and wires an investment at once, as the "books are about to be closed."

Nearly every advertisement of every company contains this pet phrase that "the books are about to be closed." They never are closed—never will be, to anyone sending in money. There is no record that any purchase price of oil stock ever was returned because the stock had been taken up.

It has never been explained just why an investor thinks a promoter, who advertises that he has struck a great gusher and has millions of dollars in sight, would want to part with some of that money and give him a lot of it.

Here is an excerpt from one of the advertisements that are now running in Texas oil papers, exactly the same kind, the use of which brought about the 92 indictments for fraudulent use of the mails:

"We've got a 2000-acre block directly south of the great El Dorado oil field on the famous Middlefork structure, surrounded on three sides by the great oil fields of El Dorado, Smackover, Homer and Haynesville and on the east by the Monroe Gas Field—the biggest in the world. You take half the property and half the profits. A 20,000-barrel well on this 2000-acre block will make the property worth from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000, and would make an investment of just $25 worth to you $800 to $16,000, about 30 to 1. A hundred spot would give you a tidy stake for life. Slip your check in the mail today and watch our smoke. We are out to win quick and win big. Bet your stack, men, and bet 'em quick. There's a fortune at stake for us all."

The units of this $25,000,000 profit concern are offered at $1, each.

Looks Good But Promises Nothing.

There is no kind of an agreement anywhere in that ad that an investor will ever get a cent. The company does not even say it has a good location. It says property is surrounded, mark you, surrounded, by a great oil field, but how far distant the paying wells are the ad does not indicate. The ad does not say that the company will have or that it expects a 20,000 barrel well. It merely says that a 20,000 barrel well would be worth perhaps $20,000,000, and no doubt it would. Anyone would know that much.

There you are. That is a sample of the wording of all the catch advertisements that have caught about 2,000,000 "suckers." There is nothing in that advertisement that would convict.

Another company has a page ad in an oil journal which has across its top the following seven-column warning:

"Your Money Must Be on the Way by Midnight."

After that, of course, the "books will close," as usual.

The ad goes on to say that the company has struck another gusher in the Smackover field that is flowing 10,000 barrels—in how long a period the ad is careful not to say. The company has a generous heart, according to the ad, for it offers 75 per cent of the profits to the shareholders and a 10,000 barrel well, if it made that much every day, would be worth anyone's consideration. Just why the company needs so much money after it actually has brought in such a paying gusher is hard to conceive, for any group of bankers would jump at the chance to finance such a big oil well. Yet the company is appealing to investors to send it all the money possible at $10 a share.

U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEY ZWEIFEL
He will lead the prosecution of the 92 indicted promoters.

But this company, as well as all other promotion companies, never puts in its ads the fact that a 10,000 barrel well today may become a dribbling 50-barrel well tomorrow. The biggest well ever discovered in the Smackover field flowed about 50,000 barrels the first day and in a week it got down to only 50 barrels. But promoters quickly seized on this and in glowing, but mushy, literature, said that they had wells proposed or drilling close to this 50,000 barrel gusher, which is now but 50.

Getting the "Sucker" All Worked Up.

One promoter uses a double-page ad in which he admits having made millions in oil, but apparently he is out of ready cash just now, for he begs for people to wire at once to El Dorado, Ark., all their spare cash at $10 a share. This is a remarkable ad. It reveals the advertiser's belief in the gullibility of the American people. The company promoters never would have placed it there unless they knew it would bring returns. There is nothing in the two pages which assures any investor of returns. It merely recites in colorful language what all the promoter did. Here is an excerpt:

"Without turning a hand, without the expenditure of a cent of money or an ounce of effort, we shall have made clear more than $250,000 cash. If I were selling all our oil, if I were not looking ahead, if I had no thought of tomorrow, then I would have closed the books. I did not bring in these 11 gushers to stimulate the sale of units. I brought in these gushers to make money for my unit holders. Sweating and toiling in body and brain I have won as no man has won before. I have pursued my course toward that glory goal as an arrow in its flight. I started out to make the man who puts $1000 with me rich, $5000 a fortune and $10,000 a millionaire."

He closes with a note of sympathy for the poor, honest man—that is, if the poor, honest man will send him $10.

Promise Implied, but Not Expressed.

"Is there no hope?" he asks. "Are all the balance of your years to be like those just past merely because you have gazed with unseeing eyes upon your opportunity? Heaven forbid! There is a chance. There is hope. You can get in. You have yet time to act. But you must do it now."

The guarded wording of one company which runs a page ad, leads the careless reader to think that it says it is going to pay investors a profit of 700 per cent from a 50,000 barrel well. However, it says nothing of the sort. It says:

"My well drilling on 20,000 acres in Northern Arkansas will, in my belief, be a 50,000 barrel gusher when completed. A big gusher here will make these 20,000 acres worth upwards of $10,000,000, possibly $30,000,000, and I propose to sell this property immediately following the completion of the gusher."

And readers are asked to subscribe for stock at $1 a share, but the company has invented a new name. It calls the shares "beneficial interests."

Another promoter carries a page ad of similar gush, minus gusher. He, like all other promoters dealing with Smackover stock, makes use of the Burton well, which has largely dwindled, to make the reader think he is buying the Burton instead of his own stuff.

"Is is my aim," the advertiser says—though aim, of course, doesn't mean anything—"after the declaration of the first big cash dividend, to pay monthly cash dividends in ever-increasing volume. The Burton and Vitek gushers are reported to have sold already $500,000 worth of oil. Our three wells should surpass this tremendous production."

He is safe. He merely "aims," and he says his wells "should surpass." They should, but——

Frequently the promoters make use of telegrams to "suckers," well knowing the psychology of the wire. A man may pay little attention to a letter or to an ad requesting him to send money. But when a messenger boy brings in a telegram, when he signs for the message and reads a brief line or two, he attaches much importance to the procedure. These messages have brought in countless thousands of dollars to the promoters. They are all worded the same way. They warn the investor that unless he sends in his contribution, although it is called investment, immediately his chance for a fortune will go glimmering, as "the books will be closed."

One oil company here paid the Western Union $16,000 for one day's messages, but the telegrams repaid it, for they brought in more than $100,000.

Expressions commonly used in the ads and letters say that the promoters are on the "brink" or on the "verge" of a great fortune. They usually stay "on the brink" unless the fortune comes in the shape of donations by unit buyers.

None of them says that it has stock for sale. Always it is "units," and why the investor fails to realize they are synonymous terms is a mystery. The investor wouldn't think of gambling in stock, but when it comes to units, that's different, he says. Some arch promoters have

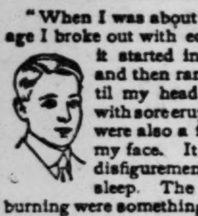
Cuticura Heals Itching Burning Eczema On Head



"When I was about two years of age I broke out with eczema. First it started in small spots and then ran together until my head was covered with sore eruptions. There were also a few spots on my face. It caused great disfigurement and loss of sleep. The itching and burning were something awful, causing me to be very cross.

"My parents decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the first treatment there was immediate relief, and before they had finished one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) George Bolle, DuPo, Illinois.

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum are all you need for every-day toilet and nursery purposes.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. K, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

Pimlpy? Well, Don't Be

People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

ored above the power of Benjamin Purnell to confer honor, for Brother Tucker says its selection for the House of David was not according to the dictates o ferrant judgment, but was directed by the God of Israel. However that may be, it came to pass that on May 29, 1893, the Israelite House of David was incorporated for 30 years, with headquarters at Benton Harbor.

Why the Long Hair and Whiskers?

The printing presses were started and have been kept going ever since. Benjamin sent forth his bugle calls and the faithful began to "ingather." It was a small beginning. A few lots of ground were donated by some of the brothers. Later farms were leased and then bought and now the colony owns between 4000 and 5000 acres, including a timbered island in northern Lake Michigan.

One of the things which helped to draw attention to Benjamin and his band was the fashion set by Benjamin and enjoined upon all his followers to let their hair and whiskers grow wild. The reason, as Brother Tucker explains it, is that the law of God says: "Thou shalt not round the corners of thy head nor mar the corners of thy beard,"

Said Brother Tucker: "If God had wanted us to have short hair he would have made us that way. Jesus is our pattern and waymark. He did not shave and cut his hair. Therefore we should not. Besides, the hair is hollow and conducts electricity to the body. It also conducts the spirit, which works through the hair to the body of man."

An incidental circumstance was that the long hair and the whiskers helped to advertise the colony, though Brother Benjamin had never thought of that.

The colony grew until, at one time, it is said to have had about 1500 members. Nobody seems to know how many there are now. Brother Tucker fidgeted a little when he was asked.

"We don't number our people," he said. "Approximately several hundred. Just put it down less than a thousand. We could have many

More Beautiful— and Less Expensive

Your baby can have a lovelier carriage today than ever before. Not only is it more graceful in its curving, unbroken lines, and flawless in its weaving; it is less expensive.

The remarkable Lloyd Loom—the invention of Marshall B. Lloyd—is responsible for this transformation in baby carriages. It weaves a smooth, strong, endless strand of finest wicker into a graceful bowl shape, without seams, corners or short ends. And, because it weaves thirty times as fast as hands, a Lloyd Loom Carriage can be bought for a lower price than has ever before been asked for a fine baby carriage.

The only carriage woven in desired shape from one endless wicker strand.

Don't accept a substitute. Find the Lloyd nameplate on the seat.

Every feature contributes strength, beauty and convenience—the resilient, oil-tempered springs; fifth wheel reversible gear; continuous steel pushers; special wheels; patented automatic hood adjustment; sturdy construction to resist hard wear; handsome corduroy upholstery; lasting enamel finish.

more if we wanted them. We are keeping them back. We send our preachers around, but not to get numbers. We do not accept near all who apply. We do not take them in unless we are sure that they are ready."

Every person who enters the community surenders to Benjamin and Mary as trustees, everything that he possesses and agrees to work and let all of his earnings go into the "commonwealth," receiving in return only his food and shelter and clothing and other necessities. If the man is married he and his wife may elect to continue living together, but this is contrary to the teaching and advice of the leaders and in few instances do man and wife continue to affront the colony's opinion by living outwardly together. If there are children they are not taken from the parents, although, at suitable age, it may be found advantageous, in the judgment of the leaders, to assign children to different houses.

"Complete Confidence in Benjamin"

It is all a mistake, Brother Tucker says, that fortunes are brought by converts and laid in the laps of Benjamin and Mary. "Exactly the contrary is true," he said. "Seventy-five per cent of our members are indigents when they come in. If this organization is destroyed the county will have a lot of old men and women to care for."

It will not surprise Brother Tucker if it is destroyed. They rather expect it, he says, but it will be raised up again. Meantime, Tucker says, the colony has complete confidence in Benjamin. "He is the head of our organization." If he was crooked, we wouldn't tolerate him for half a minute. It is impossible that such things as are alleged against him could have been going on. I have been here 20 years, and if there was anything of the kind I would know it. It is simply persecution and blackmail.

"I do not know exactly where he is. Probably others do. He went away in January for the winter and then all this hubbub and wrangle and jangle came up. I don't know why he hasn't returned. I wouldn't return either, if I was him. We can take care of it."

A request to be permitted to interview Mrs. Purnell (Mary) was denied. Brother Tucker said she was very busy, and besides, with her husband under fire, she would not care to receive visitors. But he could say

SULPHUR Heals Itching Scalp

Any breaking out of the skin, even itching eczema of the scalp, can be quickly healed by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist.

For any unsightly skin eruption, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ-destroying properties nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation, which soothes and heals the skin and leaves it clear and smooth.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified cocoanut oil in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

Old Folks "Fall in Love"

With Balmwort Kidney Tablets

It would do your heart good to read the happy, grateful letters written by elderly folks who have endured kidney and bladder trouble for weeks, months or years, as the case may be, and who at last found the help sought in quick-acting, mild, balmy Balmwort Tablets.

Balmwort Straightens You Up Quick

Old folks are amazed; they "fall in love" with this wonderful medicine. Of course, they are good for young and middle-aged, too; but when the dear, old folks need help in this sort of trouble, they need quick, mild, generous help such as Balmwort alone affords.

Dr. Lewis Baker says: "Too many elderly folks are given to using medicine, salts, oils, etc., which 'flush' the kidneys by over-stimulation, frequently doing more harm than good."

So many folks have kidneys and bladders that are easily affected by colds, fatigue, indigestion, worry, exposure to dampness, or even to overwork—hard labor; and right away they wake up in the morning with painful stiffness of muscles, aching back, swollen feet and limbs, puffy limbs, puffs under the eyes, and a general feeling of sluggishness. Then begins bladder torture—and then a constant "worn-out" feeling day after day, with great nervousness.

The mild, soothing, tonic (diuretic) influence of Balmwort tablets goes quickly to work, often with the first few doses, and real satisfaction follows. Fifteen years of quiet, gentle success makes Balmwort a medicine in a class by itself, "Thousands have proved it."

All good druggists supply regular size $1.25; Trial size 60 cents.

Columbus, Ohio, Woman Says Balmwort Cleared Up Dark Circles Around Eyes.

Dear Sirs: I want to write a few lines for the Balmwort Tablets. I picked up a booklet on my porch, read it and got a box of the tablets and must say they have helped me. They have helped clear up the dark circles around my eyes and I feel more rested and stronger through the back and region of the bladder. I am now starting my second box. I am 46 years old and writing this to help another soul in distress. Yours truly,

Mrs. C. Pressing, 942 McAllister Av.,
Columbus, Ohio.

No Rest at Night, Nerves Shattered

Gentlemen: I write you with pleasure to inform you that I have been taking your Balmwort Tablets. I have been suffering with inflammation of the bladder for over two years. I had no rest at nights and my nerves were all gone. I have taken five boxes of Balmwort Tablets and am well again. I haven't taken any for four weeks now and I still feel fine. Thank goodness no getting up at nights now. My age is seventy-four and am a machinist by trade.

George Caldecott, 9 Acorn St.,
New Bedford, Mass.

A Very Grateful Woman Calls Balmwort "Wonderful Medicine."

Gentlemen: With great pleasure I want to praise your wonderful medicine, Balmwort Tablets.

They do all and more than you claim for them, and may the blessing of God be with you for discovering such a wonderful medicine. For 5 years I suffered day and night with bladder pain that was almost unbearable. I got very little rest at night, so at my age (75 years) I was almost played out. I used one box and all my pain and suffering disappeared. But in fear my trouble would return I got a second box and take one occasionally, which keeps me in perfect condition.

You have my permission to use this letter in any way to help suffering humanity. Yours very truly,

Mrs. Laura A. Edwards, 907 Upr. 11th St.,
Vincennes, Ind.

THE HOUSE OF DAVID— STORY OF ITS ORIGIN, CUSTOMS AND BELIEFS

for her that she had complete confidence in her husband.

The Purnells have a son, who is about 35 years old. He is not a member of the colony. Tucker was asked if he was friendly to it.

"Oh, Lord, yes," he said. "It is just like in the churches. A man may be a member and his children may not be. I have three sons and a daughter. The daughter is a member. The sons are not."

Tucker wanted it made plain that the members do not look upon Purnell and his wife as king and queen.

"The titles of King Benjamin and Queen Mary were given them by the outside world," he said. "They are just Brother Benjamin and Sister Mary, like the rest of us."

As the men move in leisurely fashion about the grounds, doing light tasks or nothing at all, they seem to be listless and lacking in energy and there is remarkable sameness in the mildness of expression of their faces and eyes. Some of them like to stand around and watch others work. Men of force and executive capacity come and go, with suggestion of energy that is in contrast with the others. These are in charge of the departments. But they do not speak to the idlers and those who go listlessly about their work.

In Brother Tucker's office is a sign which reads: "No loafing allowed. This is a business office and must be used as such." Three men were in the office. They were doing nothing, but maybe they were not loafing. One of them got up and walked briskly to the door and I thought he was going to do something. He opened the door and spat outside and returned to his seat and his meditations.

Vegetarianism Adds to Colony's Thrift.

Afterward, sitting outside, the sparrows came expectantly near and Brother Tucker spoke to them in baby talk, which they seemed to like, and threw crumbs to them, from his pocket, which they seemed to like even better. Love of all living things is taught at the House of David. The commandment, "Thou Shalt Not Kill," is obeyed implicitly, which is why the members eat no flesh or fish or fowl.

There is obvious advantage in feeding 800 or 1000 persons on the vegetables that they raise rather than on meat, which costs a good deal of money, but maybe that is another thing that Benjamin did not think of when he made the regulation.

The House of David is practically a world unto itself. The members live in large residences built like hotels. These bear such names as "Bethlehem," "Jerusalem," and "Shiloh,' partly as mere designations and partly as marking the progress of Christ's life on earth. They have their individual rooms, to which they are assigned, eat their vegetarian meals in the general dining room, go about the tasks to which they are assigned according to their varying abilities and when they want anything they make requisition upon the common storehouse.

This is replenished from the farms and from the shops at which is manufactured practically everything that the members need. Clothing and shoes, not made in the colony, are bought in quantities and distributed as the members have need. If the clothes do not always fit, it is no great matter.

Vote as Benjamin Decrees.

Individually, nobody owns anything. As a commodity they all own everything. They call it the "commonwealth." Into it goes everything that a person or family possesses when entering the community. Into it goes all the product of the labor of all the members. Out of it each draws only what he can eat and wear and otherwise use. If a member doesn't like it he can quit and go away but he cannot take away what he brought or what he created by his toil while there. That is, unless he goes to court and wins, as some withdrawing members have just done. If he goes without a contest all he takes is what he has on his back. The fruit of his years of toil in the common vineyard remains in the common fund. It is lost to him forever.

What They Get Out of It.

The rewards offered to the faithful are food and shelter and raiment as long as they live, provided the organization holds together that long, a bodily immortality to be striven for and an $85 interment if death sets a period to the striving. Death is in disrepute in the House of David. A member who dies is by that fact shown to have come short of what it is the privilege of a true Israelite to become. By dying a member in a manner disgraces himself and his brethren. So all that he gets is interment at the contract price of $85, without mourners or ceremony or headstone to mark his last resting place.

The House of David has been under the fire of investigation for several weeks in connection with a suit of former members for recovery of what they contributed to the colony and for the value of their services. There was testimony of immoral practices on the part of Benjamin. The decision of Federal Judge John E. Sater was against him and his practices were severely denounced in an opinion from the bench in which he was accused of cloaking religion with fraud. A grand jury inquiry has been in progress, with Purnell as the central figure. A quo warranto proceeding has also been filed by the State of Michigan for the dissolution of the establishment. The progress of these proceedings is being told in daily news dispatches and it is not necessary to review them here.

Town Against Benjamin but Likes Colony.

The sentiment of the community seems to be adverse to Benjamin, on account of the serious charges against his personal conduct, but friendly to the organization as a whole, the members of which are not thought to have been implicated in misconduct.

Incidental to the recent investigations there have been group marriages, in which, according to testimony, the men and girls were paired by lot. The purpose is alleged to have been to prevent the brides from testifying in any matter against their husbands.

The colony is credited with voting as a unit for the candidates recommended by Brother Benjamin. Berrien County is Republican and the votes of the Davidites are most effective at the primaries, but even at an election the House of David bloc might determine the result.

Eden Park is the principal revenue producer for the colony. Great crowds visit it every Sunday during the summer and there is a fair attendance on week days. The conduct of the park is above criticism, except that church people do not approve of it being run as a money-making proposition on Sunday. The House of David men's band and women's band play and make good music. The House of David baseball team plays good ball.

"There is no gambling or catchpenny games or rough-house stuff," says Brother Tucker, manager of the park, dropping into the vernacular of the park. "We provide sensational free attractions, but everything is decent. We have motion pictures. They are not always free from objection, but we can't get perfect ones However, there are never any leg shows or lascivious films."

Sunday Like Other Days to Them.

As for running their shows on Sunday, all days look alike to the Davidites.

"To us," says Brother Tucker, "Sunday is simply the first day of the week. There is no law, human or divine, against running our place on Sunday. If there was, we wouldn't run it. Every day is Sunday to us. We think that the thing that is wrong to do on Sunday is wrong to do on Monday. God hasn't set one day above another. We aim to do no wrong on any day."

Benjamin No Forceful Personality.

Singularly, the man who is at the head of all this, when he is not hiding somewhere, is spoken of by those who know him best as not being a forceful personality. With his long black hair and his long black beard he looks much like other men of the colony. There is a whisper that the blackness of his hirsute adornment attests the excellence of the dye that he uses, but if this is so it is one of the secrets of Shiloh, his domicile, where he lives in richly furnished apartments, in contrast to the plain furnishings of the rooms occupied by his brethren.

He has the same amiable manner and the same limpidity of eye as the other men. His manner is suave, but he has no great personal magnetism. A certain illiteracy is betrayed by his conversation and writings. It is recognized that several of the members of his inner council are abler men than he.

There is a dandified fastidiousness about him which is calculated to win the approval of some women. He wears usually a frock coat suit of very light tan and a broad-brimmed hat to match, white silk hose, and has his hair and beard carefully combed. He has none of the force and the oratorical powers of the late Alexander Dowie, founder of Zion City, across the lake His public speech is argumentative, sprinkled with quotations from the Scriptures.

"Benjamin is no flubdub," says Brother Tucker. "You never met a more humble man or a more genteel man. The administration is largely delegated."

The secret of his ascendancy and power is simply the measure of divinity implied in his claim of being the "seventh messenger," or imputed to him by his followers. This places him on a pedestal among them irrespective of his personality or attributes or delinquencies.

Attacks on Benjamin "Persecution."

The revelation of alleged misconduct on his part with girls of the sect is looked upon by the House of David, apparently, as persecution which is added proof of his claims.

"We are being persecuted as Christ was persecuted," says Brother Tucker. "But it is written that the iniquity of Israel shall be sought for and shall not be found. They may take everything away from us, but another House of David will be raised up and it will have ten times as much stuff as this. And the time will come when the Gentiles will cry out unto Israel. It is written they shall throw their gold and silver at Israel's feet. But there will be nothing doing."

A group of bearded brothers sat in the sun for the sake of the early spring warmth which it gave. They were finding life a pleasant thing.

The colony cut-up tweaked the beard of his brother and said "Bush," which gave them all vast amusement. They were willing to be photographed and some were even obliging enough to remove their caps and let their hair fall over their shoulders. And the cut-up pointed out the baseball star, who smiled modestly, and the wrestling star, who bulged his muscles, and the star this and the star that, to the edification of all concerned.

The dinner bell rang and the bearded brothers trooped across to Jerusalem for their vegetarian repast. And Brother Tucker, apologizing that he could not extend the hospitality of the House of David to a Gentile, followed them within.

THREE $1-A-DAY BOYS WHO HAVE BECOME RIVALS OF STEEL TRUST

000,000. He has been active on the finance side of the steel business ever since he became president of Carnegie.

"Who's Who" describes Corey as "capitalist" and the list of great corporations in which he is a director include Sinclair Consolidated Oil, American International Corporation, American Bank Note Co., Baldwin Locomotive Works, Cambria Steel, Cuba Cane Sugar, Green Cananea Copper, Inspiration Copper, International Nickel and many others. He is a member of many clubs and lives at 991 Fifth avenue, New York.

Distinctive work in steel making of Corey was his invention of the so-called Carnegie process of reforging armor plate.

When he succeeded Schwab as head of United States Steel he had no such outstanding place as did his predecessor. The business of that great corporation had become organized on lines which made the chairman of its board, Judge Gary, the leading financial force of the corporation. There was much interest in Corey and his history when he was named to succeed Schwab, but after that he did not appear in the news until announcement of his approaching marriage to the actress was made.

There was a great to do over the fate of the first Mrs. Corey, and the "sob sisters," first so named about that time, interviewed everybody they could find and told how Mrs. Corey No. 1 had helped to build up her husband's fortune and invested an inheritance of her own in the purchase of the first house they occupied after she, at the age of 17, had become Mrs. Corey.

Mrs. Corey obtained a divorce in Reno, Nev., which her husband did not contest. Corey was reported to have settled a large fortune upon her and another upon their son. Corey was a rich man in early manhood and stories of a struggle of the young couple with poverty made no impression on those who had known the going young financier and steel maker from boyhood.

Married at 1:00 in the Morning.

He married Mabelle Gillman in the Hotel Gotham, New York, about 1 o'clock in the morning of April 14, 1907, two years after separation from his first wife. The wedding was delayed after midnight to escape the 13 hoodoo. The Coreys went abroad and Mrs. Corey has lived in Europe most of the time. The first Mrs. Corey married Glenn Duckworth of Pittsburg.

Corey's resignation as president of United States Steel was offered and accepted on Jan. 10, 1911, and he went again to Midvale as chairman of the board. There, four years later, he was joined by his old associate, Dinkey. Now, under the consolidation he remains on the board, thus making complete the old-time group of the stake driver, the water boy and the laboratory helper.

About 1917 Schwab published a little book entitled "Succeeding With What You Have," and in which he set forth the secret of success as applied to the lives of those three boys—if, indeed, there remained any secret about it.

"The man who ultimately succeeds," he wrote, "is the man who uses his normal brain to think beyond the limits of his job." That in itself expressed a lot, but he continued:

"For 36 years I have been moving among workingmen in what is now the biggest branch of American industry, the steel business. In that time it has been my good fortune to watch most of the leaders rise from the ranks, ascend step by step to places of power. These men, I am convinced, are not natural prodigies. They won out by using normal brains to think beyond their manifest daily duty.

Doesn't Believe in Genius.

"The thing that most people call 'genius' I do not believe in. That is, I am sure that few successful men are so-called 'natural geniuses.' There is not a man in power in our Bethlehem steel works today who did not begin at the bottom and work his way up, round by round, simply by using his head and his hands a little more freely and a little more effectively than the men around him. Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem, worked in the yard when I first knew him. Others now occupying high positions were once stenographers and draftsmen. The 15 men in charge of the plants were selected not because of some startling stroke of genius, but because day in and day out they were doing little unusual things—thinking beyond their jobs.

"Most talk about super-geniuses is nonsense. I have found that when 'stars' drop out, successors are usually at hand to fill their places, and the successors are merely men who have learned by application and self-discipline to get full production from an average normal brain.

"I have always felt that the surest way to qualify for the job just ahead is to work a little harder than any-one else on the job one is holding down.

"One of the most successful men I have ever known never carried a watch until he began to earn $10,000 a year. Before that he had managed with a nickel alarm clock in his bedroom and he never forgot to wind it. Young men may enjoy dropping their work at 5 or 6 o'clock and slipping into a dress suit for an evening of pleasure, but the habit has certain drawbacks.

"I happen to know several able-bodied gentlemen who got it so completely that now they are spending all their time, days as well as evenings, in dress suits, serving food in fashionable restaurants to men who did not get the dress suit habit until somewhat later in life."

Once Schwab was asked if he believed that it was the man with brains who eventually would succeed. "Not exactly," he replied, "because the man with brains is already a success. He may or may not make a great deal of money. That depends upon his opportunity. But he knows how to live. I am acquainted with many men who have inherited wealth. They don't enjoy it. I don't enjoy mine. You see, I don't think I possess extraordinary brains, and there are several poor men, any one of whom I would like to be.

"In Pittsburg there is an old friend of mine, an astronomer, who at 30 or 40 years was known as a master of his chosen field. He has hardly any money. But I would give up mine if I could be a supremely great scientist like that man.

"I always pity a man who says: 'When I get so much money I'm going to retire and enjoy life.' For my part, I shall work until I die.

"I'm not working for money. I've made more money now than I'll ever spend. I'm not working for my children. I haven't any. I'm working for the sake of my work. It's my child, my all. Not long ago I had a fabulous offer for my business. I told my wife that the money she would receive from her half would bring her a monthly income of hundreds of thousands. 'Don't sell,' she said. 'In the first place, how would I spend all that money? In the second place, what would you do without your work?' There you have it now. What would I do without my work?"

REVELATIONS IN NEW TEXAS - ARKANSAS OIL STOCK FRAUD CASES

even quit saying units and call shares "beneficial interests," which make the investor still more anxious to buy.

Frauds Through Use of Lee's Name.

The list of indictments includes five men connected with the so-called Gen. Robert A. Lee Development Interests. These men are the "General" himself, Philip Goldstein, alias Ralph P. Gibson; Nathan P. Sang, alias N. J. Lang; Max Hersch and Walter Marks.

According to the indictment papers, the promoters used "General" Lee only as a figurehead, who was held up fraudulently to the public as a descendant of the famous Lees of colonial days and of Gen. Robert E. Lee. Robert A. was never a General, or even a Corporal, and is in no way related to the Lees of Virginia. He is, or was, one of the janitors in the Idaho State Capitol and the promoters paid him $12.50 a week for the use of his name.

The Government charges that the promoters deceived the public in the mails by saying that as Gen. Robert E. Lee gave his life to the cause of the South, so now is Gen. Robert A. Lee giving his life to the oil industry and the cause of humanity," and further, the charges assert that these indicted men represented Lee as a "successful, experienced geologist; in fact, a miracle man in geology;" that he has made fortunes in locating oil wells, and "among geological men he is revered and admired."

Not one of these representations is true, declares the Government, the indictment charging that Lee, "in fact, is a laborer, without expert knowledge, who never was known to the public as a geologist. He is not giving his life to the oil industry or to the cause of humanity, but is only trying to help promote a fraudulent scheme," declares the Government. The promoters say in their representations that Yankees and Rebels alike had swamped Gen. Lee with orders and purchased all stock in 15 days.

The indictment against Dr. Frederick A. Cook, former Arctic explorer, and several connected with him in the Petroleum Producers' Association, of which Cook is the head, charges fraud was practiced by the "merger" system. About as fast as Cook and associates could organize a new company, it was merged with the old. Then stockholders would be informed that in order to save what investment they made they would have to send in an additional 25 per cent in cash, which would entitle them to 2 per cent of the stock of the newly formed company. Naturally, the investors did not want to lose and, believing that they would unless they sent in more cash, they donated still more funds. It is alleged that Cook was involved in the formation of 200 merged companies in this way and that he and associates made about $7,000,000. District Attorney Zweifel says that the books of the remaining Cook company alone shows $500,000 was received through this scheme, but Cook denies the charge.

Stock Dividends as Company Bait.

The Government charges that Cook, the General Oil Company and S. E. J. Cox never had any dividends, but at times would send small payments to investors out of funds sent them by these same investors. The Petroleum Producers advertised big monthly payments to stockholders, as all of the companies do, but paid only twice, the payments being six weeks apart. However, the payments were not in cash, but in additional stock.

The indictment against Cook and associates quotes one paragraph in their literature, which the Government alleges is misrepresentation. This paragraph reads:

"The officers of the merging companies have struggled to find some means to make profits through stockholders and worked through burning days and sleepless nights to

This Boy is Worth a Million

Theodore Roosevelt Said:

"IT WAS this summer that I got my first gun, and it puzzled me to find that my boy companions seemed to see things to shoot at which I could not see at all. One day they read aloud an advertisement in huge letters on a distant billboard, and I then realized that something was the matter, for not only was I unable to read the sign, but I could not even see the letters. I spoke of this to my father, and soon afterwards got my first pair of spectacles, which literally opened an entirely new world to me.".........

"I had no idea how beautiful the world was until I got those spectacles."

........."I had been a clumsy and awkward little boy, and while much of my clumsiness and awkwardness was doubtless due to general characteristics, a good deal of it was due to the fact that I could not see, and yet was wholly ignorant that I was not seeing. The recollection of this experience gives me a keen sympathy and desire to remove the physical causes of deficiency in children, who are often unjustly blamed for being obstinate or unambitious or mentally stupid."

This Laxative Works Fine on Old People

Thousands have kept themselves healthy with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

ADVANCING age with its subdued ambitions and strivings could be made very happy if only good health accompanied it, and the basis of good health, as everyone learns upon reaching the age of 60, is the regular daily movement of the bowels. If it can be effected through the food you eat, the water you drink and the exercise you take, so much the better. But if nature will not operate it must be assisted or sickness will follow. Neglected constipation causes the blood pressure to go up 23 per cent, and that is the forerunner of hardening of the arteries. It makes rheumatism and gout worse, too.

The ideal constipation remedy for people of advancing years is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with pleasant-tasting aromatics. It is gentle and mild, and does not cramp or gripe. It is a mistake to think you need a violent salt or powder or pill, calomel, coal-tar drugs and such things. They purge and weaken you, and their reaction tends to make you more constipated than before.

Now try the milder method. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect with repeated use, and increased doses are unnecessary. Mrs. E. M. Burgess of Enfield, N. C., who is 73, keeps herself in good health with it, and Mr. Charles Chorman of Stapleton, Staten Island, N. Y., wasted fifteen years and considerable money on other remedies before finding steady relief with Syrup Pepsin.

Use Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin yourself the next time you suffer from constipation, biliousness, headache, sleeplessness, indigestion, piles or night cramps. Many thousands of elderly people use nothing else, and it costs them less than a cent a dose. Druggists have sold it successfully for 30 years, and it is the most widely bought family laxative in the world.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

REVELATIONS IN NEW TEXAS - ARKANSAS OIL STOCK FRAUD CASES

No financing or drilling campaign was attempted, says the Government.

It is charged that the Cook promoters also practiced a fraud when they put into the mails statements to effect that the Petroleum Producers Company was "exceedingly successful and has producing wells equal to a yearly dividend of 25 per cent" and that further fraud was used when the company gave out that "we are not dependent upon a single gusher to pay dividends, but have setled production from over 100 wells, pouring money into the dividend account so that the loss of one or two or a dozen wells will have no effect whatever upon the dividend rate."

Still more huge fraud was perpetrated upon the public, asserts the Government, when the Cook Company represented the probable yearly income after the proposed drilling of fifty wells in the Corsicana field "will be between $180,000,000 and $360,000,000."

Staggering figures, these. They were meant ,the prosecutor says, to make the public believe that the company was filling tanks with gold, when in fact it didn't even have a well.

The Revere Oil Co. is charged with practicing fraud in the same manner as did Cook and his associates by the merger plan. In addition, the Revere company is accused by the Government of sending to investors false financial statements regarding the value of its stock, oil production, plant and refineries. This company in literature and advertising used pictures showing what it is said to have claimed were its refineries. But in fact it has no refineries. The company operates several filling stations here and buys every gallon of gasoline for these stations from some producing company.

The Pilgrim Oil Co., according to Federal charges, adopted the merger plan to garner in the dollars. This company paid some small dividends from funds sent in by investors to buy units and not from any profits, says the Government, which asserts, by the way, that this scheme has been followed generally whenever dividends were paid, which was not often.

J. W. (Hog Creek) Carruth, one of the indicated promoters, who in his advertising and letters describes himself as an expert geologist, oil expert and discoverer of the big Desdemona field, knows nothing about oil and in fact, the Government charges, was a small-town barber who accidentally profited through the accomplishments of others. "He is not a geologist and not a practical oil man," reads the indictment, "and he was shaving faces in his home town when the Discovery well at Desdemona was brought in."

Yet Carruth in his advertising claims that he not only made this discovery, that he "fought for it, slaved for it and almost died for it." Two of Carruth's companies are included in the indictments—the J. W. Carruth Oil Co. and the Hog Creek Carruth Oil Co. The two concerns were promoted solely on Carruth's boasting of his reputation as an oil may, says the Government, which further alleges that Carruth and his associates used the money sent in by investors for their personal benefit and never had any profits from oil operations.

E. C. Kingsbury of Fort Worth, Republican aspirant for the postmastership here, is one of those indicted. Much pressure has been brought to bear upon President Harding to name him for this job by R. B. Creager, National Committeeman from Texas. Kingsbury is president of the Consolidated Producers and Refiners' Co. Kingsbury and associates are charged with representing that its stock agents were paid 15 per cent commission for sales, while in fact they were paid 30 per cent. Other alleged fraudulent dealings are charged against this concern, two other members besides Kingsbury, having been indicted.

O. L. Ray, one of the 93 indicted, in advertising the Smackover Petroleum Syndicate said:

"I aim to split a $2,000,000 jackpot with my partners."

Which doesn't bind him in any way. He just "aims" to split.

Three trustees of the Pilgrim Oil Co. face fraud charges. Here is one of their most modest assertions in an ad:

"Under the careful management of George M. Richardson, investors present and prospective, may rest calm and assured that the maximum in profits will be theirs in the sensational Smackover field.

What the "maximum" is or will be, is left entirely to conjecture.

The Consolidated company, headed by E. C. Kingsbury, was a $2,500,000 concern which fizzled out after hundreds of persons had sent in their investments, the Government alleges. But previous to that enterprise Kingsbury organized the Duke Consolidated Oil Co. In 1918 in Denver a stop was put to Kingsbury's stock selling operations after an oil company he promoted blew up. Denver authorities acted only after strong charges were made against Kingsbury.

The trial of the cases has been set before District Judge James C. Wilson of the United Court here for May 14. Federal Judge George W. Jack of Shreveport, La., will sit with him and it is probable that a third Judge will be selected. Only half of those indicted have been arrested, and the District Attorney will give out the names of only those men taken into custody. Dr. Cook was forced to put up the biggest bond, which was $40,000. It is reported that the Government attorneys who came here from Washington and outside cities wanted to make some of these bonds $100,000, but the move was opposed.

Early this week H. S. Bucher, E. J. Dailey and W. P. Elwell of the Bucher Smackover Trust, surrendered and were allowed $20,000 bail each. Zweifel declared that this company sold $800,000 worth of stock by making fraudulent promises. He further stated that the postal authorities are returning to investors money sent through the mails to two or three promotion companies. The amount returned, he said, totaled more than $100,000. According to the District Attorney, one company whose mail recently has been withheld, had been receiving $25,000 daily. He refused, however, to make the names of these companies public.

Meanwhile, as the time for the trial approaches, Fort Worth and Dallas oil publications continue to come out filled with advertisements of oil stocks and suggestions of great wealth to be made if only the investors will send in their money "before the books are closed."

Bond's Clothes
GOOD AS THE NAME

COMPARISON is Bond's Best Salesman!

Once a man compares Bond's Tailored Garments, style for style, tailoring for tailoring, with any ordinary retailer's clothes which sell for at least $10 to $20 more—that man then and there becomes a wearer of Bond's Clothes and a Bond booster for life.

The life of your Clothes is in the Tailoring

Genuine "Hymo" fronts.

Hand felled and hand shaped collar.

Special arrangement of stitching on lapel insures shape retention.

Buttonholes strictly handmade.

This comparison test never fails—simply because Bond's Tailored Clothes are the "last word" in style, in tailoring, in economy.

Bond's great business has been built to its present tremendous proportions by giving men the most of the best for the least expenditure.

When a man buys a Bond garment he knows he is dressed in America's smartest style. Our Tailor-Plant direct-to-the-wearer method makes it possible for us to show newer and better styles, months ahead of the "old-fashioned" clothiers, who buy most of their clothing just twice a year.

Smartest America's Styled Suits and Topcoats

$25. and $35.

From Bond's Own Tailor Plant Direct To You

2-Pants Suits

We have made an extra pair of pants for most every Suit in our stores, but we only desire to sell you what you really care to buy, so if you want the extra pair, you can have it at slight additional cost.

Please do not think such prices are TOO LOW for high-grade quality tailored clothes. We have eliminated all unnecessary items of expense. We've removed the middleman and his profits by tailoring the garments in our own great Tailor-Plant.

There is only one sure way of convincing you that all we claim for Bond's Clothes is true—and that is for you to let us show you. Just give us a chance to prove what we tell you. Whether you buy or not that is entirely up to your own good judgment.

New Oakland Service Stations. In line with its policy of having all Oakland service stations in most modern buildings and equipped with the most modern machinery and tools for repair work, the Oakland Motor Car Co., Pontiac, Mich., announces the final completion of new or completely revamped service stations in five of the largest cities of the country—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and Cleveland.

WHAT $29,000,000 OF ROAD WORK MEANS

Automobile Club of Missouri Finds Progress in All Parts of the State.

For any one who has not toured in Missouri for a year, there is in store a decidedly favorable shock in the improvement in the roads all over the State.

Many folks are inclined to ask: "When will the road program start?"—"When will the bond issue money be spent?"

To begin with, the St. Charles road is a part of the State System, and the Manchester road now under construction is also a part. In going West out of St. Louis one finds the entire section between St. Charles and Wentzville under construction, and out of Foristel, there is a section of six miles being worked on.

On the road going south of the river toward Jefferson City, there is, west of Union, some of the heaviest grading that has been done in the State and the old Ozark Highway leading from Union to the ferry at Mount Sterling shows a volume of work that would be astonishing. This road is not in shape to travel, but the grading is nearly completed for a 20-mile section, and within a comparatively short time, will be one of the real roads of the State. The heavy fill just west of Warrenton is settling and should be ready for surfacing some time late this fall or next spring. These are a few of the developments close to St. Louis.

But, the most important development is in the practical application of the maintenance system as approved and known as Amendment No. 3, carried by the campaign waged for its adoption by the Automobile Club of Missouri.

The road patrols are working on the Southern Highway, the National Old Trails and the Ocean to Ocean Highway, as well as on sections of the Ozark trails, and no doubt within a very limited time the Highway Commission will be able to have workers on every mile of State highway.

In regard to establishing the patrol system, Missouri is practically leading the entire country in its road work, and already the present dirt roads are showing the favorable effects.

It is difficult to travel 50 miles in any direction in the State without having evidence of patrols. Under the old law it was practically impossible for the farmers who were supposed to drag the roads to attend to it in the spring, as the demands of their own farm were such that they did not have the time available. On the other hand, in the fall, when their time was available, the road demands were much less. Today this situation is entirely different and no doubt within 30 days the main highways of the State, thoug still dirt, will not be anything li as rough traveling.

Motorists are urged to take a tri into Missouri and to become a quainted with the State and the roa work in progress.

Victory Food Containers are CLEAN

You Housewives who appreciate the protection that is given to your food purchases by Victory Food Containers, would be pleased if you could see how carefully they are packed when your Grocer gets them.

It's quite a contrast to the way his purchases of ordinary paper bags look when he opens up the bundles.

Grocers used to think that tattered, mussy, dilapidated bundles of paper bags were a necessary evil. They "always came that way" — doubtless they always would.

But with the coming of Victory Food Containers, all this is changed.

Not only are these modern food containers made clean—of clean, sanitary materials, in the cleanest and most sanitary of surroundings—but they are kept clean till the Grocer is ready to use them.

This is accomplished by the Victory shipping method. Instead of trusting these clean, fresh food containers to wrapping paper and string, the Victory Bag & Paper Company make a special point of packing them in sealed, sanitary cartons.

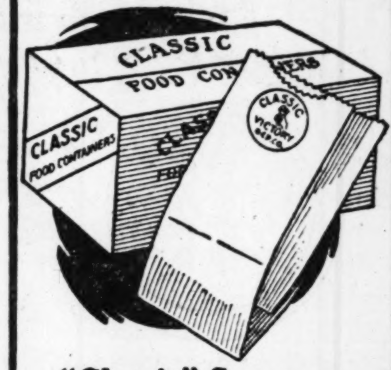
Thus, from mill to merchant, from counter to kitchen, Victory Food Containers preserve the Housewife's most cherished traditions of cleanliness and purity.

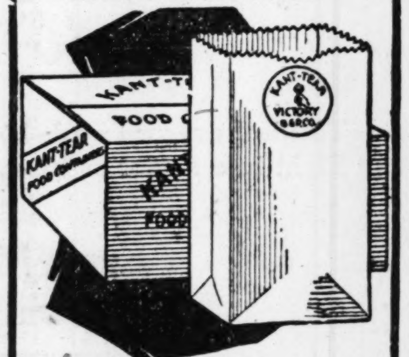
You are entitled to have ALL your groceries protected in clean, sanitary Victory Food Containers.

Victory Food Containers come in three popular brands. All three reach the dealer in sanitary, sealed cartons, as pictured below.



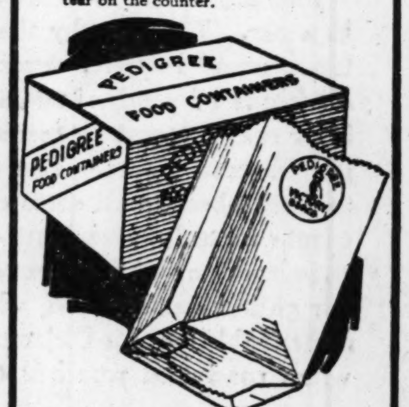
"Classic" Square

Best of the square containers on the market today. Like the Kant-Tear and the Pedigree, it comes to the dealer in sanitary, sealed cartons.



"Kant-Tear"

Universal Standing Automatic. This popular Victory Food Container is strongly built to stand wear and tear on the counter.



"Pedigree"

Universal Standing Automatic. Known to the trade as "The Food Container De Luxe." • • • •

Each of these three popular Victory Food Containers is recognised as the best of its kind on the market today.

King "Tut" as a Teacher.

The recent unearthing of this Egyptian King's Tomb has produced splendid results.

Men of enterprise saw and took advantage of the opportunity to exploit these things of ancient days; fashion has taken hold; amusement falls in line; universal interest is aroused and old ideas are made the basis of new teachings.

Far-reaching benefits must naturally accrue to the world-wide public. Going backward is progressing in this instance.

LET'S GO BACK SOME MORE!

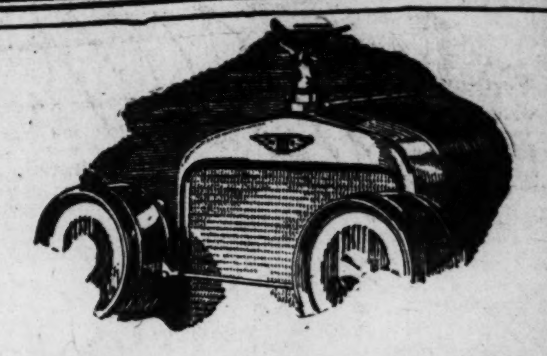
Wallace to Address A. A. A.

Secretary of Agriculture, Henry C. Wallace and Police Commissioner Richard Enright of New York City will address the American Automobile Association at its annual meeting which will be held at Hotel Biltmore, New York City, Tuesday, May 22.

Rust is the greatest enemy of ball bearings. See that all parts are well greased.

A poor memory is costly when looking after the supplies and repairs of an automobile.



One reason why the H. C. S., built by Harry C. Stutz, develops no body noise is that the weight of the body is hung from the springs. Wear on the shackles is automatically taken up.

VELIE VALUE

Only the airplane engines and those of the very highest priced cars have lubricating systems comparable to that of the Velie-built motor.

Automatically lubricated at every point, even to the piston pins, it adds quietness and long life to the acknowledged superiority of the valve-in-head type of engine.

The four-main-bearing crankshaft, precisely balanced, and with pistons and connecting rods accurately matched for weight, gives complete absence of vibration at all speeds, from two to sixty miles an hour.

50,000 Miles in 149½ Days—
10 Years* Ordinary Driving in *5 Months

This is the record made by a stock Oldsmobile Eight in a recent endurance test. This same car is now doing its second 50,000 miles and is running as smoothly as ever.

Every Motor Car Owner—and prospective owner—will be interested in the remarkable performance of this Oldsmobile Eight Stock Car

Staying power is what every owner wants in a car. That is why the covering of a distance equal to twice around the world, over all kinds of roads, in less than five months, is of real interest to owners and prospective purchasers of cars. The test ran from May to December, in all sorts of weather, and accurate records were kept of gasoline and oil consumption. An average of 15 1-10 miles per gallon was secured, which is all the more remarkable for this Oldsmobile Eight to make, when road and weather conditions are considered. Oil consumption averaged 500 miles per gallon. An average daily mileage of 334½ miles was the final figure on distance traveled. The largest distance covered in one day was 636 miles. In 26 days this Oldsmobile made 8,064 miles.

These are just high points in this story of car reliability, which is told in booklet form, and which will be mailed to you upon your request. It's a mighty interesting story and you ought to have it.

364,000 AUTOMOBILES BUILT DURING APRIL

"Last Month Was Biggest in Motor Car History," Says Reeves.

With a production exceeding 364,000 vehicles, all previous records were shattered by the automobile industry in April, according to Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Schedules for May and June are big, but after that a seasonal decline may be expected, although with substantial figures certain for the last half of the year.

Mr. Reeves said 3,208,000 motor vehicles (10 per cent of them trucks) were made during the 12 months ending April 30, and in addition dealers disposed of at least 1,300,000 used cars, making a total sale of 4,500,000 transportation units.

"Carload shipping reports received by the N. A. C. C. indicate that during the month of April more motor vehicles were made and shipped than ever before in the history of the industry. The figure is 10,000 more than March and 66 per cent greater than April last year," said Mr. Reeves.

"Car prices are very low and manufacturers would like to keep them low. Labor and material costs are rising and increases may be necessary.

"Labor continues to be fully employed at good wages. All lines of industry are prosperous. Building is still on a record scale.

"A limiting factor on production during the next three months is a shortage in materials, particularly closed bodies. Plate glass seems to be the real trouble. Automobiles required 27,000,000 square feet last year 9,000,000 square feet of which came from Belgium, Austria and Germany, but only Belgium is now shipping.

"Our monthly survey of 20 different sections of the country shows a continued demand for cars among the dealers with the used car markets much healthier than this time last year and dealers' new stocks less than last year.

"Our talks with the finance companies show that people buying cars on time are keeping up their payments.

"Exports continue to increase. We shipped more than 10,000 cars and trucks during the month of February. American motor cars and trucks now go to 114 different countries around the world, with Australia our biggest car customer last year and Belgium taking the most trucks. I look for our foreign business to soon be at least 15 to 20 per cent of our total.

"The outlook for the truck industry is the best in five years. Production in March was 62 per cent greater than February. The five-ton truck had the greatest increase, although in numbers the light truck outstrips the field."

PACKARD INCREASES EXPORTS OF AUTOS

An indication of the revival of American automobile exports is given in reports of the Packard Motors Export Corporation.

During 1922 total shipments showed an increase of 200 per cent over 1921, and based on the first quarter of the present year, 1923, will be at least 100 per cent better than 1922.

These figures are taken as particularly significant of returning prosperity in foreign countries, when it is considered that import duties and cost of ocean shipment must be added to American prices. "They also show," says G. M. Berry of the Berry Motor Car Co., St. Louis Packard distributor, how well Packard automobiles are being received abroad, and constitute a tribute to American engineering and manufacturing."

Australia and Cuba continue to be the largest foreign markets for Packard, while England, Spain, Switzerland and New Zealand are showing increases in sales. South America is again placing large orders, and quantity shipments are being made to Argentina Uruguay and Brazil.

Tires With 500 Nail Holes Leak No Air

Mr. B. Milburn of Chicago has invented a new puncture-proof inner tube, which, in actual test, was punctured 500 times without the loss of any air. Increase your mileage from 10,000 to 12,000 miles without removing this wonderful tube from the wheel, and the beauty of it all is that this new puncture-proof tube costs no more than the ordinary tube, and makes riding a real pleasure. You can write Mr. B. Milburn at 333 West 47th st., Chicago, as he wants them introduced everywhere. Wonderful opportunity for agents. If interested, write him today.

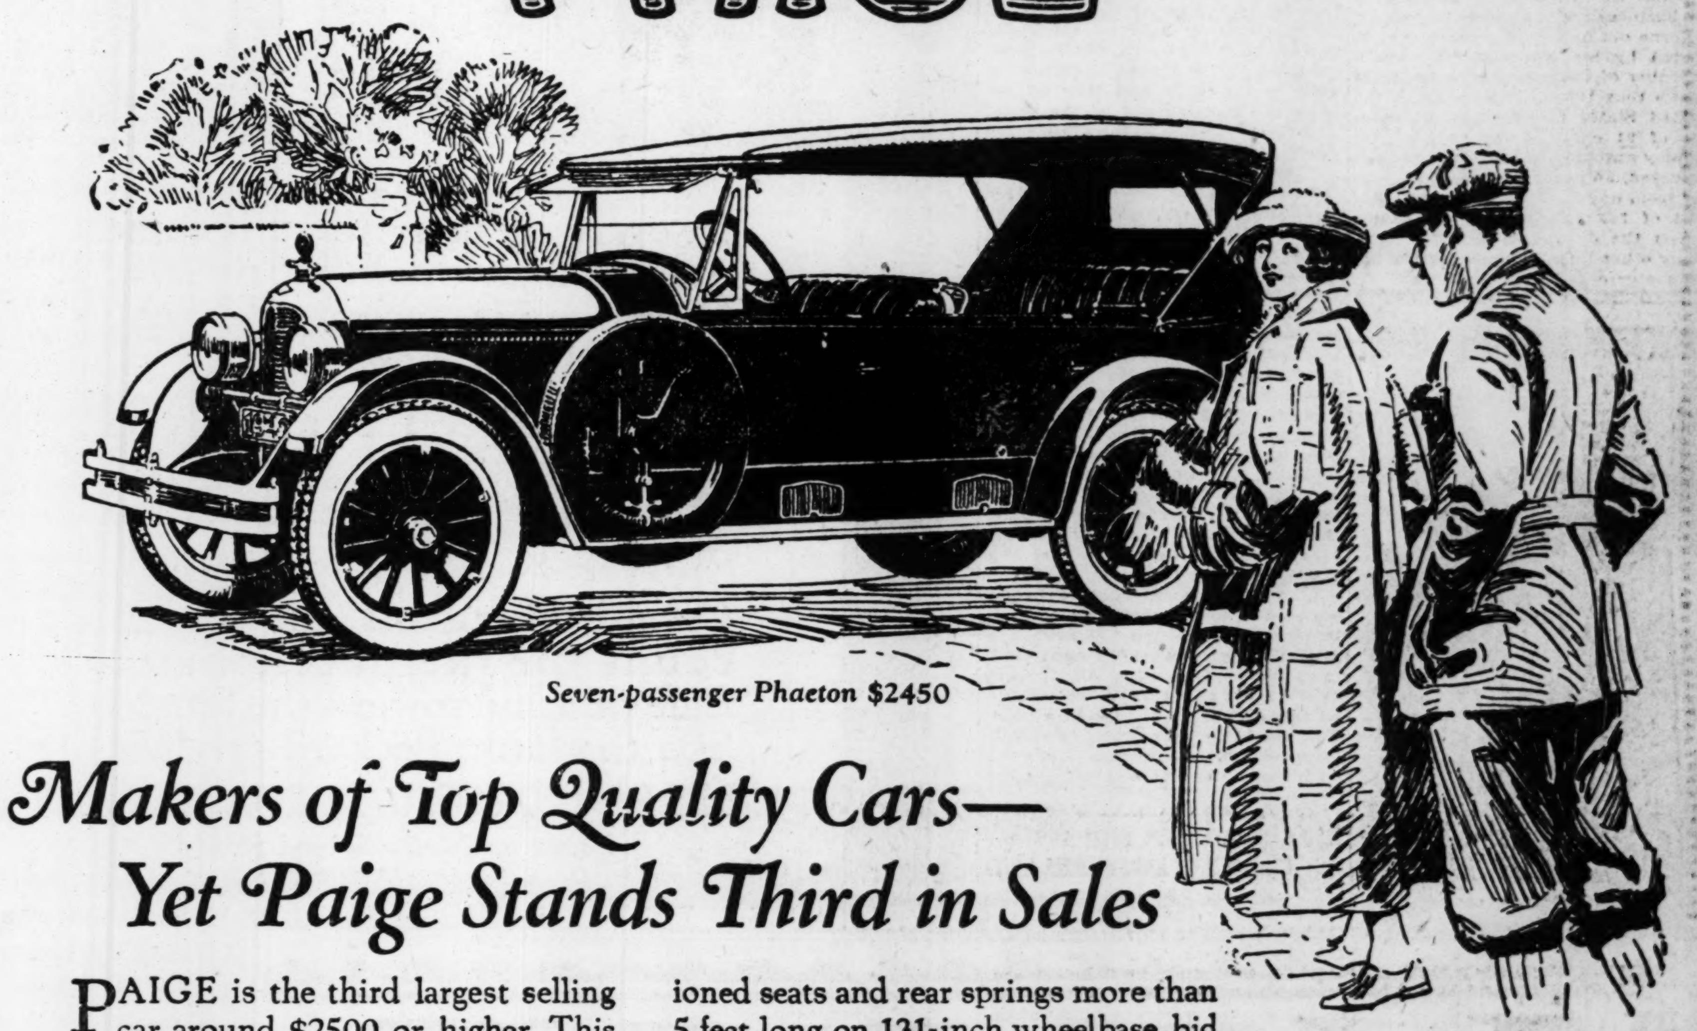
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

PAIGE



Seven-passenger Phaeton $2450

40 Makers of Top Quality Cars—Yet Paige Stands Third in Sales

PAIGE is the third largest selling car around $2500 or higher. This bespeaks the quality of Paige to be that sought by discriminating buyers. On performance, long life and appearance Paige has won its place. High standards of workmanship and years of engineering experience maintain Paige in its merited place as a truly fine motor car. The already large and increasing number of Paige cars in the hands of owners appreciative of quality, is conclusive evidence of Paige's fineness.

Paige bodies please the fastidious. The richness of finish throughout is delightful—not a piece of imitation leather in the car. Squeaks and rattles prevented by double strips of patent leather keeping metal from touching metal or wood. Throughout is a substantiality in perfect keeping with the mechanical perfection of the car. Riding ease rarely equalled is yours in the Paige. Comfortable body positions, softly cushioned seats and rear springs more than 5 feet long on 131-inch wheelbase, bid riding fatigue begone.

You'll find real driving pleasure in your Paige. Powerful and eager, yet so gentle that frailest hands find it easy. The soft Paige clutch engages without jerking or stalling—and facile gear shifting is never marred by clashing. Indeed, gear shifting may be forgotten—so flexible is the Paige motor—with a range of 2 to 70 miles an hour on high, and its smooth silence will endure, due to the Paige high-pressure oiling.

Would you drive a Paige to satisfy yourself of its perfect performance? Telephone or call for a demonstration at your convenience. Of course, there is no obligation.

If you want to possess a car of leading quality, try the Paige performance with your own hand on the wheel. Test Paige comfort over any road. A telephone call arranges it. (422)

Wherever Cars are Sold a Paige and Jewett Franchise is Worth Money

BUSINESS USES INSURE MARKET FOR MACHINES

"To determine the potential market which exists for the motor car, one should not make the mistake of basing his conclusions on the number of families in the United States and abroad, but instead, on the number of uses to which the automobile is adapted," says Roy J. Ward, president of the Ward-Groff Motor Corporation, new local Cleveland six distributer.

"It is conservatively estimated by automotive statisticians that the future for the passenger car use can be set at an average of 1.5 automobiles per family, but to definitely determine just how many cars will be used for business purposes is a difficult task. Only a few years ago the automobile was looked upon entirely as a pleasure car, but its utility and its adaptability for every-day service have put it in the class of an absolute necessity. Each year sees the motor car serving in some new field of business activity.

"That the demand for motor cars for business use is steadily increasing is borne out by a survey recently conducted by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Their report shows that 105 oil companies in the United States use 4000 motor cars; out of 91 chain stores 64 per cent employ automobiles; of 271 laundries surveyed, 56 per cent own cars ranging from one to 20 in number; 79 per cent of 202 construction companies report the daily use of motor cars. Many other lines of endeavor are using motor cars in equal number."

For hard going, for day-in-day-out honest service, for tires that will wear and wear, insist upon Kokomo Heavy Duty Cords, the sturdiest tires that run on the road.

It's in the tread!

SOUNDING HORN MORE SAVES THE MECHANISM

Engineer Tells How to Use Horn to Save Brakes and Tires.

"It is a well-known fact, frequently commented on, that the American car owner drives too much with his brakes," says Chief Engineer H. W. Henry of the Klaxon Co. "Every time you hear a traffic officer's whistle in a large city, you hear at the same time a shrieking of brakes and a scraping of tires on the dry pavement.

"Let it be said to the credit of the car manufacturers that the brakes are actually built so mechanically sound that in spite of the abuse to which they are subjected, they stand up under the strain.

"Fast driving between short city blocks, followed by a sudden jamming on of the brakes, is expensive, both in the wear and tear on the tires, the burning out of the brake lining and damage to the brakes and other mechanical parts of the car.

"The relation between the use of the horn and the use of the brakes is simply this—greater use of the horn would make for less use and abuse of the brakes.

"The better the driver, the less he touches his brakes. Note any day how a particularly good driver goes through the congested districts of a large city. He gauges every traffic stop ahead—and slows down or speeds on accordingly.

"Frequently in driving outside the business center of the city, it is a case of jamming on the brakes or sounding the horn. Sounding the horn a half block before reaching an intersecting street will eliminate the necessity of jamming on the brakes, coming to a dead halt and then speeding on again.

"The horn should not only be sounded to warn pedestrians and automobile drivers but likewise, in night driving, to warn the car ahead. It should be sounded at all times in backing out of a garage. It should be sounded at every turn in a road. You can make no mistake in sounding your horn frequently. Use your horn every day in every way—more frequently."

RICKENBACKER SHIPS CARS TO SWITZERLAND

"In Zurich, Switzerland, the famous "Hat in the Ring" insignia is rapidly becoming as familiar as are the best-known European trademarks," according to "Jim" Ward, manager of the Diesing Motor Sales Co., local Rickenbacker distributers.

"Our factory has just announced the shipment of six phaetons to Zurich, in April," said Mr. Ward, Saturday.

Because of its advanced engineering features, coupled with the small bore, high-speed motor which makes for gasoline economy, the Rickenbacker product instantly found favor in the eyes of European, Australian and New Zealand buyers.

There, where gasoline cost is more than twice what it is in this country, fuel consumption is of paramount importance, and the Rickenbacker product more nearly conforms to their ideas in this regard than any other American product.

It is interesting to note that in Zurich a Rickenbacker phaeton costs $1845, plus freight and the difference in exchange—about $2100—as against $1485 in Detroit.

MAXWELL TRAVELER IS "SOMETHING NEW"

The Ward Motor Co., Inc., local Maxwell dealers, did have something new under their showroom ceiling early last week and expect to repeat in the next few days. The "something new" is a motor car, of course—a striking good Maxwell inclosed car for five passengers, ultra-complete, ultra-fashionable—the Traveler.

It is finished in an entirely new shade of green-gray with the reveals of the windows painted in emerald green, and a stripe of the same color around the body below the belt. Appearance and details betray European influence.

REO BOOK RESEMBLES TRIP THROUGH FACTORY

Countless thousands of automobile owners and future owners have never seen the inside of an automobile plant. This is true despite the willingness of many large manufacturers to escort visitors through their factories.

For these a book just published by the Reo Motor Car Co., under the title of "Reasons for Reo," is likely to prove a veritable textbook on modern methods and practices in use by manufacturers of automobiles.

The book is particularly interesting because it deals with the history of the automotive industry, pointing out problems that have been solved so successfully that the one-cylinder curiosities of 1904 have developed into super-powered motor vehicles that are a vital part of America's business and economic life.

PACKARD

In every industry there is some one product which by right of character is accepted as the standard of comparison.

In the field of fine motor cars Packard has become the symbol of quality and the measure of value.

On no other basis can you account for the public's attitude of mind toward the Single-Six, the latest Packard product.

Hear What Garage Mechanics Say of the Hupmobile

The downright enthusiasm of garagemen in general for the Hupmobile is one of the most significant developments in the automobile industry.

These men can tell you some of the reasons back of the Hupmobile's amazing economy and reliability.

They would tell you that Hupmobile costs little to maintain because of the way it is designed and the way it is built—and they would cite instance after instance to illustrate the point.

It is a literal fact that anyone who learns how the Hupmobile is built, has received a liberal education in how to tell whether a motor is a real value and whether it will be economical to maintain.

Cured of Piles by the Henrich Method After Suffering Fifty Years. Was Operated Before and Spent $500.00 for Salves.

Madison, Ill., Feb. 11, 1919.
W. P. Henrich, Ph. G., M. D.

Dear Doctor: I want to thank you for the great cure you made in my case of Piles after suffering fifty years.

I had them operated seventeen years ago and still was not cured until I took your wonderful treatment for Piles. It did not cause me any pain, so I did not have to go to any hospital, and I did not lose any time from my work.

I used about $500.00 worth of salves and ointments to get a little relief, but no cure.

If all Pile sufferers knew as I do, how safe, sure and painless your treatment is, they would not hesitate a day to take your treatment. Fraternally yours,

Things That Count in Moderate Priced Closed Cars

The Coach is a Hudson-Essex invention. It was created to provide closed car comforts at little more than open car cost.

Closed cars, on high-grade chassis, were too costly for most buyers. So a revolutionary thing was done.

An entirely new closed body design that eliminated all the old, costly manufacturing methods was invented. And production on a scale unknown in the closed car field was started. It brought closed car comforts within reach of all.

The Coach is durable. More than 40,000 owners are proud of it. It has a simple and sturdy beauty. There is ample and comfortable carrying space for passengers and luggage. Body rumbling noises are totally absent. Doors and windows stay tight fitting.

The Coach is built for service. On either the Hudson or Essex chassis it is ready always for any use.

These are the essentials of a moderate priced closed car.

OLDSMOBILE DEALERS MEET IN ST. LOUIS

But One Retailer Absents Himself From Gathering Conducted by De Luxe Co.

One of the most successful dealer meetings ever held in St. Louis was conducted the middle of last week by the De Luxe Automobile Co.

Ninety-nine per cent of the retailers handling Oldsmobiles in the district covered by the local distributer were on hand for the meeting. Altogether 125 attended the banquet at the Marquette Hotel on Tuesday evening and the meetings at the De Luxe Automobile Co. building Wednesday.

A big feature of the Tuesday night affair was the short sketch written by S. R. Jones, sales manager of the De Luxe Automobile Co., which depicted first the type of dealer who fails to make money and second the country dealer who is enterprising and prosperous.

Jones was one of the speakers. Others were Col. P. H. Brockman, president of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners, as well as president of the De Luxe Automobile Co.; Capt. Robert E. Lee, secretary of the Automobile Dealers' Association of St. Louis; Lawrence McDaniel, former Circuit Attorney in St. Louis; M. S. Allen, Chicago branch manager of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, and Thomas O'Brien, assistant sales manager of the Olds Motor Works of Lansing, Mich. R. M. Hatfield, sales manager of the Olds Motor Works, spoke at the Wednesday meeting.

Some of the interesting things that Col. Brockman said follow:

"The automobile is nothing less than an evolution of transportation. The first automobile was built in the year of 1891, which was then referred to as the horseless carriage.

"The automobile business commenced as a real business in the year 1899, in which year there were 3700 automobiles built at a wholesale value of $4,750,000.

"In 1908 there were 65,000 automobiles built, at a wholesale value of $137,800,000. The year 1920 was the peak automobile year in the production of automobiles. There were manufactured in this year 2,205,197 automobiles, the wholesale value being $2,252,927,628.

"There are, at this time, approximately 12,000,000 passenger cars and trucks in operation in the United States. There is invested in the manufacturing of automobiles, passenger cars and trucks alone, over $1,700,000,000 and about 186,000 employes. There are approximately 120 manufacturers of passenger cars today in the United States. There are approximately 120,000 automobile dealers, garages and repair shops.

"For the year 1921 it is estimated that motor cars transported over 7,000,000,000 passengers, against the railroads' transportation of 1,084,000,000 passengers. The average life of an automobile is four to five years and the average mileage driven per year is 5000 miles.

"The 12 largest manufacturing industries in the United States, based on an approximate value of 1922 output, is as follows:

"1. Automobiles.
"2. Petroleum products.
"3. Slaughtering and meat-packing industries.
"4. Foundry and machine shop products.
"5. Lumber and timber products.
"6. Iron and steel business.
"7. Clothing.
"8. Flour mill products.
"9. Cotton goods.
"10. Boots and shoes.
"11. Tobacco.
"12. Furniture.

"The automotive industry is second in the number of retail trade units in different lines, groceries alone exceeding the number of dealers.

"In 1904 $57,527,000 were spent for highway construction; in 1922, $720,000,000.

"Regarding the future of the automobile business: In my judgment the saturation point will never be reached, as every man, woman and child looks forward to owning an automobile. However, within the next year or two, I believe, we will see an elimination of many manufacturers or consolidation of many manufacturers, as there are entirely too many different makes of cars.

"I base this judgment for the reason that if you will but think over quickly how many piano companies, sewing machine companies, victrola companies can you call offhand? Yet this limited number of factories, in their respective lines, are quite able to take care of the needs of the people, although we will admit that the above manufactured articles have a longer life than automobiles.

W. H. VESPER JOINS THE VESPER-BUICK COMPANY

Walter H. Vesper, formerly president of the Vesper Motors Co., Oklahoma City, Okla., May 1 became vice-president and treasurer of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., Buick distributors for Eastern Missouri, Southern Illinois and Western Kentucky. Mr. Walter Vesper will be active in the management, this increase in the executive staff of the company being made necessary by the greatly increased volume of business during the past year.

F. W. A. Vesper will continue as president. W. H. Willcockson continues as secretary of the company and as general sales manager, with special reference to car distribution in this territory.

G. M. C. Truck Sales Large.

Shipments of trucks by the General Motors Truck Co. of Pontiac, Mich., were 184 per cent greater during the first quarter of 1923 than during the same period of last year, while orders received during the first quarter were 156 per cent greater.

The dull, gray film that kills the appearance of your car

--how to remove it!

As many dealers will tell you, Trade Value is 50 per cent APPEARANCE!

ASIDE from considerations of good grooming, or of pride, good appearance has a definite commercial value. Whether it be automobiles or big red apples, a higher value is placed on that which looks the part. Observe the apple merchant, rubbing up his wares. He knows. Furthermore, he "cashes" on his knowledge. An investment in appearance, does pay - and pays BIG!

Laboratory solves film removal!

Careful laboratory tests revealed the nature of the milky film that saps 50 per cent from the value of motor cars. And proved, that the ordinary furniture polish, or any "oily" paste or polish, was entirely inadequate for out-of-doors conditions. In fact, it was found that oil in combination with dust and atmospheric action largely contributed to the film's formation. Hence, COMMON SENSE AUTO POLISH, The Greaseless Cleanser was developed; and perfected through practical tests on thousands of motor cars throughout the country. Results obtained with COMMON SENSE AUTO POLISH prove it immeasureably superior for the purpose intended; and explain why it monopolizes the sale of polish in every district where introduced.

What Common Sense is

COMMON SENSE is a non-greasy, non-sticky liquid that quickly removes the film, and restores to the finish - if any of it remains - the brilliant sparkle of the original factory luster. This, plus an absolutely Bone-dry, dust proof surface - water and weather resistant - has created a Standard of Performance. And, established COMMON SENSE, as "The Standard Auto Polish of America".

How an Investment of $1.00 Will Add $150.00 to the Appearance of Your Car.

The first application of Common Sense Auto Polish will add at least $150.00 to the appearance of your car. But will cost you only $1.00! Your nearest Druggist or Accessory Dealer has it or can get it for you, promptly. You are urged to insist on Common Sense, even if you must send direct to the Laboratory. $1.00 will bring you a supply by return mail, postpaid. Testing Sample 12c postage. Address

The Gardner
5 Bearing Crankshaft
A feature found in no other make of four cylinder motor at any price.

The Car That Shows What a Four Can Be

A Four without the commonly expected vibration point!

A Four that develops 43 horsepower—yet delivers this unusual amount of power smoothly and easily, and at moderate speeds, where it is most needed.

A Four that literally leaps ahead in traffic and that takes on high many hills that the majority of cars must climb in second or low!

Such performance, unlooked for in a car of its price and type, has been attained in the Gardner Four of 1923. It is performance made possible largely because of the Gardner five bearing crankshaft, found in no other make of four-cylinder motor.

Thus Gardner has produced a different Four, retaining the sturdy simplicity, the economy in first cost and upkeep and the long lived dependability that have always distinguished these automobiles, but adding power, flexibility and smoothness of operation that far surpass accepted standards.

Your first ride will prove this difference.

DORT DEALER WARNS AGAINST PIRATE PARTS

That the motorist should exercise extreme care in seeing that only manufacturer's parts are put in his car when he is having repair work done, is the opinion of Claude Merry of the Wilson Motor Car Co., Dort dealer in St. Louis. "Some repair men are now selling 'pirate parts' for manufacturer's parts," said Mr. Merry. "These men are interested only in selling parts in their repair departments at a high price, without considering the interests or safety of the car owner. 'Pirate part' makers are now going so far as to pass these parts off as the manufacturer's original parts, although the manufacturer did not make them. The market for substitute parts has been obtained chiefly through the indifference and carelessness of car owners.

"The principal parts that are being marketed by the so-called pirate manufacturers include axle shafts, propeller shafts, bushings, bearings, bolts of all kinds, fan belts, gaskets, transmission and differential gears, pistons, piston rings, piston pins, valve springs, valves, radiator hose and electric parts.

"Be sure to purchase genuine parts for replacements. Go to your dealer and insist on genuine parts."

GENERAL MOTORS HAS GOOD DIVIDEND REPORT

General Motors Corporation for the quarter ended March 31 reports earnings after taxes, available for debenture and preferred dividends of $19,406,123. This is equivalent to 11.4 times the dividend requirements on the debenture and preferred stocks.

In the first quarter there were sold 176,417 cars and trucks, compared with 71,039 in the first quarter of 1922. These sales include Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland and Oldsmobile passenger and commercial cars and GMC trucks.

MOTOR CARS USED IN MANY WAYS BY FARMERS

Gasoline bids fair to become responsible for a real "back to the farm" movement, according to D. J. Willoughby, sales manager of the Columbia Motors Co., who has spent some time recently among dealers who are in contact with rural conditions. Willoughby writes in a letter to Luke Hart of the Advance Motor Car Co., St. Louis, Columbia distributers:

"I can remember when, years ago, the use of gasoline on the farm was limited to an occasional cook stove that had the disconcerting habit of blowing up every now and then, and to removing grease spots from clothes.

"Today gasoline has become the motive power for a great proportion of all farm operations. It is particularly gratifying to me to learn the wide variety of uses to which Columbia Sixes are being put by farmers. First, of course, is that of bringing the farm in closer touch with town. Motor cars are being used to establish more frequent communication with neighboring farmers. Another common use is that of employing cars to carry small loads.

"Coupled onto a trailer, the car takes the place of a light truck for transporting produce to market or to the nearest shipping point. It is utilized occasionally for hauling light machinery. It lengths the working day by saving time in getting to and from distant parts of the farm.

"The automobile gives the farmer's wife a new freedom to go and come as she pleases. The car is a distinct aid in education. It takes the children to school, or carries the farmer and his wife to lectures and other meetings. It has made possible the formation of clubs and associations of farmers from which the members profit. Finally the automobile provides a means of recreation for the entire family, through which farm life becomes infinitely more enjoyable."

APPERSON CHANGES FACTORY PERSONNEL

Outside capital has become interested in the Apperson Bros. Automobile Co. of Kokomo, Ind., for the first time. They have just closed a $700,000 bond issue and three-year debenture notes for $383,000, making a total of $1,083,000 which is being used in funding their bank loans and material accounts, and as working capital for the increased production of the eight-cylinder models and the new six-cylinder car which is just beginning to come through production.

The factory is several months behind on deliveries on the eight and enough orders have been booked on the new six to run to capacity until fall.

Under the new management Mr. Edgar L. Apperson has been advanced to chairman of the board, in charge of engineering and production. Mr N. H. Van Sicklen, a prominent figure in the automotive industry, is now president and general manager. Mr. B. C. Buxton has been appointed vice president in charge of finance, and Mr. E. M. Lubeck is General sales manager.

Both the Apperson six and the eight are handled in this territory by Apperson -St. Louis Motors Co. Inc., direct factory branch, Maj. A. J. Wicks, manager.

MOON SETS NEW MARK IN APRIL SHIPMENTS

SHIPMENT of 1175 automobiles during April by the Moon Motor Car Co. of St. Louis breaks all previous monthly records of the company, it was announced yesterday by Stewart McDonald, president. Shipments during March had exceeded any previous month and those during April were 20 per cent in excess of the March record, he said.

MAXWELL MAKES NEW RECORD FOR SHIPMENTS

The Ward Motor Car Co., Maxwell distributers, have received word that a shipment of 548 Maxwell cars, made Saturday, April 21, broke all records of the Maxwell Motor Corporation for a single day's shipment.

Maxwell's increasing business of past months is well reflected in the quarterly statement of the company, that shows a net profit of over $1,000,000 for the period. Cash balances since the first of the year have been increased more than $2,000,000, and despite the heavy buying necessitated by the tremendous production attained, no bank loans are carried.

With reference to the record shipment of the 21st, it is also interesting to note that the day's output of 548 cars represents 16 more vehicles than were produced and sold by the old Maxwell-Briscoe company in the first full year of manufacturing.

395,962 Fords Sold in 3 Months.

DETROIT, Mich., May 5.—Sales of Ford cars and trucks in the United States alone for the first quarter of 1923 reached the enormous total off 395,962, the greatest sales record in the history of the Ford Motor Co. for a similar period of months. This is an increase of 135 per cent over the same months last year when Ford retail deliveries totaled 168,500.

PERMANENT ENAMEL
BAKED ON STEEL

Eight years ago, when Dodge Brothers originated the all-steel motor car body, they took advantage of the absence of wood in the framework to bake an enamel finish on the surface of the steel.

In a vast series of electric ovens, especially designed and built by Dodge Brothers' engineers for this process, three distinct coats of black enamel are successively baked on the steel at an intensely high temperature.

The result is a finish so hardy and durable that it seldom requires more than a good cleaning and polishing to restore the original brightness.

Even in sections of the Southwest where alkali in the soil is especially destructive to body finishes, Dodge Brothers enamel retains its beautiful lustre after years of wear.

AUTOMOBILE EQUIPMENT ANCIENT AND MODERN

Cars Twenty Years Ago Lacked Many Features Which Are Today Considered Essential.

Twenty years ago the automobile, which was at that date in its early stages of development, was lacking in many features which are today considered to be absolutely essential. Motor car designers were content to make something that would run and features for the comfort of those hardy tourists, who were bold enough to trust themselves to this strange new contraption, were just beginning to be devised.

As the cars of that day were made without tops or windshields, both driver and passengers were obliged to carry such articles of personal equipment as a good pair of goggles and a duster and it was also considered prudent to have handy a raincoat and hat to match in case of bad weather. Night driving was not considered advisable under any circumstances as the oil burning lamps of that day, while useful for enabling the tourist to find his car in the dark, were of no practical assistance so far as distinguishing the middle of the road from the ditch, was concerned.

Canopy tops, such as were then considered the correct thing on the smaller style of horse-drawn carriages, were in vogue, while a number of enterprising accesory stores were doing a thriving business in windshields guaranteed to fit.

All of these things have been greatly changed, however, and well fitting tops and windshields have taken their rightful place as a standard feature of motor car equipment as naturally as in the building trades, sanitary plumbing, electric light and other modern conveniences have become necessities.

But the modern motorist who values his car from the standpoint of transportation obtained, rather than a novelty suitable only for pleasure trips, demands many things besides a top and windshield.

Among other equipment which is demanded by the motorists of today is a motormeter that keeps the driver advised of the temperature of the engine, a cowl ventilator, regulated from the instrument board, which keeps the occupants of the front seat cool and comfortable. Cowl lights that conserve the battery for city driving and parking at night. A combination stop and tail light which wards off danger from traffic in the rear. A dash light which gives excellent vision for the various parts of the instrument board, while a tonneau light is included for convenience of the occupants of the rear seat.

Drum type head lamps, with non-glare lens, which make night driving safe. Door-opening curtains, which protect the occupants from cold and rainy weather, and a safety lock that guards against theft of the spare tire.

DRIVES NEW H. C. S. HERE FROM FACTORY

A. E. Archer, president of the MacCarthy-Archer Automobile Co., has on show at the company's salesroom the new H. C. S. six-cylinder car, which he drove to St. Louis from the company's factory at Indianapolis.

He made the trip in 10 hours, leaving the plant at 1:45 in the afternoon and arriving in St. Louis just before midnight.

The car, now on view, is a touring car, finished in a deep wine color. The motometer, which usually rests on the radiator cap, is in this new H. C. S. Six on the dashboard.

MANY BASEBALL STARS ARE BUICK OWNERS

There is a group of Buick owners which the Buick declares worthy of challenging for the world's baseball championship. This team has an aggregate batting average of .301 and fielding average of .970. It includes Scott, Pipp Dugan, Jones, Huggins and Elmer Smith of the New York Yankees; Duncan, Rixey and Bohne of Cincinnati; Speaker of Cleveland; Tobin and Austin of the St. Louis Browns; Veach of Detroit; Frisch of the New York Giants; Myers of the St. Louis Cardinals; Menoskey and Collins of the Boston Red Sox; Grimes of Brooklyn and Mitchell of the Phillies.

It is impossible to "clash" gears on an Apperson. The Pre-Selecting Mechanical Gear-Shift now standard equipment on all Apperson models makes for greater safety, ease of control and more complete comfort, a more profound confidence in your ability to drive well, and is an economical feature of no mean importance.

Combined with this exclusive feature of the new Apperson is a driver's compartment with no levers; an emergency brake within easy reach on the instrument board; a sweet-running eight-cylinder motor with lots of power—the standard of simplicity and accessibility; the finest permanent top built to-day; a list of equipment complete and elaborate, and finally, an inherent grace and beauty which makes this new Apperson Eight the very finest of a fine line.

It is a car every member of your family can drive—with safety, comfort and absolute confidence. Drive it yourself to-day.

MOHAWK RUBBER CO. ISSUES ROAD GUIDES

The first six of a series of road guides intended eventually to cover all the main transcontinental nighways of the country—East and West, North and South—have been published by the Mohawk Rubber Co., Akron, O.

The sections so far available route the Los Angeles to Denver Trail through Southern Arizona and New Mexico, the Old National Trail from St. Louis and Chicago to Washington and New York, the Dixie Trail from Chicago to Jacksonville, Fla.; the Lincoln Highway from Denver and Cheyenne to Chicago, the National-Dixie Highway from New York to Jacksonville, and the coast and inland routes between Los Angeles and San Francisco, while a guide of the Old Santa Fe Trail is now in preparation. Others will follow. Each guide covers approximately 1000 miles of road.

The guides have been named Hobbs Grade and Surface Guides, after Howard F. Hobbs, originator of the plan, who collects all the data and supervises publication.

New Goodyear Trade Name.

A change in trade name from Cross-Rib to Wingfoot, applying to the Goodyear tire with the cross-rib tread design, placed on the market about 10 months ago, has been announced by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. The symbol "Wingfoot" is known to the tire trade and public generally in the Goodyear trade mark. The company also uses the name on some of its other products.

TIRE PRODUCTION SETS NEW RECORD IN APRIL

AKRON, Ohio, May 5.—That the tire business, which was as hard hit as any industry in America in the slump of 1920-21, resulting in production being cut 50 per cent, 60 per cent and even 80 per cent in many factories, has come back with amazing fullness and resiliency, is indicated in figures given out this week in "the tire capital of America."

The old peak records made in the spring of 1920 in the full tide of the upward swing have been matched and passed within the past week.

On April 14, 1920, the Goodyear factory at Akron turned out 35,780 tires, a day's production record that stood until recently.

However, on April 13, 1923, the Goodyear Akron factory built 48,592 tires, while the new Goodyear California plant at Los Angeles produced 8837 and the Goodyear Canadian factory at Toronto added 6584 more, making a total of 64,013, the largest number of tires turned out in 24 hours by any factory organization in the world.

In March this year the three Goodyear factories built more than a million tires, exceeding by more than 10 per cent the production of three years ago.

When Caesar Crossed the Rubicon

—he exclaimed, "The Die Is Cast," fully realizing that it was in defiance of the Senate, and of fateful significance to himself.

His motive was far greater than personal aggrandizement, and it was due to his vision that Rome reached its greatest development.

In less than a year he was acclaimed by the populace, and tendered the dictatorship of Rome. The common people were enriched by his laws and the mark of his wisdom lives to this day.

COLE

Establishes "Net" Automobile Prices

THE launching of the Cole Merchandising Plan was as revolutionary in its way as was Caesar's crossing of the Rubicon.

It was in defiance of established precedent, and meant a new era in motor car merchandising.

At one stroke the Cole Merchandising Plan eliminated the greatest waste in the motor car world, and over night met with the approval of the press, public and financial fraternity.

Not because Cole sponsored it, but because of its fundamental soundness this plan has been endorsed by the biggest business men of America, by dealers' associations, and by high automotive officials everywhere.

And remember that this is on the finest car that Cole has ever produced. Built on the standard chassis which has been constantly perfected for seven years, it is the finest car we have ever produced.

For 16 years Coles have had the reputation of being fine cars, and the policy shall be to strive for added refinements constantly.

Whether or not you have an old car, remember Cole saves you $800 to $1,000 by his Merchandising Plan. Consult your local Cole dealer and let him show you how this saving can be accomplished.

Call, write or telephone for our illustrated booklet, "The Test That Tells", and be your own judge.

CLOSED CARS 71 PCT. OF THE FRANKLIN OUTPUT

"Closed cars formed 71 per cent of our shipments during the first quarter," states S. E. Ackerman, sales manager of the Franklin Automobile Co. "The wide-spread use of Franklin closed cars dates back to 1913. In 1921 over half of our output consisted of closed cars, while last year the percentage had increased to 68 per cent. The Franklin line at present consists of six types and five of this number are of the closed variety."

A distinct innovation in Automobiles~

1923 MAY SEE AS MANY AUTOS AS TELEPHONES

"The most accurate conception as to the number of automobiles there are in operation in the United States is obtained by the fact that there are almost as many automobiles in use as there are telephones," says Claude Merry, of the Wilson Motor Car Co., Haynes distributers.

"According to figures supplied by John G. Truesdell, manager of the Radio Broadcasting Station of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., New York City, there are 14,050,569 Bell telephones in the United States. While there are no official figures available, it is estimated that in addition there are 450,000 independent telephones, making a total of approximately 14,500,000. There are 12,500,000 automobiles in operation in the United States, according to the latest census. It has been authoritatively estimated that to this number will be added 2,500,000 more cars this year as a result of the 1923 production. Unless the telephone makes the same proportionate gain, the automobile will equal, if not exceed, the number of telephones in America by the end of this year.

"The fact that the automobile almost equals the telephone in numbers is a startling one and makes the automobile rank in importance with that of the telephone, whose economic value to America's industrial and social life has been established for years. Business, as well as the countless thousands of homes, wonders today how it ever operated without the use of the telephone. The telephone has linked business in a transcontinental union and has battered down the isolation originally existing because of the tremendous territory within the borders of the United States. For the automobile to rival such a tremendous instrument of national existence as the telephone, is convincing proof that the automobile is firmly established as an economic necessity, bowing to none in vital importance."

In every part of the country the progress of the good Maxwell in public favor is one of the most remarkable developments of the motor car industry. Its beauty, riding comfort, reliability and economy are winning it new friends by the thousand every day.

THE NEW 1923 FIVE PASSENGER

HAYNES 57

SPORT SEDAN

WITH the protective advantages of the closed car, this newest Haynes combines a transcendent completeness of equipment, and appeals to those motoring instincts from which the present love of the sport model has grown.

There are no extras to buy. Bumpers front and rear, a spacious trunk, disc wheels with six 32x4½ cord tires, sun and vision visor, polished protection bars at the rear of the body, handsome individual steps—all these are as much a part of this car as its rich Burgundy Wine colored body and the famous Haynes-built light six motor.

This motor is started by a light touch of the driver's finger on a starter button which is part of the new Haynes instrument panel. Besides complete control of the starting and lighting this panel now contains a convenient gasoline gauge—an example of the thorough completeness with which Haynes engineers and designers have anticipated every need of the modern motorist. Considered from every standpoint, it is a supreme value at the price of $2695 (F.O.B. FACTORY)

Recently he has been district representative for the Toledo Scale Co., Toledo, O.

AUTO DEALER DESERVES OWNER'S CONFIDENCE

"The recognition by the public of the automobile as a necessary utility," says John Boe, president of the St. Louis Motor Car Co., Kissel distributer, "has done more than build up the second largest industry in the world. It has created a new type of American business man and institution. I refer to the automobile distributer of today. His position is unique in that he really doesn't sell a product or commodity like other merchants. He sells service—transportation service—and if the owner is not thoroughly satisfied with his automobile, nine times out of 10 he blames the distributer from whom he bought the car.

"From a mere broker of automobiles the automobile distributer has become a business builder and merchandiser. The automobile, from being a plaything at first, has now become a necessity, after manufacturers, having made heavy investments in the perfection and production of their products, next turned their attention to closer co-operation and co-ordination between themselves and their distributers.

"During the last two years owners who have bought their second and third car, will tell you that the successful automobile distributer is a man who creates confidence among owners, who makes them feel that the dealer is just as anxious for the owner to be satisfied with his purchase and to get the utmost satisfaction from his product as the owner himself.

"The purchase of an automobile is not a new thing any longer with the public. The public knows that it is as important to consider the standing and reputation of the distributer and dealer as the reputation of the car itself, and the manufacturer back of it.

"That the automobile dealers of the country realize this new position they are assuming in the world is evidenced by the big investments their businesses represent—all for the sole purpose of rendering satisfaction to the owner."

COURTESY URGED AS A SAFETY NEED ON ROAD

Courtesy on the road among motorists is akin to safety, and a new courtesy series of suggestions is now being isued for the thousands of motorists in this section of the country.

Lack of courtesy, it is pointed out, often leads to recklessness, which in turn, leads to accidents. Therefore, motorists are asked to read the following courtesy rules and see if they wish them:

1. When a man approaching you from behind sounds his horn as a signal that he wishes to pass, don't "step on it." Draw over to the right and let him go by.
2. Do not use more than your half of the road, thus crowding others into the ditch.
3. It is not courteous to "steal" a parking space from a man who is just getting ready to back into it.
4. Do not imagine that every motorist on the road who tries to pass you is starting a race. He may be on important business.
5. When you pass a man from behind going in the same direction, do not cut in directly in front of him. This is discourteous.
6. Do not shove another man's car along the curb to make room for yours, thus jamming his car against a fireplug, or the car ahead.
7. It is discourteous to halt behind a traffic jam and honk your horn.
8. The correct giving of hand signals is courteous as well as safe.

GOOD ROADS CAUSE OF LIGHTER CARS

"Steady and rapid extension of good roads is bringing about an era of lighter and more economically operated automobiles," asserts G. M. Berry, president of the Berry Motor Co., Packard distributers. "Improvements in the future automobile," said Berry, "will be in refinements in design calculated to improve it in appearance and performance and decrease the cost of both production and operation.

"With the improvements in roads there has come a readjustment of traffic legislation, especially for country roads, which has made speed regulations more liberal. This has brought about an effort to obtain smoother performance at high speed, an effort which apparently is to continue. Present conditions have brought about a leaning more and more toward the six-cylinder motor.

"More engineering thought will be given in the future towards decreasing operating and maintenance costs. Gasoline and oil consumption figures should be progressively lowered by improvements in carburetion and lubrication. There is need for the application of the greatest amount of heat possible to the carburetor mixture, combined with a carburetor itself which will permit of the cleanest possible mixture under average driving conditions.

"There is an awakening also to the importance of bettering the brakes on automobiles. Demand for improved brakes ought to bring about improvements which will make them much more effective than they now are and which will require less frequent adjustments."

CHAMPION EUROPEAN BUSINESS EXPANDING

The European business of the Champion Spark Plug Co. has expanded so rapidly during the last year that R. A. Stranahan, president of the company, has just sailed for Europe with the intention of visiting the capital of the various countries before he returns.

"While the number of motor cars in Europe is much less than those in the United States," says Mr. Stranahan, "there is an excellent and growing market abroad, and we are very gratified with the progress Champion has been making.

"Among the foreign cars on which Champions are regular equipment are such well known makes as the Minerva, Peugeot and Lorrain-Dettrich.

"The question of distribution has now reached a point where I have felt it necessary to go over to the other side to make certain that all European motorists can readily secure Champions for their cars."

WOMAN DIES AT AGE OF 118

Brooklyn Woman Believed In Negro Superstition of Longevity.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Mrs. Sarah Williams of Brooklyn, who believed in an old negro superstition that because she was the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter, she would not die young, died of pneumonia and, according to her granddaughter, Mrs. Margaret Brown, at the age of 118 years.

Mrs. Williams, her relatives say, was born Sept. 8, 1804. Her husband, very much her junior, died 15 years ago. She leaves four children, 14 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

MOSQUITO-BORNE DOG DISEASE

Discovery Announced by Arkansas State Veterinarian.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 4.—Discovery of a mosquito-borne disease affecting dogs has been announced by Dr. J. H. Bux, State veterinarian, following an examination of a dog belonging to Dr. Latimer of Stuttgart. Some of the symptoms of the disease closely resemble symptoms of rabies, Dr. Bux said, which probably accounts for the large number of "mad dogs" that have been reported over the State.

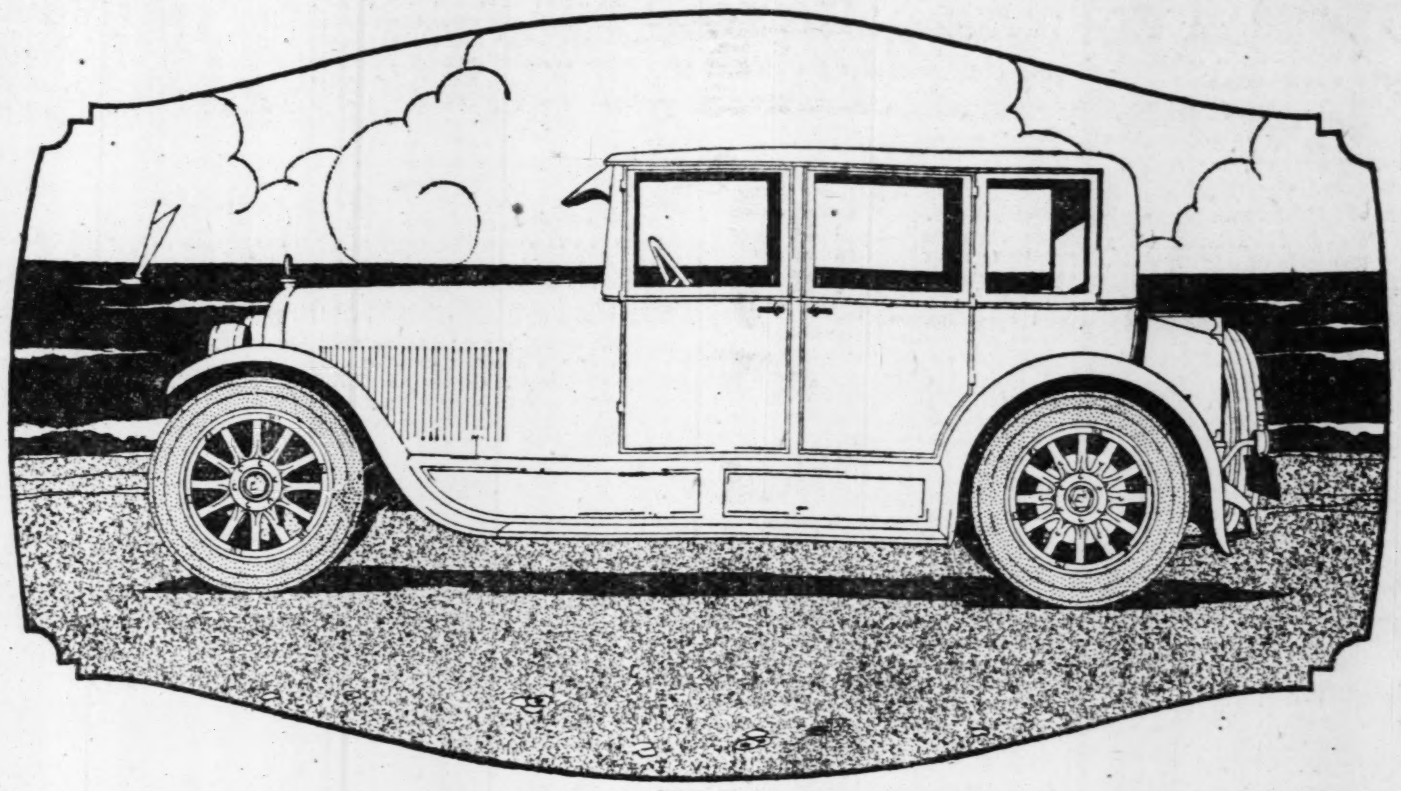
ANNOUNCING



The Four Door Brougham by JORDAN

We might as well tell it—the secret will soon be out.

It's the new Jordan Four Door Brougham—designed for leadership in style, quality and price.

It's a wonderful companion for the busy man or woman about town—a delight for suburban convenience—a joy on the open road.

How did we happen to think of it?

A woman who got tired of driving an old fashioned bulky open car with curtains flapping and the wind blowing down her neck, bought a two door Brougham.

She was delighted—at first—until she got tired of having the passengers in the rear seat climb over her to get out—until she got tired of having her friends walk around the car through the mud to get in.

Of course she saw a great flock of manufacturers stampeding to build a cheap, two door car—because two doors are cheaper than four.

So we have built the Four Door Brougham in well recognized Jordan quality, at a quantity price—$2285.

Thousands of open car owners, inexperienced with enclosed car driving, will buy two door cars this year. The same thousands will want a Four Door Brougham next year.

Thousands of experienced enclosed car owners, still driving bulky Sedans, want to escape the feeling that every man and woman dislikes—the feeling of being a chauffeur—driving a bus.

The Four Door Brougham has all the advantages of the compact, light weight, intimate car, with all the capacity and comfort of the Sedan.

The quality is Jordan quality, yet the price is astounding—$2285.

Price is all a matter of quality and production.

In the Four Door Brougham we challenge comparison with $3000 enclosed cars only.

Lines long and low—rounded to relieve the eye grown weary of sharp corners—now become the mark of cheap production.

Doors swing wide and cushions tilt to a position of relaxed ease.

Upholstery in fashionable shades of fine broadcloth, harmonized to suit the most critical woman's taste.

Interior fittings in platinum finish.

A trunk with two suit cases—not hung on behind—but built in to harmonize with this delightful town and touring brougham.

The Jordan chassis no one questions.

We could take a thousand words to describe the quality of the Jordan Four Door Brougham. Instead we do it in eleven—Quality the same as all Jordan enclosed models of the past.

40,000-MILE CRUISE AROUND THE WORLD

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ernest Guinness and Party Taking Leisurely Trip on Yacht.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1923, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

LONDON, May 5.—The Hon. Arthur Ernest Guinness, his wife, their three daughters and a party of friends are now "somewhere on the Atlantic," starting on a 40,000-mile trip around the world on his splendid 800-ton auxiliary yacht, Fantom II. Ten months, perhaps a year, will be consumed in circumnavigating the globe, for Guinness will go wherever his fancy calls and will make excursions from any port he enters to whatever places attract his wife and their guests.

Sailing from Southampton on March 29 with only her owner and two or three friends on board, Fantom II arrived at Gibraltar on April 14 and there Mrs. Guinness, her daughters and the main party joined the boat. After a few days' stay the yacht proceeded westward at the leisurely rate of 10 miles an hour. The voyagers will visit Las Palmas, the chief town of the Canary Islands, then Trinidad, then pass through the Panama Canal to the Fiji Islands. They will go on to Japan and Borneo, as is now arranged, and return through the Suez Canal and the Mediterranean.

Mrs. Guinness was Marie Clotilde, daughter of Sir George Russell, Bart. Her eldest daughter, Miss Aileen Bang Guinness, heiress to the family fortune was one of the most important debutantes of this season. The daughters, with their father, made a cruise to Northern waters on the Fantom II a year ago.

Arthur Guinness, who inherits his love of the sea, gained the degree of M. A. at Cambridge and during the war served as Lieutenant in the London Rifle Brigade. He is the second son of Lord Iveagh, head of the famous brewing company that bears the name of Guinness, immensely wealthy and powerful politically. Lord Iveagh has made many gifts to benevolent and scientific institutions, including one of $1,260,000 to the Jenner Institute for research in biology and bacteriology.

Fantom II is bark-rigged; her black and white hull gives her the outward appearance of a British fully rigged training ship. She was formerly the French trading vessel Belem, running between Nantes, where she was built, and the French possessions in the West Indies. The few years ago and brought her to few years ago and dbrought her to Southampton where she was converted into a palatial yacht.

Thousands of Women Are Now Converted

Black and White "Beauty Trail" Draws Many New Followers Each Year.

When the discoverers of the marvelous Black and White Beauty creations first announced to the girls and women of this country that they had at last perfected a means of really correcting bad comlexions, it was regarded as simply another wild claim which would explode when put to practical use.

But as each year has passed since that memorable day (in June, 1916), the figures show that large numbers of new converts have been added to the Black and White label, until now Black and White Beauty Creations are selling at the phenomenal rate of more than eight million packages a year.

When asked recently to give the reason for the tremendous popularity and big sale of Black and White Beauty Creations, one of the chemists said: "To us it is nothing out of the ordinary for such Black and White Beauty Creations as Cleansing Cream and Peroxide Cream to get such universal approval among girls and women everywhere. These enormous sales mean but one thing, and that is—Black and White Beauty Creations are actually accomplishing what women expect in caring for their complexion to keep it looking smooth and clear without a lot of trouble.

"One or two packages are sold in a neighborhood through the advertising and 20 more are bought there because the first ones bring such astonishing results. People are always ready to tell others about a method which helps them accomplish what other things failed to do."

Not a week passes that fails to bring us hundreds of statements from girls and women about the wonderful results they get in correcting bad complexion by using Black and White Cleansing, and Peroxide Cream. This alone is sufficient to explain the phenomenal sale of the Black and White Beauty Creations, and is the best reason no power on earth can keep them off the dressing tables of girls and women all over the country.

It's easy to get breakfast on time

If you have the right kind of stove in your kitchen

EVERY housewife knows how trying it is when all the family is impatient for breakfast and the stove is slow.

That sort of thing can't happen when you use a wickless Florence Oil Range. Just touch a lighted match to the asbestos starting kindler and you have a hot blue flame that cooks quickly without having to be urged. Your meal is on the way.

The Florence burns kerosene, a cheap fuel that is easy to get. But it gives a clean blue flame that is really like gas. That is because the kerosene, when heated, produces a gas, or vapor, that makes odorless, smokeless heat.

Any progressive hardware or furniture dealer will show you a Florence Oil Range and demonstrate its merits. Ask to see one the next time you go shopping.

It's no trouble at all to keep a kitchen spick and span when you cook with a Florence, because the stove itself is so easily cleaned. It is neat and good-looking, as well as a great convenience.

It's a real money-saver

You will be surprised and pleased by the saving you can effect in fuel costs when you use a Florence Oil Range, and it is not only an economy, but it makes your kitchen work lighter.

The Florence is handsomely finished in durable porcelain and hard, baked-on enamel that is easy to clean and to keep clean. It is so attractive and neat-looking that you will be proud to have it in your kitchen.

The Florence Leveler

A unique feature of the Florence Oil Range is the Florence Leveler, which enables you by the turn of a screw to make the stove stand firm and level no matter how uneven the kitchen floor.

If cooking is one of your daily tasks, you can make the preparation of meals a real delight by getting acquainted with the Florence Oil Range at your hardware or furniture dealer's.

NEW TOMB FOR 'LITTLE FLOWER OF FRANCE'

Body of Nun, Who Has Been Beatified, Moved Into Carmelite Convent at Lisieux.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, April 24.—Forty thousand persons took part in an imposing ceremony in the little town of Lisieux, in Calvados, when the body of Sister Therese, known to Americans and Englishmen as the "Little Flower of France," was transferred from the cemetery to the Carmelite Convent.

It was to escape from the world and to live in solitude that Theresa, at the age of 15, entered the convent in 1888 and her saintly fame has now spread to every country and the world from which she stole away flocks to her tomb to do her reverence. The eliquary in which her ashes rest is of solid silver and is the gift of Brazil, more than 30 Archbishops and Bishops of that country uniting in its acquisition.

American Delegation Present.

A delegation of the American army took part in the Lisieux ceremony, when the funeral car, drawn by white horses, was escorted by French military officers. In the place of escutcheons were portraits of Sister Therese with the sympathetic smile so well known to the inhabitants of the quaint old-fashioned town.

Many of them recalled Therese before she entered the convent, even then a saintly child, with an intense love of flowers and a poetic nature—loving to hear the distant bells of the old cathedral of Arnold, listening strangely to the sound of the wind in the trees or the passing of the waters of the slow flowing river Toque.

At the age of 7 she saw the sea for the first time, and on a rock at Trouville sat for a long time, gazing on the waves monotonously breaking on the short. This it was that turned her thoughts at that early age to things eternal. Eight years later she entered the convent. She has left a short biography in which she relates very simply her life there, but a fuller life is soon to be begun by M. Georges Goyau of the French Academy.

Tomb Shrine During War.

The tomb of Sister Therese was the shrine of thousands of officers and soldiers during the war. Many of them attribute their preservation from death to the mystic influence of the "Little Flower of France." From all over the world people went to Rome to be present at her beatification.

Sister Therese was a nun of the Barefoot Order of Carmelites when she died 24 years ago at Lisieux. It is exceptional for the Catholic Church to beatify so shortly after death, such ceremony being generally deferred for many years—sometimes for centuries.

The beatification of Sister Therese was pronounced with elaborate pomp and ceremony last Sunday in Rome by Pope Pius. Over 60,000 people were congregated in and about St. Peter's during the ceremonies, among whom were several thousand Americans.

Matters of Current Interest to St. Louis Lovers of Art

FRANK BRANGWYN'S painting, "The Return of Columbus," which has recently been purchased by the City Art Museum from the artist's London agent, D. Croal Thomson, has been hung in Gallery 11. The picture is painted on an old Norwegian wood panel, and is one of Brangwyn's late works. The museum is especially fortunate in being able to obtain this painting, since Brangwyn's works are rare in America, the majority finding European purchasers before the paint is hardly dry. Since turning the greater portion of his attention to mural work, Brangwyn's paintings are more scarce than before.

The title of this painting perhaps suggests something of the picturesque subject depicted. Brangwyn, seeking always strength and valor, daring and courage for a subject, finds in the romantic career of the young explorer plenty of idealistic beauty. And it is with idealism that the scene has been painted. In semidecorative manner characteristic of the artist, the intrepid navigator and his crew are shown returning gloriously to Spain. Womenfolk in brightly colored shawls and garments swarm around the voyagers with greetings, while dark-skinned slaves pass quickly to and fro unloading the cargo of the great, old Spanish galleon.

Frank Brangwyn was born in 1867 in Bruges, of an English mother and Welsh father. The presence of the family in Belgium was due to Brangwyn's position there as manager of a carpet-weaving factory. In 1877 the family returned to London, and although their son was but 10 years old at the time, the bright carpet designs, rich embroideries and luxurious draperies handled by his father left a lasting impression on the child's mind.

In London he was allowed to attend the South Kensington Museum, where he met William Morris, whose apprentice he became for three years. Although still in the artistic atmosphere he loved, wanderlust cause him to forsake Morris' studio and become a sailor, and shipped one day for the tropics

On this and subsequent travels, he visited the picturesque cities of Southern Europe and Asia and Northern Africa, where romance hangs like a cloud oevr the lands and waters. Doubtless much of the warm, magnetic feeling found in his later paintings, was developed at this time. His interest in ships and sailing did not lessen for several years. At one time he nearly decided to discard an artistic career and become a sailor.

Facts such as these easily account for the masculinity off Brangwyn's work. It is fearless and powerful, yet refined with fervent imaginings. His colorings are Oriental, yet his conceptions are energetic and modern. .

Although an English painter it remained for the French to discern and recognize his capabilities and the significance of his work, but his "Convict Ship," exhibited at the Chicago World's fair, was highly praised in this country.

Brangwyn may be said to be versatile in technique and mediums. His work is not confined to painting in oils, but embraces water color, etchings, architecture, designing of house furnishings (rugs, furniture and draperies), book illustrating and mural painting, the last of which he has recognized as his forte.

With the installation of Brangwyn's great murals in the new Capitol building at Jefferson City, it is quite fitting that an example of his work be placed in one of the largest and most representative public art museums in Missouri.

A LECTURE will be given at the City Art Museum on Saturday, May 12, at 3 p. m. by Miss Florence Heywood. Her subject will be "How to Enjoy Pictures" and illustrations will be made by photographs of various paintings in the Louvre. Miss Heywood, an American woman, is art lecturer in English at the Musee du Louvre. She wrote the well-known volume, "The Important Pictures of the Louvre." She will remain in St. Louis several days, visiting the family of Garfield D. Merner of University City. Her lecture at the Museum on Saturday will be open to the public.

THE benefit of the exchange of ideas afforded teachers of art in public schools of the Middle West by the Western Art Association convention, held in St. Louis from May 1-4, will be felt not only by the teachers in pursuing their work, but will also be felt by pupils. The Western Art Association is one of three similarly organized alliances of art teachers in America, and is representative of the best that is being done in art in the public schools of the Middle West. The territory of this group of teachers extends from Ohio to Nebraska and from Minnesota to Oklahoma, one of the two other art associations being in the Eastern states and the other covering the Western coast.

Exhibits of work done in grammar and high schools throughout this community showed the advance made in design and applied arts. Addresses were made by various members of the association. Professor E. H. Wuerple of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, spoke on "Appreciation of Art Aside From Technical Training" and "Art for Children." The first subject treated of the idea of beauty and its psychology, the beauty of line, form and color, and the application of beauty to life and to art. In his second lecture he considered the inquisitive mind of the child, the importance of stimulating of analysis, the strengthening of observation, the reaction of design, and the awakening of appreciation.

More than 350 teachers attended the convention. The opportunity of seeing how other teachers handle problems that present themselves in every art class cannot fail to benefit the work to be done in the future.

PROVISION is made in the will of the late Henry Ward Ranger, N. A., for the establishment of an annual fund to be used to purchase works of American painters for presentation to art institutions of America. The fund is managed by the National Academy of Design in New York and the purchases it provides for are made by that institution. All presentations are conditional, each picture being subject to recall by the National Gallery at Washington 10 years after the artist's death, if the National Academy and the National Gallery see fit.

Eight or 10 presentations have been made from the fund since Ranger's death. The latest of these gifts is that of the painting entitled "Sleep," by Leon Kroll, A. N. A., to the City Art Museum of St. Louis. It has recently arrived and is now hung in Gallery 20.

The painting is curious, both in subject and significance. The scene is in Central Park West, New York. In the foreground various figures are seen sleeping on the grass. Among these is a young mother and babe. A girl of about 15 stands near. The landscape stretches away, a small pool of water and several great bolders being prominent, while tall apartment houses are seen across the park.

The picture should be considered figuratively, for if taken literally, sundry complications present themselves. It is painted somewhat in the style of the French modernists. The greens, the distances, the thick, dark tree trunks probably show the influence of Renoir. The figure handling is substantial and good, and constitutes the basic reason for the award of the first Benjamin Altman prize of $1000 for figure painting, given for this picture at the National Academy in 1922.

PROGRAM TO BE GIVEN FRIDAY BY PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA

Concert at Central High School Auditorium to Be Directed by Frank Gecks.

The program to be given Friday night at the Central High School Auditorium by the St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Frank Gecks, will comprise the overture to Mozart's "Figaro," two movements, "Wedding March" and "In the Garden," from Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding" symphony, and Bizet's suite from "Carmen," including the "Habanera," "Nocturne," "Danse Boheme," "Prelude," "Arragonaise," "Intermezzo," "Sequidilla," "Les Dragons d'Alcala" and "The Toreadors."

Leroy Crow, bass, will sing, with accompaniments by Paul Friess, Leach's "Let All Obey," Vannah's "Good-Bye, Sweet Day," Hawley's "Noon and Night," Neidlinger's "On the Shore" and the Serenade from Gounod's "Faust."

Community Musical Evening.

A community musical evening is announced for Wednesday evening at Christ Church Cathedral, Thirteenth and Locust streets, when there will be a free organ recital by Arthur Davis and solos by Chester Merton, tenor soloist of the Cathedral choir.

Wonderful for Piles Says Peterson

If you receive every week a dozen or more letters like the ones below from people who have suffered torments from piles, wouldn't you feel happier than the man whose life is devoted to money grabbing?

"Gentlemen: I have been suffering with a fistula for the past 20 years. During that time I have tried numerous remedies, all of which have failed.

"Two months ago I determined to give Peterson's Ointment a trial. The improvement was so decided after using one box that I have continued, and on the completion of the fifth box am now entirely cured.

"This is written with the view of passing along the good word to other sufferers." Very truly yours. Chas. E. Caswell, 282 Third street, Albany, N. Y.

Here's another from Mr. Edgar Thomas, age 76, of Hemlock, N. Y. He writes:

"I had the itching piles, also high blood pressure. I saw Peterson's ad in the paper. I used one box and a half of Peterson's Ointment for itching piles and the piles disappeared, also the high blood pressure." 35 cents a box at all druggist.

DANDRUFF SOON DESTROYS THE HAIR

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

'SUNNY WEATHER' TO BE MUSICAL REVUE

Amateur Production to Be Given This Week for Benefit of Father Dunne's Charities.

A musical revue, fashioned after the pattern prevalent on the professional stage today, which bears the equally atmospheric revue title of "Sunny Weather," will be shown at the American Theater on Thursday and Friday nights for the benefit of Father Dunne's charities, among which is included the home for boys

This musical show, with elaborate sets, shimmeringly gowned choruses, comedians and burlesques of the famous and near-famous, will be presented by amateurs, many of them having had some stage experience in college nad social productions. The book, music and lyrics are by George O'Neil, with the exception of one scene, a dramatic playlet which finds its source in the history of the ancient Pharaohs of Egypt, written by William Luyties.

A prologue, in which two characters, one representing England and the other America, furnish the humor, will open the performance. Follows a cabaret scene wherein are paraded the latest developments in jazz, Conan Doyle and the spirit world, peculiarly apropos at this time for St. Louis, the theater and King Tutankhamen.

In rapidly succeeding scenes will be offered the "Jewel Song," a magnified scene of a jewel case from which step six young women—Mis Audrey Faust, Miss Dorothy McBride, Miss Alice Scott, Mrs. Donald Lambert, Miss Elizabeth Carter and Miss Gloria Geisinger—gowned to represent precious gems; "The Violin" with a chorus clad in the lavish costumes of the French Court, and a song number called "Old Masters," the effect heightened by Mrs. August Busch Jr., Mrs. Webster Tilton, Mrs. Brown O'Fallon, Mrs. Charles Bascom, Miss Katie Lou Crunden and others posed in a gilded frame. Another comedy sketch will be a display of temperament indulged in by prominent motion picture stars.

Tickets are on sale at Hotels Jefferson and Chase and the American Hotel.

EUROPE STILL UPSET ON PEACE ANNIVERSARY

Will Be Four Years Monday Since Versailles Treaty Was Handed to Germans.

By the Associated Press.

ESSEN, Germany, May 5.—The fourth anniversary of the handing of the Versailles peace treaty to the German delegates in France will be May 7. Clemenceau, representing the allied and associated Powers, delivered the peace document to Count Brockdorff-Rantzau with the remark that the Germans would have 15 days in which to make written observations on the document.

The document was actually signed by the Germans and allied and associated Powers on June 28, 1919, after 52 days of bickering which has been continued without cessation in conferences without number until a French army finally moved in the Ruhr and other parts of the Rhineland, and industrial Germany is in an upheaval which bears little resemblance to peace.

Peace seemed near on that bright 7th of May four years ago when thousands lined the roadways at Versailles and watched the silk-hatted German delegation enter the Trianon Palace to face representatives of the Powers which had defeated Germany at arms. Bismarck's work was being undone, according to the French press, and France was finally getting justice.

Clemenceau, Wilson, Orlando, Lloyd George and most of the other leaders who participated in the ceremony at the Trianon Palace have retired from office. Brockdorff-Rantzau, after a somewhat stormy political career, has come back into public life as German Ambassador to Russia and is struggling in Moscow to make the Rapallo treaty between Russia and Germany effective. This is a task a little less difficult than the efforts of Chancellor Cuno and his associates in Berlin to combat the French about a compromise of the reparations question.

Voice of Union Labor and the Radical Press

The Post-Dispatch prints herewith extracts from editorial or other articles in organs of the labor unions and the Communist and Socialist Parties, showing the tendency of thought on public questions among those bodies of citizens and indicating causes of social unrest.

"GARYIZE OUR FARM."

(From the Oklahoma Leader, Farmer-Labor.)

The Daily Oklahoman now advances a new theory to remedy our serious farm depopulation.

"Garyize our farms," says the oracle. If American farmers can't make a living—on a farm, ship 'em to the factories, where it doesn't matter so much whether they live or not. Then go to countries that have no farm-depopulation problem, depopulate their farms and transplant the owners to America. Maybe they know how to starve better than our farmers.

Our plutes are solicitous for immigrants from Scandinavia. Denmark, Sweden and Norway have prosperous, contented farmers. Denmark also comes nearer to the "co-operative commonwealth" than any nation in the world. Sweden has a Socialist government. Railroads of Scandinavia don't grab half the farmer's profits. Why? Because the people own 'em. * * *

We don't need to let down the bars of immigration but if we let 'em down to the Scandinavians they will teach us a thing or two. Our farm depopulation would right itself if farming were made profitable by the adoption in America of the remedies used in progressive Scandinavia. If you would get at the bottom of the psychology behind the Oklahoman editorial of April 18, you should substitute for the heading the sentence: "Wanted: Cheap and Docile Labor."

COSSACKS IN WEST VIRGINIA.

(From the Worker, Communist.)

All over the nation the Cossacks (state constabulary) are being lauded by the bosses as a law enforcement organization of estimable qualities. Where no Cossacks exist, it is urged that they be organized and financed by the state governments. Where they do exist, it is urged that their numbers and power be increased. It is declared that they are a great protection for the farmers in the rural districts.

In combating the bosses it is hoped that the forces of labor will make good use of the facts just brought to light regarding the West Virginia Cossacks.

It has been shown that the greater part of the $450,000 appropriation for 1921 was spent in two coal counties, Logan and Mingo, where the miners are unorganized. The other 32 counties, which have been unionized, have put in no call for the Cossacks. They didn't need them.

During the year ended June 30, 1922, the West Virginia Cossacks made 4804 arrests, practically all of them in Logan and Mingo counties, the scene of the West Virginia mine war, where capitalism invoked all possible brutalities against the struggling workers. Among those thousands of workers arrested, there was Roy Rector, who has filed an affidavit, with hundreds of other miners, demanding that the State Legislature abolish the Cossack system. Rector tells of the crimes of the Cossacks. He says that following the arrests, the Cossacks returned to the tent colony, June 2, at Lick Creek, and——

"cut the tents, destroyed the grub, poured kerosene oil in a churn of milk, broke up dishes and rocking chairs, so my wife and 3-year-old baby had to go without anything to eat from breakfast until some time that night, and then she had to go to Williamson to the United Mine Workers' office to get money to buy something, and I was in Welch jail at that time; and on the twenty-second day of the month they brought me back to Williamson and released me with no charges against me."

These Cossacks originated in Pennsylvania. Gov. Pinchot is now Chief Executive of that State. He says he is going to purify these human jackals. And that mouthpiece of bougeois righteousness, the New Republic, says, "It remains to be seen whether such precautions will be sufficient."

The Cossack system is a part of capitalism's strike-breaking system. The workers must demand its complete abolition. Labor should insist that during times of strike, only strikers be used to keep the peace and maintain order.

MORE POLITICAL PRISONERS.

(From the New York Call, Socialist.)

Six years ago, in June, 1917, 12 men and one woman, members of the Socialist party in Cincinnati, were arrested and held for "treason." They had ordered some leaflets printed opposing conscription. The leaflets were printed before the infamous espionage act was passed.

The American Civil Liberties Union gives a record of this case. The accused were indicted under a conspiracy statute, convicted and sentenced to prison, after many delays. They appealed to the Court of Appeals in June, 1919. This court heard the appeal in December, 1922. The Court sustained the conviction in February, 1923. The defendants now apply to the Supreme Court of the United States for a review of the case, and if this is denied they will have to serve their sentences.

If the decision goes against the accused, 12 more political prisoners, one having died in the meantime, will be added to those remaining in jail, six years after our entrance into the war and nearly five years after the end of the war. The character of the indictment, the years of delay, the possibility of an adverse decision years after the war has passed into history, make a chain of circumstances remarkable in legal history.

American "democracy" is a deck of marked cards for the workers. What a contrast with the effort of the District Attorney's office in attempting to conceal the name of a millionaire connected with the Dorothy King case.

A FEELER THAT WILL FAIL.

(From the Seattle Union Record, Union Labor.)

President Harding is being urged to favor an anti-union shop declaration in the administration party's platform next year. The plan is a flank attack on the unions by declaring for individual bargaining.

The proposal, of course, is a kite or "feeler." Its purpose is to ascertain if it is possible to inflame business men, middle classes and farmers against organized wage earners.

The suggestion that labor be compelled to bargain individually is as old as history. At one time the plan was known as slavery, and it was called slavery. It was openly defended. It was replaced by feudalism, and this was followed by groupings of workers who were as stoutly resisted as they are today.

The present generation recalls the utterance of Pullman, Chicago car builder: "I have nothing to arbitrate." George F. Baer, coal owner, made this frank statement during the anthracite strike of 1902:

"The rights and interests of the laboring man will be protected and cared for—not by the labor agitators, but by the Christian men to whom God, in His infinite wisdom, has given control of the property interests of the country."

Behind these utterances is the slavery ideal. Pullman was absolute, Baer believed he was commissioned from on high. So did the Kaiser. All autocrats believe they are of superior clay.

GENEROSITY OF STEEL TRUST.

(From Labor, Organ of Railways Unions.)

Price of steel to the consumer will be advanced $1.75 per ton to take care of the 11 per cent wage increase granted 150,000 common laborers employed in the industry, says the Iron Age, spokesman for the Steel Trust. The total wage increase, at the rate of 4 cents an hour—from 36 to 40 cents—was estimated at $25,000,000 for the year period. This was heralded on the front pages of the daily papers as a munificent contribution to the workers, being okeyed by wireless from Judge Gary, en route home from a conference with Dictator Mussolini in Italy.

We find the announcement of $1.75 a ton advance in the price of steel on the less popularly read financial pages. Based on the 146,500 tons a day output for March there will be 45,500,000 tons of steel produced the coming year. Adopting the simple multiplication rule of our old blueback arithmetic this gives $79,625,000 added to the price of steel to make good a wage increase of $25,000,000. Not a bad piece of business for the Steel Trust.

GARY'S CALL TO EUROPE.

(From the Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

Upon the return of the feudal chief of the steel hells to the United States he addressed his feudal associates in Hoboken. One of the chief complaints of Gary was that there is not enough human raw material in this country to work into steel. Plenty of labor power is idle in Europe. Get it, is Gary's advice.

Little did the speaker realize that he was confirming the view held by millions of workers that they have no country. Their home is where their labor power can be sold. Affection for the native soil, home ties, historical traditions and family relations are broken down by the modern system of industrial exploitation.

Before the rise of machine and factory production the laborer traced his family relation back through generations in the same village, parish or county. Memories hallowed by generations made life endurable. The modern Moloch of capital scatters the laborers over the earth in search of buyers of his labor power. They become cogs in the machines of dirty factories. They have no country.

On this side of the Atlantic the chief of our industrial feudalism summons the laborers of Europe to come to his slave pens to be skinned. Even the call of the labor exploiter proves the internationalism which his class abhors when this ethic of brotherhood is proclaimed by the working class.

WORKERS' PROSPERITY.

(From the New Majority, Farmer-Labor.)

The Steel Trust has increased wages of day labor 11 per cent. And this is hailed by business men who break into print with interviews as a sign of wonderful prosperity for the working man. Great prosperity for the steel worker! He is now—with his new raise—getting the munificent wage of $19 a week! Magnificent prosperity! It is this kind of prosperity that provided statistics on which the Save a Life League last week announced that the number of suicides in the United States has doubled within the last three or four years.

City Again Rated as Summer Resort.

St. Louis, which last year was recognized as a summer resort in terms of reduced railroad fares, maintains her rating this year, in the announcement of the Illinois Central Railroad of rates varying from 80 to 30 per cent double local fares for the round trip from points in the South.

NEW DEVICE REVEALS OCEAN FLOOR CONTOURS

Chart Will Enable Mariners to Determine Position of Craft at Any Time.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—The precise contour of the Pacific continental shelf from San Francisco Bay to Point Descanso, Mexico, revealed here recently in the publication by the Hydrographic Office of the Navy Department of a bathymetric chart, shows the floor of the ocean in a detailed way which will enable mariners hereafter to determine the position of their craft when landmarks are obstructed from view by climatic conditions.

The information is based on a recent cruise made by the destroyers Hull and Corry, employing the recently invented Sonic finder.

The Sonic finder, a device which determines the depth of the ocean by recording the time required for the sound to reach the bottom and re-echo to the ship, takes a 2000-foot sounding in less than a minute, supplanting a method which required six hours.

Good Results Obtained.

Originally undertaken at the request of the Carnegie Institute to aid in finding earthquake faults in the Pacific Ocean, the results obtained by the charting cruise far exceeded the original purpose, according to Lieut. Lyman K. Swenson of the Navy Department.

Geologists may employ the chart to trace the extension of oil fields, situated on the Southern California coast, to submerged prominences in the same vicinity offshore, it is said.

Elaborating the possibilities of such a chart, Lieut. Swenson said it would enable anthropologists to trace links between continents in order to reach a determination of the manner in which animals migrated to countries which are now separated by oceans.

With the chart as a basis, mariners approaching the California coast could direct their craft, if equipped with the Sonic finder, to any harbor by means of deductions from the finder interpreted by the chart, navy officers said.

Ocean Floor Revealed.

The expedition furnished revelations regarding the floor of the ocean off the Pacific coast, which show an egg-shaped, submerged prominence on the bed of the Pacific Ocean at a point 30 miles southwest of the Farallone Islands, off the Golden Gate entrance of San Francisco Bay.

The chart also shows that if San Francisco Bay and the Pacific Ocean were pumped down 100 fathoms (600 feet), the coast line would be removed 30 miles from the Golden Gate straits and connect with the Farallones.

Off the coast of Southern California the ocean is spotted with depressions and contours resembling a land condition of mountains and lakes. This condition obtains in a line with the oil fields off the coast of Santa Barbara County.

BRITISH ACADEMY ACCEPTS OIL PAINTING BY WOMAN, 72

Canon's Widow Had Taken up This Phase of Art but Six Weeks Before.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 5. The exhibition of the Royal Academy is counted upon every summer to bring some art sensations. This year's surprise is the acceptance of a picture by Mrs. Henrietta Barnett, widow of Canon Barnett, who makes her first public appearance as a painter at the age of 72. It was only six weeks before this success that she took up oil painting and submitted three samples to the judges. This does not mean that she had never been an artist: although she never studied under a teacher, for many years she has painted in water colors, but merely as an amateur.

The Academy continues its dignified way as to the custodian of old fashioned British art traditions and seldom is any successful innovator admitted to its halls or its membership until long after he has become famous to the outside world. Such was the experience of Agustus John now in America, who was elected to associate membership years after he had made his high reputation.

A considerable group or the most advanced British artist's still holds aloof from the academy as did Whistler and some of his associates. The Society of British artists, of which Whistler was one of the first presidents, now is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary.

Whistler's famous portrait of Miss Alexander, which many thought had gone to America, hangs in a place of honor.

Restless Sleep Due to Gas

The minute you lie down, your heart goes thump, thump, thump! Finally it subsides and you fall asleep, only to be awakened in a little while by your heart thumping again.

All this makes you still more nervous and irritable. You think there is something wrong with your heart, when in reality an excess of gas in the stomach is usually the source of all the trouble. The accumulation of gas distends the stomach and causes pressure against the heart and lungs. That explains the thumping shortness of breath or other disagreeable symptoms.

Procure a supply of Baalmann's Gas Tablets from any reliable druggist. Take them as directed and see how quickly they help to relieve gas and all stomach distress. Guaranteed harmless—free from dope. Look for the yellow package. Price $1 at all leading druggists. J. Baalmann, Chemist, San Francisco.

$150,000 IS PAID FOR DAIRY FARM IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY

J. G. Ganahl Purchases Tract of 567 Acres Fronting on Clayton Road — Said to Have Largest Barn in State.

DEMAND FOR REAL ESTATE STILL STRONG

Turn-Over in Flats and Apartments Extensive, Large Number of the Latter Type Being Sold.

By Berry Moore.

J. G. Ganahl, president of the Ganahl Lumber Co. yesterday bought a tract of 567 acres on the Clayton and Kerrs Mill roads from Benjamin G. Brinkman, president of the Lincoln Housing Trust, through the Federer-Arendes Realty Co., for a reported price of $150,000. Brinkman acquired the tract several months ago through the Federer-Arendes company at a much lower valuation.

The tract is known as the Calla Lily Dairy Farm and occupies one of the highest and most attractive locations in St. Louis County. The tract has a high speculative value by virtue of its Clayton road frontage.

The improvements include what is said to be the largest dairy barn in the State. This barn is of fireproof construction and is equipped with a water system, electric lights and is strictly modern. It is the intention of the purchaser, who operates one of the largest poultry farms in Missouri and famous for its single comb white leghorns, to improve the land for utilization as a combination stock and dairy farm, carrying only pure bred Jerseys.

Ganahl's home on the Watson road, south of the Clayton road, is one of the notable places in St. Louis County.

Real Estate Demand Continues.

There is no moderation in the real estate demand which has been on a flourishing scale throughout the spring. In fact, last week was characterized by renewed demand for flats and apartments. The turn-over in buildings of this character was extensive and included a great number of apartment structures.

Many resales are reported at handsome profits and the speculative spirit is rampant, according to C. E. Cravens, president of the Cravens-Brenner Realty Co.

The record transaction of the week was that by which an unnamed client of the Walter Jones Realty Co. acquired the Westmoreland Apartments, an eight-story structure at 5880 Pershing avenue for a reported consideration of $750,000.

The building contains 79 four and five room suites and a cafe and a large lobby, and is available both as an apartment and a hotel. In has a rent roll of $97,000, approximately 10 per cent per annum on $1,000,000 gross.

The seller was Albert Watson, who recently purchased the building from Sam Koplar, who acquired it from Sam Hamburg Jr., the transfer in each instance being characterized by large profit.

Large Apartments Sold.

According to reports, the Walter Jones Realty Co. already has resold the building on behalf of a client at a bonanza profit. The first sale through the Walter Jones Co. was made in connection with the Kempland-Rodemeyer Real Estate Co.

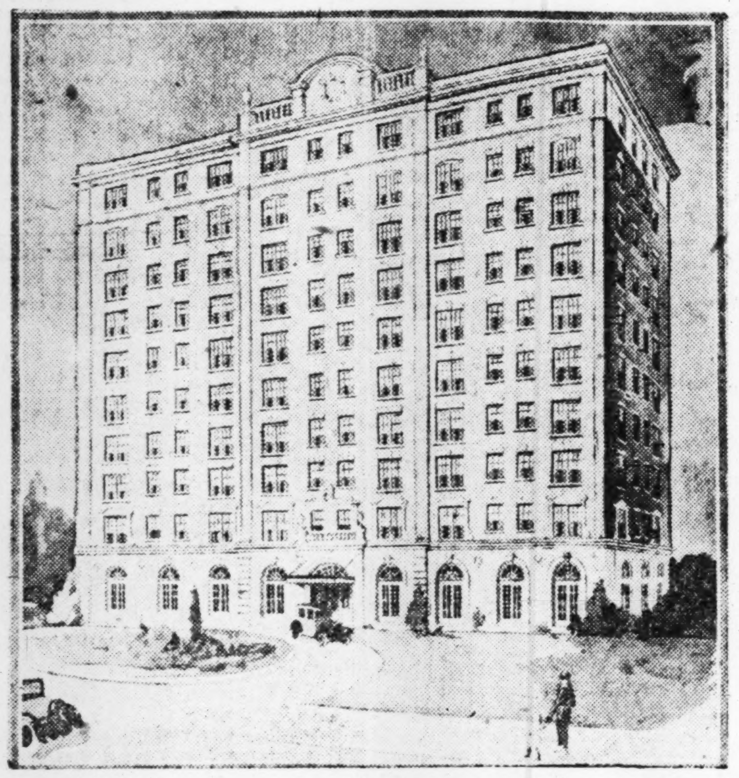
The week's sales also included several large apartment buildings in Delmar Garden, in University City, by the Wagner-Grant-Bell Realty Co. This concern has erected 25 buildings of this type in this addition. A number of these structures have been sold from the plans before completion.

The Daugherty Real Estate Co., of which Chester Daugherty is president, has negotiated the sale of an Olive street apartment building, involving $375,000 or more. Details of this transaction are not available. Notable sales of apartment buildings also were made by J. I. Epstein, Morris Aach, Weisels-Gerhart Co., Edward L. Bakewell, Anderson-Stocke Realty Co. and the Franciscus Realty Co. Bakewell reports sales aggregating $1,000,000.

Flat Sold Twice in Eight Days.

The Beckmann Realty Co. has sold a double flat at 4064 Castleman avenue twice in eight days; a six-family apartment on Kingsbury boulevard, a single flat at 4682 Vernon avenue and a nine-room residence at 1344 Goodfellow.

Architect's Drawing of $500,000 Hotel at Euclid and Maryland



THE Fairmont Hotel at the northwest corner of Euclid and Maryland avenues will be the only modern fireproof family hotel in St. Louis. The total cost of the new building will be $500,000. An issue of $300,000 first mortgage real estate bonds has been put out on this building by the Fidelity Bond and Mortgage Co., Chemical Building.

The new building will be 10 stories high, and will be trimmed in terra cotta. Sun parlors, dining room and lobby will take up the ground floor. There will be 160 rooms in the building each with private bath, in-a-door bed and dressing room.

The financing of the Fairmont is in line with the policy of the Fidelity Bond and Mortgage Co. to finance a type of construction for which there is pronounced demand.

Another recent issue of this company was that on the Gatesworth apartment-hotel on Union boulevard near Forest Park. The Gatesworth is one of the outstanding buildings of its kind in this section of the country.

MERCANTILE TRUST CO. REPORTS ACTIVITY IN REAL ESTATE

The Mercantile Trust Co.'s real estate department last week enjoyed a most satisfying volume of business. The interest expressed on the part of the buyers and the reasonable view-point taken by the sellers has much facilitated business.

The following sales were closed:

For J. R. Barron to Mortimer Burroughs, a tract containing five and a fraction acres fronting the east line of the Price road and approximately across the street from the new Burroughs School. This is approximately the last of the acreage formerly known as the Barron Homestead.

For Harry Theis to the Board of Education, the premises at 4251 West Kennerly avenue. This is practically the completing sale wherein the board has purchased a large area to increase the facilities of the Sumner High School.

For the Northern Investment Co. to a client of the M. Hammel Realty Co., lot on South Broadway at Eichelberger, formerly owned by John Scullin. The purchaser will improve wtih a bungalow.

Sale of 26 Kingsbury place, the home of Brenton Van Cleave to Mrs. Laura McBride Mahaffey, was a phase of the week's business. This is one of the many handsome homes in Kingsbury and during the absence of the purchaser from the city this summer will be redecorated.

In reporting the sale of the Tupper property last week, it was inadvertently reported that the property was purchased by Henry McRee. This was incorrect. It should have read to Geo. M. Pyle, as he was the purchaser.

MORRIS AACH CO. REPORTS SALE OF APARTMENT BUILDING

Morris Aach Realty Co. reports the sale of 6018 McPherson avenue, a six-family apartment containing five rooms with open porch. This apartment was sold for William D. and Rose Samuels to Morris and Julius Schweig. Morris Aach represented all parties in the transaction.

The Aach company also announces the sale of 6317 Clemens avenue. This is a two-family apartment-flat of five rooms, sun parlor and sleeping porch, and was sold to Louise Garavelli for Mrs. Carrie Scherer and S. J. Arnold. Morris Aach and Mr. Morris of the Dougherty Real Estate Co. were joint agents in this transaction.

DAVIS REALTY COMPANY SALES FORCE AT BANQUET

The Davis Realty Co. held a meeting of their sales force and 80 of their co-workers at the Statler Hotel last night.

Ever since the first of the year the sales of the Davis company's 21 subdivisions have shown that a buying spirit for homes and apartment sites exists in the West End. Last week sales alone totaled over $100,000.

NUMEROUS SALES REPORTED BY FRANK L. DITTMEIER COMPANY

Frank L. Dittmeier Real Estate Co. reports sales for the last two weeks, aggregating $285,000, as follows:

Southwest corner of Parnell and Montgomery, lot 72x100, two-story brick arranged as single flats of four and five rooms; brick building containing four rooms; another building of three rooms, sold for Mrs. C. Deters to Charles W. Wilson, who also sold the property through this office.

At 823 Gano avenue, two-story brick building, single three-room flat, sold for William Bernan to Mrs. Ollie Finn.

At 5906 North Market street, two-story brick building, single flat, for two families; garage and outhouses; sold for Robert Marvin to a client of J. F. Straubinger.

At 2914 Montgomery street, one-story brick cottage of six rooms, sold for Mrs. Catherine Staly to a client of Sam Demba.

At 2921 Franklin avenue, two-story brick building, flat and residence, containing nine rooms, sold for Miss Sophia Kessler to a client of Thomas Foley.

Forty-two feet on the east line of Euclid avenue, just north of Labadie, by a depth of 165 feet. Sold for Charles H. Buss to Herman H. Kaesser.

Thirty feet on the west line of Morganford road, depth 140 feet, just north of Gravois avenue, sold for Mr. and Mrs. John Hartman.

At 2010-12 Shenandoah and 2002-4-6-8 Gravois, three-story brick building of seven stores and 14 flats, sold for client of De Tonty Realty Co. to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. H. Harrison.

Seventy-five feet on the west side of Dartmouth avenue, just east of Yale, by a depth of 130 feet, sold to Charles B. Hamilton, who will improve the property with two modern and up-to-date two-story brick bungalows.

Loans reported for last two weeks aggregate $65,000.

SELLING DRIVE IN MOORLANDS ADDITION

Shaw & Francis, Special Agents, Conducting Plans for Sales.

Shaw and Francis, special agents for the Moorlands, working through the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co., announce the opening this week of a special selling drive in Moorlands Addition. Moorlands Addition borders Moorlands Park on the west and is between Wydown Blvd. and Clayton Road.

While Moorlands Park is restricted to homes costing not less than $10,000, Moorlands addition meets the demand of the man of moderate means for a high class, restricted district in which to build his home. The restrictions in Moorlands addition permits the building of homes costing as low as $6,500.

As there is a growing scarcity of desirable homesites in good neighborhoods within the city, lots in Moorlands Addition are especially attractive and advantageously located for families of moderate means. A car line runs directly through the property, stores are conveniently located, and it is in the center of a very exclusive residential district of high priced homes. Moorlands Park and the Goldman Estate are to the east, Brentmoor to the north and the Country Club district to the west. From any spot in Moorlands Addition a wonderful panoramic view can be had of St. Louis County.

HOME BUILDING CORPORATION SIGNS $1,800,000 OF CONTRACTS

The Federal Home Builders' Corporation has signed contracts during the last eight weeks for the erection of houses, flats and apartments aggregating in cost $1,800,000, according to E. D. Barrett, general manager of the company, of which C. W. Beck is president.

Barrett has announced that from June 15 on the company will be delivering a house a day. All these buildings are to be erected as homes or investments for private parties, at actual cost plus a small percentage. The company does no building on its own account, and each building erected under its plan is bonded against liens and to insure completion, Barrett stated.

The company, he declared, is in a position to pay cost for all building material and thus avail itself of the 5 per cent and 10 per cent discount for cash. It hires builders and master mechanics by the year as a provision against strikes and lost motion on the jobs. The company is operating on strictly cash basis, it was pointed out.

The company is completing its first building at Marcus and San Francisco avenue. It furnishes complete building service and finances construction.

GRETHER & CO. SELLS SIXTH ST. PROPERTY TO FARMERS' CONCERN

John Grether & Co., in International Life Building, reports the sale of the property at 1439-41 North Sixth street, with a lot, 92x125, improved with building of 14,000 square feet floor space, to the Farmers' Produce Co., a Missouri corporation of $40,000 capital. The price paid was $25,000. The corporation is one of 10 principal branches of the Missouri Farmers' Association, incorporated under the Missouri co-operative law, all of the stockholders being farmers.

The same property was sold two months ago by John Grether & Co. to a client.

Grether & Co. also report the sale of the brick dwelling at 5655 Vernon avenue, for Robert E. McWilliams to Patrick Stokes for $6750.

SALE OF APARTMENT BUILDING REPORTED BY STANLEY EPSTEIN

The sale of the apartment building at 6400 Cabanne avenue was reported by Stanley Epstein for the account of the Parsons-Van Drew Tire and Rubber Corporation. Adelina Passigalia was the purchaser. Other sales reported by Epstein are two seven-room residences at 5250-52 Waterman avenue, for the account of Melville Stoltz, and a new four-family flat at 1293 Amherst for Betty Laba to Harry Jasper of the Gallant Jewelry Co.

Morganford Road Lot Leased.

Arthur C. Moyle has leased the lot on the northwest corner or Morganford road and Connecticut street for Josephine Letal to George E. Martin. Martin will operate an oil and gas filling station there having purchased the filling station business from the previous tenants, Edward L. Oxenhandler and Joseph Jackoway.

Jost-Miller Co. Sales.

The Jost-Miller Real Estate Co. reports the sales of an 88-foot lot at Polk and Bredell avenues, St. Louis County, for Henry Gorath to Frederick West, who will build a home there, and of a double flat at 5816-18 Theodosia avenue for M. Weitz.

FIRST APARTMENT EAST OF GRAND IS BEING BUILT

Building on Pine Street, Between Eleventh and Twelfth, to Have 16 Efficiency Suites of 4 and 5 Rooms With Stores on First Floor

The first apartment house east of Grand boulevard is to be built on foundations already in process of construction, on the north side of Pine street, between Eleventh and Twelfth. The building, which is to be of four stories and is to contain 16 four-room and five-room apartments, is being constructed by F. L. Cornwell, attorney, one of the largest real estate owners in the city, under the supervision of the Oreon E. and R. G. Scott Real Estate Co., which will have the management.

The site, 60 by 109 feet, and adjoins the building of the Clark Motor Co. The first floor will be occupied by stores. Garages in the rear will be for the use of tenants.

This enterprise, which is close to the new plaza section, will be watched with interest, as offering a possible solution to the question of what to do with certain downtown sites, now unproductive. The construction of the plaza, and the widening of Market street and of Olive street west of Twelfth boulevard, probably will cause a demand for apartments in this section, and the natural development will be elevator apartments of 12 stories or more.

Cornwell promoted construction of the Missouri Theater, the Delmonte Theater and Hotel, and other high-class buildings in the West End.

FRANK W. BRAY ASSOCIATED WITH BULL-SMITH COMPANY

Frank W. Bray, formerly with the Walter Scott Co., has joined the Bull-Smith Realty and Construction Co., with offices in the International Life Building, and will manage the real estate department. Erroll V. Thielieke, M. L. Gregg, O. C. Berghaus, Mrs. Cole, E. M. Dodson and Martin Miller have joined the sales force.

The company has under construction seven six-room efficiency bungalows, three of which were sold last week, and will start building a number of flats in the next two weeks.

Sales for the week are reported as follows:

4333-4345-4347 Wyoming street three new bungalows for Bull-Smith to clients; 2638 California avenue, 4 and 5 room single flats, for Arthur Wand to Dennis Griffin; 1618 Tower Grove avenue, vacant lot, for F. W. Junger and A. E. Bauer to client; 5973 Cote Brilliante avenue single 4 and 5 rooms flat for John Pitlyk to A. S. Bitza; 1910 Belt avenue, 4 and 5 room single flats, for Elizabeth Pudivitr to client; 5910 Cote Brilliante avenue, eight-room residence for Laura A. Mewes to client; 4920 Berthold, 4 and 5 room single flats for C. C. Allen to George D. Hart; 4255 McRee, vacant lot for F. W. Junger and A. E. Bauer to client.

J. B. SEIBERTZ FORMS NEW REAL ESTATE COMPANY

J. B. Seibertz, formerly in the real estate business at 806 Chestnut street, has formed the J. B. Seibertz Realty and Investment Co., with offices at 1704 Russell avenue.

The officers of the newly organized company are W. J. Gass, president and treasurer; J. B. Seibertz, vice president, and F. W. Schildknecht, secretary.

Siebertz has been connetced with real estate interests here for 15 years. For five years he was assistant secretary of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

Schildknecht has recently severed his connection with the American Car and Foundry Co. and will devote all his time to the real estate business.

Gass is connected with The Brecht Co., with which he will remain, acting merely in an advisory capacity for the new realty company.

49 LOTS SOLD IN NEW SUBDIVISION IN TWO WEEKS

The Federer-Arendes Realty Co. reports that the second addition to Grand-Dover Park subdivision, known as Grand-Dover Park No. 2, has been a surprise in the rapidity with which the lots have been sold. Since the opening of the subdivision, two weeks ago, 49 lots have been sold.

Graders expect to finish their work in two weeks and the installation of improvements will begin immediately. Three buyers have stated that they expect to start building on Grand-Dover Nos. 1 and 2 within two weeks. The buildings will range from bungalows to flats and double flats.

JOSEPH DARST REPORTS MANY SALES IN WESTMOOR PARK

The Joseph Darst Realty Co., selling agents for Westmoor Park at Clayton road and Pennsylvania avenue, reports an unusually large sale of lots last week.

The 175 lots now remaining unsold in Westmoor, according to Darst, will be entirely sold by May 30, at which time he will move his sales force to his new subdivision. A force of salesmen will remain on the property for a year after that date for the purpose of making resales.

Extensive alterations are planned, including a new store front and special fixtures that will be in keeping with the surrounding retail shops.

UNIVERSITY PARK SCENE OF BUILDING ACTIVITY

Several Plots Purchasd Last Week as Sites for Apartment Structures.

Plans now going forward indicate University Park soon will be the center of building operations in University City. During the past week several attractive plots on the Delmar boulevard frontage of this addition were purchased as sites for apartment buildings. Corners also were purchased on Cambridge, Vassar and Cornell avenues, as sites for pretentious homes. Excavation has been started on Princeton and on Cornell avenues preparatory to the erection of six large homes. S. T. Jenkins of the Goodman Manufacturing Co. is building a home on Princeton avenue.

As was recently told in the Post-Dispatch, a natianally known institution has purchased nine lots at the corner of Delmar boulevard and Princeton avenue, as sites for nine residences for its officials.

This subdivision is owned by the Cyrus Crane Willmore Organization, Inc., and is one of the most notable subdivision successes in St. Louis.

Surface and underground improvements, including asphalt penetration streets, sidewalks, curbs, parkways, trees, sewers, underground electric distribution, water and gas mains are being installed in parts of the district, with all possible speed.

Public Park for University Park Residents.

Two thousand feet in University Park, University City, which is owned and is being developed by the Cyrus Crane Wilmore Organization, Inc., in the Boatmen's Bank Building, is to be converted into a public park as a result of a vote by the University City Park Board at a meeting last Thursday night. The district chosen is bounded on the east by Vanderbilt avenue and approached from the east on Delmar boulevard, Princeton avenue, Cornell avenue, Stanford avenue, Colgate avenue and Amherst avenue. The western boundry is Jackson boulevard. Locations for home sites in the immediate vicinity, according to Cyrus Crane Willmore, president, are some of the choicest in Univedsity Park. When University Park was offered for sale to the public, the Willmore organization reserved the entire area because of its singular beauty for park purposes. It was pointed out that because of the Park Board's favorable action in the matter, home site values adjoining would greatly increase.

AN ANALYSIS OF

WESTMOOR

(Clayton Road and Pennsylvania Av.)

AS AN INVESTMENT

PROVE IT TO BE

"A Haven of Gold"

Situated at the junction of two popular roads, entirely surrounded by higher-priced property, in an environment of culture, just a step from the city limits, makes it a most desirable buy. It is the highest-class subdivision where flats and apartments are permitted, as well as residence and bungalow sites.

Literally thousands of homes must be built further west than Westmoor to take care of present housing shortage, hence the Westmoor buyer will profit more quickly and make more money than the buyer further away from the city.

AMES PLACE

IN THE HEART OF UNIVERSITY CITY

The Only Guaranteed Subdivision

ON THE MARKET

We firmly believe that every purchaser of a lot in AMES PLACE will make a profit of 25 to 50% in the next 12 months. In order to show our faith in this subdivision, we will give a written contract to every purchaser of a lot in AMES PLACE agreeing to buy it back within one year if desired at price paid plus 6% interest. Terms: One-third cash, balance on or before 3 years.

YOU CANNOT LOSE

We are offering the greatest bargains in high-class lots in the city.

Can You Afford to Speculate?

MARK THIS: More rich men in St. Louis owe their wealth to real estate investments than to any other cause—no other investment is so safe.

If you had invested at Kingshighway and Delmar when Grand and Olive was an assured fact, or at Hamilton and Delmar or in Delmar Garden very recently, what wisdom you would have shown.

An investment in UNIVERSITY PARK today, in this "PATH OF VALUES" along Delmar Boulevard is not SPECULATION.

There is only one Delmar Boulevard. Values decrease South and North in proportion to the distance from Delmar Boulevard.

CAN YOU AFFORD TO SPECULATE?

Come today, see for yourself and permit us to explain our plan.

Select your homesite on the side of the new Park.

LEITER ACCUSED OF MISMANAGING FATHER'S ESTATE

Petition, Filed by Duchess of Suffolk and Berks, Asks That He Be Removed as Trustee.

SUIT IS RESULT OF FAMILY FEUD

Former Wheat Speculator Said to Have Appointed Office Clerk, Whom He Dominated, as Co-Trustee.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Charges of mismanagement of the $100,000,000 estate of the late Levi V. Leiter, pioneer Chicago merchant, are made against Joseph Leiter, capitalist and a trustee of his father's estate, in a bill filed in the Superior Court today by his sister, the Duchess of Suffolk and Berks, the widow of the late Earl of Suffolk and Berks, and herself a trustee in the property.

Co-defendant with Leiter, who now lives in Washington, is another sister, Mrs. Nancy Carver Campbell, wife of Col. Colin Campbell, English army officer, and a trustee, and also 18 other heirs of the estate. These include the daughter of Lord Curzon of Kedleston, whose first wife, the Lady Mary Victoria Leiter Curzon, died several years ago. Lord Curzon is British Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The petition, which was filed by Attorneys Scott, Bancroft, Martin and MacLeish, and which seeks to force the removal of Leiter as trustee and asks a strict accounting of his sterwardship, is the result of a family feud which had its inception in the appointment by Leiter of an office clerk, William J. Warr, to succeed the late Seymour Morris, as co-trustee of the estate.

Five Trustees Named.

In his will, dated eight days before his death on June 9, 1904, the elder Leiter placed his entire fortune in trust and named five trustees, including his widow, the late Mary T. Leiter; Joseph Leiter, his two youngest daughters, Mrs. Colin Campbell, the Duchess of Suffolk and Berks, and the late Seymour Morris of Chicago.

The vacancy caused by the death of Mrs. Leiter has never been filled, and by the will Chauncey Keep was named to succeed Morris as trustee in the event of the latter's death.

Refusal of Keep to accept the trust caused discord among the trustees and other heirs, which was heightened, according to the bill, when Joseph Leiter, ignoring nominations suggested by the Duchess, appointed William Warr, a clerk in the estate offices, over whom, it is charged, he had control.

Dominated by Leiter.

Warr, it is alleged in the bill "completely dominated by Leiter, has aided the latter in his acts which he knew were in violation of the duties imposed upon him as trustee by the will." An investigation into the circumstances surrounding Warr's appointment and his removal are requested in the petition.

The petition recites that Joseph Leiter "has not managed it (the estate) for the purpose of paying the income to the trustees, but has wholly disregarded his duty and asserts that he does not intend to pay except as and when he may see fit."

Joining in the petition are Colin Campbell, Lord Curzon and his daughters—the Lady Mary Irene and Alexandria Haldera Curzon; the Misses Cynthia Blanche Moseley and Vivian Elizabeth Moseley; the Misses Mary Meta and Audrey Nancy Campbell, children of Mrs. Colin Campbell; Charles Henry George Howard, the present Earl of Suffolk; Cecil John Arthur Howard and Greville Reginald Howard, sons of the Duchess of Suffolk and Berks, whose husband was killed in battle during the late war.

In 1898-99 Joseph Leiter lost $5,000,000 to P. D. Armour and other bears in an attempt to corner the wheat market. His father made good the losses.

8 WITNESSES LOCKED UP AFTER FAILURE TO TESTIFY CLEARLY

Coroner's action Is Taken at Inquest Into Death of William Mayberry, Who Was Stabbed.

Failure to testify clearly at an inquest into the fatal stabbing of William Mayberry, 34, a teamster, of Cook Station, Crawford County, Mo., who died at City Hospital Tuesday night from a wound in the abdomen, resulted in eight of nine witnesses summoned to the hearing yesterday being held at Central District holdover until tomorrow by order of Deputy Coroner Dever.

Robert M. McCormish, 27, proprietor of a saloon at Hunt and Tower Grove avenues in front of which Mayberry was found wounded Saturday night a week ago, testified that Perry Johnson, a laborer, of 1507 Tower Grove avenue, told him he could identify Mayberry's assailant. Dominick Spitale, who operates a saloon across the street from his place, also told him he knew who cut Mayberry, McCormish said. Both Johnson and Spitale denied making the statements, as did Louis Stagner, 1119 Tower Grove avenue, who was credited with a similar remark by Earl Larkin, another witness.

When it was seen that nothing more could be learned from the witnesses, the four, along with Michael Deine, Joseph Schneider, William Adkins and Thomas Moll, all of whom are said to have witnessed the stabbing, were ordered locked up. McCormish was not detained, but ordered to report at the Coroner's office tomorrow.

Y. M. H. A. CAMPAIGN EXTENDED

Final Reports Tomorrow at Noon—$470,000 Pledged So Far.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association campaign to raise $500,000 for a new and modern building has been extended to tomorrow at noon, when workers are expected to report at a final luncheon at Hotel Statler a sufficient amount subscribed to cover the total required. Up to Friday $470,000 had been pledged by approximately 3000 subscribers, leaving $30,000 yet to be raised.

Among late contributors are Ben Harris, $5000; Samuel Rosenfeld, International Shoe Co., Samuel C. Davis, Abraham Fur Co., Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Eiseman, Alex Landau, $1000 each.

Pork Bone Lodged in Boy's Throat.

A fragment of bone half an inch long became lodged in the throat of Frank Cleary, 16 years old, son of Dennis Cleary, 2019 Park avenue, when he was eating pork chops at luncheon yesterday. It was extracted by city hospital physicians last night.

BOTH SIDES IN M. & N. A. STRIKE WAR ABSOLVED

Legislative Committee Report Fails to Fix Definite Responsibility.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 5.—Without fixing definite responsibility for depredations or acts of volence incident to the Missouri and North Arkansas Railroad troubles, the legislative committee appointed by the 1923 legislature to investigate the affair, filed its report with Governor McRae late today. The committee finds that neither the strike sympathizers nor the members of the "citizen's committees" were able to conduct their respective sides of the controversy without unofficial lapses from that which was lawful and right, and held that the lynching of E. C. Gregor, a union striker, the destruction of railroad property and other forms of lawlessness as striking exemplifications of the deplorable results of setting aside the ordinary processes of civil government to attain any end, however good in itself.

Both Sides Absolved.

The report absolved both the so-called citizen's committees and the railroad labor unions from acts of lawlessness or violence as organizations, declaring that the evidence collected by the legislative committee tends to show that all acts of lawlessness and violence in our judgment sprang from seemingly innocent beginnings.

The committee held extensive hearings here, at which union labor officials and union workers who had been driven from Harrison and other towns along the M. & N. A. railroad were heard. The committee then went to Harrison and heard the citizens' side of the story. The report traced the history of the M. & N. A. railroad trouble for many months, showing the feelings of the citizenry of the territory tributary to the road and their virtual complete dependence upon its operation. It pointed out the general conditions leading to formation of citizens' committees at Harrison, Eureka Springs, Heber Springs, Leslie and other points, and the temper of those who wanted the strike settled and operation of the road resumed.

The report shows that men were beaten, apparently by sympathizers on each side; that railroad property was wantonly destroyed; and that finally one man, Gregor, a striking brakenian, was hanged. Considering the warmth of the feeling displayed by both sides, the report expressed wonderment that there was not more loss of life.

$20,000,000 CANAL AT NEW ORLEANS OPENED

Pageant of Many Boats at Dedication of Channel Connecting Mississippi and Lake Pontchartrain.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, May 5.—New Orleans' $20,000,000 inner harbor and navigation canal, construction of which was begun in 1918, was formally opened today. Ceremonies at the entrance of the canal were preceded by a river pageant in which more than 30 boats, including the United States cruiser, Rochester and the U. S. S. Denver, four destroyers and the British sloop of war, Valerian, participated.

More than 1500 persons—army and navy officers, State and city officials, visiting manufacturers, bankers and shippers who came here to attend the National Foreign Trade Council convention, members of the New Orleans consular corps, and representatives of foreign chambers of commerce and New Orleans business men—were guests of the Dock Board on the steamers Capitol and Susquehanna, which led the marine procession.

Principal speakers at the dedication exercises were James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation; Gov. John M. Parker of Louisiana; Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, and J. H. Puelicher, president of the American Bankers' Association.

The canal is five miles in length and connects the Mississippi River with Lake Ponchartrain. It is proposed to dredge a ship channel through Lake Pontchartrain to Lake Borgne and the Mississippi, so that steamers may reach New Orleans without having to make the long trip up the Mississippi.

Earth Tremors Recorded in Haawii.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, May 5.—The magnetic observatory of the United States Geodetic Survey near Ewa recorded an earth disturbance of "unusual magnitude," beginning at 6:03 a. m. yesterday. The tremor reached its maximum at 6:15 a. m. and was estimated to be 2150 miles from Honolulu. Prof. Arnold Romberg, seismographer of the University of Hawaii, previously had reported earth shocks at 6:03 a. m. and 8:31 a. m., at an estimated distance of 2000 miles.

Strong Earth Shocks, Without Loss of Life, in Chile.

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 5.—Strong earth shocks affecting the entire coastal zone between La Serna and Copaipo were felt last night. There was no loss of life and only small damage was done. Several telegraph and telephone lines were broken down and railroad communication was interrupted north of Frierina.

100,000 Sacks of Sugar Lost in Storm in Cuba.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Cuba, May 5.—Rain and wind attaining hurricane proportions passed over Barre de la Sabla, a suburb of Sagua La Grande, yesterday afternoon, causing considerable damage and destroying 100,000 sacks of sugar which were awaiting exportation. The storm lasted 25 minutes.

Cable Office at San Jose, Salvador, Destroyed by Volcano.

By the Associated Press.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, May 5.—Advices from Guatemala say that the port of San Jose experienced a violent cycline yesterday. It destroyed the official cable office and various other buildings. The city is still without telegraphic communication.

"Moonshine" in Attic, Saloon Man Held.

J. Dehart, proprietor of a saloon at Anglum, Mo., was arrested at 2:30 p. m. yesterday by Deputy Sheriffs of St. Louis County, who reported finding a barrel of "moonshine" whisky, two cases of beer, two jugs of wine and two slot machines in an attic over Dehart's saloon when they went to the place with a search warrant. Dehart was placed under $500 bond.

542 MILES OF ROAD FROM ST. LOUIS UNDER CONTRACT

Three State Highways to Radiate From City, North, South and West, Will Cost $8,801,568.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 5.—Contracts for 542 miles of road to cost $8,801,568 have been let on three Missouri State highways which radiate from St. Louis. The roads are the St. Louis-Kansas City highway through the central part of the State; the St. Louis to Joplin road through the Ozarks; and a road extending north from St. Louis through Hannibal and to Keokuk, Ia., and south from St. Louis through Cape Girardeau and into Arkansas, paralleling the Mississippi River. These figures were obtained from the State Highway Department today.

Much of the work thus summarized consists of grading and bridging, although there also is a large quantity of hard-surfacing provided for. The mileage under contract and the money involved on the three roads are as follows: St. Louis to Joplin road, 185 miles, estimated to cost $2,683,554; St. Louis to Kansas City, 101 miles, estimated to cost $1,743,744; Keokuk-St. Louis-Arkansas road, 256 miles, estimated to cost $4,344,470.

Construction on these and others of the projects, aggregating 1000 miles and $28,920,000 which are under contract, is proceeding rapidly. Reports of the Highway Department indicate that 22 miles of road were constructed the past week, and that 412 projects are under way in the State, approximately 12,000 men being employed.

WIDE RANGE IN PRICES OF GASOLINE FILLING STATIONS

Motor Car Fuel Sells in Kansas City at 15½ Cents; Chicago at 22.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 5.—As a result of the recent reductions of prices of crude oil and gasoline, the filling station price of gasoline showed a wide range in middle western cities.

While motor car fuel was selling for 15½ cents a gallon in Kansas City today, plus 1 cent tax, it was retailing in Oklahoma City at 19 cents; in Fort Worth for 20 cents; in St. Louis for 21½ cents, and in Chicago at 22 cents.

Price differences were said by some retailers to be due to freight rates, based on distance of the selling point from the refinery.

MRS. M.—We do not give business addresses in this column.

NO NAME.—Prohibition enforcement officers are located in the Federal Building.

EX STAR.—There are several professional soccer teams belonging to the Municipal Soccer League of St. Louis, of which the St. Matthews holds the Municipal soccer championship, for 1923. Their games were played at Fairgrounds Park.

L. K. Z. W.—The word "berceuse" is pronounced ber-suz'. It is a cradle song, or composition vocal or instrumental having a rythmic movement as of rocking. It also has the connotation of a nurse or one who rocks a cradle.

THIRTY-YEAR READER.—The will of Edward Douglas White, former Chief Justice of the United States, is contained in two sentences, 51 words in all. It reads: "This is my last will. I give, bequeath, and devise to my wife, Leita M. White, in complete and perfect ownership, all my rights and property of every kind and nature whether real, personal or mixed, wherever situated, appointing her executrix of my estate without bond and giving her seisin thereof."

P.-D. READER.—In October, 1921, messages written in Europe were transmitted by wireless to America and photographically reproduced in fac simile in New York practically simultaneously with their sending from the other side of the Atlantic. The messages were to the New York World from Aristides Briand, French Premier at the time, and from Gen. Pershing in Paris. The messages were received at the United States Navy Department radio station at Otter Cliffs, Me. A picture of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was transmitted by wireless from Italy to the United States May 7, 1922, by the apparatus invented by Prof. Arthur Korn of Germany. An English electrician, T. T. Baker, completed a process for wireless photography by which he found it possible to send by wireless a photograph which is reproduced on a sensitive film some distance away from the sending set. But the first real successful transmission of a photograph in the world by radio took place March 4, 1923, when a portrait of President Harding was placed in a camera like outfit in the naval radio station at Washington, and broadcast to another camera like apparatus 130 miles away on the top of the Evening Bulletin Building, at City Hall Square, Philadelphia, Pa. The sending was done from an ordinary photograph and at the receiving end the process was reversed. The picture when received through the air was printed from a negative in the ordinary manner. The apparatus was devised by C. Francis Jenkins, an inventor of Washington, D. C.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

J. P.—Property used exclusively for religious worship, for schools, or for purposes purely charitable, is exempt from taxation.

P. B.—Your 14-year-old son will have to go to continuation school unless you prefer the expense of having a lawsuit about it.

WORRIED.—You can draw out the money which you put in the loan association though it is in your mother's name. If you have any trouble in drawing it out, consult a lawyer.

E. H. B.—If you vacate without giving the landlord 30 days' notice he can sue you for one month's rent or possibly more, if he is not able to re-rent the place within a month.

T. S.—As you possessed them before the present law took effect it is lawful for you to wear the aigrettes, but it would be unlawful for you to sell them or offer them for sale.

M. H.—The mortgage can be released if affidavits are made and filed by the cestuique trust named in the mortgage and by the maker of the note, as provided in section 2237 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri, 1919.

C. B. E.—You can probably get a permit to remodel the roof on your house. Inquire at the Building Commissioner's office at the city hall for information.

R. M. S.—If the clothes which the minor purchased were necessaries and if the parents allowed the boy to retain the clothes after learning of the purchase, then the parents can be compelled to pay for them.

F. F. B.—We have no information regarding such a court decision as you describe, in connection with those who evaded the draft. You probably could obtain complete information regarding it by writing to the Judge Advocate General of the Army, Washington, D. C.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

HENRY.—Have your nose examined. There is no doubt some condition present in need of correction, perhaps by operation.

ANXIOUS.—We advise careful examination of the eyes, ears, nose and throat, especially the nose and ears for the trouble you describe.

FRENCHY.—The cure for blackheads was published under the signature "Squib," in the column of April 29, 1923.

SUFFERER.—We do not know the outfit you mention for removing hair. We doubt greatly, however, if it will permanently remove hair.

A. M.—Many women gain flesh markedly after childbirth. The safe and dependable way to reduce weight is diet and exercise with only necessary sleep. Send stamped addressed envelope for the diet list, making a request for the same.

CONSTANT READER.—There is some disturbance in the nerve supply to the arm which causes the condition you describe. The remedy depends on the cause, which should be removed if it can be located. Some times electric treatments are of value for such cases.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASE.—We do not think the practitioners mentioned can cure scarlet fever. The St. Louis Health Department would not accept a report from them except for investigation. These practitioners are violating the State law. The cure for goiter is iodine or surgical removal.

P. H.—1. Systematic practice of deep breathing, and the use of pulleys found in gymnasiums are excellent exercises for the expansion of the chest. 2. Following are exercises which will reduce the abdomen: Stand with the knees stiff, and then bend forward touching the fingers to the floor, repeat many times. Or you might lie on the back with the feet under a piece of heavy furniture, raise the body to a sitting position, and then lower it without using the arms. Or stand with the hands on the hips and bend forward and backward and from side to side.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our darling son and brother, Bernard Manning, who was killed two years ago, May 7, 1921:

Today recalls sad memories of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today are the ones who loved him best.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.
Mass at 8 o'clock Monday morning at St. Margaret's Church for Bernard Manning. (c)

In loving memory of our dear sister and aunt, Katie Thompson, who departed this life May 7, 1921.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.

Sadly missed by Gus Schlattmann, brother; Anna Krueger, sister; Raymond Krueger, nephew; Vera Krueger, niece.

In loving remembrance of our dear daughter and sister, Hilda Beck (Hinze), who departed this life one year ago, May 1, 1922:

You were a flower too sweet for us,
Sent here but for a while;
God marked you when He gave you birth
And took you with a smile.
Depths of sorrow we cannot tell
The loss of our darling we loved so well.

Sadly missed by father, mother, sister and those who loved her. (c)

In loving memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, William H. Orth, who departed this life May 6, 1921.

Two long years has passed away
Since that sad and mournful day
When our dear father was called away.
For all of us he did his best—
May God grant him eternal rest.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Stephen Platzer, who departed this life one year ago, May 7, 1922:

Days of sadness oft come o'er us,
Tears of silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near us
Though you left one year ago.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from our memories fade,
Loving hearts shall always linger
Around the grave where you were laid.

Sadly missed by:
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Antoinet A. Jacobs, who departed this life 12 years ago, April 30, 1911:

Silently the shades of evening gather round our lonely door,
Silently they bring before us the dear face we see no more;
So often we go to her grave, lingering there and try to be brave,
But, Oh, 'tis hard to bear to go away and leave her there.

Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND FAMILY.

In memory of my beloved husband and father, Charles Ross, who departed this life May 4, 1922.

Gone, dear father—gone forever;
How we miss your loving face;
Beloved husband, true and kind
No friend on earth like you I'll find.

Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN. (c)

In loving memory of our dear mother, Barbara Buchheit, who departed this life April 29, 1920:

When evening shadows are falling
And we are sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing
If mamma could only come home.
Beloved mother, true and kind,
No friend like you on earth we'll find.

Sadly missed by
JOHN BUEHHEIT, HUSBAND; MIKE, PETER, EVA BUEHHEIT, CHILDREN.

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Katherine Knudsen, who departed this life two years ago, May 9, 1921:

Though earthly ties are broken,
In life we will meet no more,
Our thoughts are with you, dear mother,
On yonder distant shore.
The God who gave has taken,
And heaven our mother has won;
Although our hearts are sad,
The will of God is done.

Sadly missed by daughters and those who loved her. (c)

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Louise Weber, who departed this life one year ago, May 3, 1922:

In her lonely grave she sleeps
As the shadows onward fall,
And our loving hearts are weeping,
No more her presence we can call.
Do not ask us if we miss her,
Oh, there's such a vacant place,
Oft we think we hear her footsteps
Or we see her smiling face.
Though she is gone, love lingers on,
For all of us she did her best;
May God grant her eternal rest.

FRED W. WEBER, HUSBAND; RUTH WEBER, DAUGHTER.

In loving memory of our beloved sister and dear wife, Louise Weber (nee Hoeft), who departed from us one year ago, May 3, 1922:

You are gone, but not forgotten,
Nor shall you ever be;
As long as life and memory lasts
We shall remember thee.
If we had seen you at the last
And held your dying hand,
And heard the last sigh from your heart,
We would not feel so bad.
We did not know the pains you had,
We did not see you die;
We only know you went away
And never said goodby.
It is one year since you left us,
And we miss you more and more;
Our hearts are filled with sadness,
For you we see no more.

Sadly missed by father, brothers, relatives and friends who knew her.

REAL ESTATE SALESMEN—Two; to handle small subdivision; opportunity for permanent connection. Box C-139, Post-Dis.

REALTY SALESMEN.

Our sales the past week crossed the $100,000.00 mark—a good record.

We have just purchased two more moderate priced flat and apartment house subdivisions, which we will open during the next few days.

We are now in the midst of selling Roth Grove—undoubtedly one of our biggest selling successes. It is the best two and four family flat and apartment house property left in the west end.

Sales are also under full swing in Altadena, our new bungalow and residence property, located in the very heart of University City's fienst residential development.

Altadena has Pershing boul., 100 feet in width and Kingsbury boul., 60 feet in width, intersecting it, with Hanley road as our west boundary.

Altadena introduces to St. Louis those wonderful courts and beautiful winding grades—those things which have made home life in Southern California so attractive.

Altadena is being improved with concrete streets, reinforced with steel; has every convenience and good home sites are being marketed for as low as $2000.00—a wonderful offer.

Our salesmen are making records in Altadena.

We are also offering the balance of Wydown Forest on Wydown boul. —another very beautiful and very artistic home property, with Carlswold, West Brentmoor and Brentmoor as our neighbors on the east, and that beautiful Polo Grounds development on the west.

We have in all, twenty-one different subdivisions on which we are receiving inquiries, and on which our salesmen are making excellent sales records—including Maryand Terrace, West Maryland Place, University Terrace, City View, Shaftsbury, Venita Park and Venita Terrace, etc., etc.

Our two new subdivisions, first mentioned in this ad, will be tremendous sellers, because they will be flat and apartment house property directly in the path of the west end development, close in, and will sell for $24.00, $26.00, $28.00, $30.00 and $32.00 a front foot, including improvements.

These properties are close to transportation, to parks, to schools and to churches—also close to the Delmar men. Must have good reefrences.

We need a few additional salesmen. Must have good reference.

Ask for Everett Davis.

OUR PATRONS

Frequently we are asked to whom do we sell these wonderful cars.

It is interesting to note that we number among our patrons many of St. Louis' wealthiest and most prominent people.

In nearly every case the purchaser belongs to that admirable American institution known as SELF-MADE MAN—men who acquire wealth and knowing the value of a dollar and still insist on obtaining it.

The reason we can sell our Used Cars at such a ridiculously low figure, is because the demand for has been greater than production, therefore we have taken only the cream of automobiles offered us in trade; then, at our own figure after close inspection.

Below are listed a few of the 50 or more cars that can be obtained on very liberal terms. Remember, over 50 cars to be sold. Come early and select yours. Roadsters, tourings, coupes, sedans and town cars. Buicks, Dodges, Fords, Essex, Hudson, Chalmers and many others.

ESSEX ROADSTER

Here is a car that's in first-class condition from the fan to the tail light, including the paint. The first bird to pay $160 down who has an honest reputation can drive this home.

STUTZ ROADSTER

How would you like to own one of the classiest boats in the city? It's just out of the paint shop (red with khaki top), six wire wheels and new tires; $190 down.

HUDSON 4-PASSENGER SPEEDSTER

This is a rip-snorting, go-getting speed wagon that wafts the breeze through your whiskers when you step on her this car is reconditioned; price $600, $300 down.

LOOK, NEWLYWEDS

New Essex cab, never sold, driven less than 2000 miles as demonstrator; save enough to start up housekeeping; $200 down.

ESSEX TOURING

This is a beautiful maroon job with new tires; take it from me, your girl will throw rocks at the other fellow when you drive up in this automobile; hurry up for we only want $150 down.

JEFFERY TOURING

Nice car for large family; real terms that will please a working man; $85 down, balance in 10 months.

HURRY! HURRY!! HURRY!!!

Here is a Ford sedan that runs like Henry's new ones; it's a 1921 and all we are asking down is $85.

WOMAN PATIENT AT BAPTIST SANITARIUM HANGS HERSELF

Mrs. Kate Kilpatrick, 57, Under Mentral Treatment, Was to Be Transferred to Illinois Institution.

Mrs. Kate Kilpatrick, 57 years old, hanged herself about 8 o'clock last night in a room at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium, 919 North Taylor avenue, with strips of bed-ticking knotted together and fastened to a grated window.

The body was found by a nurse, who said that Mrs. Kilpatrick was being treated there for a mental ailment and was despondent because she was about to be sent to a sanitarium at Jacksonville, Ill., by a relative. Mrs. Kilpatrick had lived with a daughter at 8112 Vulcan street. This daughter visited her early last evening.

GIRL, 14, TO TESTIFY IN HOUSE OF DAVID CASE

"More Salt for Cooking Purnell's Goose," Comments Prosecutor Child.

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Mayy 5.—A small girl of 14 years, wearing a red sailor hat with ribbons streaming down the back, a sweater and a knee-length skirt, sat in the home of Sheriff George C. Bridgman until late tonight, surrounded by State investigators of the House of David.

Pearl Flake the girl, was found and subpoenaed today by Frank J. Keift, Berrien County Deputy, and Chicago detectives, in a Chicago lodging house where she was living with her mother, Mrs. Claudia Flann, also a former member of the House of David. The girl and her mother arrived here on an afternoon train, the mother being taken to a hotel upon arrival and the girl to Sheriff Bridgman's home where she was given a room after the questioning.

Assistant Attorney-General Quay announced tonight after the questioning had been completed that the State had "accumulated a lot more salt for the cooking of Benjamin Purnell's goose," but he refused to go into details. It is understood that the girl will be one of the first witnesses called when the one-man grand jury investigation of the House of David swings into the third week of its session.

The discovery of Miss Flake and her mother was achieved through information obtained from the Chicago Board of Education. Several weeks ago Pearl applied for papers which are required for all girls under 16 years of age who wish to obtain employment in factories. When asked her address, the girl gave the number of the lodging house where she and her mother were living, and added a moment later that she had just come from the House of David. She said she wanted to work so she could help support her mother.

Today Keift and the detectives went to the lodging house. Mrs. Flann, when shown a subpena, directed the officers to a nearby factory, where Pearl was found at work. According to Keift, he overheard the mother, while packing a suitcase in the living room preparatory to accompanying the girl to St. Joseph, tell her to "stick by Benjamin, whatever you do."

Mrs. Flann refused to state why she had left the House of David. When Fred Armstrong, Captain of the State police, attempted to question her in the hotel lobby, she answered by saying: "It's none of your business."

Initial Block of $10,000,000 of the $55,000,000 Bond Issue to Be Offered for Sale in June.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Payment of the $55,000,000 State bonus to Illinois soldiers and sailors of the World War will begin on July 1, it was announced today after a conference between Gov. Len Small and Chicago bankers.

The initial sale of the bonus bonds will be a block of $10,000,000, which probably will be offered publicly next month by a Chicago banking syndicate. The start in paying the bonus will be made from the proceeds of this sale.

CORA CHASE, OPERA STAR, WEDS

Becomes Bride of Member of New York Times Staff.

HAVERHILL, Mass., May 5.—Miss Cora Mancia Chase, of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Samuel Thurston Williamson of the Washington staff of the New York Times, were married here today in the church which both attended in childhood.

Flowers came from President and Mrs. Harding, from Attorney-General and Mrs. Daugherty, and from Postmaster-General and Mrs. New. The Rev. James S. Williamson of Brooklyn, father of the bridegroom, assisted the Rev. George E. Cary, D. D., pastor of the First Church of Christ, Bradford, in performing the ceremony.

STATE INCOME TAX PAYABLE

Bills Are Being Mailed Out—Penalties After June 1.

State Income tax bills are now payable and will become delinquent June 1, after which a penalty of 1 per cent a month will be assessed against those not having paid their bills.

Collector Koeln is sending out notices to the taxpayers. The taxes to be paid on income for 1922 by St. Louisans total $1,585,695.27. Of this amount, individuals will pay $706,943.28 and corporations $878,751.99. A total of 54,180 bills are in the hands of the Collector, 51,106 bills for individuals and 3074 for corporations. The rate this year is 1 per cent on the taxable income. Last year the rate was 1 1-3 per cent. On 1921 income the tax levy was $1,594,830.83, of which $698,230.71 was assessed against 2403 corporations and $896,600.12 against 52,231 individuals.

Burglar Gets False Teeth.

A burglar got into the Memorial Home, 2609 South Grand boulevard, between 2 and 4 a. m. yesterday, using a ladder to climb to a second floor window which he forced. A set of false teeth was taken from the room of a resident, and was found later in an ashpit. Mrs. Louise Fay told the police she had seen a man at the window of her room on the second floor about 2:30 a. m. She gave his description. Albert Vanalta reported $2.07 taken from his room, Frank Devinney, $53; and May Black, $4.

YOUTH WHO HAD PISTOL SOUGHT IN MOUNT CASE

Student Says Freshman Who Left College After Class Rush Carried Weapon That Night.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Parallel inquiries by the State's Attorney's office and the Coroner into the death of Leighton Mount, Northwestern University student, whose skeleton was found beneath a lake pier in Evanston last Monday, proceeded today with the questioning of more students and university officials.

The question whether Mount killed himself or whether his death was the accidental result of hazing activities following a class rush in which he participated on the night he disappeared in September, 1921, remained undetermined.

Walter Dill Scott, president, and George P. Merick, counsel for the university, visited Oscar Wolff, Coroner, during the day with the university records sought in connection with the inquiry and pledged their full co-operation to clear up the mystery.

At the same time it was said that Mount's farewell message to Doris Fuchs, with whom he was on friendly terms prior to his disappearance, did not hint at suicide as the girl testified yesterday, according to the authorities. Other developments during the day were:

A tudent testified that J. Allen Mills, a freshman, who left college shortly after the disappearance of Mount, and cannot be found, was carrying a pistol on the night of the class rush.

Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney, halted the investigation by telegraphing from West Baden to his chief assistant, Edgar A. Jonas, forbidding the issuance of any more subpoenas until Monday, when he expects to assume personal charge of the case.

The testimony about Mills and the revolver was given by Baron Kroohn, a 1921 sophomore. Kroohn said he was told on the night of the class rush that Mills was carrying the weapon in spite of protests by other students. An effort is being made to find Mills, who has been reported both in Chicago and in Wyoming.

Mills was a fraternity brother of Arthur Persinger, whom freshmen tied to a pier the afternoon of a class rush. The authorities have expressed the belief that Mount may have been seized and hazed in retaliation for the indignity visited on Persinger.

Efforts were being made tonight to get in touch with Noble Ball and Vernon Bishop of Williamson, W. Va., former students at the university. It was said they were in the party that hazed Arthur Persinger the night Mount disappeared. Persinger also is a resident of Williamson. Tonight he received the following telegram from his father:

"Papers say you are holding out on information. Tell what you know, regardless of whom it hurts. It is your duty as a citizen."

DR. EUGENE L. OPIE ELECTED TO NATIONAL ACADEMY OF SCIENCE

Professor of Pathology in Washington U. One of Few St. Louisans Who Have Won Such Honor.

Dr. Eugene L. Opie, professor of pathology of the Washington University School of Medicine, has been notified of his election to the National Academy of Science at a recent meeting in Washington.

The honor is one, sparingly bestowed, which has fallen upon few St. Louisans. Scientists regard it as the highest honor they can achieve.

James Eads, builder of Eads bridge, was a member and in later years, Dr. George Engelman, physician and botanist, who died in 1884; Dr. William Trelease, former director of the Missouri Botanical Garden, now of the University of Illinois, and Dr. Joseph Erlanger, professor of physiology in the Washington University School of Medicine, were elected to membership.

BANDAGED HEAD AVERTS JAIL SENTENCE FOR DRY VIOLATOR

Roadhouse Proprietor Fined $950 by Federal Judge Faris—Defense Was Alibi.

A fine of $950 was imposed on Charles Connors, proprietor of "The Maples," a roadhouse on Manchester road, by Federal Judge Faris yesterday following conviction by a jury Friday on a liquor selling charge. While operating the National Cafe at 117 North Sixth street on Christmas night, 1920, he sold whisky to prohibition enforcement agents, it was alleged.

Connors appeared in court with his head bandaged, evidence of a beating burglars gave him when he awakened while they were searching his roadhouse last March.

"I don't want to send a man with a broken head to jail," Judge Faris remarked, stressing the point that only Connors' condition saved him from the heavier penalty. However, Connors was committed to jail pending settlement of his fine. His defense had been an alibi to the effect that he was visiting relatives in Belleville on the night named. He had no supporting testimony.

Drawn by DAN SMITH

The Comeback of Hollywood

By KARL K. KITCHEN

ONE of the charges invariably brought against Hollywood by highbrow critics is that it is a community without traditions. But that is because its critics do not know the capital of Moronia. Hollywood has its traditions—its legends—its folklore. To be sure, its folksongs are cafeteria—eating—dirges, but its 10 years of celluloid activity have developed legends that are handed out to the visitor with all the unction of a German professor relating the lore of the Lorelei.

The best of these Hollywood legends concerns a beautiful girl from the South—the winner of a beauty contest held by the leading newspaper in her native State—who came to Studioland to take her rightful place upon the silver screen. Having been hailed as the Mary Pickford of Memphis, the young woman, armed with letters of introduction from the local exhibitors, arrived in Hollywood, chaperoned by her father and mother, for her doting parents had heard of the naughty, wicked film life, and were determined to protect their lovely child.

The first week they were in Hollywood they waited in vain for the leading managers to call and offer their daughter a contract. The managers had never heard of the beauty contest—some of them, in fact, had never heard of Memphis. So, after a second week of inactivity, the proud parents (they were gentlefolks) finally consented to allow their "baby" to visit the studios to seek employment, chaperoned by her mother.

For another week mother and daughter haunted the studios for a part for the "Pride of Memphis," but as Hollywood was overrun with embryonic Mary Pickfords the casting directors wouldn't even engage her as an extra. However, a famous director happened to see the mother and, as he needed an aristocratic Southern "type" for the picture he was making, he engaged her on the spot. And the mother was so flabbergasted that she accepted and the following day became a full-fledged movie actress.

This forced the father to chaperon his daughter on her visits to the studios in search of work and, as luck would have it, he was spotted by a director who needed a Southern Colonel "type" for his production. Of course, he accepted and a wire was sent to Memphis for an aunt to hurry to Hollywood to guard the "angel child."

To make a long story short, the aunt no sooner visited the studio than she was engaged as a "type." And every relative who came out to chaperon the prize beauty sooner or later found the way into pictures, while the "Mary Pickford of Memphis," despite her youth, beauty and golden curls, was never able to get a job.

I heard this "legend" half a dozen times during my internment in Hollywood, and I was even informed that one of the biggest companies on the coast was planning to base a picture on it. From which it will be seen that the legends of Hollywood are pretty well cut and dried.

However, the ways in which guests are entertained by the distinguished film folk are even more "standardized." For instance, if you have a bowing acquaintance with Mary Pickford you are invited to visit her studio. If you have a speaking acquaintance you are invited to have luncheon in the bungalow on the "lot." And if you are a "friend of the family" you are invited to dine at her home at Beverly Hills—with the inevitable picture show.

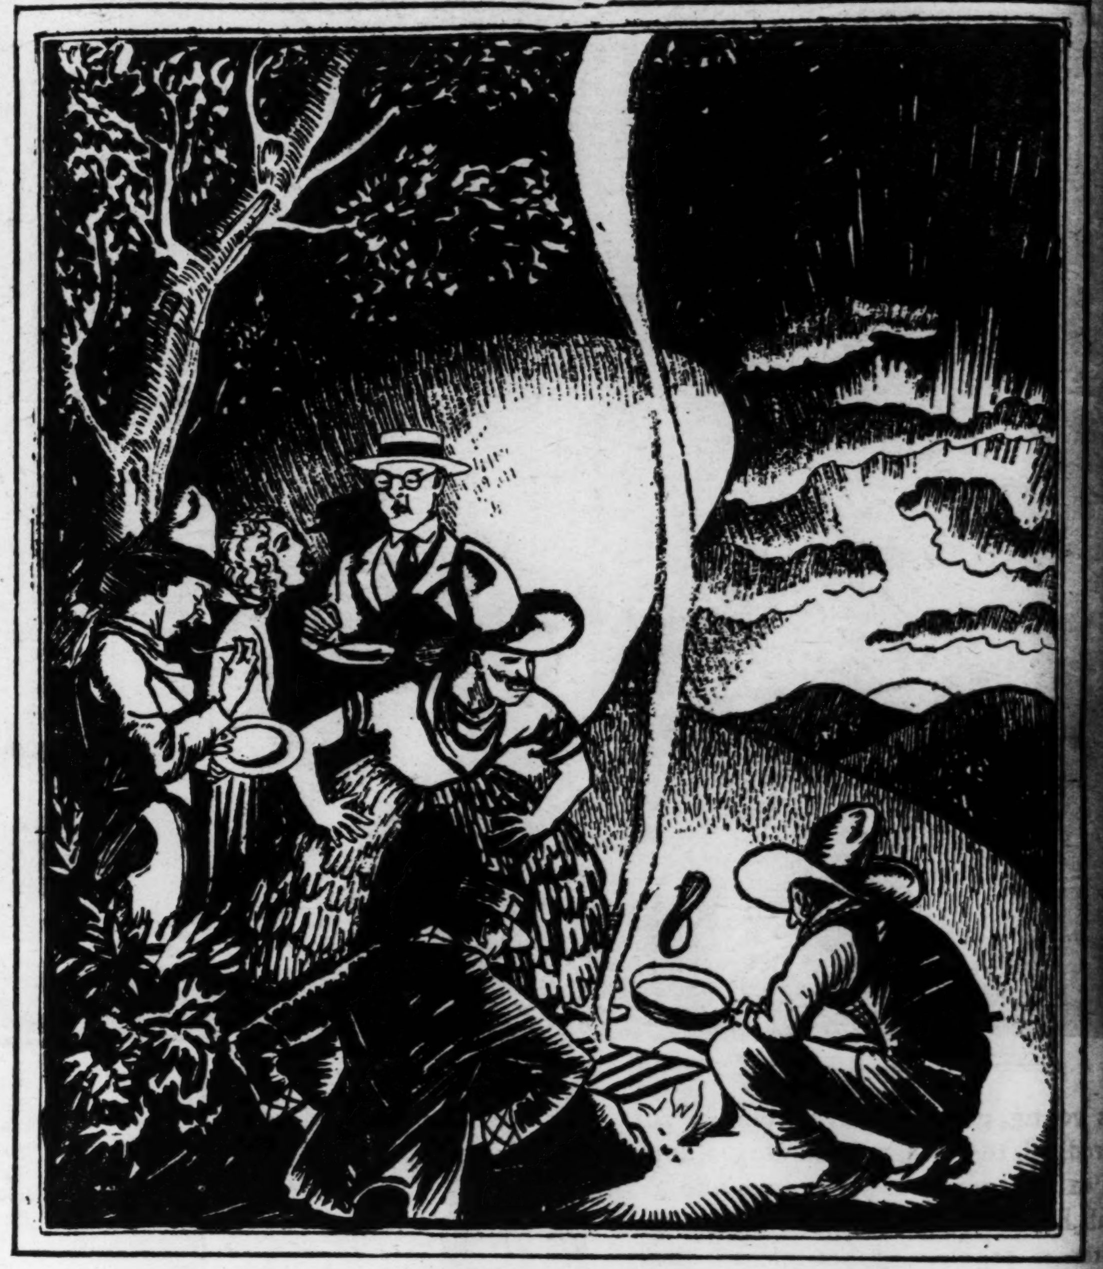
But if you are an "old friend" you are invited to have breakfast with Miss Pickford at 5 a. m. on the mountain top behind her home and watch the sun rise while eating flapjacks and coffee. This is the supreme entertainment provided by Miss Pickford for her most favored guests, and when one goes through with it I don't mind saying that it puts even old friendship to the test.

Being in the "old friend" category, I was invited to have breakast with Miss Pickford at that ungodly hour. And hoping that it would rain or snow, I accepted the invitation, which meant the week-end at her home, for only on Sunday morning is the 5 a. m. breakfast a part of her entertainment ritual.

It was not only because I hate to get up before 8 o'clock that I prayed for a blizzard, rainstorm or even an earthquake that would keep everyone at Beverly Hills. To reach the mountain top where this early morning rite is celebrated, it is necessary to ride three miles on horseback in the dark—and when it comes to riding in the dark I prefer a taxi to a more or less mad horse on a mountain trail.

Also, I don't care particularly for sunrises. I don't mind seeing the sun come up on my way home, but to get up at 4 o'clock in the morning to see it rise seems perfectly ridiculous. And, having seen the same sun rise over the Dent du Midi, the Pyramids and several other inconvenient places, to watch it rise over the City of Los Angeles seemed the height of folly.

However, one doesn't plead another engagement when one receives an invitation of this kind from Miss Pickford. One arrives at her Beverly Hills home in time for dinner the night before and sleeps through the inevitable picture show so as to be ready for the 4 o'clock call for breakfast.



The arrival of flapjacks prevented any of us from drooling further.

Dinner at the Fairbanks-Pickford menage has been described so many times that there is no occasion to describe its delightful informality. Nor is it necessary to dilate on the picture entertainment that is compulsory for all dinner guests. Suffice it to say that everyone present except Miss Pickford slept through the exhibition.

The real party didn't begin until a little after 4 o'clock the following morning, when Doug knocked on my bedroom door and brought me the sad tidings that the weather was clear and that everything promised a successful sunrise. The noise of the horses in the driveway before confirmed my fears, and so I prepared for the ordeal.

When I finally reached the driveway—for I don't dress rapidly at such a ridiculous hour—I discovered that Doug, all the horses and the other guests were gone. The butler informed me that Mr. Fairbanks had started up the mountain, but that Mrs. Fairbanks and I were to follow in the Rolls.

Needless to say, I breathed easier. For when it comes to mountain climbing—especially before breakfast—there is nothing like a Rolls-Royce.

A moment later Miss Pickford, dressed in a riding habit, appeared on the scene, and as soon as she confirmed the news about her husband and the other guests we started for the mountain top in the motor.

"I was afraid there wouldn't be enough horses," she explained, diplomatically, although later I discovered that Doug had told her to roll me up in the Rolls. "There's a new road and we'll be there almost as soon as they are."

Although it was pitch dark when we started, before we reached the summit the first streaks of dawn had enabled us to see each other and when we stepped out of the motor we saw Doug and the other breakfast guests standing around the fire, with their horses parked (does one park a horse?) nearby.

As soon as we joined the group the cook and his helper, who had been sent up with another car an hour before, began serving the bacon and eggs which were frizzling over the fire. And as the hot coffee brought me to life—it was freezing cold and I was thinly clad—I surveyed the party and the view over the valley at our feet.

I don't believe I have ever seen a more motley gathering. In fact, "The Motley Gatherers" would have been a good title for the picture. Doug, of course, was immaculate in a new pair of chaps that had won first prize at a great rodeo. But Tom Geherty was made up like an engineer on the Santa Fe and Edward Knoblock looked like a cross between a fox-hunting squire and the driver of a Ford. Benny Zeidman was attired in a purple smoking jacket, cowboy boots and a huge Stetson. And I lent a touch of the effete East with my white flannels and straw hat.

By the time the bacon and eggs had been sunk without trace, the sun began to show itself from behind a mountain on the other side of the valley and Doug started a realtor's spiel on the advantage of buying property in the neighborhood.

"Five years ago this was a howling wilderness," he told us. "Now look at it."

"Yes, yes," interrupted Knoblock, surveying the scene. "It reminds me so much of the Riviera—it's so different."

Fortunately, the arrival of the flapjacks prevented any of us from drooling further, and as we shivered in the California cold (and the cold in California exceeds that of a Follies girl's heart) we stowed away cake after cake while the sun mounted higher and higher. And I must admit that I have never had a breakfast that tasted better. The cold morning air put my appetite on edge, and except for a New York morning paper it was complete.

"This is the life, isn't it?" said Doug, swinging himself into the saddle.

"I agree with you perfectly," I replied, helping myself to another flapjack.

But, of course, like all rites, the sunrise breakfast had to come to an end. When we all finally admitted that there wasn't room for another flapjack, Doug and his three horsemen from the Algonquin started out over a mountain trail and Miss Pickford and I stepped in the waiting Rolls and

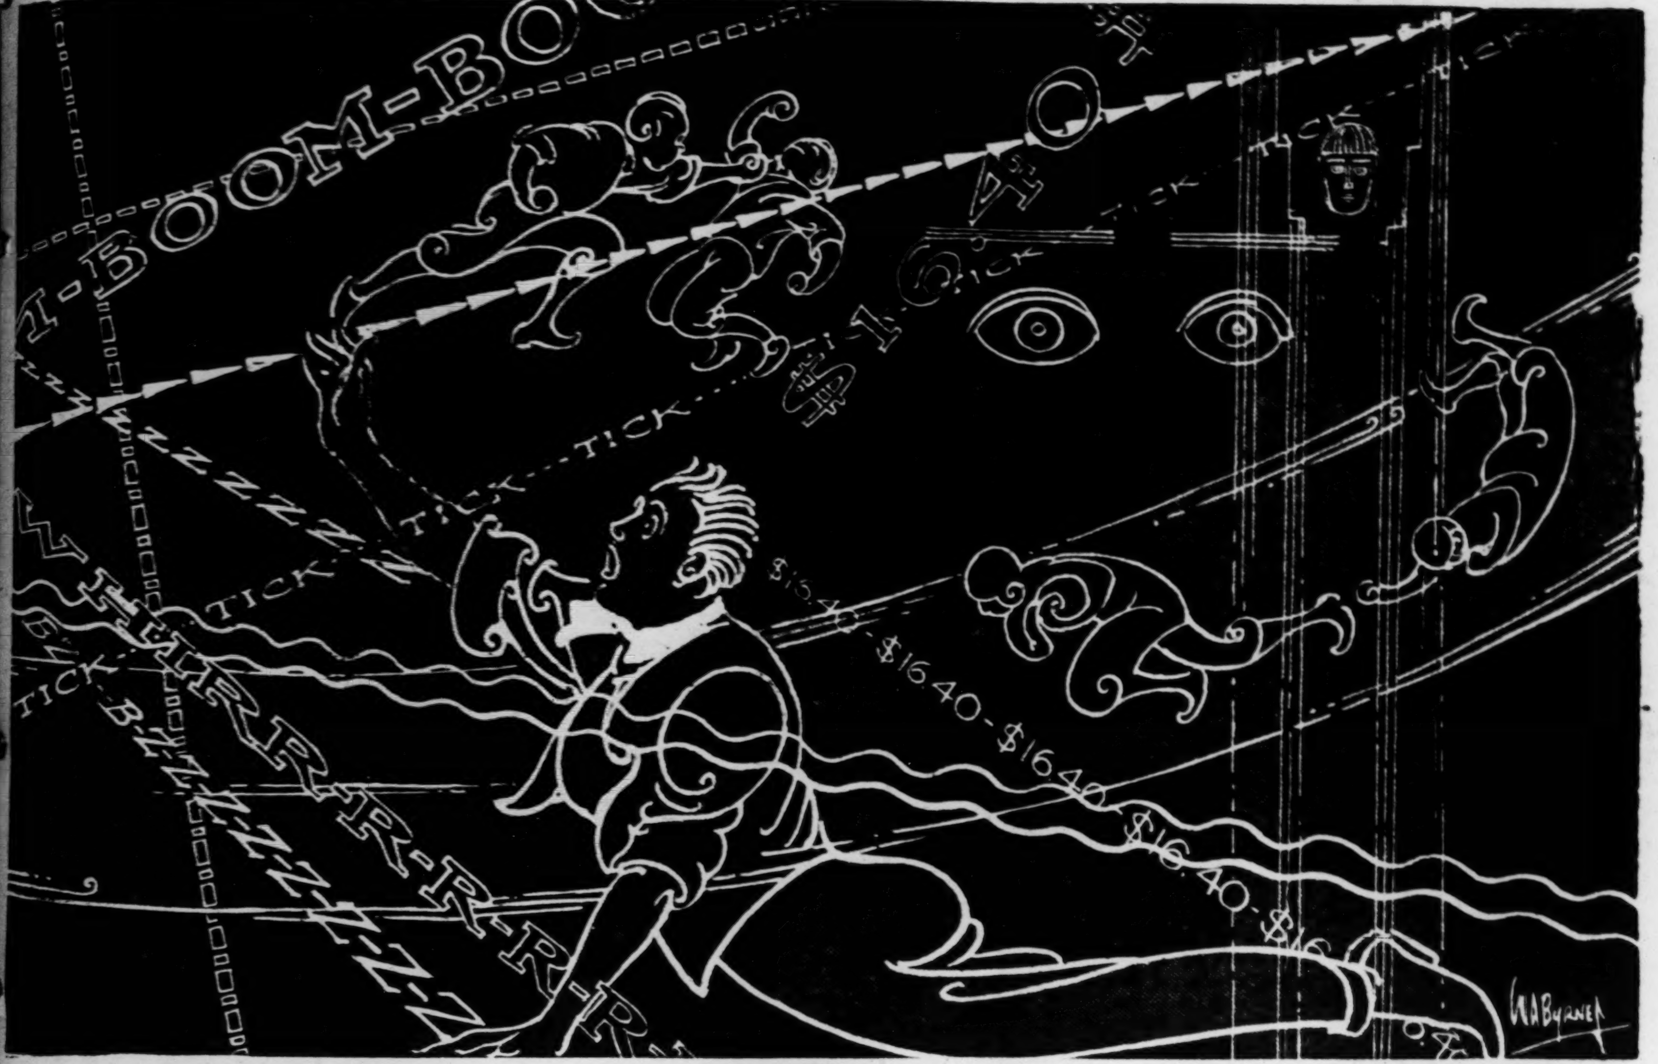
"HOW IT FEELS TO DIE"



This young man still lives, but he suffered all the pangs, including a lot of extras, when he spent four and a half hours in an airtight bank vault after a practical joker closed the door — Unconscious, "good as dead," doctors revived him, and he describes to a writing man his sensations, physical and psychological

CHARLES DI GIACOMA.

MARK TWAIN remarked, aboard the train that was bringing him into St. Louis for the last time, that the head of a practical joker was full of stewed oysters instead of brains. Somebody had recalled to him a practical joke that was played at his expense when he was a young man, and that was his reaction to the recollection.

The other day a youth at Paterson, N. J., played a practical joke which wellnigh cost the life of his chum, young Charles Di Giacomo, a fellow clerk in the People's Park Bank in that city. It was a very simple, easy joke, merely the locking of the other fellow in the bank vault about 6 o'clock in the evening. The joker worked rapidly, without using his head at all—just a hand touch that closed the heavy door and left the victim shut in a small airtight chamber behind a time lock device which enabled the man with the combination to open the vault at or after 8 o'clock the next morning, but not earlier.

Young Di Giacomo, released after four and a half hours of heroic activities on the part of drillers, and restored to consciousness by no less heroic activities upon the part of physicians, could write, if he were a writer, a most interesting article on "How It Feels to Die." Not being a writer, he told his experiences, physical and psychological, to a writer for the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine, who thus sets forth how it felt to the young man inside the vault:

No, the books wouldn't balance. Sixteen dollars and 40 cents too much. Charles Di Giacomo, the youthful, black-haired clerk behind the bronze grating shook his head. Just his luck. Tonight, when he wanted to go home early, eat his supper and take Betty to the dance. Ten minutes of 6 now. Well, nothing to do but go inside the vault and prove the accounts. You couldn't be a slacker in a bank and expect to get anywhere. Betty would have to wait.

Striding into the narrow, steel-walled chamber, whose ceiling rose a few feet higher than his head, the clerk took down the heavy ledgers. Where did that $16 come from? Suddenly the electric light above was extinguished. He heard a voice, the chuckling voice of his friend, Bill Templeton.

"Hey, Charley, look out! I'm going to lock you in!"

The ponderous door swung inward, and clanged shut. For an instant in the blackness, he was frightened. Then he laughed at his fright. Bill was joking. Giving him a scare. All right. He could take a joke. Bill would let him out in a second. He waited. One minute. Two minutes. This was making a joke too long. With that work to finish up before he went home.

A small inner gate of latticed steel, also closed, kept him from reaching the door. But he'd pound loudly on the lattice and make Bill hear him anyway.

"Bill!" he shouted. "Open up! Let me out. I'm taking Betty to a dance tonight."

That would fix it, he was sure. The door did not budge. The door was thick. Probably Bill had not heard. He'd pound louder. A noise outside. Someone, Bill, was lifting a lever. Now, out in a second. More rattling of the lever. What was wrong? Could the door be sticking? He shuddered. Suppose the door had locked! Well, Bill knew the combination. Yes, that was the reason. He was certain. In some way the bolts had slipped into place. Only a minute. Bill was working the combination now. He heard the wheels turn, the tumblers fall.

One, seven—open! Funny, it didn't. This was getting unpleasant. One, seven, click! He fumed with irritation. An hour late for the dance. It must be 6 o'clock at least. Suddenly his body froze, then shook convulsively; the delicate tissues of his brain seemed to tear apart. He knew! He knew! Six o'clock. The time lock had been set at 5.30. He had seen the manager set it. He was locked in! He was going to die!

Clenching his taut, bloodless fists, screaming, he beat upon the steel bars of the gate. A paroxysm of despair swept over him, and he leaned limp against the cornering walls. What was the use? He was done for. Steel was that vault. How could a boy of 19, with only soft fingers, battle a force resisting torpedoes?

Eight o'clock the next morning! No power on earth could open that prison before. Bill, and the managers, and the others would come in then and drag out his white, staring corpse. Dead! For the experts who had put in the vault had said the air therein would keep a man alive only two hours.

No! He wouldn't die. He couldn't die. Somebody else, not Charles Di Giacomo. Let old men, 60, 70, be laid in their graves. He had only begun to live. Then came momentary hope. Maybe they could blow open the safe in only a few hours. It needn't take long. People were talking excitedly outside now. No words, only the hum of their voices. He was strong, an athlete. Sit down on the chair by the ledgers and wait. Conserve his strength. Not an unnecessary motion. Motion used up air.

Air! Out there, everybody, even the dogs in the gutters, the worms beneath the ground, had air. Only give him a little of what they valued so lightly! So little they wouldn't even notice it was gone! If he ever got out, he'd appreciate air—like no one else in the world. But he'd never get out. That steel was nature, and nature was God. Man couldn't fight God. Dead! A beast in a trap! He didn't deserve to die like that. Somebody else, not Charles Di Giacomo. He wasn't an angel. But he wasn't wicked, either. Christ in heaven, any death but that!

Minutes, century-long, passed. Half hours. Now more voices. The room outside must be crowded with people. One instant quivering, the next stolid in hopelessness, he sometimes sat, sometimes stood, and saw his life flash by in a series of strange pictures, like film reels, only incredibly faster. Incidents of early childhood, insignificant incidents, with all their more trivial details. The big neighbor boy who had thrashed him the day they met on the street; the day——

Boom! The side of the vault seemed to crack. A cavernous roar deafened him. They had blown up the vault! He was free! He waited for the door to open. It remained fast. Boom! Again that earbursting thunder, racing, re-echoing from wall to

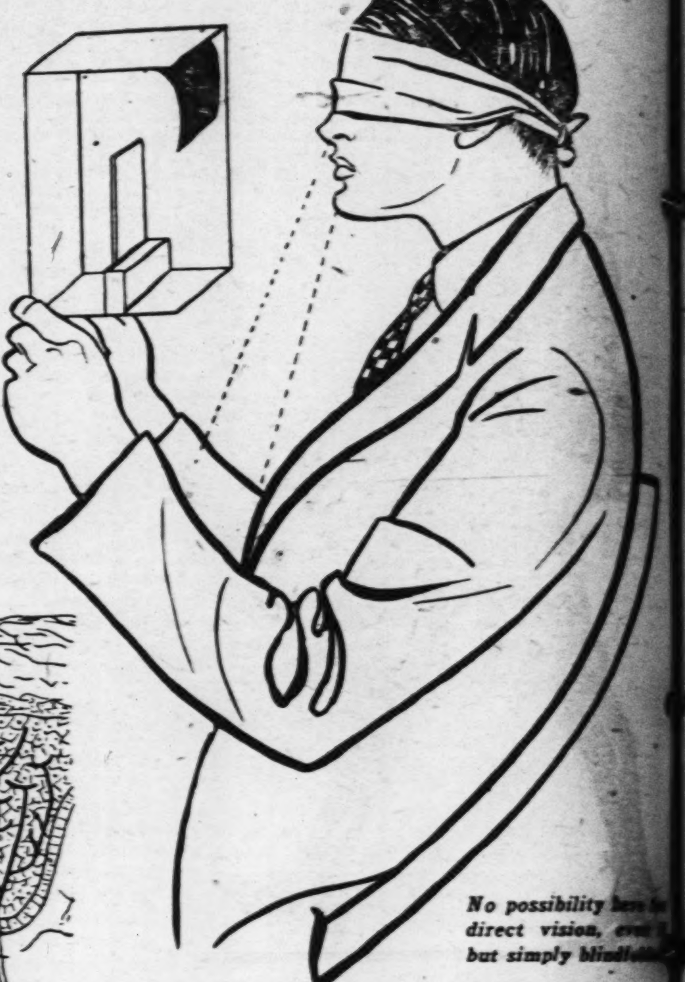
SCIENCE SEES HOW TO SEE WITHOUT EYES

All over the body, according to this French savant's extraordinary discovery, are little cells, each an embryonic optic nerve—May enable the blind to "see" with fingers, lips or noses—Tests with blindfolded men of normal vision reveal this mysterious faculty



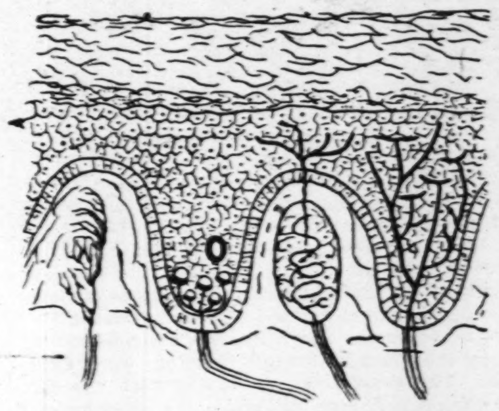
No possibility here fo direct vision, even i but simply blindfold

HOPE of sight for the blind came flashing across the Atlantic a few weeks ago when the cable brought a brief account of the extraordinary discovery by Louis Farigoule of eyes all over the body, with which, after a little training, men can see at least fairly well.

The announcement was received with a certain amount of incredulity, for no anatomist had ever before heard of such secondary eyes. But a detailed account of Farigoule's demonstration, written by Dr. Jean Labadie, is now at hand, and reading it certainly jolts one's credulity, if, indeed, it does not convince one of the truth of the facts alleged by the discoverer.

M. Farigoule is a graduate in philosophy and a former student in the sciences branch of the Normal School. Under the pseudonym of Jules Romains he is well known as poet, dramatist and novelist.

He has demonstrated his discovery at the Cochin Hospital, Paris, before many of the leading physicians and oculists in France, and the recital of the facts observed at these seances is attested by the names of Dr. Cantonet, chief of the hospital, Dr. de Saint-Martin, ophthalmologist of the Toulouse hospitals, Prof. Legrand, Drs. Stevenard, Foubert, Fombeurre, etc.—all of whom are well known in France. M. Farigoule gave a special demonstration for Dr. Jean Labadie, one of the best writers on scientific topics, and a few others. And Dr. Labadie contributes a long and important article upon it to l'Illustration.



Nerve terminations in mucous membrane of human nose. Group of ocelles in depressions at left.

The man used for the demonstration was not blind, but perfectly normal and well educated. He was not a "medium," for there is nothing of the occult or the so-called supernormal about the new theory of extra-retinal sight. Only a trained person can be used for demonstrating it, because, if such power of sight exists in all of us it is latent, we know not how to exercise it until we have been trained in its use.

M. Farigoule explains that the important fact which is brought out by his discovery is the necessity of "patient education after a difficult awakening of a latent function of our organism, or the transposition of this function from a special condition such as somnambulism into the ordinary state clear knowledge."

M. Farigoule begins by hypnotizing his subjects but gradually relaxes his artificial hypnosis until the subjects have learned to place themselves into this condition. He says we all hypnotize ourselves every time we concentrate on any act or thought, and it is just this natural condition that he works to bring about.

M. Farigoule has others blindfold his subject by successively sealing the eyelids with opaque paper, with white adhesive silk placed horizontally and vertically crosswise, a band of black silk padded with cotton batting, and a pair of big spectacles made of lead covering all. The lead stops the passage of any X-rays that might possibly be present.

Dr. Labadie's description of the demonstration is as follows:

"M. Farigoule asks us to arrange in a glass frame in any way we like six or seven bits of paper with designs of colors of different sorts on them, selected from about 200 which he has brought with him. This combination of seven terms out of 200 makes the possibility of their being guessed one in six quadrillions, and this without regard to the diverse colors.

"'This is only a preliminary practice test,' says M. Farigoule.

"The subject takes the holder, feels it, brings it close to his cheek and especially to his nostrils. This he does for five or six minutes, after which he runs over the glass with his index finger slowly and indicates the designs one after another, saying:

"'I see an envelope—blue outline—on a yellow background—a red square—a blue square with rose spots; excuse me, old rose—a dark blue frame surrounding a big green spot, with a violet lozenge in the center—the figure 9 in violet—the figure 7 in black.

"M. Farigoule then invites us to vary the experiment as we will. One of us goes aside and draws, without letting any of the others know, three different signs in three colors on Whitman paper. He returns the paper to the subject, who replies after several seconds: 'A black 3, a blue A, a rose 6?'

"It is exactly correct.

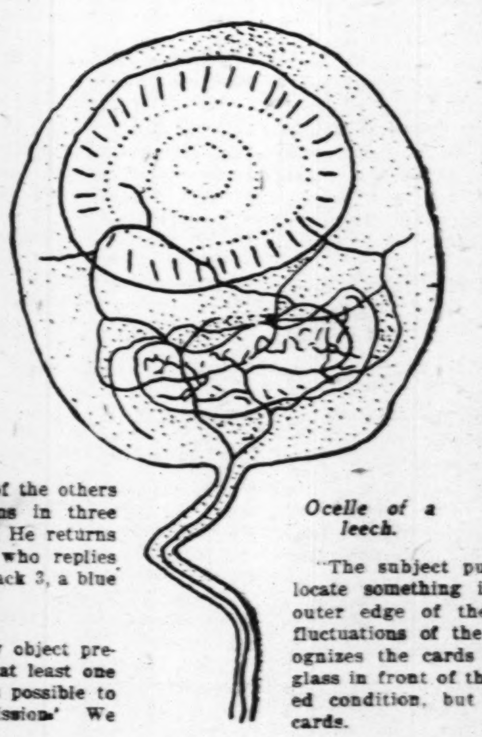
"Until this moment every object presented has been known to at least one of those present, so it was possible to invoke a 'thought transmission.' We decide to pick at random, without looking at it, a leaf from the mass of a calendar that hung upon the wall. Then we go into the dark room and place the leaf under the frame and return this to the subject without looking at it. No one in the room knowing the date on the leaf from the calendar, no thought transmission can now be invoked.

"Thus it is done. I hand the frame to the subject, who soon replies correctly: 'Sunday, May 20.' The man who had detached the leaf cries: 'Why, I thought I had picked down near the end of the year!' This remark banishes finally the hypothesis of mental intercommunication.

"We pass on to the use of an instrument devised by M. Farigoule. He calls it a 'peep-show.' It is like a tiny stage with electric lights in the ceiling, shaded by a black screen. On the stage, in a groove, 'scenery'—playing cards, for example—can be set. The subject, with the peep-show in his hands, must describe to us what he sees there.

"I install a queen of clubs, the deuce of clubs and the 8 of diamonds.

"These objects are placed in the three dimension spaces and not merely in two, as in the glazed frame. Naturally, he is not permitted to feel with his fingers.



Ocelle of a leech.

"I observe, besides, that in the position in which the subject holds the 'stage' not one direct visual ray could pass between the object and his eye, even if his eyes, instead of being sealed, were simply veiled with an ordinary bandage, even if he could use the hollow inevitably left by the bandage at the root of the nose—as children do when playing blindman's buff.

"I wait as usual several seconds for the response. Here it is: 'I see—a jack of clubs—another club—a 2—and an 8 of diamonds.'

"The stage is now placed upon a chair, more than a yard distant from the subject. An operator at the far end of the room turns the light on and off with no regularity.

"The subject puts out his arm as if seeking to locate something in space. Having touched the outer edge of the box, he begins to follow the fluctuations of the light: 'Out,' 'on,' etc. He recognizes the cards in the light. I place a ground glass in front of the 'stage;' he recognizes the lighted condition, but says he can no longer see the cards.

"This group of methodical though summary ex periments shows that the subject sees forms an colors in space.

"To clear up this question of 'paroptic' colore vision, we hand the subject a card of samples o which the colors are arranged in spots of unifo shape and graduated from the deepest to the ligh est tone.

"'What do you see?' asks one of us.

"'One would say, a "spot of blood."'

"It is really a mark made by a carmine crayon.

It is, how ever, briefly, that we are all endowed with organs sight besides our eyes, and that these are simi to those of worms, roaches and some of the leech —that is, a multitude of minute nerve cells und the skin, each with the power of seeing, at least some extent. There are certain nerve termination first discovered by Ranvier and hitherto supposed be a part of the organs of touch, which M. Farigoule believes to be microscopic and primitive eyes. H calls them "ocelles." They contain a crystalline re fracting cell, set in a sort of lens like a retina te minating in a nerve fiber, which he believes to be sort of optic nerve, as well as one of the sense o touch.

These "ocelles" are found in millions. Accordi to Farigoule their myriad images, each crude an imperfect, are co-ordinated in the mind, just as th two images formed by our two eyes are co-ord nated, and result in a single fairly perfect pictu Much has been written about "centers" of sigh of speech, etc., in the brain, but experience in th great war taught anatomists that they must modif perhaps discard, all their ideas about centers, fo they saw many men lose large quantities of the su stance of their brains and yet continue to beha normally in every respect. No one can say certain ly in what part of the brain or spinal cord th "center" for sight exists, if even it exists at al Farigoule's theory is that optical centers may e all over the body. Thus we, if trained to it, mig "see" with our fingers or with our noses!

It seems that the membranes of the nose are extra ordinarily rich in ocelles. This may mean a clos linking of the senses of sight, smell and touch.

But the latest contribution to the literature of bacco proves little except, perhaps, the complexity the problem. It is almost comical to read the con- dictory opinions expressed by men of eminence, e are assured, in medicine and hygiene, physical ucationists, university presidents and deans, psy- ologists, scientists, both physical and biological, erary men, artists, musicians, Congressmen, Gov- ment officials, Judges, lawyers, school superin- dents, financiers, captains of industry, military d naval officers and engineers.

The opinions are set forth, anonymously, in "To- o and Mental Efficiency," by M. V. O'Shea, pro- or of education at the University of Wisconsin, t published by the Macmillan Co. It is the first k to be issued in the name of the Committee to dy the Tobacco Problem, organized in 1918 and prising a nonpartisan body of well-known Amer- ns, with a few French and English members. Some members of the committee are themselves smokers and some are not.

Prof. O'Shea's investigation was carried on from many angles, and was thorough. His book deserves the highest compliment which can be paid to one dealing with such a controversial subject—that of impartiality. Whether the author himself smokes or does not, remains unguessed at the end of the book.

At the professor's request, Miss Grace M. Stafford, University of Oklahoma, made a survey of general and biographical literature covering the last 300 years, which developed many interesting facts. In conclusion she declared that "most of the greatest men of the past three generations were smokers."

All the American Presidents used tobacco except Lincoln, Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson. Gambetta's cigar is as historic as that of Grant. Gladstone never smoked, but Beaconsfield did. Frederick the Great, Dr. Samuel Johnson, George II, Talleyrand, Metternich, Marie Antoinette, Gibbon, Count von Moltke and Robert Burns were addicted to the use of snuff. About Cromwell there are conflicting reports.

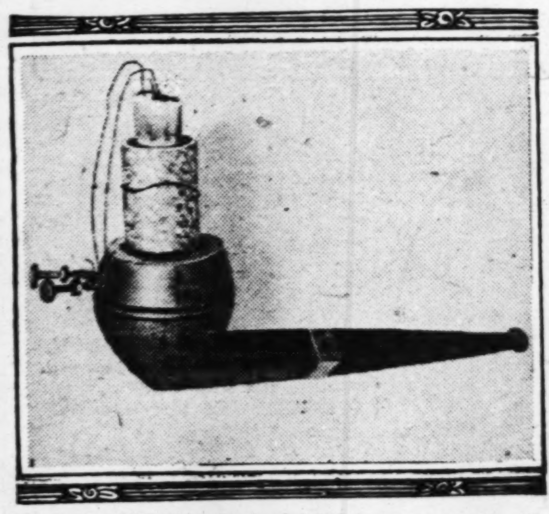
Napoleon detested tobacco except in the form of snuff, which he used himself. Wellington abominated it and deplored the use of tobacco among the officers of the army. Lord Roberts did not smoke, but Kitchener and "Chinese" Gordon were hard smokers. The great Duke of Marlborough was the first distinguished man to make the chewing of tobacco famous.

Of Paley, the moral philosopher, it was said that he could smoke any quantity of tobacco and drink any quantity of punch. Thomas Hobbes, another great philosopher, smoked 13 pipefuls every evening up to the age of 92. Huxley and Darwin both used tobacco, and Sir Isaac Newton was an inveterate smoker.

Dumas, Victor Hugo and Balzac did not smoke. Balzac declared that no good thing could come from the brain of any man who was addicted to the habit. Goethe and Heine also detested tobacco. Zola, Taine, George Sand, Alfred de Musset and Eugene Sue were smokers. Maeterlinck filled the bowl of his pipe with a denicotined preparation.

The list of great modern English writers who were smokers is a long one, with Lord Tennyson and Robert Louis Stevenson especially remembered for their fondness for pipe and cigarette, respectively. But Southey and Ruskin hated tobacco. Cruikshank renounced the habit. It was Charles Kingsley who puts into the mouth of a character in "Westward Ho!" the oft-quoted words that tobacco is "a lone man's companion, a bachelor's friend, a hungry man's food, a sad man's cordial, a wakeful man's sleep and a chilly man's fire."

One of the interesting points discussed is what Prof. O'Shea terms "the traditional belief" among men and women of letters "that smoking and originality and cleverness in literary production are indissoluble."



The "control" pipe devised for laboratory tests. An electric coil in the bowl heats the air to simulate a real smoke. The smokers were blindfolded and hardly ever could tell the difference.

He quotes a man who is engaged in literary work requiring creative imagination, as follows:

"Whenever I am working out a plot, I have my pipe in hand all the time. I often smoke all day long when I am thinking out my plan. If I could not smoke I could not create anything new, I am afraid. It seems to me I have observed that men who do not smoke are commonplace and mechanical. They do not have much originality.

"I think you would find, if you could look into the matter, that those who have created really great literature have used tobacco. If tobacco should be prohibited as alcohol has been, I think we should suffer a lapse in creative literary activity. Tobacco and creative thinking go hand in hand."

The author says it is true that most literary men and women of our times use tobacco. But what of Homer, Plato, Aristotle, Virgil and all the other lights of ancient times, who did not have access to tobacco? Nor did Rousseau nor Dante have it as an aid to creative activity. And some of the greatest artists, such as Phidias, Raphael and Michael Angelo, produced their marvelous works before tobacco had been introduced into Europe.

Prof. O'Shea holds that, besides the "traditional belief" cited above and compliance with which, by suggestion, may really aid the creative writer, tobacco may give a more reasonable aid to certain types of mind which act "precipitately" or "explosively." The owner of such a mind might be helped in his intellectual processes if he could check his mental excitability so as to gain control of his ideas instead of being controlled by them. Tobacco might act as a depressant in such an individual's brain, and thus he might be helped to think out his plots and plans.

Of the 370 letters from distinguished persons giving testimony about the effect of tobacco upon mental processes, all which bore evidence of being hasty, prejudiced or ill-considered responses were discarded. Of the 156 remaining, 80 were from smokers and 76 from abstainers. Among the writers of fiction and essays, all the men and most of the women were smokers. All but two of the financiers were smokers. Otherwise there was no marked difference in any groups. Of the Congressmen who responded, 55 per cent were nonsmokers while 60 per cent of the school superintendents indulge in tobacco and a still larger proportion of university presidents and deans.

The responses of these distinguished men and women showed the greatest diversity as to the benefit or harm of tobacco. To secure frankness, the writers were promised that their names would not

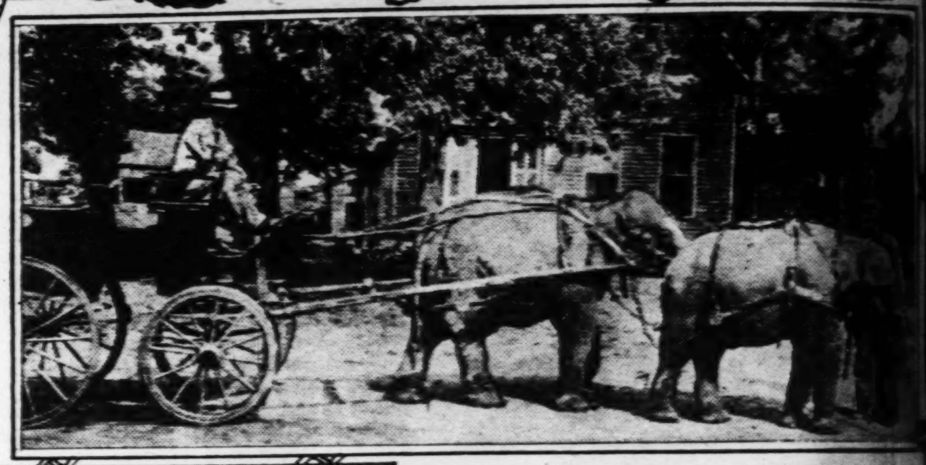
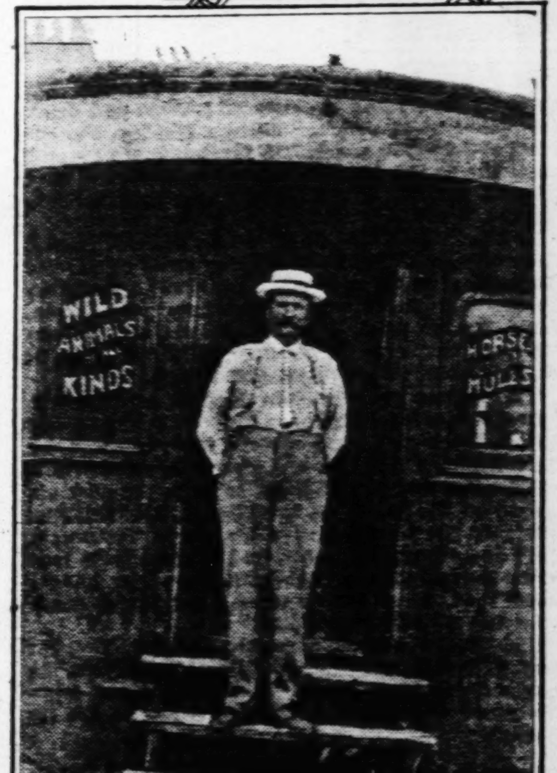
ALICE IN WONDERLAND missed the time of her life when she failed to include Lancaster, Mo., in her itinerary.

Think of a town where the children can see performing lions, acrobatic elephants and circus animals of all kinds every day without having to save up their pennies to buy tickets at the big red wagon or crawl under the tent while the bouncer isn't looking.

A boy or girl in Lancaster can look down the street 'most any time and see monster mastodonic performing pachyderms or fearsome, fierce, ferocious felines. Even the ranting, romping, rip-snorting rhinoceros or the huge, hidebound, hideous hippopotamus is not an unfamiliar sight in Lancaster.

All of these wonders have been materialized by William H. Hall, better known in this Schuyler County town of about 1000 inhabitants as "Col. Billy Hall," one of Missouri's most remarkable self-made men, who is known the world over as a purchaser, trainer and seller of wild animals. It is no uncommon thing for Hall to buy an entire circus—just like that—and he can sell one just as readily. He has a "big-top" mind. A circus press agent might describe him as the "Gargantuan, gigantic Gorgonzola" of the show animal business in this part of the world. It has even been said that his interests have extended across the Atlantic, into England, France, Germany and Italy and across the Pacific into Asia; Africa and the Hawaiian Islands.





Upper right, Billy and Katie, Lancaster's bus team said to be the only elephants trained to work tandem.

It is Col. Billy Hall's magic wand that makes Lancaster a center of wonder and delight for its juvenile population.

Here the present-day Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn do not have to sit in the dark recesses of a cave and indulge in vain imaginings. Instead, they can go out to the edge of town and sit on a fence and watch half a dozen elephants stand on their heads or see an intrepid lion tamer make the king of beasts jump through a blazing hoop. One scarcely can imagine a boy running away from Lancaster, for wherever he might roam he could see nothing more marvelous.

Imagine a place where the town bus is drawn by elephants. And that isn't all—the elephants are hitched tandem and are said to be the only team of their kind in the world. On bright days this bus drives through the streets of the town and children can pile on to its full capacity and ride free.

One never knows what is coming next in Lancaster. While trudging to school, little Willie, at the turn of a corner, might find himself as near face to face with a giraffe as a small boy can hope to be. Or maybe a drove of zebras will trot by, or possibly a new gnu, the like of which Willie never knew; or it may be that he will meet and be introduced to a chimpanzee out for a morning walk with a trainer. Or likely as not—for this happens often in Lancaster—Willie will find a saddled and bridled Shetland pony waiting for him and will be asked to ride to school on it, with Col. Hall's compliments.

It is said of Col. Hall in Lancaster that the memory of his own starved childhood has made him long to create happiness for children and that his far-famed Shetland pony farm came into being on that account. He rears and sells Shetland ponies, but he does not sell them to the children of Lancaster. Any boy or girl in his home town may have the use of one of the ponies. But the child who borrows a pony from Col. Hall must promise to treat it kindly. Col. Hall has been known to travel 200 miles to buy back one of his horses from a cruel owner.

The horse was Col. Hall's first hobby. In fact, the ambition to own a horse was the compelling force which started him on the road to fortune when he was a barefoot farmhand working for $1 a week and his board. Saving all of his cash earnings for a year enabled him to buy that horse and his genius as a trader did the rest. He is now rated as one of Missouri's richest men.

Hall was born in Schuyler County, near Lancaster. Poverty and the scarcity of schools in that section of Missouri in the early '60's robbed him of his chance at book-learning. At the age of 13 he was left an orphan, with no inheritance and unable to read and write.

There was no one to care what became of the homeless orphan; no one to send him to school. But Billy wasn't lazy and he had a great ambition: he wanted to own the best horse in Schuyler County. He always had loved horses and now that there was no one else to love all his heart was centered there. He possessed an almost uncanny knowledge of horseflesh.

Barefoot and wearing all of his worldly goods upon his body, he started out on foot to find something to do. He wasn't successful at first, but finally he came to a farmer who needed a hand badly and couldn't afford to pay a man's wages. The man looked him over, asked him a few questions, grunted and said:

"Give you $1 a week and board. That's a good deal more than you are worth, but seein' as how you ain't got no pa or ma I'll be generous and pay you that."

The boy, with nothing between himself and starvation, gladly accepted the offer of a temporary home and three square meals a day. To a boy of that age, humbly reared, $1 is a large piece of money. Until his first week was up and his employer offered him his wages, Billy never had had intrusted to his care so large a sum of money. Did he go right to town and spend it? Oh, no! How could he ever hope to realize his great ambition if he spent it as he earned it? One dollar a week for four weeks would amount to $4 and 12 months of such pay would total $48. He had counted that over in his attic room at night. He asked the farmer to keep his money until the end of the year; he was sure then that he would neither lose nor spend it.

"But you need shoes and stockings and underwear," his employer said.

"No I don't; never had 'em last year."

Billy was determined, and when winter came he wore old shoes and underwear cast off by the family. He became a general handy man on the place and the farmer found him a mighty good investment. The lad's happiest hours were spent in caring for the horses. When the year came to a close, instead of the $48 he had expected, his boss handed him $52; and Billy, who didn't know there were more than 48 weeks in a year, was the happiest boy in Schuyler County.

Horses in those days were not nearly so valuable as they are now, and $50 would buy a very good one. Billy had his eye on a horse and fortunately was able to buy him. He was granted permission to keep the horse in the farmer's stable, provided it would be worked on the farm.

That summer his wages were increased to $2 a week. He began trading horses in the summer of his fourteenth year, and by the time he was 17 he owned a whole carload. He gave up his job on the farm then and shipped his horses to Philadelphia, traveling with them to see that they were properly cared for. In Philadelphia he disposed of them so profitably that he was able to increase his activities. At the age of 21 he had prospered to the extent that he was able to buy several cargoes of horses.

Young Hall went overseas with his first cargo, being the first American to do such a thing. The horses were delivered to buyers in Hamburg, Germany. Hall remained in Hamburg for about 13 months, having his cousin, Lew Hall, ship over a cargo of from 100 to 200 horses every week or two. During that year he climbed the financial ladder two rungs at a time. He sold horses into England, Germany, France, Italy, South Africa, India and the Hawaiian Islands. At the end of the year he came back to the United States and to his home county and settled down in Lancaster.

The stranding of a circus near Lancaster was the circumstance which started Hall into the wild animal and show business. The circus company was so impoverished that it no longer could feed its animals. Hall heard about it. In fact, the circus owner hunted him up, knowing that he had spacious barns on his horse farm and would have space to care for the animals. Col.

Surgery Is Carrying Its War The Ve

More wonders of adrenalin and how an American doctor in the British army made still hearts beat again—Popular misapprehensions about this wonderful drug which brings the seemingly dead back to life—Expert says it must be used within 10 minutes after collapse—Infant life stimulated after breathing had been suppressed two hours—A stab in the heart as a life-giving agency ::

SO MARVELOUS have been some of surgery's recent achievements in bringing the seemingly dead back to life that many persons who view the wonders of science with superstitious awe have been led to believe that Death has been conquered.

Surgeons do not claim so much, but their records show that the Grim Destroyer has, at least, been routed in several notable preliminary skirmishes.

A few years ago it would have been considered the height of folly to say that a stab in the heart could be a life-giving agency.

Through all the ages the heart was Death's ultimate objective in his war against mankind. If he could but so maneuver his lethal forces that the garrison of the heart could be made to surrender, his battle was won, and that which had been a man, a woman or a child would go down into the valley of the shadows, never to return. That many thousands have so perished for lack of the surgical methods now being developed for the saving of life after the seeming victory of Death there can be no doubt. That other thousands now on earth and yet to come will be saved is equally certain.

For centuries the daring of the surgeon stopped at the heart. When Death planted his banner there, Science sounded a retreat. No one dared to follow him into that sanctuary and force him to surrender.

In this field of surgery progress was slower than in any other. The heart was mysterious and sacred ground which lancet, scalpel and needle must never invade. Death alone could enter there.

And now a stab in the heart has become an agency of life. True, the stabbing is not done with a dagger, but with a sharp and penetrating needle, through which is carried into the very muscles of the heart a charge of that wonder drug of modern surgery, adrenalin. This is an extract of the adrenal or suprarenal glands, generally of sheep.

The Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine of April 8 explained the action of this drug in stimulating the heart muscles and told how its injection directly into the heart brought life to a baby which seemingly had died within a minute after its birth in New York. Since then, interest in the strange properties of adrenalin have been stimulated by published accounts of the saving of another New York baby's life by the same method.

And now it has been disclosed that Dr. Dennis W. Crile of Chicago has achieved through the use of adrenalin some most remarkable results in bringing the apparently dead back to life. These he laid before his fellow surgeons recently in a report which he read before the Medical Society of Chicago.

Dr. Crile served in the World War as a surgeon in the British army, with the honorary rank of Captain. He is chief of the orthopedic department of St. Mary's Hospital, Chicago; instructor in orthopedic surgery and in anatomy at the University of Illinois; attending surgeon at the Hahnemann Hospital, Chicago, and house physician at Grove House, Evanston, Ill. He is a nephew of Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, a famous surgeon who also has made extensive experiments with adrenalin and has incorporated his experiences and conclusions in a work entitled "Anemia and Resuscitation."

Now comes a sad but inevitable sequel to the pioneer work by the Doctors Crile and others. Jumping from particular cases to a general conclusion, many persons whose relatives have died have written to these doctors, asking them to restore the dead to life.

When Dr. Dennis W. Crile was seen in his Chicago office by a Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine writer he was unwilling, because of professional ethics, to discuss the medical aspects of the use of adrenalin, the properties of which, he said, were well known to surgeons before he made use of it in treating wounded soldiers. He expressed regret that false impressions in the public mind had been created.

"When persons ask a doctor to use adrenalin to restore functional life in relatives who have been dead many hours, they are asking the impossible. We sympathize with them, but cannot help them. I would not use adrenalin to restore heart action after life had been apparently suspended more than 10 minutes. I make this statement not as a medical discussion of the subject, but only to set the public right on the use of this agency which has been effective in cases where seeming death has resulted from exhaustion. Anything else I might have to say on the subject must be found in my reports."

It is the view of surgeons who have been most successful in the use of adrenalin that its greatest field of efficacy will be in the safeguarding of surgical operations against the effects of accidents resulting from the use of anesthetics. At present a certain percentage of patients under operation cannot withstand the effects of the ether, chloroform or other anesthetic. In such cases the heart action sometimes stops very soon after the collapse and prompt measures are necessary to save the patient's life. The experiments with adrenalin have convinced the most advanced surgeons that it is the best restorative in such cases and that it will with practical certainty start the heart to beating again if it is injected into the heart muscles within 10 minutes after the collapse.

Dr. Dennis W. Crile's report to the Medical Society of Chicago was based on observation made during three and one-half years of active surgical service in the British army in Belgium, France and Great Britain, where he performed more than 5000 operations under chloroform, ether or spinal anesthesia, and upon observations made in the clinics of his chief, Prof. A. J. Ochsner at the Augustana Hospital and at St. Mary's Hospital, Chicago. In his report Dr. Crile thus describes one of the successful administrations of adrenalin which he made while in army service:

"A case of suspended animation, due in this instance to chloroform poisoning, was that of a soldier of about 35 years, who was to be operated on for the removal of a small sequestrum from the neck of the humerus. The sequestrum was imbedded in an involucrum at the site of fracture, a sinus having persisted for about a year. The patient was in every other respect in normal health. A chloroform anesthetic was administered in the anesthetizing room.

"On examination when brought into the operating room I discovered that his face was livid and breathing had ceased. The head of the table was immediately lowered, artificial respiration was done, and we satisfied ourselves that there was no obstruction in his breathing. It was at least five minutes before a needle and syringe were brought, when two doses of five cubic centimeters of adrenalin (1:1000) were injected directly into the heart by puncture in the fourth intercostal space about an inch from the midline, close to the sternal margin, thus avoiding the internal mammary artery. An ordinary lumbar puncture needle was used. There was an immediate response. The heart beat at once and respiration followed very shortly.

"The anesthetic remained deep enough for the operation to be performed without further administration of chloroform and the patient was returned to his ward five minutes later. There was some lack of mentality and confusion for the remainder of the day, but the patient did not complain of any abnormal symptom.

"At 2 o'clock the following morning the patient awoke, complaining of severe pain in the cardiac region. He was very restless and had some dyspnoea and there was irregularity of the pulse. Oxygen inhalations were administered, after which the patient slept for the remainder of the night, the attack having lasted for about 20 minutes. At 8 a. m. he recited his symptoms to me, still complaining of some pain in the precordial region. There was at that time no irregularity in the pulse.

"The subsequent day and night were without event, but the next day there was again a slight attack of anginal distress, with slight irregularity of the pulse, but without dyspnoea or fainting. From this time onward the patient made an uneventful recovery, and, when seen six months later, was in normal health and doing manual labor, his wound having healed by primary union. He had never been told of his extraordinary experience, so that the attacks could not have been the result of hysteria, but must have been due to some irregularity of the heart as a reaction after its unusual treatment."

Another successful case described by Dr. Crile in his report was that of a 19-year-old soldier who had suffered a shattering wound of a knee joint, necessitating amputation. Stovaine, injected into the spine was the anesthetic. The report says:

"Collapse occurred while the skin incision was being made. The patient complained of nausea, the face became pallid, the patient vomited and became perturbed, the respiration quickly failed, the eyeballs rolled upward and the heart rate steadily became slower until it ceased. Its force was maintained until cessation occurred.

"Meanwhile, artificial respiration was done, traction was made on the tongue and the usual procedures during such times were carried out. After an interval of perhaps four to eight minutes a 10-cubic-centimeter syringe was obtained and adrenalin hydrochloride (1:1000) was pumped into the basilic vein, as much as 10 cubic centimeters being injected into the vein.

The report cites another case in which ex

The mode of action in this ment is presumably the as adrenalin exhibits or-
lly. On reaching the auricle or venticle, a le contraction occurs,
ing the auricular con-into the ventricle, which then contracts (by the alin action), filling the coronary arteries and ing the ventricular contents into the aorta, the adrenalin again acts, and thus arterial is developed. It may be, too, that the first lar contraction regurgitates adrenalized blood e great veins, contracting them and thus fill-e auricle in its diastole.
he cycle having been thus established, each sub-
t contraction pushes the adrenalized blood
r into the arterial system, increasing tension progresses and soon reviving the cerebral cir-n and the respiratory center. One should the injection as quickly as possible so as to the cerebral circulation, since after an ischaemia of more than 8 to 10 minutes the higher centers may be permanently destroyed.

"All of the reports call attention to the fact that a long needle must be employed, that heart blood should be aspirated to prove entrance into the heart cavity, that speed is very important, and that the message of the heart should be made; in which we concur.

"Several authors describe relatively minute dangers and discuss the nodes and bundles of the heart which we consider purely academic in importance and secondary to the all-important act of speedily injecting adrenalin into the heart cavity, auricle or ventricle. Probably the left side of the heart is the better site, since the pulmonary circulation does not then receive the adrenalized blood directly.

"It seems that the dose should be sufficient to insure the entrance of adrenalin into the heart cavity; that one cubic centimeter may be sufficient, as recommended by Kneier, or even only a few drops, as recommended by Vogt. It is also worth while to know that 10 cubic centimeters can be used successfully in adults and we suggest a dose of from one to ten cubic centimeters, depending upon attendant conditions of time elapsed since cardiac failure, age of patient, size of patient, quality of adrenalin and cause of apparent death. We do not recommend this procedure as a substitute for present resuscitation measures, but advise its use only after ordinary means have failed."

JUNGLE DRAMA

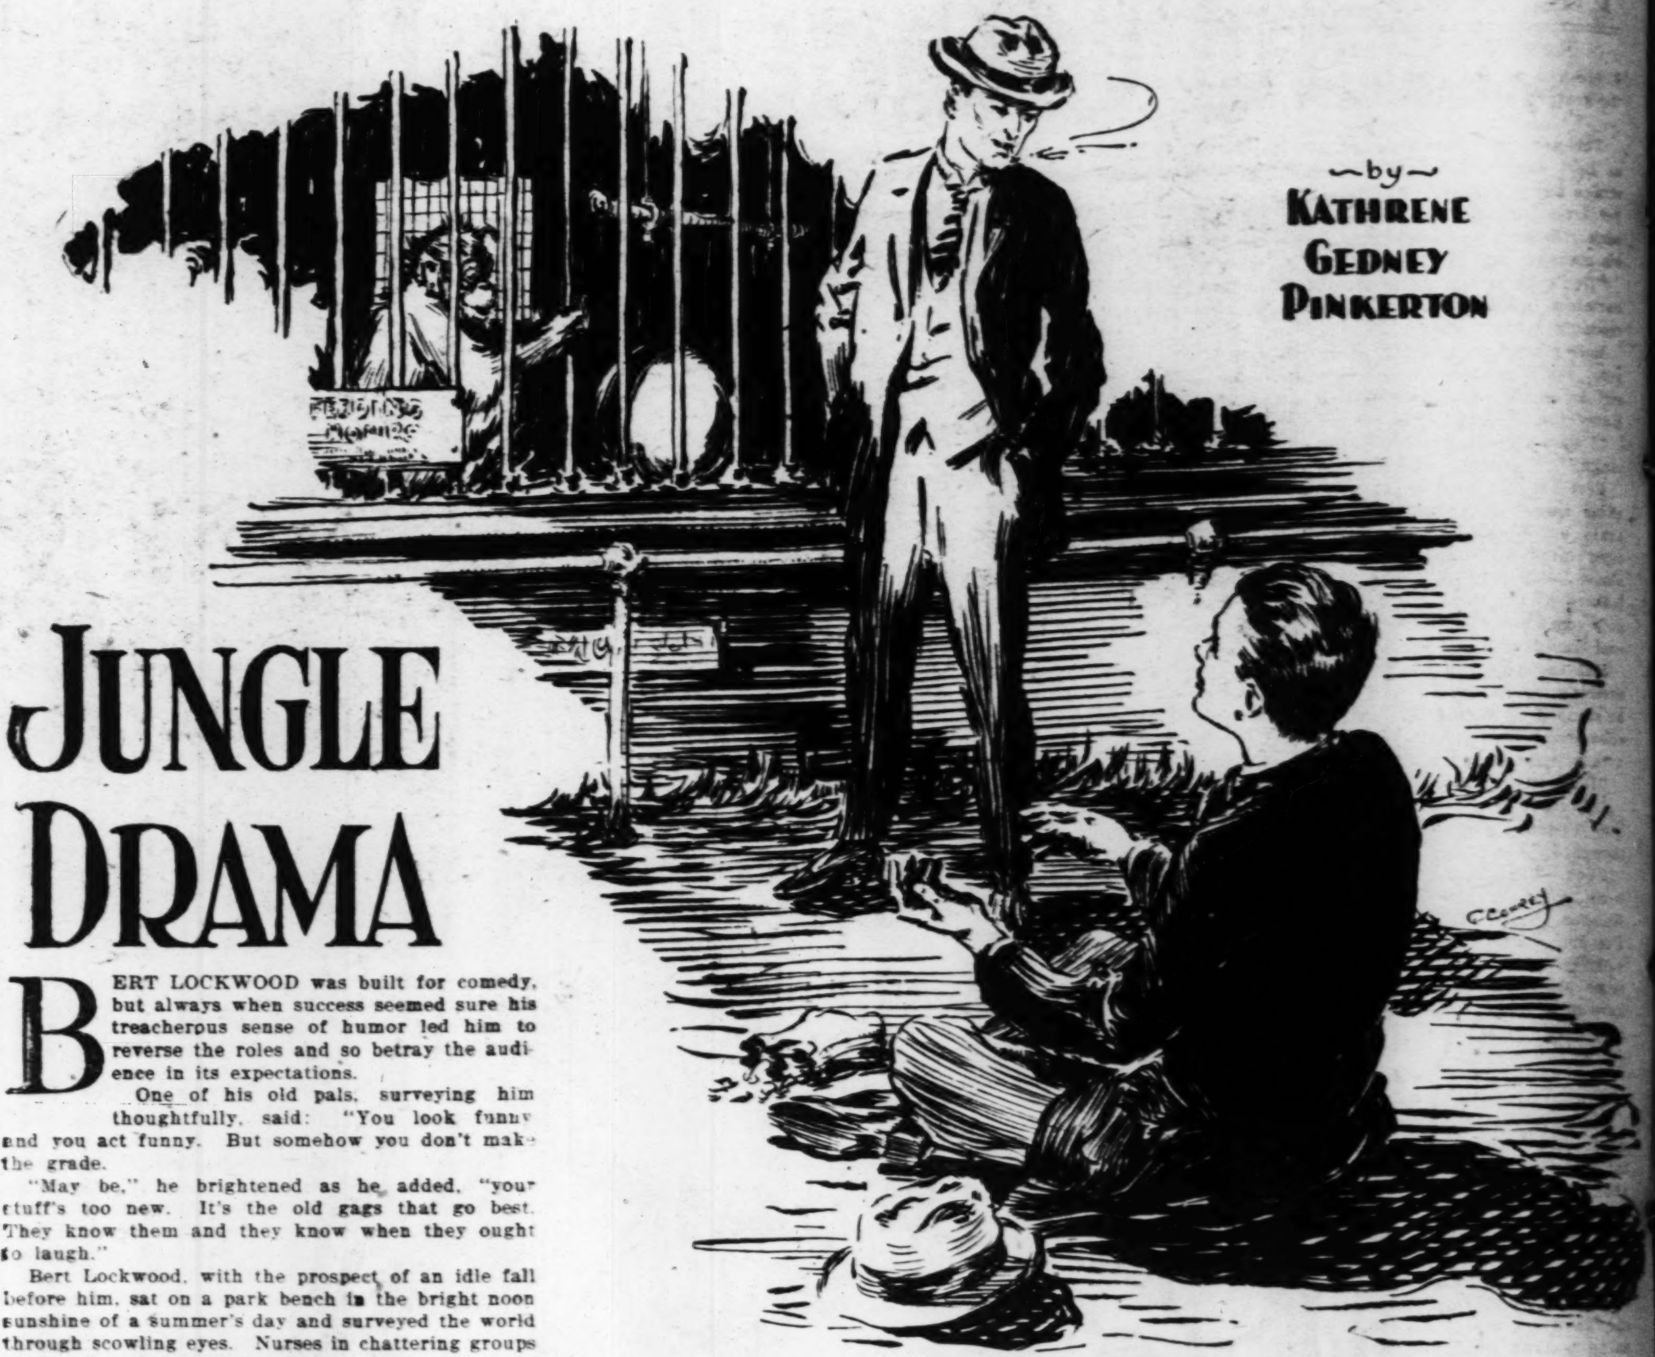
PINKERTON



"THAT'S GOOD STUFF. CAN YOU DO MUCH OF IT?"

BERT LOCKWOOD was built for comedy, but always when success seemed sure his treacherous sense of humor led him to reverse the roles and so betray the audience in its expectations.

One of his old pals, surveying him thoughtfully, said: "You look funny and you act funny. But somehow you don't make the grade.

"May be," he brightened as he added, "your stuff's too new. It's the old gags that go best. They know them and they know when they ought to laugh."

Bert Lockwood, with the prospect of an idle fall before him, sat on a park bench in the bright noon sunshine of a summer's day and surveyed the world through scowling eyes. Nurses in chattering groups conveyed their small charges past him on the way home from the morning's play and at last when Bert seemed to be alone he arose and lounged over to the monkey cages.

It was the hour he had been awaiting, for Bert's recreation, unlike his profession, demanded seclusion. An aged monkey, recognizing his daily visitor, came forward and thrust out a hairy hand as he directed a pleading glance toward a bag of peanuts that protruded from Bert's pocket.

"No you don't," Bert laughed at the insinuating posture. "Come on. Do your turn."

As he spoke he tossed a marble through the bars. The monkey caught it, juggled it dextrously and threw it back. Instantly Bert squatted, thrust his head forward in faithful imitation, caught the marble in an outstretched hand and juggled it with simian gravity.

"That's good stuff." A voice at Bert's shoulder spun him around. "Can you do much of it?"

Bert straightened to an erect position with a jerk and looked at his questioner, a tall, lanky man with closely set eyes.

"Everything the monk can," he replied, curtly. "Only they'd pinch me for a nut."

"In the business? Acrobat, ain't you?"

"I was," Bert answered. "Learned it when I was a kid."

"Got any bookings?"

Bert looked up.

"Why?" he asked, defensively.

"If you haven't, we might do something together. I've got to beat it, now. Doing a turn at the Palace. But I've got an act all right that will be a knock-out. Come around tomorrow and I'll show it to you. Ayres is my name and I'm staying at the Royal. If you think we can do it we'll go 50-50. It'll need the two of us. How about it?"

"I'll be there. Say 11?"

"All right. See you later."

The next morning Bert looked up as Harry Ayres finished speaking. The sheer daring and delicious humor of the idea left him awed and wistful.

"It's a knock-out," he said, huskily.

"The make-up has got to be a good one. There ain't a mask in the country that could get by."

"No, but I know where we can have one made. Ever hear of Anton?"

Bert shook his head.

"He's a wonder if you can keep him away from whisky long enough, and I'm the boy that can do it. Why, he could make a mask that would fool a monkey."

Bert arose, bent apelike, thrust his head forward and juggled a chair with pretentious gravity. Harry Ayres burst out laughing.

"Why, man, you should be a monkey!" he cried. "You look like one. With a mask and gloves no one could tell the difference."

Three months later passengers on a train pulling into Chicago were amazed to see the door of a drawing room open and an ape emerge in the custody of its master. Had it not been for a chain attached to its wrist, and the wrinkled, aged countenance beneath a high hat, he would have seemed but a queer, shambling little human who was able to indulge a desire for seclusion and comfort.

His clothes were as smartly tailored as those of the men among whom he walked. To be sure, his vest was a little gay, his trousers were a bit baggy and the shining silk hat was conspicuous, but these were minor flaws easily pardoned by his simian needs and tastes.

"That's Chino," a man explained to his companion. "In vaudeville. They say the act's a wonder."

"Yes," the other added. "Makes you wonder how far we've come, after all. They say he even selects his clothes."

For Chino's clothes, his food, even his preference in ties and vests, were all a part of the publicity in which Harry Ayres found the press so willing to assist.

Bert first saw Masie Morse the afternoon of his opening in Chicago. She was standing in the wings and her dancing partner was fixing the responsibility for their failure as Bert and Harry passed.

"What do you think this is, a morgue?" he growled. "Get some pep."

"Make him lay off," Bert whispered in one of the mumbling asides in which long practice had made him perfect. "She's just a kid."

"Oh, come on," the other answered. "It's bad business, mixing into other acts."

Bert might have forgotten Masie altogether had not an errand called them upstairs that evening in time to see her act. They stood in the wings and watched her young eagerness crumpling under the cold stare of the audience, saw her partner's banal attempts to instill the lacking pep in timeworn gags, heard his gruff commands to Masie to "liven up," and witnessed her pitiful efforts to win the approval of the men in the front row who watched her with heavy-lidded eyes.

"There's nothing in the act to get over," Bert muttered to Harry.

His partner studied the lithe figure.

"She's got something if they knew how to work her," he answered, slowly. "She's young, for one thing, and she can dance."

"I suppose you think you're the man that could do it," Bert sneered.

"I'm not saying I couldn't. What's it to you?"

"Nothing—except she's decent and you're a dirty, cold-blooded fish."

"Oh, is that so?" Harry demanded, belligerently. "I suppose you think she'd like a monkey better. Try it and see how far you'd get."

For a moment the two men faced each other, equally startled by the enmity which had flashed out between them. Then Harry laughed.

"Let's cut it!" he exclaimed. "What does that doll-faced kid mean to us?"

Both men drew back from the precipice of anger, recalled by a knowledge that in open warfare lay mutual disaster.

Two days went by and then one afternoon as the monkey and the man made their way off stage Bert surprised a look between Harry and the girl. This time Bert said nothing, but afterward in the dressing room, when Harry did not join him at once as was his custom, Bert stepped out.

Harry and Masie were holding a low-voiced conversation down the hall. Bert, unconscious of his makeup or his shambling gait, walked toward them.

"Oh, Ayres!" one of the other actors called. "Your monkey's waiting for you."

When they reached their rooms Bert turned savagely upon his partner.

"So you couldn't let her alone," he said.

"What's that to you?" Harry demanded.

"Nothing, except I ain't going to let you do it."

"You ain't!" The laugh which followed carried a taunt which stung. "I'd like to see you stop me. Go ahead. I'd like to see a monkey making love."

Bert went to his own room and shut the door. He did not see his partner again until he entered with a tray. It was half an hour before his usual time for dinner.

"In a hurry, aren't you?" Bert suggested.

"Sure. I got a date. Remember, I'm not playing a 24-hour act."

"Just what do you mean by that?"

"Whatever you want to make of it," Harry answered, lightly. "But I told the management that when I go out I lock you in. They don't want ladies frightened by a monkey in the halls."

Bert clenched his hands and only his throbbing temples told his passion.

"I may go on a two-a-day schedule myself," he answered, evenly.

"Or nothing at all," Harry added. "The way you were when I picked you up. Well, so long. I never keep a lady waiting."

With an airy wave of his hand he left the room.

The Story of a Stage Monkey and His Master, Who Were Rivals

There had been a deliberate taunt in the words and the gesture which left Bert in a helpless rage.

• • • • • • •

The girl was watching an act on the stage and as Bert came near her a descending scene almost struck her shoulder. He lunged forward and pulled her from its path. She stared at him and shrank back. Bert released his grip, suddenly conscious of his makeup, and then Harry was at their side.

"Don't be afraid," he laughed. "The monk is harmless. Why, Chino is a hero when it comes to rescuing ladies."

Bert glared up into the laughing eyes of his partner. For a moment he hated them both, hated the girl as much for her senseless cringing as he did Harry for his malicious words.

"I wasn't afraid," Masie said, with an embarrassed laugh. "I guess I was just startled."

Bert did not see her again that night, nor did her name come up between the partners. Harry was again his composed, triumphant self and Bert retired into that hidden country in which he lived alone. For was he not Chino, the headliner, the feature of the bill, coining a fortune where others only existed, getting the laughs where others won cool stares?

But the following afternoon he hung about the dressing room hall. At last Masie appeared and he stepped up beside her. Unconsciously, he straightened to his full height, and the girl looked around with a little gasp of astonishment.

"Did you think I was a monkey?" he demanded.

"No, it's only out front they believe that. But I thought"——

"You thought I was some sort of freak," he finished, grimly. "Well, I'm not. And I want to talk to you. Not here. Some place where I don't have to wear this makeup. How about tonight for dinner?"

"I'm sorry, but I've got a date."

"With Ayres? I see. He works fast. Then make it tomorrow morning. How about 11? I'll call at your hotel."

"The next morning Bert sent his name up to Masie. She came down almost at once and the startled look she gave his erect figure as he walked toward her was vividly indicative of the strange object for which she had been prepared.

"How did you think I was going to look?" he asked, curtly.

"I—I don't know." She stammered a little. "Not so good-looking, somehow. Why do you do the other?"

"The monkey makeup?" He laughed at her little grimace. "Because it pays. He-beauty doesn't get you anywhere in vaudeville. You look different yourself," he added. "Sort of older. I thought you were a kid."

"Is that going to make it harder for you to row with me?"

"What made you think I was going to do that?" he demanded, in amazement.

"You've done nothing but glower every time you've come near me for a week."

"What shall we do first?" He changed the subject. "Let's go somewhere where we can talk."

"One of the parks," she suggested. "I'd like to walk along the lakeshore."

He called a taxi and helped her in and they said nothing of what he wished to say until they were striding across the grass. Then he burst into it, roughly.

"Why do you mix in this game at all? You're not the kind that ought to do it."

"You mean I can't?" she challenged.

"Why do you want to? Don't you see you're different, that you've got something that's a whole lot better?"

"Yes; but that don't make my living," she answered, bitterly.

"Ain't there any other way you can make it?"

"Teaching dancing in a small town. I did that for four years. I'd do anything rather than go back."

"Even the kind of things you're going to have to do to get the act over?" he asked, incredulously.

"I guess that's not going to worry me very long. Davis says they're only waiting until they can send something else before they close the act."

"Where do you go tomorrow?"

"Milwaukee. You're playing the same town aren't you?"

Bert nodded.

"I suppose that's where they'll close us," she went on, listlessly. "Nobody thinks we've got a chance.

"It's a bum act, anyway. I don't see how they ever got it on. But, look here! What's going to happen to you then?"

"I don't know." There was a desperate note in her voice. "That's what I'm trying to find out."

"Find out! How?" he demanded, harshly. "Look here, kid. Don't you go and do something foolish. There ain't anyone on the bill but says you can dance."

"Yes; the one-two-three-four kind of dancing; the kind I taught those knock-kneed youngsters. But I can't get ginger into the audience. When it comes to getting it over I'm a frost."

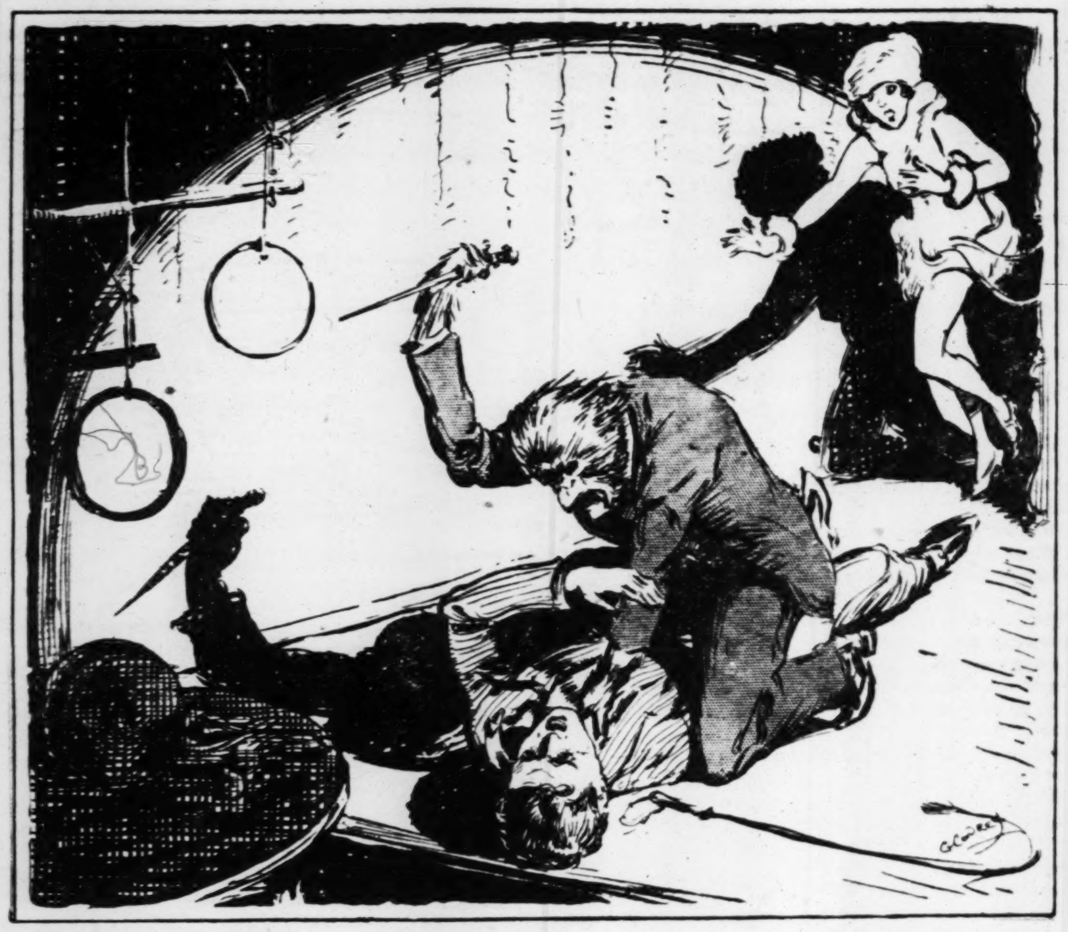
Bert looked thoughtful. He could no more have agreed with her than he could have struck a child.

"You're different," he said. "Most of them think they're world beaters and say the act's no good."

"Ours isn't, but I ought to make them know I was on the stage."

"Listen!" he exclaimed. The words which followed his exclamation were driven out incoherently by his sudden inspiration. "I'll stake you. "I'm drawing down good money and I've got a lot that's not doing anything right now. I know how it is myself to be up against it. You're pretty and you know you're rotten. That's going a long ways, and then afterwards"——

He paused, suddenly at a loss as to where to place this visionary triumph of the future.



When Harry looked up into the eyes of his partner he saw, not Bert, the man he had tormented, but Chino, the savage ape, untrammeled by the negations of civilization, the beast he had created.

"Then afterwards?" the girl repeated.

"Afterwards you can either pay it back or forget about it," he finished, grimly.

"I might have known," she murmured as she laid an impulsive hand on his arm. "You're good—too good," she added. "That's why I couldn't do it. You get nothing out of it. There's no way I could pay you back. Now, Harry gets something out of making people. That's what he says he can do with me. But first he's got to teach me how to live."

"Live! Live for him, you mean. And when he's through with you he will throw you down. Don't you suppose I know him? Listen, Masie. Do you care about him?"

For a moment she did not answer as she pulled her long gloves through straining fingers.

"I don't think you've got a right to ask that question," she ventured at last.

Bert stepped closer until his moody eyes stared straight into hers.

"Maybe I've got a better right than anyone you know," he said, slowly. "It's an easy question to answer."

"But it isn't," she broke in. "I guess I don't even know myself. I don't think he's good or gentle or even kind. But there's something in him that makes you do what he wants you to. Do you get what I mean?"

Bert nodded.

"I guess," she went on, with a strange dreaminess of expression, "folks like you and me need that kind to put us over. We don't seem to get anywhere by ourselves."

Bert started.

"Do you think it was that way with me?" he demanded, wrathfully. "Did he say that about our act?"

"Well, you weren't working when he picked you up."

"But the stuff was mine. He didn't add a new bit of business to it."

"No, but he showed you how to use it."

"Yes, and he got 50-50 for the idea. You're right when you say you can pay him back. He sees that you do it, all right. Go on! Try it! You'll find there's something worse than teaching dancing."

Masie faced him and four years of revolt against monotony and drudgery flared in her eyes.

"There couldn't be!" she declared, with a fierceness which stiffened the small, trim body. "Nothing could be worse than that. But, anyway, I haven't done it yet. Maybe I won't have to. Come on. We've got to hurry if we're going to get anything to eat."

• • • • • • •

Bert found his enraged partner pacing his room.

"Where do you get this stuff?" Harry demanded. "What are you trying to do, throw the act?"

"I thought I'd give you a chance to play the monkey and see how you liked it."

"Oh, I guess I'm not the one who played it this morning. Anyway, your stuff's safe. I don't suppose there's another man in the country who could do it."

Bert turned to survey his persecutor thoughtfully.

"So you know that, do you?" he asked, evenly. "I thought maybe you expected to pick up acts like mine on every corner. Because if you want to keep it you'd better go slow in the game you're playing."

"What are you trying to do?" Harry demanded, furiously. "Throw the act? Remember, you've got more to lose than I have.

"I can manage another act any time I want. Don't forget that."

"And I suppose I could get another trainer. Your stuff isn't hard to do.

"No, but yours will be if you ever try to get away with my idea."

For a moment Bert stared back at him. The flimsy pretense of indifference had been torn away and they stood like two fighters, stripped for action, the issue clearly defined. It must be one or the other. Either the dominance was real or it must be proved false. Bert turned away.

"Huh!" Harry sneered, uneasily, "I thought you'd see it."

Bert did not answer. For suddenly he hated, hated with an intensity which swung him out from the sheltering comfort of his personal triumph and demanded retribution for all the months of petty indignities he had suffered. So their fellow actors in Milwaukee witnessed a strange three-cornered drama. It was not a wooing. It was a competition between a master and his monkey, not for the girl, but for her frail dependence.

To everyone but Harry and Bert it was inexplicable, even to Masie herself. She liked Bert Lockwood, and on the rare occasions when he emerged from his simian role and met her outside and they walked in the parks or lunched together something in her felt the urge of a potential comradeship and understanding. But later she always mistrusted its appeal and the peace it promised. She could not forget that he was a creature who carried out the bidding of another, who seldom walked erectly, was always on a chain and who, when he grew unruly, was cuffed into submission by his master.

Although Masie did not know it, she was the victim of suggestion, influenced by Harry's clever phrases when he made of her shame-faced liking for the monkey man a thing of pity, a bond between two weaklings. Bert understood it better, knew the unheroic picture he presented, and every day it became harder for him to be Chino, the monkey with delightful imitations of human ways. The joke had been taken from him. Once he had been so sure he was a man he had loved to play the monkey, with his tongue in his cheek, laughing at the credulous people who watched his antics. But now, because Masie questioned it, he questioned his own manhood.

So Chino, the headliner, the triumphant, became a failure. All week the act went badly and the other acts smiled wisely because the gap between them and the feature was becoming less. Harry knew it and the sinister import of the quiet house was the subject of endless quarrels between the partners. Hudson, the stage manager, saw it and carried his protests daily to their dressing room. And all the time Bert waited, holding his wrath in leash until the moment of the decision between them.

It came sooner than Bert had expected. He knew Friday afternoon when he entered the dressing room and saw the crafty smile on Harry's face that something had happened. A few moments later he shambled out to see Masie before she went on the stage. He found her at the head of the stairs, awaiting her turn.

"I want to see you," he began abruptly. "After the show. Shall we make it dinner?"

She hesitated for a fraction of a second, and then assented. . . . There was no time for them to say anything more before Davis, her dancing partner, joined them. That afternoon Chino did no better and no worse than he had done for a week and the two men drove to the hotel in silence. In their rooms Bert turned to Harry.

"I'm going out," he announced, briefly. "You can stay and order dinner for the monk."

The other surveyed him for a moment, a cruel gleam in his closely set eyes.

"All right," he said, at last. "A lot of good it'll do you. You've thrown the act already. We haven't had a curtain call this week. But it's your funeral and not mine."

"Meaning?" Bert asked.

"That when Chino, the headliner, has gone back to the park benches I'll be managing another act," Harry finished, calmly.

A half-hour later Bert faced Masie across a table. There had been a defiance in her manner and her tone which had not escaped him.

"Well, what's happened?" he demanded.

"Davis got word to close up this week."

"And?" Bert waited for the rest of her disclosure.

"Harry's going to stake me until I can get to working. He says he's got an act doped out and he can get someone else to do it if"——

She stopped in her embarrassment.

"If the monkey act doesn't go on the rocks," Bert finished. "No, he'll stick to that so long as he's drawing down good money."

Masie colored. She could not have been in the theater that week and remained unaware of the cause to which the disaster had been attributed.

"I played fair, didn't I?" she challenged. "Right from the first I told you how it was with me. I never kidded you along. I told you that first day you were too good—too good to help me."

"Did you mean too good or just that I couldn't?"

She saw the pain in his eyes now and thrust an impulsive hand across the table.

"It isn't that," she answered. "It's something else. I can't explain it. I need a man like Harry Ayres. Oh, I know how you feel about him, but I'm going in with my eyes open. Harry'll make me glad and mad and sorry, and then maybe I can dance."

Bert crumbled some pieces of bread with nervous fingers.

The significance of her decision went deep. In her failure she had turned to Harry. She had chosen not the monkey but the master.

Back of his own pain there was a savage rage that he could do nothing to keep this fresh-eyed girl from the experience she demanded.

Masie watched him.

"Oh, I know what you're thinking," she suddenly burst forth. "I know what you would like to do for me—buy me a ticket and send me back to prison—sentence me to a thousand years more of teaching."

"It wouldn't seem like prison," Bert answered slowly. "At least, not after you've been through what—what he will send you through. I'd have been glad to do it—just like I'd build a fence around some flowers."

"A fence!" she repeated. "I'm sick of fences! I've been behind one for four years. I guess I know what I'm getting into and maybe it won't turn out like you're thinking."

She arose from the table and as Bert watched her, her head thrown back, her cheeks flushed, the joy of courage in her eyes, he felt a sudden warm rush of pity and admiration.

"Maybe," he mumbled, as he arose to follow her out of the restaurant, "but it would have to be your kind he'd love to break."

* * * * *

Bert found his partner waiting for him at the hotel and as he passed on to his own room he caught Harry's quick look of inquiry. But Bert said nothing. In silence he put on his make-up and in silence the two walked to the waiting taxi, drove to the theater and entered their dressing room.

Without speaking they waited for their call and the silence became heavy with unspoken thought, throbbing with savage rage and vicious triumph.

As they began their act Harry was the usual urbane trainer getting off his pseudo-scientific patter in his usual convincing way. Bert went about his work mechanically.

At last the time approached when Bert was to simulate monkey disobedience. Always they had prepared the groundwork carefully, Bert working gradually into a petulant reluctance to do his tricks. But tonight he moved automatically. In vain Harry tried to bring the act up to its old climax. Bert could not simulate a childish disobedience when his thoughts were focused on a desire to kill.

The people in the audience moved restlessly in their seats. The act was going flat and Harry walked towards his partner ostensibly to command him to mount the trapeze. It was the point at which Chino was to flare into open revolt, but Chino only stared dully at his trainer. Under his stage voice came Harry's whisper.

"Get mad!" he hissed. "You monkey lover!" With one lunge Bert leaped free from his chain, grabbed a knife from the table and started toward his trainer.

Harry saw him coming and started for the wings, but Bert cut him off and they doubled back across the stage. The audience, suddenly electrified, got to its feet.

Bert caught and tripped Ayres and leaped upon him, and when Harry looked up into the eyes of his partner he saw, not Bert, the man he had tormented, but Chino, the savage ape, untrammeled by the negations of civilization, the beast he had created.

Slowly and surely Bert forced him down and raised the knife. For a moment he held it poised, gloating over the terror in the face beneath him. And then, just as he had begun his downward thrust, out from the wings rushed Masie.

"Stop!" she screamed. "Stop before you kill him!"

It was not the words that halted him. It was her face, contorted by terror, and suddenly he knew she loved that vicious, perverted thing he held beneath him. The thought robbed the moment of revenge of all its joy.

He stared up at her, his hold relaxed, and in that instant Harry writhed free and leaped to his feet. The curtain went down upon the three standing there, and the audience broke into a storm of wild applause.

"It was a frame-up!" a fat man fairly shouted to his companion. "But you've got to hand it to 'em. They had me going for a minute."

"Quick!" and Harry grasped the hands of his companions. "Take the call! They want us!"

The three went forward together, Harry covering the disorganization of the others, and when that appearance did not calm the house the curtain went up again, and again, and still again. With each dip the tumult swelled.

"Chino! Chino! We want Chino!"

The house took up the cry.

Even Now, Scientists Can't Tag Tobacco

is published. Says one in the medicinal group:

"Tobacco, as I have observed its effect upon people, differs greatly with different individuals. * * * I have a long list of young men running through my mind, whose efficiency, health and progress were greatly improved and accelerated by either cutting down their tobacco or by abandoning its use altogether. These impressions are so numerous and so vivid upon my mind that they amount to a strong conviction—a very positive opinion—that tobacco, in very large amounts at any rate, does lessen the actual efficiency and interfere with the intellectual and physiological processes, though I can readily appreciate that in small amounts, in certain individuals, it might serve as a temporary stimulant or as a mild narcotic to soothe the nerves and smooth the path of life."

A psychologist who has smoked "a good deal" from the age of 22 writes:

"I do not know anything by direct experience concerning the difference in efficiency between those who smoke and those who do not, or in the same man when he is smoking compared with a period when he has given it up. I am unable to say whether its use has been beneficial to me personally or not.

"It is my general impression that both the alleged enjoyments and the alleged deleterious effects of tobacco have been largely exaggerated."

Another psychologist, who gave up smoking after six years of very moderate practice, says:

"It seems to me inevitable that the constant doping of the higher brain centers by means of any narcotic, and this includes tobacco and alcohol, must have a degenerating effect upon the race in the long run. As long as this is confined to one sex, the influence is constantly counteracted, but when women begin to smoke we may expect serious racial degeneracy. I cannot see how it could be otherwise."

Conflict of opinion ceases when the investigator describes the results of tobacco in the grammar and high schools. Nor is it by any means entirely a matter of the judgment of various educators, for the grades of thousands of boys were traced back in the records, and the diminished mental efficiency which almost always manifested itself when a boy began to smoke is proved. Statistical tables of the actual figures are presented. Typical of the general reports are the following:

"Pupil 4. Very bright in the grammar school. Began smoking while in the eighth grade. He has been in high school two years, but he is still ranked as a freshman. He is listless, careless, nervous, pale and emaciated. He is a cigarette fiend. His deportment is below normal."

"Pupil 21. A junior. He began his career in high school by getting 90's during the first year. He began smoking in his sophomore year. He has failed in two studies this year and has lost 'pep' and attention to work. He needs disciplining continually.

"One cannot," says Prof. O'Shea, "go over the reports from these 206 schools without forming the conviction that tobacco is either directly or indirectly playing a tragic role in the high school." And the records are "conclusive in showing that the use of tobacco by pupils is detrimental to intellectual effort, and in extreme cases it paralyzes mental activity."

At Prof. O'Shea's request, a series of laboratory experiments was carried out by Dr. Clark L. Hull, associate professor of psychology at the University of Wisconsin. The subjects all were young men—students at the university. They included smokers (who habitually used a pipe) and nonsmokers. The tests were held for 18 consecutive evenings, and were designed to ascertain the influence of tobacco upon the intellectual processes.

Briefly, the subjects were blindfolded before the lighted pipes were handed to them. On some nights the subjects really did smoke tobacco, on other nights the pipes contained only an electric heating apparatus in the form of a coil. This was surrounded by asbestos and placed in an aluminum cylinder, which in turn was fixed in the bowl of the pipe. The heating was controlled easily by an electric arrangement, so that the temperature of the air, as it was drawn through the control pipe, was about the same as that of ordinary smoke.

Impossible as it may sound, the taste of the air drawn through the control pipe was as a rule interpreted by the subjects as to tobacco smoke. The majority of the subjects finished the series of tests without having suspected that about half of the time there was no tobacco in their pipes.

The illusion was aided by having plenty of pipes, tobacco, matches, etc., visible on the tables before blindfolding the subjects. Then they could hear pipes being filled, matches struck, etc., and the experimenters smoked real pipes. After a smoke, real or fictitious, the bandages were removed and tests performed, this same routine usually being gone through three times each evening.

In the opinion of Prof. O'Shea, the laboratory tests showed that tobacco tends to retard and to disturb intellectual processes, but not in a marked degree in the particular functions which were investigated. There is considerable variability in the effects upon any one individual from day to day in respect to different intellectual processes.

"It is impossible to say what the effect of smoking a pipe of tobacco would be upon the mental processes of any individual at any given time."

Also, the effect of tobacco varies in different individuals according to the time which elapses between smoking and intellectual performance. With some individuals the immediate effect of tobacco appears to be beneficial, while the remoter effect may be detrimental. With other individuals the immediate effect is depressing, while the remoter effect may be neutral or, rarely, stimulating. The laboratory tests yielded no data relating to the contention that smoking is favorable to meditation, nor as to whether it strengthens or weakens creative ability, improves or injures judgment or has any effect upon "alertness."

A clear case is made out against tobacco for the young, but in the case of adults the results of this investigation must be regarded as a disappointment both to smokers and abstainers.

"How It Feels to Die"

wall. Boom! That wasn't nitroglycerin. Too many blasts. Something else, something heavy, hurled against the concrete. He could only guess the engine was a battering ram, splintering the stony shell of his tomb.

A moment before he had hoped the safe would be blown open. Now he feared it. Surely they wouldn't. The great door would warp with the explosion, then be flung back upon him. The air began to grow heavy, his tongue thick. How could a man's tongue be so thick? It seemed to fill his mouth. Funny to stick out your tongue now. Round and round spun his brain, in white-hot whirls. A splitting clamor commenced at the top of his head, causing his teeth to chatter noisily. No, the manager wouldn't let them blow up the safe. He lost consciousness for a time.

Recovering consciousness, gasping, still in a half-trance, he continued to see his life whip by. The day on the football field when Paterson High School played Hackensack. His great day! Even now, it made him proud. He could see the field, the rooters. The score was nothing to nothing. The game nearly over. He was fullback. They gave him the ball. Seven downs he carried it through, for a touchdown. Yes, that fellow running in the air was himself, Charles Di Giacomo. Too bad—they missed the kick. Score, 6 to 0.

Pandemonium broke loose. A thousand hideous hammers rang against the top of the vault, bruising the concrete; regularly pealed the battering ram. Boom! Boom! He put a finger in each ear. The piercing din of steel was quieted. But nothing could still that maddening roar in his brain. Tumbling down, down. His heart pumped furiously, each stroke the explosion of a rifle. And that air, horrible, black, in his mouth, his ears, his nose, his lungs, strangling him, squeezing his neck—squeezing his throat—his black throat—squeezing—tighter!

A new noise, a dull, whirring noise, metal grinding metal. Dimly he sensed a new hope. The drills! But they were too late. His heart was bursting. His eyes were leaping from his head. Each breath was a crucifixion. Yet one more attempt to live. Weakly he struggled to the single chair; fainting, crawled up on it to be near the hole the drill would pierce. The hole which would lead to air!

Again his brain whirled dizzily in mile-wide circles, round, round. He felt his feeble body tottering and mechanically stretched out his hands for support. They caught the ledgers above. He toppled to the floor, bringing the heavy volumes down upon him. Their steel-clasped edges dug into his flesh. Let them stay. He was too tired to push them away. Ledgers—$16.40. He remembered. The accounts wouldn't be proved after all. Bill. Poor Bill! It wasn't his fault. An accident.

More whirling, mile-wide circles. Long, long blackness. Then someone stabbed him in the breast four times. Why didn't they let him alone? Let him rest? Let him sleep?

The four stabs were the doctor's hypodermic needle, piercing his chest. He was saved.

The Comeback of Hollywood

drove her back to her home. And as I settled back in the luxurious cushions I breathed a silent prayer of thanks to the gods and goddesses that Southern California was sufficiently civilized to have wonderful roads—even if they lead nowhere.

"Did you really enjoy the sunrise?" she asked me, with a merry little twinkle in her eyes, as we wound around the road down the mountainside.

"Well, the flapjacks were wonderful," I admitted, "but"——

"But—what?" she insisted, divining that I had some suggestions on the subject.

"But why couldn't we have had them at 9 or 10 o'clock in your dining room?" I said.

"That's the way I like them," my hostess confessed. "It seems awfully silly to get up so early in the morning, but Doug likes to sneak up the mountain in the dark. I only do it because he likes it and he thinks it entertains our guests."

"Well, if I'm invited again," I hinted, as we reached the house, "I'll stay in bed and have the flapjacks at the breakfast table."

"So will I," she confided, adding cautiously, "if I can get out of it."

"Anyway, my mother told me to tell you I had a pleasant time," I replied, as I retired to my room. And as I was all dressed up with no place to go I went back to bed.

Such is the merry mountain life of our greatest film favorite—pass the flapjacks!

"Go on!" and Harry pushed Bert toward the stage. "Take it! That's the sixth we've had and every one legitimate."

Chino stood for a moment before the audience and then shambled off. Again the three appeared, Harry and even Masie smiling. The next number was flashed on the screen, the orchestra began to play and the audience settled back.

Back of the wings Harry was receiving congratulations from the stage manager.

"It was a knock-out! I'll have to hand it to you. Just what the act needed to give it pep. But the next time put me wise. In another minute the stage hands would have queered it."

Bert went on to his dressing room in silence. For the first time in days he was strangely at peace. He marveled a little that the sight of Harry's terrified, pleading face staring up at him could have wiped the score so clean. Neither did he feel bitterness because of thwarted vengeance. He only knew that he had settled the struggle for mastery beyond the power of Harry or even of Masie to disquiet him.

As for the girl, if she loved Harry, that was enough.

The door opened and Harry entered. As Bert looked up he wondered why he had ever taken the trouble even to hate him.

Harry studied his partner uneasily for a moment.

"Well, you almost did it." His tone was casual. "But it saved the act. Hudson's babbling yet, and I guess when they get the word on all those curtain calls they won't think the act's a wonder. Oh, no, not at all!

"Only one thing about it," Harry continued. "Could you do it just like that again?"

"Again!"

"Yes, work it into the business. Why, the audience went crazy over it. I've been talking to the girl and she says she could do it. They're closing her this week and she can travel with us."

"I thought you said you had another act worked out for her."

"Oh, that! I was just bluffing when I saw you were getting crabby. She's cute and pretty, but she hasn't got a chance in vaudeville. Now, in this—she's sort of young and girlish. They'd never think it was a frame-up."

"Is she willing?"

"Sure. I've just been talking with her. If she could do that scream every night it would be a knock-out. Far as I can see, it's about the only thing she could put over. How about it?"

At last Bert looked up.

"I ought to be if she is," he said, simply.

"I knew you'd come to feel that way about it." Harry started toward the door and then turned. "Of course," he added, "you know the girl is crazy over me. That settles it between us, don't it?"

"Yes," Bert answered, listlessly. "That settles it."

How long Bert sat there he did not know. It was good to be alone, to digest this amazing joke life had played on him.

Out of futility he had grasped one fact, a belief in himself which life could never take away.

Suddenly Masie stood beside him.

"Well," he asked, with his crooked smile, "he told you I was willing, didn't he?"

"Yes, he told me." Masie's eyes, in which there seemed no guile, looked into his. "I might have known you would do it. I let him talk and talk and then I came to you."

Bert stared up at her without comprehension.

"You mean," he said, after a long, silent moment, "that it wasn't him—that"——

"It was you I screamed for. I couldn't let you spoil your life just on account of me. I guess it was you all the time, only I didn't know. I listened to his lies about how he'd made you, but when I saw you there fighting I knew how it was with me."

She was in his arms and neither knew nor cared that he still had on his monkey makeup.

"Oh, Bert," she whispered, as she nestled closer. "Did you think I would go on in an act like that?"

"Why not?" he asked, and a new strength was in his voice. "We'd be together."

Children See Circus Animals Free Every Day

Hall was doubtful about the advisability of adding a circus menagerie to his stock farm, but the price named by the circus man was so low that he could not resist it. So Hall paid the price and went home to Lancaster with an odd assortment of lions, tigers, leopards, elephants, bears, hyenas, hippopotamuses, rhinoceroses and ring-tailed monkeys. Col. Hall fattened up the animals. More for charity than for any other reason, he gave employment to some of the animal trainers and keepers of the stranded circus, and before long he had started a new and fascinating business.

The animals, half-starved under their former ownership, waxed sleek and attractive under Col. Hall's care. Before long another circus came that way—this time a prosperous circus. The management bought the entire outfit from Col. Hall at a price that staggered him. From that time on he made the purchase, training and sale of circus animals one of the principal branches of his business.

For 19 years he has been known to showmen from one end of the country to the other and to trappers of wild animals the world over. Nine years ago he brought over 26 young elephants in one shipment. This was a record-breaking cargo. He has large interests in various well-known circuses and owns several traveling shows and carnival companies operating under different names.

It is not to be thought that Col. Hall remained illiterate because at the age of 13 he was unable to read and write. As he was self-made, so also he was self-educated. He burned many gallons of midnight oil acquiring the knowledge necessary to carry on his business successfully. To this he has added the educational polish that comes from wide travel.

Lancaster has always been the home of this great "Horse King of Missouri." He was married 30 years ago to Miss Sarah Mitchell of Lancaster and has a son and two daughters. In spite of his great wealth he has had no private tutors for his children.

All three attended the public schools of Lancaster and his daughters have finished a four-year course at the Missouri State University. When asked if Billy Jr. would be trained to carry on his father's business, Col. Hall said:

"Not unless he expressly wants to do that kind of work. I'll help him out in anything, but I'll not coerce him. I think every man should be allowed to choose his own work, since God has given every man a mind of his own, and no two men, no matter if they be father and son, see things in exactly the same way."

Col. Hall has many friends, because he is always glad to have people come in and look around. He doesn't talk boastingly, but simply makes you see the human interest in every phase of his business.

MILK MAKES GOOD TEETH, SAYS DENTAL EXPERT.

MORE extensive use of milk, green raw vegetables and fresh foods will help prevent tooth decay, Dr. Percy C. Howe, chief of the research laboratory of the Forsythe Dental Infirmary for Children, told the National Education Association meeting at Boston.

Modern foods are more likely to be deficient in calcium, which is contained in milk than in any inorganic factor, he said. They are also apt to be deficient in vitamines. Animals fed on diets lacking these substances develop soft, loose, irregular teeth identical with the decayed teeth conditions in humans.

Decay of the teeth is probably the most common pathological condition that exists in civilized life and more individuals are engaged in the repair of teeth than in dealing with any other single human disturbance, he stated.

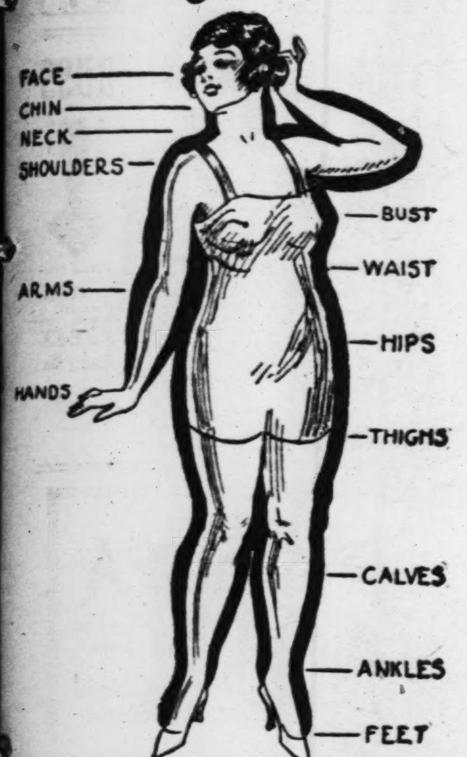
Would You Like to Lose a Pound a Day? Then TRY this Delightfully SIMPLE Way---

Science Discloses Method of Quickly Reducing Excess Weight—Many Losing a Pound a Day Without Starvation, Dieting or Exercise—Greatly Improves Appearance. Generous Sample Sent Free.



housands Are Now Finding It Easy to Have the Trim, Slim Figure Dictated by Fashion and Admired by All.

ARE you too fat? You shouldn't be. Without rigorous dieting or exercise—by a simple natural process—you should quickly and easily e able to have the slender fashionable figure that s so attractive.

Scientists have discovered that excess fat is often sed by the subnormal action of a small gland. Once is gland is healthy and functioning properly, your ight should reduce naturally, and without effort your part, to the normal amount for your height. And science has discovered a simple extract which ds to regulate the gland that controls fat. Without ing a hand in unnecessary and violent exercise, should find it a delightfully simple matter to ve the ideal, slender figure admired by everyone. The wonderful thing about the scientific formula own as Rid-O-Fat is that in losing your superflus fat you should gain added vigor, health and enery of mind and body.

Be Young—Feel Young Look Young

here is nothing which adds to a person's age so ch as fat. A few extra pounds make any man or man look from five to ten years older. Not only t, the excess weight and increased heart action vitality and energy.

Once the gland which controls your fat is function properly your food should be turned into firm, d flesh and muscle. As your weight comes down normal you should experience a delightful and zing improvement in your appearance. You should only feel and look younger—you should actually younger. You should also be in better health—a health of energy—not the fictitious and deceiv health of fat that insurance companies say short the life 10 years.

Complexion, health and figure are improved at the e time. The result is a new vitality, magnetism personal charm that makes for success. Tasks e hard become easy and life worth while.

Quick Results—
No Exercise—
No Dieting—

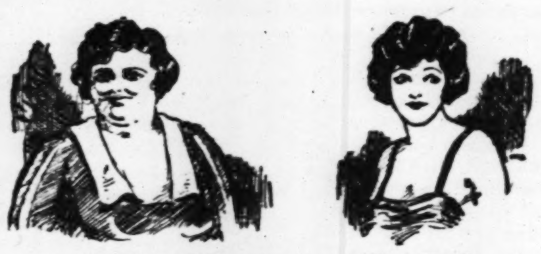
Rid-O-Fat, the scientific compound, comes in convenient tablet form and is practically tasteless. You simply take one at each meal and bedtime. The results are often surprising in their rapidity.

Within a few days you should be conscious of a new feeling of energy and lightness, taking the place of that tired, worn-out feeling.

Quickly as the fat gland resumes normal functioning you should lose weight in a healthy normal manner. Many fat, ungainly figures are in this scientific manner helped to regain their normal and idealistic proportions, giving that fashionable slenderness and athletic poise.

And all this time you live as you please.

Nature is doing the work. No more irksome exercise—no more denying yourself of all the things you like. Take just one small, pleasant, Rid-O-Fat tablet after each meal. Could anything be more simple?



A Fat Neck Is a Social Handicap

Modern fashions prevent a woman from covering up her neck, and thus it becomes the focal point of attention. If the neck be fat, with unsightly rolls and wrinkles—if there be a double chin—then there is small hope of being fully attractive.

Notice the vast difference in the two pictures above. What can be more attractive than a slender, oval face, glowing with the color of firm, solid flesh and graceful, properly proportioned neck and shoulders?

Rid-O-Fat Used by 100,000 People

Since the announcement of the wonderful Rid-O-Fat formula it has been used by more than 100,000 people. Twenty to thirty thousand more people are writing for it every month. The following letters show what users think of the scientific Rid-O-Fat system of fat reduction.

Lost Forty-One Pounds in Thirty Days

"When I wrote for your Rid-O-Fat sample I weighed 245 pounds. Today, which is 30 days later, I weigh only 204 pounds. A reduction of forty-one pounds in a month. I am delighted. Please send me another 30-day treatment, as I want to reduce to 145 pounds, which is the correct weight for my height. I am sure that I will realize my ambition with Rid-O-Fat and I feel better than I have in years."

Lost 12 Pounds in Six Days

"I lost 12 pounds the first six days I took Rid-O-Fat and feel and look 100 per cent better. Will tell my friends about it. I am happier than I have been in years."

Lost 20 Pounds in 3 Weeks

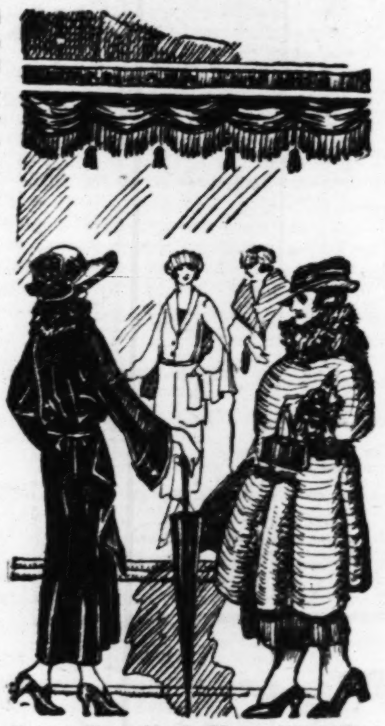
"According to weight tables I weighed exactly 20 pounds too much. Rid-O-Fat reduced me to normal in just a little more than three weeks. I feel better, don't get tired, and my friends say I look like a new person."

Fashion Decrees Slim Figures

Several centuries ago the fat figure was fashionable, but today it is decidedly passe—so much so in fact that it is almost impossible for a fat man or woman to find any style or fabric that is at all becoming—everything is being designed for the gracefully slim and athletic figure. Notice the vast difference in appearance and attractiveness between the fat and gracefully slender figures shown in the picture.

Why should you suffer the handicaps and embarrassments of excess weight—why should you suffer in appearance and actually shorten your life when the Rid-O-Fat treatment is so simple and easy?

Why not declare your independence today — right now—by writing for a free sample of Rid-O-Fat and prove to yourself that you can be as attractive and gracefully slender as you wish?



Notice How Much More Attractive the Slender, Graceful Figure Is.

Generous Sample Free

I want every fat person to have a chance to try Rid-O-Fat in their own homes at no expense. I don't want them to take my word or that of the thousands who have used it. I want them to see for themselves that the results are more pleasing than anything I can say.

To introduce Rid-O-Fat in a million more homes I will send a free sample to anyone who will write for it. In fact it is really more than a sample, as it is often sufficient to reduce the average person several pounds.

I will also send with the sample an interesting booklet that explains the scientific reason for fat, and why Rid-O-Fat is so valuable.

Send No Money

Don't send penny — I will send the sample and the booklet under plain wrapper and fully postpaid. This does not obligate you in any way and is never to cost you a cent. It is simply a limited offer I am making to more generally introduce Rid-O-Fat.

This free offer is good for only a short time, so send me your name and address on the coupon below or a post card, and I will see that the generous sample and booklet are mailed immediately under plain wrapper postpaid. Do not try to get Rid-O-Fat at drug stores as it is distributed only direct from my laboratory to you—remember this is a short time offer and send your name at once. H. C. Amazing and Supreme Life and Health Absolutely FREE

The Newest, Surest and Easiest Way to Perfection and Supremacy

A Novel, Original, Unique, Startling, Sensational and Marvelous Method of Regeneration

A Revolutionary, Natural, and Ultimate Law That Requires No Change in Your Habits, Morals, Religion, Faith, Ways, Attitudes or Beliefs. Requires No Charms, Images, Symbols, Phrases or Action of Any Kind

By JUNGARY RUSS

THIS extraordinary and Universal Law does not require you to buy anything, or to actively do anything or give up anything. It requires no exercise, nor time, nor conscious deep breathing—no stretching, dieting, drugs nor medicines.

This natural and supreme Law—the Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health—must not be confounded with hypnotism, auto-suggestion, psychology, spiritual science, psychic science, mental science, nor with electricity, osteopathy or any other method—mental or physical—ever devised in the past.

No self-hypnotizing phrases or formulas to repeat—no yielding, no recession, no giving up of anything, nothing to study, nothing to actively practice, no lessons to read, no books to buy, nothing to memorize, no self-deception—nothing but truth—reality—Natural Law.

A Marvelous, Mystifying Power of Nature Absolutely Free

Perfect health cures every known and conceivable disease. This natural law is guaranteed to give perfect health.

Death Eliminates the "Unfit" to Live

Thousands of human beings die of various so-called diseases, but all of these die of but one disease—unfitness to live.

Regardless of What Be Your Ailment, It Is But the Effect of Unfitness to Live—Deficient Power of Life and Health

There are twenty-five thousand quadrillions of units—living beings—in each human body. The Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health, when used, makes every one of these units more highly alive, more vital, more powerful, more efficient and thus more able to render the highest type of service unto self, as well as unto the entire organism. Each human being is only as alive as these units are alive, no more—no less.

The Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health is pleasant and agreeable. Through it, you positively put yourself in harmony with the forces of Life and thus, you cause them to cure for you, heal for you, work for you, function for you and manifest power and supremacy for you. It makes the Creative Principle of life your servant and you the Master of your health, life, conditions and destiny.

Through this Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health, anyone can rid self permanently, of nervousness, weakness, congestion, indigestion, rheumatism, constipation, tuberculosis, catarrh, nervous exhaustion and every weakness of male and female.

This Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health gives imunity from every disease of the inferior life—colds, tuberculosis, pneumonia, nervous prostration, auto-intoxication, biliousness, sour stomach, acidity, asthma, malnutrition, anemia, sleeplessness, morbidness and impotency.

The Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health produces new and superior arteries, new and superior veins, new and superior heart, new and superior lungs, new and superior glands, new and superior organs, new and superior cells, and a new and superior organism and powers of every kind.

This Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health contains no disadvantages—it has no drawbacks. Remember it requires no time, no exercise, no dieting, no drugging, no believing, no changing—nothing but advantages and gratification through and through. It superiorizes health and life—the results are immediate—anyone can use it.

I prophesy that the Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health will drive every disease weakness and delusion entirely from the human race.

I am positive it is destined to banish weakness and delusion from the human race by making supreme health and supreme reality inevitable.

Through the Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health, anyone may have the health and vitality of a lion or a tiger, without the inconvenience of being a wild animal, compelled to live in a wild state of Nature, with all of the inconveniences—the natural law that keeps a lion and a tiger vital and well is now yours, free to use.

Tigers and lions living in a wild state of Nature do not look out for their health—this natural law looks out for their health. They do not run from one doctor to another or take pills and powders and try out remedies. They put the responsibility for their health on this natural law—you may do the same through this Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health.

It is no longer necessary for anyone to spend money for treatments and doctors and drugs and dieting and books and systems and lessons and cures and pills and devices, because perfect and supreme health and life are absolutely free through the Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health.

Why be weak, why be ill, why be fat, why be thin, when you may, absolutely free, become in every way, perfect and supreme through the Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health?

The Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health yields amazing nerve force, amazing energy, amazing vitality and extraordinary power of every character of mind and body—a new and superior life.

Through the Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health, you may have all of the benefits of exercise, without exercise or its disadvantages; all of the benefits of conscious deep breathing with none of the disadvantages; the full and complete benefit of every vitamine and organic iron without drugs or dieting; all of the benefits of medicines and drugs with none of the disadvantages of medicines and drugs; all of the benefits of auto-suggestion, hypnotism and psychology, without the disadvantages of auto-suggestion, hypnotism and psychology; all of the benefits of dieting and every other kind of treatment, device or assistance, with none of the disadvantages.

The Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health will banish high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, "old age," nerve-exhaustion and tuberculosis from the human race.

Perfect health prevents all diseases of an infectious and contagious character—all of the diseases that thrive in inferior organisms. Every disease fails when it attacks an organism fully fortified by the Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health.

The Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health can so energize, vitalize and vivify every one of the twenty-five thousand quadrillions of living beings or units in your body, as to make ill health absolutely impossible, and, at the same time, giving you a new meaning for life, health, power and gratification.

There exists in every living being or thing, a creative, curative, healing, thinking, knowing and acting Force. This force acts only in terms of reactions. The Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health arouses within it, the highest type of reactions—all of this without waste of time or any active effort or exercise of any character.

Swoboda has discovered this Natural Law which energizes, vitalizes and enlivens every one of the living units in the human body. Through the Law, you actually harness the creative and living power of the creative force of life. You attain results accordingly as you demand.

Swoboda has discovered that every quality and power and process and function of mind and body arises out of, and springs from, one source. Swoboda has discovered the Law through which this "source" is harnessed and capitalized without effort.

Swoboda offers this secret to you absolutely free. There are no "conditions" or "strings" attached to this offer.

The Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health is most marvelous, most simple, most subtle, and most powerful. It is the Law of creative power.

Remember there is nothing to buy, nothing active to do, nothing to study, nothing to believe, no time to waste, no habits to give up, nothing to lose—there is no mystery—it is merely a natural Law.

If you are not enjoying life to the full—if you are in any way handicapped—if you are not in possession of all of the powers of mind and body in the highest degree, you owe it to yourself to at once procure for yourself, free of charge, the Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health.

Remember that demonstration and results are immediate.

If you wish to feel newly alive, newly vital, newly ambitious, newly and supremely well, send your name to Swoboda today. Swoboda may not always be in a position to give free, to Humanity this Law of supreme life and health.

The Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health creates perfect health just as heat converts rigid ice into yielding water.

It is a perfectly natural phenomena—demonstrably true, yet so marvelously simple, as to be almost unbelievable.

It tranforms the gloom of disease into the bloom of health, as the rays of the spring sun transform the dead soil into a "sea" of luxuriant vegetation. It is destined to revolutionize human health and happiness—Humanity.

Any one—male or female—above fifteen years of age is eligible to receive this marvelous secret absolutely free.

Publishers' Note:—When you receive the Swoboda Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health, it will be the Principle itself—not merely information about it or how to ultimately get it—you will possess it—there is nothing for you to buy. Are you fit or unfit to live? Test yourself by this Natural Law of Supreme Life and Health. Swoboda has priceless secrets for every human being who wishes to be happier, healthier, more vital and more successful in a new degree.

Read what Florence Nash says of Pond's Two Creams

When oil insists on coming through the powder

YOU powder with such infinite care and yet a few minutes after you know your nose is shining!

Perhaps your whole face shines. Perhaps you think you have the kind of face that just won't stay powdered.

But there is not actually any such kind.

When your skin is so extravagantly oily it is a sign that your cleansing is not properly removing the excess oil from the glands. You can give your face a cleansing that leaves the pores free of oil as well as dirt. And you can finish with an oil-less cream that will keep your face delightfully fresh from morning till night.

TRY THIS FAMOUS METHOD to keep your face charmingly fresh

Tonight try the two creams that are based on the two great essentials for keeping the skin fresh and clear. You will find them most wonderful in results.

Do this tonight. With a piece of moistened cotton or with the finger tips apply Pond's Cold Cream freely. This very fine oil softens the skin so that it can penetrate every pore, and takes out dirt and excess fat together. Remove the cream with a soft cloth. It is so light it wipes entirely off, leaving your skin fresh and dry—never heavy with cream. Do this twice. Now your pores are free.

Then in the morning. Smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream over your whole face. You can use plenty of it because it has no oil. Now if you wish, rouge—powder. How charming your face looks in the mirror—exquisitely fresh. It will stay that way all day.

Florence Nash says of these two creams: "I like Pond's Cold Cream because it leaves my face feeling so refreshed—not heavy and oily. And Pond's Vanishing Cream really keeps my skin fresh all day. It keeps the powder on beautifully."

Use this method yourself every day. Buy both creams tonight in jars or tubes in any department store or drug store. Their delicate texture cannot clog your pores or grow hair. The Pond's Extract Company, 131 Hudson Street, New York.

Fifty jumps without stopping! Can she do it? Has she the endurance, the reserve strength?

It is estimated that one child out of four is malnourished and, therefore, has less than normal weight, strength and endurance.

One important cause of this malnutrition is deficient foods—foods that lack the vital element which is found in such great abundance in Yeast Foam Tablets.

Have your children start eating these tablets today. They're unexcelled for poor appetite, indigestion, and for helping change food into robust strength and vigorous health.

Yeast Foam Tablets are not a medicine; they are a pure, wholesome, palatable, tonic food made of selected yeast. For this reason and because our yeast doesn't cause gas, it is safe for children as well as adults.

Now I ask a favor of the ladies

I have a great delight—an olive oil shampoo for them

V. K. CASSADY, B. S., M. S., Chief Chemist

Dear Madam:

Your husband knows me the chief chemist at Palmolive. I have just given him a new delight: a gentler, quicker shaving cream.

Now I have as great a joy for you. A gentle shampoo olive oil! that does not make hair dry and brittle, that leaves it soft and gleaming.

The favor I ask is that you try it. And then give me your opinion.

I asked 1000 women

Recently I asked over 1000 women what they wanted most in a shampoo. They named but one requirement. But as yet had failed to find it.

A thorough cleanser that would take out all grime and foreign matter yet which would not take away the life and lustre that adds so much to charm.

Scores of scalp experts agreed. They said ordinary shampoos were too harsh. And advised the oil shampoo but made a point of olive oil.

So the olive oil shampoo

Now I offer you the olive oil shampoo world famous for you to use at home.

After the ordinary harsh shampoo, results will be a revelation. You will note them in your mirror. Your friends will note them.

And then you will do as thousands have done thank me for a new delight.

Creations of Louis Philippe

Angelus ROUGE INCARNAT

At last—the perfect rouge—a paste rouge—so nearly indelible that it stays on under conditions which make ordinary rouges smear, streak or disappear! In three natural shades—Light, Medium and Dark.

50¢ the case

Angelus LIP STICK

Like Angélus Rouge Incarnat, Angélus Lip Stick is as nearly indelible as can possibly be made, and it will not smear or cake. It spreads smoothly and quickly and appears neither over-brilliant nor artificial! In an exquisite gilt-metal case. Two shades—Dark for Day—Light for Evening use.

$1.00 the stick

Angelus WATER PROOF LEMON VANISHING CREAM

This new creation of Louis Philippe is a day-time cream that serves as a base for rouge—and powder, too—and protects the skin against sun and wind. It also whitens the skin so marvelously that very little face-powder is required and that which is used adheres perfectly!

In dainty handy-top jars, $1.00 the jar.

Have You Seen the New 'Foulard' and Flower Patterns?

WHEN you think of Lingette, do you think of it as being made only in delicate tints—for lingerie, negligees, bloomers, pajamas, etc.—or have you seen the charming new 'foulard' flower printed designs, and the high colors?

So many women have made exquisite undergarments of Lingette. They have proved its sturdy wear-resistance. They know that Lingette can be washed and ironed on its right side without losing its shimmering, silk-like surface.

Lingette

Everybody thinks it's silk

Month by month, new designs are being evolved—for children's dresses, little boy's suits, men's shirts, party frock foundations, in addition to dainty underthings of all kinds. Right now the stores have new colors to show you.

Ask for it by the name, "Lingette," and see that the material you buy has "Lingette" on the selvage. No garment is a true Lingette garment unless it has the "Lingette" label.

A slow daily poisoning that wrecks even the strongest constitution—

The first symptoms may not seem alarming. Headache—a touch of indigestion—an "off-day" every week or so—thousands of people don't even suspect that anything serious is developing.

Then comes the day when growing ill-health and irritability lead them to their doctor's office. The examination—and the verdict: chronic disease has already fastened upon them.

And when they ask the reason—"Constipation," says the doctor. "Day by day it has been distilling poisons into your blood. Your body is never free from them. This is the result."

The real reason why thousands suffer

Constipation is becoming more common every year. Our whole way of living is unnatural today.

Our work demands less and less physical exertion. And instead of the coarse, raw foods of the forest for which our bodies were built, modern civilization demands a more delicate, concentrated diet, which leaves the muscles of our intestines with no real work to do.

Day by day these muscles get softer and flabbier. There is nothing to stimulate them to a complete thorough removal of the waste which the body produces constantly every day. Consequently, even though they may act with fair regularity, they are often leaving much of the waste behind, to decay and form phenol—one of the deadliest poisons known.

Useless to try to blast a way through

Drugs and cathartics are worse than useless, for their artificial irritation weakens the intestines still more—till at last the muscles refuse to respond at all.

What this does to the muscles of your arm, Fleischmann's Yeast does to the muscles of your intestines—gives them normal, healthy exercise

The only way to cure constipation permanently is by exercising the intestinal muscles as Nature intended.

That is why physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast today—not as a medicine but as a fresh corrective food which gives the intestinal muscles regular, natural exercise.

Every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast consists of millions of tiny living plants, which mix with the waste products in the colon, softening them and increasing the bulk of the waste. This greater bulk gently encourages the muscles to act, and at the same time strengthens them by offering just the resistance they need.

Your own physician will heartily endorse this principle of regularly exercising the intestinal muscles as the only way to relieve constipation and all its evils.

Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast—yeast in its natural fresh form. Recent experiments have shown that yeast corrects constipation only when its cells are alive and active—and that it loses its power when these cells are "killed" and dried.

Fleischmann's Yeast is in no sense a purgative and does not produce immediate violent action. It is a nourishing food—not digestion-disturbing medicine—and like any other food, it must be eaten regularly to secure results.

Eat at least 2 or 3 cakes a day—plain or dissolved in water, milk or fruit juices—preferably half an hour before a meal, or the last thing at night. If you eat it plain, follow with a glass of water. Get several cakes at a time—they will keep in a cool, dry place for several days. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast. All grocers have it.

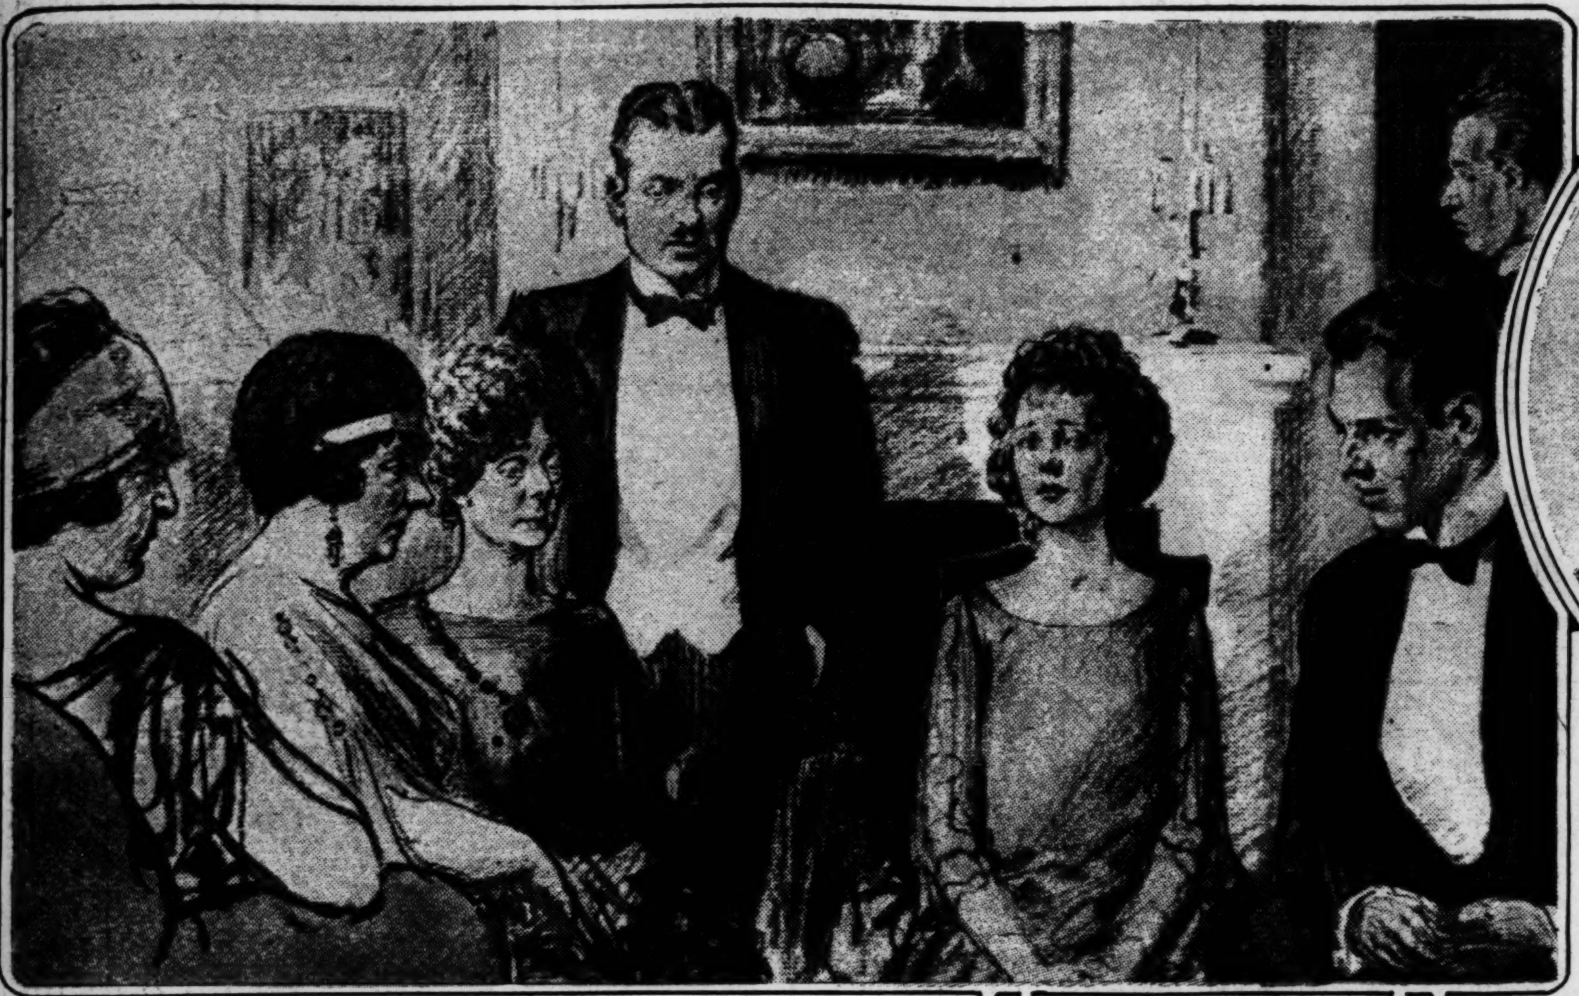
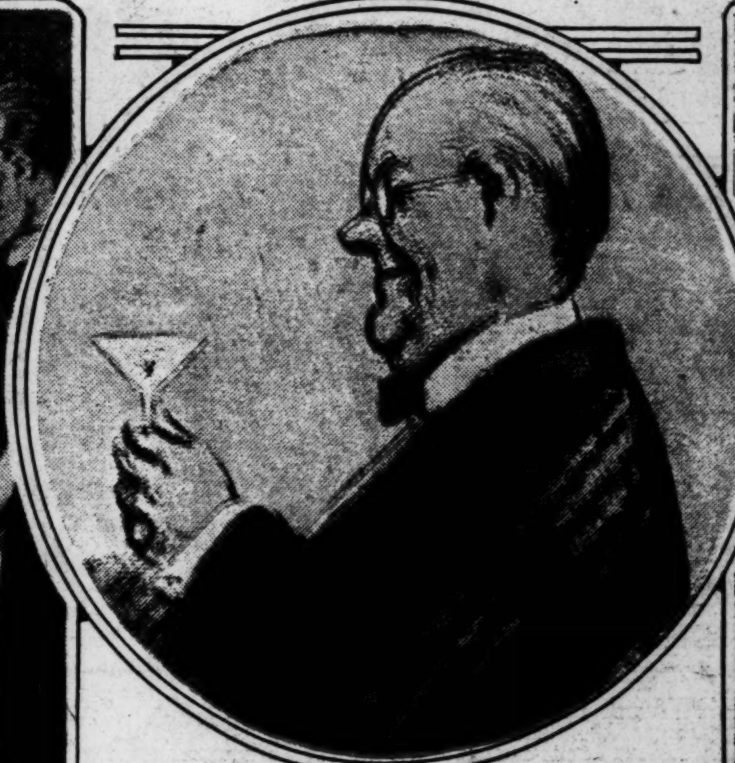
DINING OUT

(COPYRIGHT.)

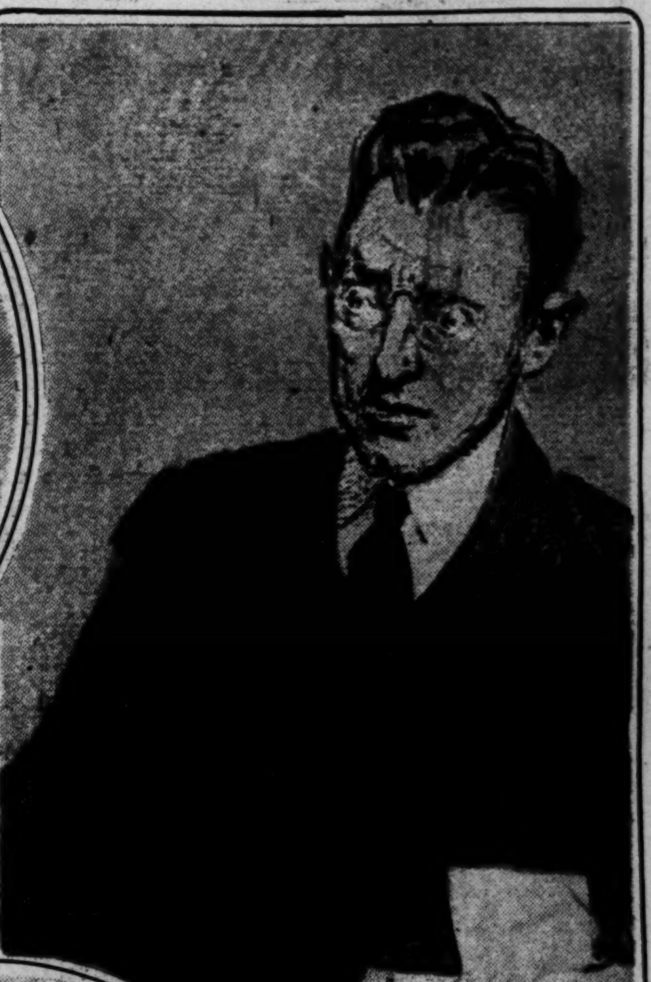
By W. E. HILL



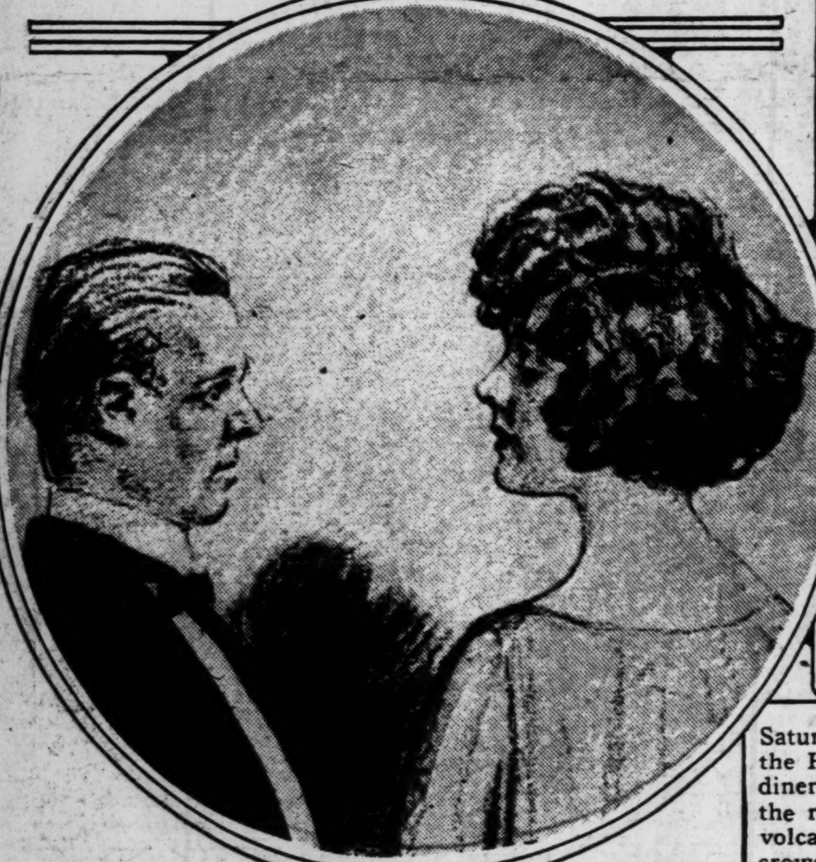
That terrible before-dinner moment when the guests, one and all, are brought face to face with the fact that there are to be no cocktails before, and probably nothing to help break the ice during dinner.



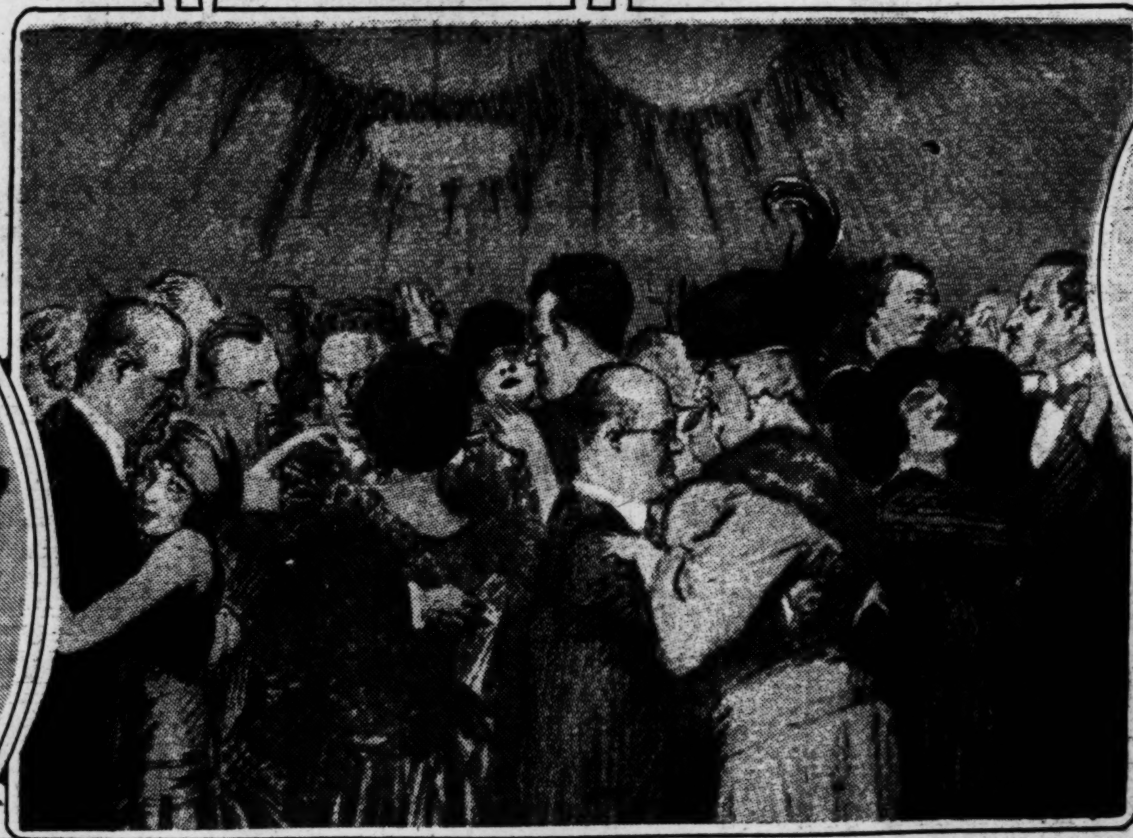
The genial host. It's up to him to do the honors when the cocktails are raised on high. Of course the old-fashioned way is to say, "Here's how," and let it go at that. The comic host, however, likes to vary the formula with, "Here's to crime," or "Here's to the days that was."



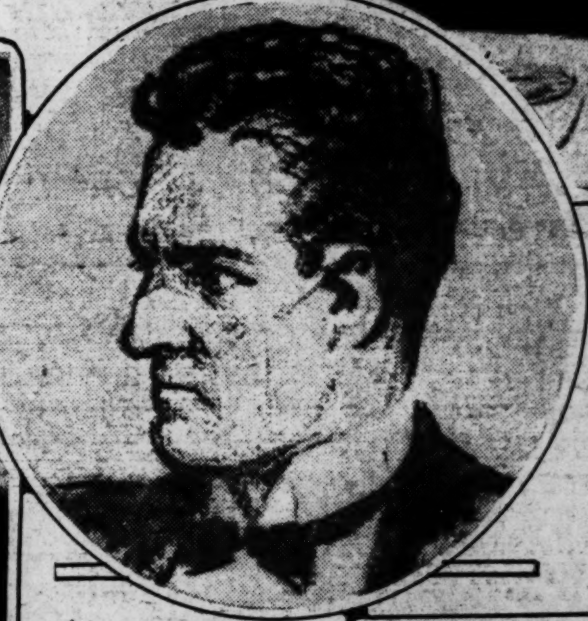
Joel is wining and dining friends in a restaurant—the sunken Grecian garden room of the Hotel Slam-Bang to be exact—and that terrible sensation is upon him that comes to every man just before looking at the check. Suppose it should be five hundred dollars? Or a thousand dollars? Or suppose his wallet has been rifled?



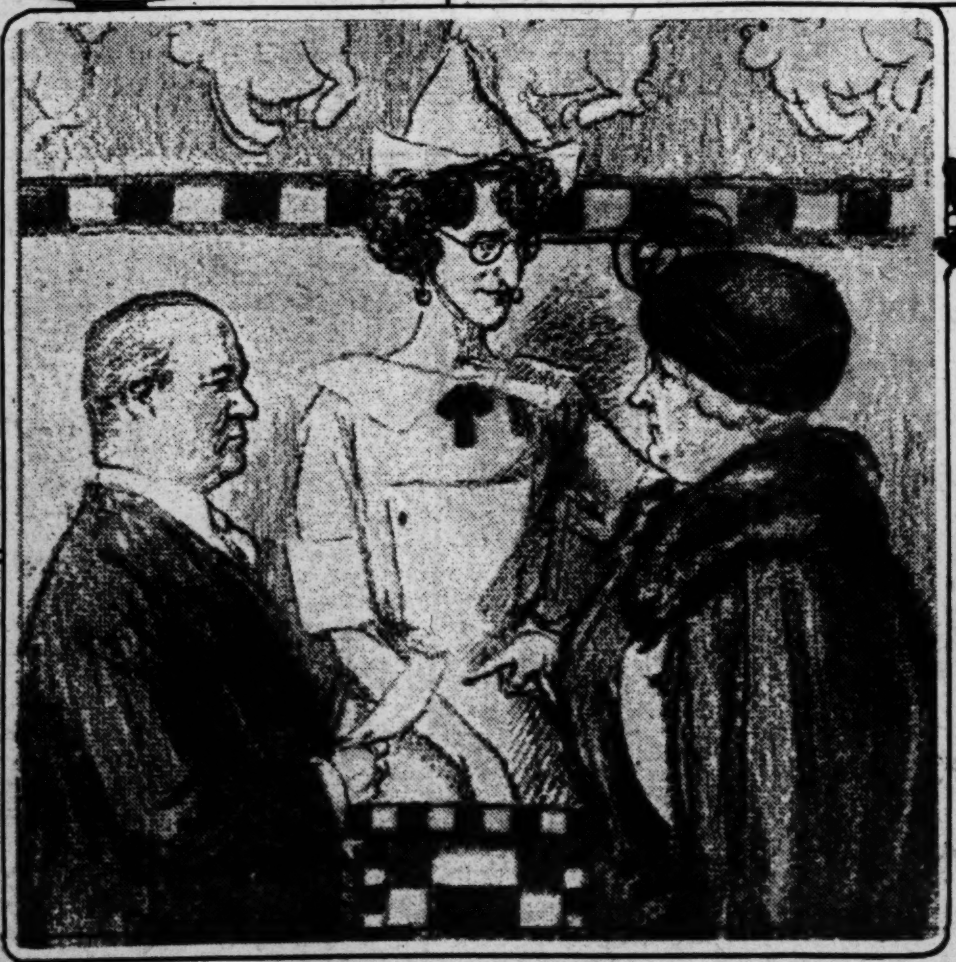
The girl with the snappy conversational line trying out on the bashful young man. "The minute you came into the room," the snappy girl is saying, "I thought, 'Now that's the type I could fall in love with,' now you tell me what you thought when you saw me." The bashful young man would sell his soul to think of a neat comeback, but he can't. Besides, he lunched frugally, and the cocktail has gone headwards, and his speech is thickening.



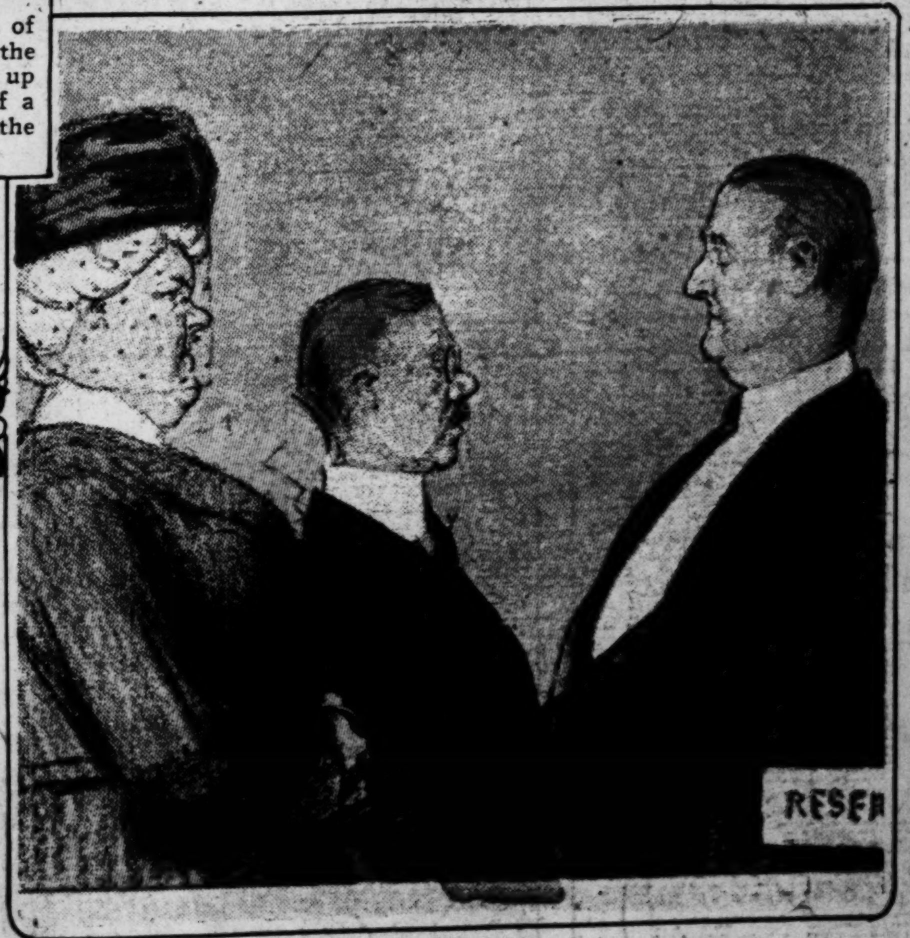
Saturday night diners out in the Volcano room of the Hotel Plastoria. For the entertainment of the diners and dancers the management has fixed up the room just like the interior of the crater of a volcano. It's a great success as you can see by the crowded dance floor.



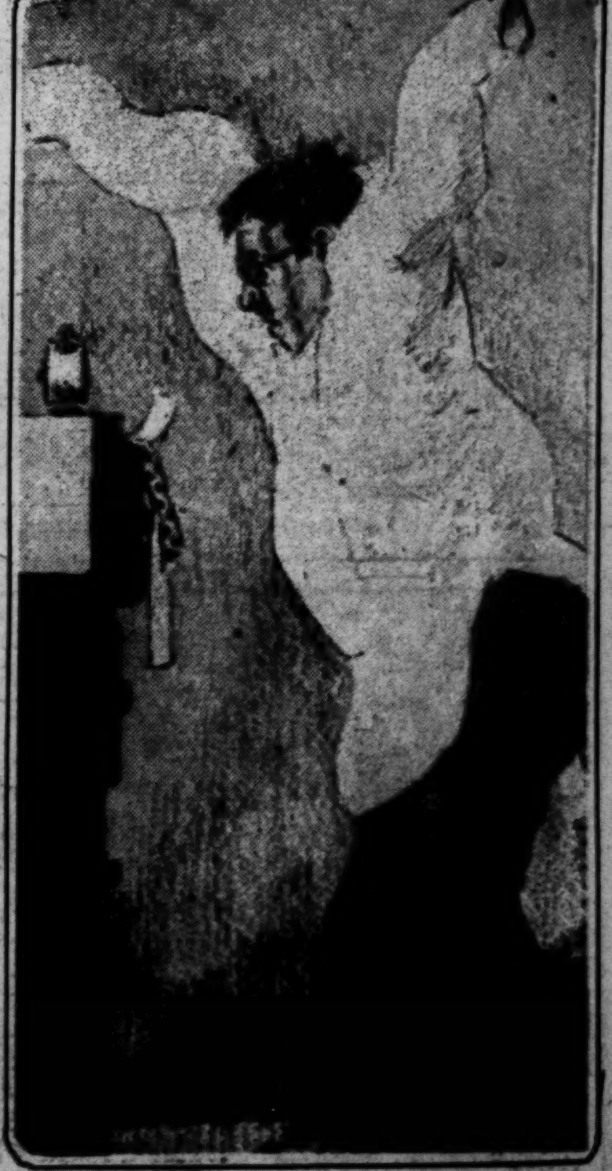
The piercing glance that is passed from husband to wife—a glance which says plain as day, "You see! I was right—I didn't need to get into this dinner jacket!"



The cook's night out. Fortunately there's a cute little tea room around the corner—the Teeny Weeny Tea Room by name. Mr. and Mrs. Coakley are obviously not the right size for a little tea room. The waitress is busy explaining that nothing is left but cold ham.



Why is it that when Mr. and Mrs. Arthur T. Sodaberg dine out of a spring evening the head waiter, after the most casual of glances, leads them in and out, past the good empty tables to the far off table right slam up against the pantry door, where all the busboys brush past with the service plates and the used dishes?



Portrait of a young man who is always late, dressing for an early dinner party. He'll never make it. The only clean shirt—and even that has the imprint of a shoe tree across the bosom—is one of those good old over-the-head garments.

THE MUSICAL MILLERS
I'VE BEEN INVITED TO PUT IN THE NIGHT WITH THE BOYS HERE AT THE SMOKER— NOW RUN ALONG!
YES DEAR.
PARDON ME - I'VE BEEN STRUCK WITH THE STRIKING RESEMBLANCE WE BEAR TO EACH OTHER - DO YOU WANT TO EARN AN EXTRA TWENTY DOLLARS BEFORE YOU LEAVE TOWN? COME UP TO THE CARD-ROOM— I'LL EXPLAIN!
WE CERTAINLY DO LOOK LIKE TWO PEAS IN A POD— TWENTY DOLLARS? I'M YOUR MAN - WHAT'S THE LAY?
I HEARD YOU SAY YOU'RE GOING TO MAKE A NIGHT OF IT— THAT'S JUST WHAT I'D LIKE TO DO, BUT I'M AFRAID TO FACE MY WIFE IN THE MORNING!
I GET YOU— YOU WANT ME TO GO UP THERE AND FACE THE MUSIC-FOR YOU!!
IT'S SEVEN O'CLOCK! I THINK YOU OUGHT TO GO UP THERE NOW AND BLUFF HER OUT— HERE'S YOUR TWENTY!
THANKS— I'LL BE RIGHT BACK AND REPORT, AND BELIEVE ME SHE'LL BE EATING OUT OF YOUR HAND WHEN YOU GET HOME!
I CAN SEE HIM NOW! —THAT IDEA OF MINE WAS AN INSPIRATION!
HEY! I WANT TWENTY DOLLARS MORE! —AND I'VE GOT A GOOD MIND TO GIVE YOU A LICKING IN THE BARGAIN!
YOU'LL HAVE TO LICK ME! I CAN'T GO HOME WITHOUT A SCRATCH WITHOUT DOING SOME TALL EXPLAINING!
HA! THAT'S NONE OF MY AFFAIR! I'M OFF THE JOB! YOU GO GET YOURS WHERE I GOT MINE!
AW LISTEN!
OUT OF MY WAY, YOU BIG PIECE OF CHEESE, BEFORE I LICK THE STUFFIN' OUT OF YOU!
SNAP!
Gus Mager
THANKS!

a rear yard at 1368 Belt avenue, n
Minerva avenue.

The shot which killed Carroll fired by Riek at a negro youth wh the two had been questioning in alley, and who had twisted out of coat, and thus had broken a from Carroll. Riek and Carroll lowed the negro over a fence into yard, and Riek fired twice as negro dodged behind a shed.
second bullet entered Carroll's h as he appeared from behind shed. The brain was pierced,
Carroll fell dead, still holding negro's coat.
